AFTER CELEBRATION EDITION

25,000 HERE TO SEE DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS

Celebration Programs Ends Monday Night at Flemer Oval

Close to 25,000 persons who were here Monday night in Flemer Oval at the fireworks display, marking the finale of the sesqui-centennial celebration program, were all of the unanimous opinion that the exhibition was one of the finest ever shown in this vicinity.

Beginning at 9:30 and ending an hour and a half later, every set shown provided the vast crowd of spectators with thrill after thrill. The most brilliant of all the fireworks shown included outlines of the Old Historical First Presbyterian Church, George Washington, a Colonial Soldier, a sham battle between the supposedly American and British forces, the dropping of Old Glory from the sky, attached to a parachute, after several shots had burst and many other spectacular scenes.

One excellent display shown was that of two characters riding on bicycles, dismounting and engaging in a harmless fistic encounter, while another disclosed various colors in all parts of the field.

As early as 7 o'clock, cars were jamming the streets nearby the scene of the exhibition, and at its climax, automobiles were parked deep in every street in Springfield, solidly on the ball field and between Short Hills avenue on the north and Washington avenue on the south, it was impossible to park any vehicle. According to some of Springfield's old residents there were never as many persons here in the township's history, not even excepting the celebration parade, held Saturday.

It was not until midnight that the entire jam of moving cars, was finally able to regulate itself and move freely.

VOTERS APPROVE NEW SCHOOL SITE

Ratify Location in "South Neighborhood," Returns, 70 to 47 Opposed

A school site in the "south neighborhood" was approved by Springfield voters by a count of 70 to 47, at a special school election held Wednesday night in the James Caldwell school. Of a total number of 118 votes, one was declared dead.

The local of the new site, which is not expected to be used for immediate needs, is located in South Springfield avenue, between State Highway No. 29, and Hillside avenue. It is approximately four and three-quarters acres, and has a frontage of 350 feet and a depth of 600 feet. The owners of the property are Mrs. Jennie B. Murray, who controls about four acres, while John A. Schaffert controls three-quarters of an acre. The purchase price is $16,500, payable over a term of eight years.

The average acre price is close to $3,500. The school board, realizing the rapid development of the section, urged the purchase, before land values would increase or a large proportion.

A small percentage of voters, cast ballots out of a total of 1848 registered voters, only six and one-half per cent expressing their opinion. According to the president of the board, Alvin H. Bos, that a small number turned out to vote was an indication that the majority of the school district voters approved the proposition.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the voters of this first district for their active part and also for the loan of their automobiles at the primary election on June 17.

JOHN A. FOURTNEY,
Rep. County Committeeman,
First District.

ALICE REED

The watch she is wearing was given her by the firemen for capturing first place in their contest.

S. A. R. DEDICATES GATE AT CEMETERY

Before a throng of 1,000 persons, the New Jersey Society, Sons of the American Revolution, held dedicatory exercises Sunday afternoon for the unveiling of a memorial tablet on a new gateway to the Revolutionary Cemetery of the Old First Presbyterian Church, on Main street.

The services marked the program for the second day of the three day celebration of the sesqui-centennial of the Battle of Springfield, being held under the auspices of the people of Springfield.

Previous to the dedication of the gateway, the annual program of the Passaic Valley Chapter, S. A. R., of Summit, commemorating the anniversary of the battle, was held in the Presbyterian Church, with the structure containing over 600 persons including members of the S. A. R., D. A. R., the congregation, and others.

The church services opened with a pledge to the flag by the president of the Passaic Valley Chapter, Harry A. Marshall, and was followed by the singing of the national anthem. The invocation was given by the Rev. George Tomeroy, Eastman, Chaplain of the New Jersey Society, S. A. R., and the pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. George A. Liggett, read the scripture lesson, and in a speech, asked that support be given to assist the patriotic societies in preserving the graves of the Revolutionary dead in the Cemetery, as well as the remains of others also there.

Fredrick de Garmo, Hahn, president of the state society, presided at the exercise, and introduced the principal speaker, the Rev. Frank Austin Smith, D.D., of Elizabeth, Past Chaplain General National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution. Mr. Smith took as his subject, "The 150th Anniversary of the Battle of Springfield," and stressed the part of the Colonials for the love of their homes, for freedom and loyalty, and declared that patriotism can be exhibited in this modern day by the selection of able representatives in the governing bodies of the national government, the state, county and municipal organizations.

Fourteen Legion Posts Are Included In 3-Mile Procession

MANY LOCAL FLOATS TAKE PART IN LINE

With a hot unmerciful sun beating down upon some 20,000 spectators, Springfield opened its three-day program of the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the Battle of Springfield last Saturday afternoon with a parade three miles long, winding through five miles of streets in Springfield and Millburn.

Fourteen American Legion units, with their dazzling uniformed drum and bugle corps, were the feature of the procession. Other groups taking part were representatives of the Boy Scouts, firemen, fraternal, civic and business associations from many municipalities in Northern New Jersey, including East Orange, Newark, Elizabeth, Woodbridge, Mont-

One of the most unique of the colonial floats, entered was that called "Jeremiah and Jonathan Mulford," showing two young Colonial boys leaving their homestead to fight in the Revolutionary War. The mother, illustrated by Miss Phoebe Briggs, stood at the entrance of the house waving to her two young sons, one fourteen and the other sixteen years old. It was a true scene, and Miss Briggs is a descendant of the Mulford family, in which the incident occurred.

The Goldingay Guards of the Newark Post, No. 20, marched after East Orange, and had twenty members in line. They captured first prize for the best uniformed drill team in the march.

The float of the Springfield Red Cross Chapter followed, containing three separate groups. The first entitled, "Lest We Forget," showed a nurse supporting a wounded soldier and sailor. The nurse was Mrs. Erwin S. Doerries, the soldier, Leslie Chisholm and the sailor, Leslie Joyner. The second group displayed a group of girls carrying the local branch's World War Service flag. White stars, denoting men who took part in the war and gold stars denoting those men who died in the Great struggle, were a part of the flag. The third group, was an automobile bearing one Gold Star Mother, Mrs. A. Palmer Brill, whose son, Budd, died of an illness in the War and Miss Marion Christolm, whose brother, Raymond, was

The leader of the second division was the drum and bugle corps of the Bayway Post, 130, of Elizabeth, dressed in flashy red and black uniforms, and "tin hats." This unit took third prize in their group, and contained more than twenty pieces. The Junior Order United American Mechanics followed, with a float, "The Spirit of Springfield of 1780," including two drummers and a fife. One of the drums was beaten by Albert Harrington, of Succasunna, N. J., a descendant of a Colonial soldier who beat it during the Battle of Springfield, and the other drum was one used by the Minute Men of Morris County during the Revolution. This captured first prize for the most unique colonial float, and was an entry of Success Council 170, of Millburn. The local council, clair, Summit, Millburn, Union, Irvington, Bloomfield, Plainfield, Caldwell, Menchen, Vanx Hall, Long Branch, Kenilworth, Carteret, Perth Amboy, Jersey City and Roselle.

More than 100 motorcycle policemen from all parts of this section were used to regulate traffic, and to maintain clear lines for the paraders. The reviewing stand in front of the Town Hall, was filled with judges, members of the celebration committee, and township officials.

Scheduled to start at 2 o'clock, it was not until two hours later that the marshal of the parade, Nicholas C. Schmidt, appeared on a mounted horse at Springfield Center. As he reached that point, the bells of the Old First Presbyterian Church tolled. He was escorted by Robert S. Burrell and Carl H. Flemer, also mounted on horses. Preceding the marshal were three members of Essex Troop, 102nd Cavalry of Newark, William Heffernan of that place, and Carlyle and Stanley Richards, both of Springfield.

The guest of honor, Captain Benjamin Dearing, 89 years old, sole survivor of the Edward G. Wade Post, G. A. R., of Springfield and Millburn, was seated in an automobile following the marshals, and he was accompanied by Richard T. Bunnell, a member of Guy Bosworth Post, American Legion, of Millburn.

The next two cars contained members of the Exempt Firemen's Association of Springfield. The drum and bugle corps of East Orange, Post 73, A. L., was next in line, and the members were attired in brilliant orange and black uniforms. This group, one of the largest corps in New Jersey, took first prize in its division.

The Goldingay Guards of the Newark Post, No. 20, marched after East Orange, and had twenty members in line. They captured first prize for the best uniformed drill team in the march.

The float of the Springfield Red Cross Chapter followed, containing three separate groups. The first entitled, "Lest We Forget," showed a nurse supporting a wounded soldier and sailor. Woodbridge Post 87, followed, with brown and gray fancy uniforms and twenty members in its drum and bugle corps. A float, "Miss Springfield," was next, with Miss Alice Reed dressed in a silver costume against a background representing a sunburst. The float, entered by the Andrew Wilson Company, was judged second most attractive.

The most attractive float in the parade was that of Continental Chapter, Order of Eastern Stars, of Millburn, titled, "The City of New York." It portrayed the ship Admiral Byrd used in his Antarctic Expedition, and carried upon its rails and spars long icicles. It was driven by Miss Evelyn Day.

Battle Hill No. 120, which entered a large red school house, was given first prize among the fraternal organizations.

Connecticut Farms Post, American Legion, of Union, which followed, was given a prize for having the largest number of non-uniformed members in line. The Boy Scouts were next, and Springfield took first prize, and Union second. The local boys entered their newly-formed bugle and drum corps, and close to 75 scouts were in line.

Bloomfield Post No. 120, American Legion, with its red-jacketed drum and bugle corps, took second prize in its division, and the members of the Millburn Fire Department, next in line with their three trucks, were given first prize among the firemen. Roselle was judged as second.

The entry of the F. & F. Nurseries, "After The Battle," was one of the most attractive floats in the line, and while it did not capture a prize, nevertheless, was given much applause. It represented a tent, with tired Revolutionary soldiers, lying on the grass nearby, with two guards on duty, although their heads were heavily bandaged, all resting after a skirmish.

The Patriotic Order Sons of America, which followed, was given second prize among the fraternal groups.

FLASHES ALONG THE LINE OF MARCH

About 11 o'clock, everything was quiet on Springfield's eastern front, only for one hour. Then the crowds began to assemble. As early as 1 o'clock, groups were making themselves comfortable in Morris avenue, near the Center, waiting for the parade to come.

No one could understand when the Springfield Police Force had been augmented. When an unfamiliar motorcycle cop was seen riding about town with the name "Irvington Police," on his vehicle, the explanation was given that he had become lost in the "wilds" of our fair township, or perhaps he had a day off and was coming to see the parade.

But the presence of a state trooper, big and burly, cycling around in his light blue uniform, patrolling on Flemer avenue, then in Morris avenue, did not help answering questions. "Where are all the police coming from?"

The flag decorations here, as well as in Millburn, were worthy of the occasion, and had Ludbergh or Admiral Byrd visited here the same day, no greater effort would have been expended in dressing up the towns.

Among the finest decorated places here in Springfield were the Morris Avenue Motor Car Company, the Brookside Building, Springfield Garage, not to forget the buildings on both sides of Morris avenue, between Mountain avenue and Flemer, as well as the homes of Dr. Morris and Carl H. Flemer.

In Millburn, beginning at the old historical Reeve house in Millburn avenue, near Vaux Hall road, and coming through to Millburn Center, every store and nearly each dwelling was gaily decorated.

Starting at the Union-Springfield line, at the Railway River, the actual scene of the American-British skirmishes, one could see many flags flying. One exceptionally dressed house was that of Father Larkin, in Morris avenue, opposite Colonial terrace. The Millennium Inn, several hundred feet ahead, was also draped with many American flags.

"What's that building across the street, with the red poster on its entrance, marked Historical Place No. 4?" asks one unknowing passerby.

"Why that's one of our famous landmarks, the old Revolutionary House. It's now owned by Benjamin Heard. Several cannon balls have been taken from its sides, and the holes are still there."

It is believed to be the oldest dwelling in Springfield, and according to local historical authorities, it was only due to the fact that several wounded Hessians were being cared for there, that the house was spared by the British when every other structure in town had been burned to the ground.

Venturing into the center of the town diner, everyone's gurgling his soup with speedy smoothness—half the coffee's in the cup, some of the mashed potatoes are still on the plate. Ask me another, "What the hurry?"

See that clock, it's getting close to 2—do you understand now. The parade should be here any minute. Haven't any time to waste. Strong! 2:15—2:30. Streets at the center are lined with spectators. Opposite the church some have gracefully reclined on the grass, 2:50, and no parade in sight. Say, is this a fake. Wasn't the march to started in the South Mountain Estates in Millburn, at 2 o'clock.

It's getting still and quiet. We hear a drum and bugle. 10,000 ears are strained to hear some louder sound. 4 o'clock and we see three Guardsmen mounted on cavalry reaching Springfield Center. As the noses of their horses point north on Morris avenue to Summit, the bells of the Old Historical First Presbyterian Church began slowly to ring. The towering figure of the marshal, Nicholas C. Schmidt, on a big brown bay horse, with the bells of the church ringing, would have made a picture for any artist to paint.

The two escorts to the marshal, my, but they look familiar. It was announced that Nicholas C. Schmidt would be the only marshal, but there's Carl H. Flemer and Robert S. Bunnell as escorts. The three appear to be good horsemen.

We're all ready for the big noise, and by the way, except for the Battle fought in 1780, and the sham battle of 1880, this is the biggest sound ever made since the first days of trench digging on the sanitary sewer. An exception however might be made for the fireworks display Monday night. This is without a doubt the latest splurge of boom-boom-boom ever heard in Springfield. Why the Battle of Springfield was considered tame in comparison to this.

Getting back to the parade, some of the attractive floats are coming in view. There's one, "Miss Springfield," with Alice Reed attired in a silver costume, and her little attendants, Miling Richards and Betty Sorge. It might take first prize among beautiful entries. It was entered by the Andrew Wilson Co.

One float, called "Jeremiah and Jonathan Mulford," is more known to the old timers than the new residents here, except to those who are well up on local Colonial "History." Miss Phoebe Briggs, who portrays the mother of the two young boys who are leaving to fight in the war, is a descendant of the Mulfords who lived in Springfield 150 years ago. It looked as if considerable effort had been made to equip the float with realism, and the work was not wasted. The actual experience of the scene of the mother and her two children is true, according to legend passed down through the years.

The Legionnaires in their flashing uniforms, "made" the parade, Orange Post, which took first prize, is said to have won 375 cups in competition of this sort. However, they were not outstanding. Other drum and bugle corps, threatened their record.

The Betty Nan Dress Shoppe float, "The Girl of Yesterday, 1780 and the Girl of Today, 1930," was certainly original. One half disclosed Miss Nan Flood, owner of the shop, as the modern girl, swinging a golf club, while the other, the Colonial Miss, was Miss Janet Roger, of Springfield. Other various organizations and business donated articles used on the float.

Springfield's Volunteer Firefighter held their own with the delegates of other places. Their apparatus and the number of men in line, deserved the prize, but it is believed that they did not receive an award due to the fact that they were from town.

Monuments and Memorials, gave a short address, and presented the gateway to Dr. Liggett, as a gift to the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Liggett made a speech of acceptance and expressed his thanks, as well as those of the members of his church.

The Rev. Hugh W. Dickinson, pastor of the St. Stephen's Episcopal Church of Millburn, gave the invocation, and the benediction was given by the Rev. Mr. Eastman.

The principal address, following the presentation, was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Wilbert Westcott, pastor of the Simpson Grace Methodist Episcopal Church of Jersey City, and the title of his oration was "America First."

He said, "The colonial soldier was the product of a great idea and the control of a great ideal, that of Liberty. Because of a great ideal and idea, and the conviction that they were fighting under the leadership of Almighty God, the Colonials were successful. Springfield's Colonial Soldier, silently yet eloquently, not only tells us that he was the product of a great idea and a great ideal, but that he is also a creature of a great conviction."

"The glory of American History has been that this great principle of freedom has been involved in every battle in which we have taken part; in 1776 it was that we might be a free and independent nation; in 1812, for the freedom of the seas; in 1861, the freedom of a down-trodden people; in 1898, for the freedom of a neighbor nation, and in 1916 to make the world safe for democracy."

P. O. S. A. Session Tues.

Camp 209, Patriotic Order Sons of America, will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night in the Municipal Building at 7:30 o'clock. Edward Ecker, president, will occupy that chair for his first session.

Members of the local Red Cross Branch, carrying their World War Service Flag, bearing white stars for Springfielders who went to War, and gold stars for those who died. The automobile in the rear contains one Gold Star mother, Mrs. A. P. Brill, and Miss Marion Chisholm, whose brother was killed in action.

CENSUS SHOWS 108 UNEMPLOYED HERE

One hundred and eight persons in Springfield are unemployed, according to the latest returns from the Census Supervisor, Peter J. Olde, of Elizabeth. The complete report, as issued from the Elizabeth office early this week, reads as follows:

The number of persons living in Springfield Township, county of Union, and State of New Jersey, and usually working at a gainful occupation, who were reported on the Unemployment Schedule, as follows:

looking for a job, was 108. These figures are preliminary and subject to correction, and will be supplemented later by data for other classes of persons not at work at the time of the census, such as those who had a job but were sick or temporarily laid off.

The list of unemployment dates back to all unemployed on April 1, 1930, and not after that date. Springfield's population is also confirmed at 3,725 persons, an increase of 117 per cent over that of 1920, when the figures were 1715.

Former State Vehicle Commissioner Speaks at Fete of Local Club

William L. Dill, former Commissioner of Motor Vehicles in this state for fourteen years, and an Ex-Gubernatorial candidate in 1928, was the principal speaker at a dance and celebration fete held Monday night in the United Singer's Grove, under the auspices of the Springfield Democratic Club. The attendance was estimated at about 175 persons.

Mr. Dill, in his address, attacked the "bossism" of United States Senator David Baird of Camden, and discussed the ripper bills, which he stated were intended to rid Jersey City of independent bus lines, and bring about a ten-cent fare. He also said that the ripper legislation and the Lodi scandal combined to create a situation that called "for the organization of young men and young women like you to stop such practices." He received much applause.

Other speeches were made by Warren W. Gaffney of Roselle, Fifth District Congressional nominee, and Edward Simms of Montclair, candidate for Congress in the Tenth District.

Mr. Simms, a member of the S. A. R., and descendant of Roger William recalled the organization of the Minute Men at the Battle of Springfield, and said:

"Don't be discouraged if you are outnumbered at the start. Remember the Colonials who defended Springfield were outnumbered by the enemy, but they had perseverance and persistence, and with the right on their side ultimately won, as you know from the celebrations which have been going on in the last three days within your midst."

Dancing was held following the addresses. Joseph H. Gunn was in charge. The officers of the local club are as follows: president, David S. Jeakens; vice-president, Louis Marturano; secretary, Edward A. Conley and treasurer, Edward A. Conley. The members of the Women's Democratic Club have joined together with the Men's organization.

LETTER FROM CELEBRATION HEAD

When a great celebration, like that of the recent sesqui-centennial has been brought to a successful close, it is not unnatural for the average citizen to undertake to place the responsibility for that success upon the shoulders of some individual.

Why look for any one individual for in your most careful search you will be unable to find your victim. No one person could have given the poise, the balance, the finish to the culminated program of the Sesqui-centennial Celebration of The Battle of Springfield.

Who, but the tireless Anderson could and would have carried on the vast amount of work, correspondence to the smallest detail. And what shall we say of the parade, not of wooden soldiers, but real soldiers, and the unique and interesting floats, not forgetting the fireworks as arranged by "Charlie" Huff.

The police cooperation under the direction of our Commissioner Fred Brown in cooperation with Chief Runyon of the Springfield force and visiting policemen was a thing worthy of any town or city.

When his Springfield ever broken into print and received so much attention from the newspapers extending even to an editorial in one of America's leading dailies as it did under the direction of "Joe" Gunn, our publicity chairman.

Under the supervision of our genial Dr. Liggett, the headquarters became a veritable magnet and the splendid, wonderful exhibit of the things of other days, as gathered by Mrs. B. M. Woodruff, caused young and old alike to pause in reverence to the memory of those who by their bravery in the Real Battle of Springfield, gave just cause for the Sesqui-centennial Celebration.

Judges from other localities gave their painstaking efforts to render just and fair decisions in the events which passed before them and the reception committee ever on the alert, made everybody who came near the reviewing stand just at home.

The persistence of "Nick" Schmidt as he with his committee, parted the citizens of Springfield from their dollars; the generosity of the citizens in contributing their money to make this event a great success, is a matter that calls for our deep appreciation.

And how the women did sell the official medal "Give 'Em Watts." Napoleon to one of his special outfits who had done especially well in one of his most important battles, gave to each soldier a medal for bravery. On the front side the event was mentioned. On the reverse side was the inscription "I Was There." So to all who helped to make this event successful as it was, but whose names I cannot now recall, because everybody helped, allow me to say it was a success because of each one we may say: "I was there."

To all who have helped to make this event big in realization and lasting in influence I want to express my deep appreciation for your active sympathy and cooperation.

WILLIAM T. REED, Chairman Sesqui-Centennial Celebration of the Battle of Springfield.

JOSEPH H. GUNN

As chairman of the publicity committee of the sesqui-centennial celebration, Joseph H. Gunn spread Springfield's name throughout many communities. He arranged for the flag decorations and banners, as well as posters and other printed forms for the affair.

A native son of this township, Mr. Gunn is the third generation of a family which settled in Springfield about 100 years ago. He gained his publicity experience as a newspaper writer and advertising man.

Mr. Gunn represented Springfield in the New Jersey Legislature in 1904, and the fourth to serve from here since the early days of the State government. Other local assemblymen were: J. Martin Roll, 1896-7; Asa T. Woodruff, 1883-4, and Captain Jacob Brookfield, a hero of the Battle of Springfield in 1780, who served six years following the Revolutionary War.

The subject of this story is president of the Keim Printing Company, of Newark; vice-president of the Gilbert Acceptance Association; and secretary of the Iron-bound Manufacturers' Association, both of which are also located in Newark. He resides at 31 Colonial terrace.

The winner is the manager of a chain grocery store in Valley street, South Orange, and is planning to be married shortly. Dr. Stewart O. Burns, chairman of the raffle committee, reported that the sale of tickets was successful.

COMMEND GROUPS FOR CELEBRATION

Town Committee Congratulates Various Units for Excellent Fete

Letters of thanks will be sent the Celebration Committee, the Business Men's Association, the Lions' Club and other co-operative organizations, by the Township Committee for the various groups part in making the sesqui-centennial celebration of the Battle of Springfield as a huge success. This action was directed at a meeting of the Town Board Wednesday night.

It was also authorized to compliment Police Chief Runyon for the excellent manner in which the traffic was handled here during the parade, as well as fireworks display.

The contract for paving Weigand street with a six-inch bituminous macadam, and also concrete curbs and gutters, was awarded the South Orange Paving Company, the lowest of six bids, for $3,474.68.

Anthony Schaefer, of Battle Hill avenue, was appointed inspector for the job.

An ordinance was passed on final reading transferring the care, custody and control of Riverside Drive to the Union County Park Commission.

JAIL WOMAN AS TIPSY MOTORIST

Irvington Driver Is Committed To County Jail For 45 Days

For failing to appear in police court on June 16 to answer a charge of drunken driving, Mrs. Marie Sysco, a nurse of Overlook Hospital, was committed to the Union County Jail for 45 days by Recorder Spinning last Saturday.

Mrs. Sysco was arrested at her home, 1311 Springfield avenue, after a police chase of four days. She was apprehended for tipsy driving June 13 by Patrolman Sarge in Seven Bridges road at 12:30 a. m., and declared under the influence of intoxicating liquor by Dr. Henry P. Dengler. She was bailed for $250 in the custody of Judge Stoddard of Irvington, to be tried here June 16.

A bench warrant was issued for her arrest and she was taken in custody by Detectives Rocklin and Lowler of Irvington.

The Three-Day Celebration

One might accuse us of boasting if we publish an article congratulating the townspeople for the wonderful sesqui-centennial celebration. Read what others have to say:

New York Times, June 24, 1930

A Revolutionary Celebration

For three days the town of Springfield, N. J., has been celebrating the sesqui-centennial of a battle with the British on June 23, 1780, about which Lossing tells more than most American historians. The little town, which motorists know by the ancient Presbyterian church on one side of the Morris Pike and the Revolutionary graveyard on the other, has done justice to the victory of the Colonials over Sir Henry Clinton and Knyphausen. It was from the door of that church that Parson Caldwell issued with his arms full of hymn books for wadding and exclaimed, "Give 'em Watts, boys!" There on the grass plot in front one may see the granite statue of the Minute Man bearing the inscription:

For what avail the plow or sail,
Or land or life, if freedom fall?

In the graveyard sleep patriots who fell in the battle, Jerseymen and Rhode Islanders. Clinton's strategy was sound, for, after feigning a movement in the Hudson Highlands and drawing Washington himself from Morristown, he advanced with 5,000 infantry up Galloping Hill Road in Elizabeth to the Morris Pike, and forced the bridge over the Rahway River. But he had to reckon with that sterling Rhode Island soldier Nathaniel Greene, who stopped him at the Springfield crossroads. Back marched Sir Henry to Staten Island with losses three times those of the Colonials.

Springfield is still a simple country town. Weeks had been given to preparations for the sesqui-centennial. Contributions flowed in from all the regions round about. The parade on Saturday was three miles long. Fifteen American Legion posts marched with bands. With the Grand Marshal rode Benjamin Dearing, 89 years old, only surviving member of the Millburn-Springfield G. A. R. floats, illustrative of the battle, competed for prizes. "The Spirit of Springfield" naturally won the first.

Sunday was devoted to memorial services in the quaint claphoard church. The pastor urged better care of the old burying ground across the way. The sham fight of last night in Flemer Oval perhaps made more din than the battle itself, but as a pyrotechnic appeal it was the greatest success of all. A new entrance gate to the Revolutionary cemetery was dedicated. The celebration from first to last lacked no detail and was a credit to the town.

(Newark Evening News, June 24, 1930.)

Adequate, dignified and interesting has been the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Springfield, which came to a fitting conclusion last night. As battles go, the encounter with the British troops on that June day in 1780 was not as important in itself as in its effects on the Revolution, then entering its final stage. The fight was won by the British and Hessians, but the value of the American farmer-militiamen was demonstrated completely and public confidence was greatly increased. It has been called by historians "the last important battle of the Revolution in the northern area," which is not an over-statement. Certainly the skirmish diverted the attention of the enemy from Washington's movement from Morristown to the Hudson River to head off Sir Henry Clinton. The picturesque figure of Rev. James Caldwell would of itself have made the battle memorable.

As President Hoover said in his message to the people of Springfield, such celebrations are good for local pride and the inculcation of patriotism. A century and a half have brought changed sentiment, and two great countries have learned to respect and understand each other better than in that distant day, yet it is good to remember those stirring times and keep them in sacred memory.

(Elizabeth Daily Journal, June 23, 1930)

The township of Springfield has an exceptional event to celebrate, and has done exceedingly well in observing it. It has marked the 150th anniversary of a battle that was as widely heralded in the histories as any battle of the American Revolution.

There is no event of the Revolution that has been more outstanding in the minds of the boys and girls of the American schools than that of the dramatic action of Parson Caldwell, when he brought out the hymn books from the old church in Springfield to be used as wadding for the guns, and exclaimed, "Now put Watts into them."

There are few sections of the country that have a richer background of history than this particular section of New Jersey; and no single place of this section that is richer in tradition than Springfield. The historical background of Springfield is as rich as that of Lexington, Concord or Bennington.

Springfield will do well not to allow its old historic background to be too much blurred by the tendencies of modern times and march of modern progress. Its foundations were well laid in dauntless Americans. It is well to keep such a heritage fresh in the memory of its residents.

That our celebration was fitting to receive recognition and greetings from the Chief Executive of the Land is shown in the following telegram received by the executive chairman of the three-day event:

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

June 14, 1930.

Dr. William I. Reed,
Chairman, Sesqui-Centennial Celebration,
Springfield, N. J.

My dear Dr. Reed:

Please extend my cordial greetings to those who gather to celebrate the Sesqui-Centennial Anniversary of the Battle of Springfield. Local pride in perpetuating historical associations is a most valuable bond of community life.

Yours faithfully,
HERBERT HOOVER

One trouble with the country today is that there is too much home-brewing and not enough home-making.

The veterans of the 18-day diet battle are now admitting that it was a rather empty victory.

Judging by the results, parity and clarity do not go hand in hand.

It generally takes two to make a quarrel, but Senator Borah can disagree with himself.

Can it be possible that Mr. Coolidge is holding up the last of his 500-word history of the United States to see how Babe Ruth makes out this year?

It cost $2,000 a day to keep the Graf Zeppelin at Lakehurst. That's nothing. It cost us more than that to keep some of our big gas bags at Washington.

The "litterary" age is gone, says a learned magazine article. Yes, and the "littery" age is here to take its place.

June seems to be the favorite month for weddings, but any of the others will do for the divorce.

If Mr. Coolidge doesn't hold public office again how can he save up words to sell the magazines?

News item says that Mr. Rockefeller is giving away nickels instead of dimes; another evidence of Hoover prosperity.

It won't be long now before the college graduates will be going around asking if anyone wants a good ukulele played, to be president of a bank.

and had as their float an old Ordnance Wagon, carrying three Colonial soldiers, all dressed to the part. This was preceded by members of the Order, from the Queen City Commandery and Queen City Auxiliary, both of Plainfield. The Order was marching under the auspices of the local camp, No. 249.

The first prize for individual characters was won by Donald B. Palmer, riding a high wheel of the 1880 style. He was uniformed in the cyclist's outfit of that time, and as he reached the reviewing stand, exhibited how simple it was for him to alight and mount the bicycle. He won much applause throughout the march.

Irvington Post No. 16, American Legion, was next, and took fifth prize for the best drum and bugle corps, including twenty-five pieces.

An excellent model of a dwelling in Baltusrol Hills was entered as a float by Wilbur W. Parsell, and was a perfect replica of his own house. The doors and windows could be opened, and the interior was fitted up completely. The miniature is still on exhibition at the entrance to the development, at the corner of Mountain and Henshaw avenues. While this did not capture a prize, it was the opinion of many spectators that it was worthy of mention for the detail work attached to building it.

The James Caldwell Legion Post of Caldwell, followed the float, its name being derived from the Parson Caldwell who was the hero of the Battle of Springfield.

The Pagle-Hummer Post No. 65, of Metuchen, with a thirty-one piece drum and bugle corps, was next in line, followed by the Vaux Hall Fire Company, with thirteen men, and three pieces of apparatus.

The Legionnaires of Long Branch, with a thirty-piece drum and bugle corps, were next, and following that was a float, entitled "Give 'Em Watts," entered by the Union County Coal & Lumber Company. It showed the Old First Presbyterian Church, and James Telfor as Parson James Caldwell, with a hymn book in his hand, standing at the entrance. This took second prize as the most unique colonial float in the parade. It was stated that 1,600 shingles were required to build the church, which was erected by Frank E. Meisel.

The Kenilworth Fire Department was next after which came the Legion Post of Carteret No. 263, with its drum and bugle corps. The Perth Amboy Unit was represented with one of the largest drum and bugle corps in the entire march, including thirty-four members, dressed in red uniforms.

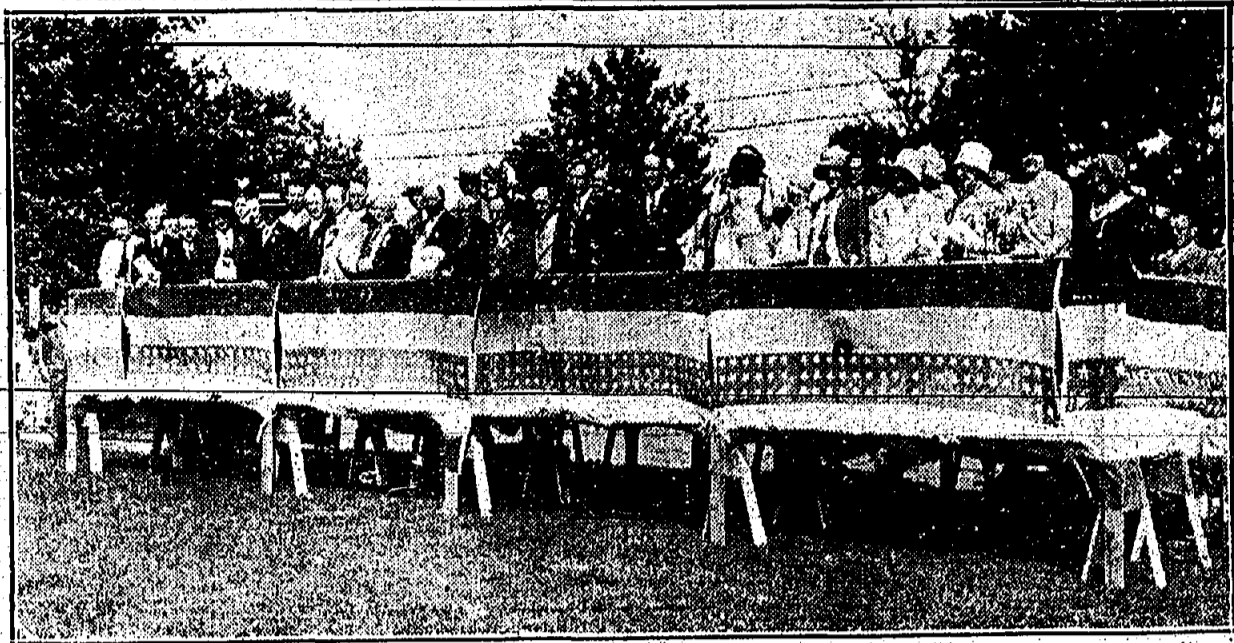

The Montclair Post No. 34, took fourth prize in the drum and bugle competition, and this was followed by the Summit Hook and Ladder Company, and ambulance of the Overlook Hospital. The Springfield Lions' Club was represented with a caged lion, in which were also enclosed two boys, one beating a drum, and the other cracking a whip before the animal.

Members of Summit Post 138, and its auxiliary were also in line, as well as Highland Park Post 88, American Legion, with its drum and bugle corps.

The Daughters of America were represented with a float, showing a small red school house, and a figure of Uncle Sam on one side and the Goddess of Liberty on the other, together with four guards standing at the front. William Bucell took the part of Uncle Sam, Miss Helen Snable that of the Goddess of Liberty, and the guards were Mrs. J. H. Schuster, Mrs. Nellie H. Young, Mrs. LeRoy Baldwin and Mrs. Montague Martyn, all members of Pride of Battle Hill Council No. 17, under whose auspices the float was entered. Seventeen members in all took part in the march, and the local council took second prize as the most original float entered.

First prize in this division was given the Betty-Nan Dress Shoppe, for its float, titled, "The Girl of Yesterday, 1780, and the Girl of Today, 1930." One-half of the display portrayed a Colonial girl at a spinning loom in the 1780 atmosphere, and the other half presented green golf tee, swinging a club, and wearing apparel, in comparison to the old-fashioned clothes of her predecessor.

"Amos and Andy," a comical float, showing the two famous radio black-face comedians in a car mounted on a truck provided sufficient merriment during the parade, while its pair of entrants dressed in Harlem costume, cried out in the expressions of their subjects, among which were "I see regsted," "Is you blue," and the like.

The reviewing stand, containing the judges of the parade as well as township officials. It was erected in front of the Town Hall, in Flemer avenue.

The Carteret Fire Department, with a twelve-piece five-and-drum corps, were next in line. One of the most original floats in the procession was that of the primary department of the Sunday School of The First Presbyterian Church. It presented a model of the original church, with Breeman Huntington as the Parson Caldwell, carrying several hymn books, and other boys attired as soldiers. The title on one side was "Give 'Em Watts," and on the other side it stated, "Put Watts in 'Em Boys."

The nine boys taking the part of soldiers carried articles used in the Battle of Springfield, and Lewis Huntington carried a flintlock used by his great-great-grandfather in the combat against the British. Those who made up the float were as follows: David Barton, Gordon Day, Howard Hofacker, Robert Rinker, Edward Bergman, James Woodruff, Kenneth Springle and Roger Brown. Miss Flora Day, superintendent of the Sunday School of the church, and Miss Marion Jakobsen, the teacher, arranged the float, and Miss Jakobsen rode along with the boys, seated with the driver.

The judges of the parade were as follows: among the Legion Posts, Captain G. Howard Wilson, Palmer Bradner, Knut Wetterstrand, director of music of the Morristown High School; among the floats and individual characters, Mrs. William I. McMane, Miss Cora Hartshorn, Mrs. D. P. Turnbull; among the firemen, fraternal groups and Boy Scouts, William I. McMane, of Summit, director of the Union County Board of Freeholders, E. Schuyler Quackenbush, and David P. Turnbull.

All the entrants assembled at the South Mountain Estates, in Millburn, continued on Millburn avenue to Millburn Center, thence on Main street to Springfield Center, North on Morris avenue to Marey avenue, through to Severna avenue and over Short Hills avenue to Morris avenue and Salter street; on Bryant avenue to Tooker avenue, on Mountain avenue to Flemer avenue, before the reviewing stand at the Town Hall, and breaking up at the grounds in front of the Municipal Building. The committee which received the visitors consisted of the Rev. Thomas B. Larkin, rector of the St. James Catholic Church; Peter H. Meisel, Dr. Watson B. Morris, A. M. Henshaw and Louis J. Wiman. More than 2,000 roses were distributed among the spectators in and nearly the reviewing stand in Flemer avenue. Police Chief M. Chase Ruymon was host Saturday night at a dinner in the Chateau Baltusrol to the policemen, who assisted the local force in maintaining traffic throughout the parade.

Hundreds of visitors, parade watchers, and passing tourists passed through the museum in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church, where relics and antiques of the old Revolutionary and Colonial Days were exhibited. Mrs. Benjamin M. Woodruff was head of the committee in charge there. Every visitor was asked to sign a registry book, which is being saved as a reminder of the three-day celebration.

Stars Beat Leading Hillside A. A.; Lose on Saturday

LOCAL VICTORY MAKES SCRAMBLE OF LEAGUE RACE

The fight for first place in the Union County Baseball League has narrowed down to three contenders, Hillside A. A., Elizabeth Braves, and the Westfield Hawks, as a result of a victory of the Springfield Stars Sunday over the first place Hillside A. A., by the score of 4 to 1. Westfield by winning two games to stretch its winning streak to seven straight, is tied for second place with the Braves, a half game behind Hillside. The Braves lost on Saturday to the Acmys, and won against Garwood the next day, while Hillside, having copped its eleventh straight win by beating St. Joseph's Saturday, 13 to 0, was given a rude jolt in its championship aspirations by the local outfit.

The Stars also upset the calculations of the experts last week when they beat the then first-place Braves, 7 to 4, and allowed Hillside to occupy the high pedestal. The locals are out of the running for the first half, with only three games left on this half's schedule.

"Cecil" Spittler was on the mound against Hillside and held them scoreless until the ninth frame. His rival, Hoskens struck out 6, while he fanned only two, and issued only one free ticket to first, as Spittler walked two men.

"Artie" Lamb, with a single and a double, led the locals with the stick, as "Duke" Thorn hit a triple. Two double plays in the local infield helped Spittler out of several bad spots.

Springfield took the lead in the first with two runs, and were blanked for the remainder of the game while the Hawks tied it up in the second and won out in the seventh and ninth.

Lamb made two safe hits, while the winning hurler, Doane, besides pitching a fine game, got three singles. The fielding of the locals was unusually good, there being no errors marked against them.

One of the fifteen American Legion Posts entered in the Sesqui-Centennial Parade, said to be the largest gathering of Legionnaires since the last State Convention.

At the Strand

Love always finds a way. When Conrad Sterling's show girl sweetheart refused to keep their usual Sunday date, he hired the show for a private performance. And what a show! More than 350 show girls and boys struttin' their stuff and singing the latest musical hits.

You'll see it all in "The New Movietone-Bollies of 1930," which comes to the Roth Strand today and tomorrow. You'll roar at the buffoonery of El Brendel and Marjorie White. You'll be charmed by Buster Collier's and Miriam Seegar's Noel Francis' singing.

You'll marvel at the stupendous romance by Frank Richardson's and dance ensembles, and you'll whistle and hum the tunes you hear. Nina Mae McKinney, dusky star of King Vidor's "Hallelujah," again demonstrates her exotic song and dance ability in "They Learned About Women." Van and Schenck's first talking picture, which will be at the Strand Monday and Tuesday.

The colored actress heads a glittering stage ensemble in which a new song number, "Harlem Madness," is featured with an all-colored chorus. Bessie Love plays opposite Van and Schenck and the supporting cast includes Mary Doran, Benny Rubin, Tommy Dugan, J. C. Nugent, Eddie Gribbon and Francis X. Bushman, Jr. Jack Conway and Sam Wood directed.

A Parisian wax works supplies the background for "Seven Faces," at the Strand next Wednesday for one day only. Paul Muni is featured with Marguerite Churchill and Lester Lonergan. Muni plays seven roles in the production, a feat never before attempted on screen or stage by any actor.

No, Charles Murray is not quite a German, but he is not quite so Irish as most people believe, either. Despite his red hair and his bright blue eyes and that most Irish of all faces, he is half-German, his mother having been descended from the land of the Kaisers. Charlie is all-Irish however, in "Clancy in Wall Street," another of his hilarious comedies, which will be the feature attraction at the Strand next Thursday as a one-day attraction.
