Services Conducted For Wm. Huggan Killed On Seven Bridge Road Monday

DRIVER RELEASED ON BAIL SET AT $1,500

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon for William Huggan, four years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Huggan, of Seven Bridge Road, who died in the Overlook Hospital Monday morning at 9:10 o'clock as a result of injuries he sustained a half-hour earlier when struck while playing in the street at Maple Avenue and Seven Bridge road by an automobile, driven by Mrs. Marion Rendell, 35, of Valley Road, Watchung. Interment was in the Fairview Cemetery, in Westfield. The Rev. E. J. A. St. Louis, pastor of the Vaux Hall Baptist Church, officiated.

Mrs. Rendell was released at the office of Prosecutor Abe J. David of Elizabeth, in the afternoon, on $1,500 bail, after a technical charge of manslaughter had been lodged against her by Chief of Police M. C. Runyon of the local department.

The boy was taken to the hospital by R. C. James, of Euclid Avenue, Summit, and Marcus Tutella, of 539 South Nineteenth street, Newark, and died shortly after his arrival there, with a fractured skull, broken jaw and all his left ribs crushed. Mrs. Rendell, prostrate by the shock, was arrested by Patrolman Albert A. Sarge and taken to headquarters.

According to Mrs. Rendell's statement as given to the police, she was driving toward Newark when she saw two boys on the right side of the road, starting to cross. She blew her horn and slowed the car. The boys, apparently willing to wait until the cars went by, stood there. Suddenly, one of the boys, Huggan, dashed out, and Mrs. Rendell said it was too late to stop. She swerved to the left, and the boy ran into the right side of the car, and was knocked to the ground. The automobile stopped about a car's length away from the boy.

The other boy, Edward Logan, five years old, of Seven Bridge Road, was unharmed.

Mr. James, who was driving in back of Mrs. Rendell's machine, signed a sworn statement that the woman's machine was going slowly, and that he had been impatient to pass her. He as well as the other machine had come to a stop at Seven Bridge road and Morris Avenue, when signalled by Patrolman Sarge, who was on duty there. He said he saw the boys at the side of the road, and his attention was averted, and in an instant, he saw Mrs. Rendell's car swerve and the body of the Huggan boy in the street.

WOMEN'S SOCIETY PRESENTS COMEDY

"Kitchen Cabinet Band" Is Enacted By Methodist Church Group

More than two hundred persons were present at the musical comedy, "The Kitchen Cabinet Band," presented last Friday evening in the Municipal Building, under the auspices of the Young Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church. The proceeds, net profit $41, was turned over to the building fund of the church.

The play was different than the ordinary presentation, instruments used consisting of all kinds of kitchen utensils. It was well received, affording numerous comical antics. The members of the band wore white skirts and red coats. A romance was read throughout the play by Miss Thoebe Briggs.

The interpretation was given by the orchestra, and the pieces played were as follows: "Clemence," "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party," "Robin Adair," "Juanita," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," "The Girl I Left Behind," "Home, Sweet Home," "Coming Through the Rye," "Maryland," "Marching Through Georgia," and the "Star Spangled Banner."

Mrs. Frederick R. Morrison was the conductor, and a bouquet of vegetables were presented to her. Miss Juanita Gross, dressed as an Italian girl, with a monkey and a hand organ, sang, "O, Sole Mio," while the "monkey," impersonated by Jean Burd, collected money from members of the audience.

The members of the band were Miss Meta Dillon and Mrs. Howard Crowell, drums; Miss Marion E. Ishola, Mrs. H. Leslie Chisholm, and Mrs. J. Grant Thomas, trombone; Mrs. Edwin S. Boerries and Mrs. Mark M. Brady, flutes; Mrs. Edward McArthur, piccolo; Mrs. George Phillips, Miss Anna Demman and Mrs. William Rexer, cornets; Mrs. Ranson Randall and Mrs. Harold Huefl, violins; Mrs. Frank Burd, harp; Mrs. Le Roy Morrison, bagpipe; and Mrs. Gordon Christensen, piano.

The play was held under the direction of Miss Grace Switzer of Chatham, who successfully directed "The Tom Thym Wedding," some time ago.

WILL YOUR CHILD BE NEXT?

The front page of this paper contains a news item entitled, "Rites For Child Auto Victim Held Wednesday." The child was a mere infant, four years of age. Isn't something radically wrong in the picture which this story calls to the mind?

The driver of the death car was charged with manslaughter. But no criminal action can recreate life into that little mangled body. Penal procedure is meagre solace to the heartaches of the mother and father. And yet, IS the driver WHOLLY TO BLAME? Doesn't partial responsibility rest with the parents?

Few make any serious attempts to keep their children off the highways. When courteously cautioned by the local police, adults are too prone to sneeringly guffaw. An adult pedestrian should remember that his manner of crossing the street will be an example to children who watch him. The street was never intended for a playground and so long as it carries traffic it cannot be a safe place to play. Being a safe walker in the streets is part of being a good citizen of the community.

Daily, for almost three years, seven hundred school children have crossed the main thoroughfares of Springfield without a casualty, thanks to the police and school authorities. Although every effort is being made to cope with this vital problem, increasing traffic volume makes this more difficult. Nevertheless, there is little excuse for an injury to a pupil attending school. A child from any section of Springfield may cross the business highway under the supervision of an officer. A policeman is stationed at Morris avenue and Seven Bridge road. One is also at the church corner and another at Morris and Mountain avenues. In addition to this precaution, local school authorities are constantly bringing to the attention of pupils the necessity for crossing at the proper crosswalk.

But greater help and assistance is needed. And this should come from parents. Does your child cross at a policed crosswalk? Do you caution him or her to obey the officer's signal. Do you instruct them to stay out of the streets while at play? It is well to know that the driver of a car between intersections has the right of way. If your infant child is injured at other than a crosswalk you are morally guilty of criminal negligence.

Teach the child to cross at policed crosswalks and STAY ALIVE.

Rambling Around SPRINGFIELD

The whole town's talking—the tragic accident of little William Huggan, four years old, who was killed by a motorist on Seven Bridge road Monday morning while playing in the streets. Children are human, they like to play and play, but there is a certain limit to their short-lived joys and contentment if they venture into the danger zone. Parents and parents only, should be censured if their children be permitted to walk in dangerous highways where cars go whizzing by. Springfield streets are situated in such a way that every one of the three important crossings, Seven Bridge road and Morris avenue, Mountain avenue and Morris avenue, both on the corner and in front of the post office, and at the corner of Main street and Morris avenue, are extreme hazards and people, both adults and children, should be careful when reaching these zones. Policemen are stationed at each of these crossings at different times of the day, and still children, in crossing at these points, dash without regard for their own personal safety.

Parents must teach children to use due care in crossing streets, else we will read about another incident relative to Monday's affair. That represented the first accident of its kind in Springfield in two years. Unless proper means are exercised now, perhaps there will be more. Wherever there are children and automobiles, and as long as children are careless in crossing highways, there will be accidents. Remember, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

How many persons in town would enjoy watching a baseball game right here in town as they did several years ago when the local nine was a representative in the Lackawanna Bowling League. The Springfield team was a winning one, and captured the league pennant two years. Crowds attended every game played here, and suddenly the team disbanded. The Rambling Reporter hears everywhere, "Why can't Springfield have another baseball team?" The members of that team of several years ago are "meandering" on other nines, but certainly they would be glad to represent their own home town. This is February—everyone is thinking about baseball, the nation's pastime. If interest is warm, not hot, but just moistened, Springfield will soon hear "PLAY BALL."

"Smilin' Through" will be presented at the Roth-Lyric next Thursday, February 13th, at 8:30 p. m.

It will be remembered that this is the play which Jane Cowl registered a great success in, and which so endeared her to the theatre-going public.

ers of what is best in theatricals a rare treat.

The story is of a beautiful young woman whose love for a young man is tabooed in the eyes of an old and stubborn uncle, who forbids their marriage.

The next and third offering of the John E. Coutts players at the Roth-Lyric, Summit, is announced as "Meet the Wife," an excellent comedy that ran for a year at the Morosco Theatre, New York City.

AT THE STRAND

J. Harold Murray and Norma Terris are co-starred in "Cameo Kirby," which will be seen and heard at the Roth Strand, Summit, today and tomorrow.

Harry Langdon in "Skirt Shy," a two-part farce comedy conceit, stands out prominent as a part of the short subject contingent of today and tomorrow's entertainment scheme. Robert Benchley's one-reel monologues have in "Stewed, Fried and Boiled" been extended to two reels. "The Terrible ... andor" is the label pasted on this one.

"The Last Alarm," featuring Rex Lease, and the story of the life of a fireman on and off duty, will be this Saturday's matinee special.

Janet Gaynor, who has the featured speaking role in the Movietone talking picture, "Christina," at the Roth Strand next Monday and Tuesday, has reached the topmost pinnacle of screen prominence within four years of her first appearance before the camera.

Abraham Lincoln's celebrated address to the Union Army after the Battle of Gettysburg is the chief outstanding screen offering on the Roth-Strand's Golden Holiday Program for Lincoln's Birthday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. This address of Lincoln's is considered one of the world's greatest gems in history record, and as to literary value as well. Its reproduction as a talking picture presentation is both timely and a valuable asset to any program at any and all times.

"Wise Girls," a screen adaptation of the popular stage play, "Kempy," is the feature picture attraction.

Health and Efficiency and NOT Jazz Are REAL Ideals of Young America

THREE GIRLS and three boys, partners in a series of robberies, were arrested recently.

They had burst into notoriety under blazing headlines that spoke of them as "representatives of the jazz age," "flapper bandits" and the like.

This little group of youngsters was representative NOT of present-day youth but merely of a MINOR PART of present-day youth.

They represented that small section which thinks that life holds no thrills but wild living. To this group belong the young men and women who foolishly think that happiness comes out of gin-bottles. Extreme members of the group develop a craving for body-wrecking drugs in a final effort to taste some new pleasure their jaded senses may have missed.

Because their actions are sometimes startling, these youths have the spotlight of attention focused upon them.

MISTAKEN older people sometimes think that all boys and all girls are "wild." Not wild enough always to commit crimes and to stage nauseous orgies, but wild enough to be totally frivolous.

This belief is miles away from the truth.

Modern youth is more earnest and more straightforward in its aims than any previous generation has been. And on the stage of youthful life much hard thinking and solid accomplishment are going on.

Out in the spotlight a ginny few waver in a drunken dance, but for every one of that type there are thousands of the sincere, earnest type, reflecting, studying and building themselves up for great careers in this modern world of great opportunities.

It takes but a glance at the long lists of boys and girls enrolled as students in serious courses to show that the main idea in the mind of the present-day youth is efficiency.

Nor does efficiency stop at mental equipment. It takes in the even more necessary asset of physical equipment.

FORMERLY, young folks considered the ideal life to be one of idle luxury, free from exertion as largely as possible.

Girls of a comparatively recent period waddled around in long, encumbering dresses and wore devitalizing, tight-fitting waists which threw their vital organs out of shape.

Now girls and boys alike revel in the splendid pastime of athletic contests. Tennis, golf, swimming, hiking, boating and a thousand and one other active pastimes develop lungs and muscles and organs and minds.

The great group of youths dedicated to physical and mental efficiency is the group that truly represents the present age.

BECAUSE of knowledge of truth girls and boys are not bound by the restraints and prohibitions that made life a hypocritical endurance contest not so long ago.

Because of that same knowledge girls and boys enter the marital relationship with their eyes wide open to their responsibilities.

They know more than any preceding generation did about matters vitally important to the happiness of the individual and to the family. They realize that happy home life is dependent upon superb, radiant physical perfection in husband and wife.

They know that the real pleasures of life are the exquisite tingling of the senses in bodies alive with energy, in which every drop of blood literally pulsates with power.

Because this type of youth is the truly representative type of the present period, the Rev. David Berent is able to relate in today's GRAPHIC that flapper mothers are as fine mothers as the race has ever produced; loving their husbands with beautiful, enduring ardor and bearing and rearing children with the same intelligent love.

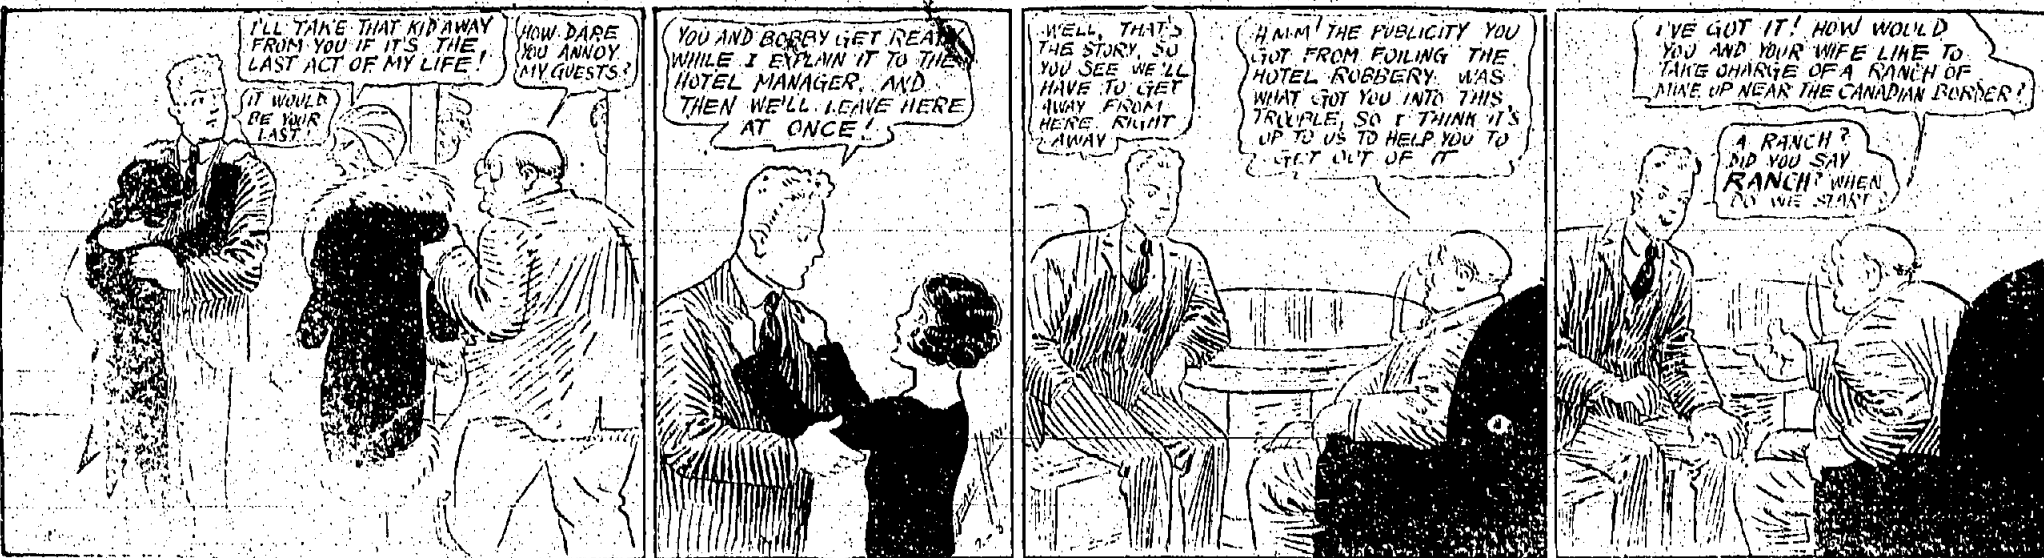

"The one surest way of perpetuating the romantic ideal is by demonstrative affection," this observer declares. And he should be an authority, for he has wedded 1,500 couples and has watched their careers.

Critics of the younger generation should keep these facts in mind. They might benefit from the knowledge.
