RED CROSS TO BEGIN ROLL CALL THURSDAY

Thirty Volunteer Workers to Canvass Entire Township For Chapter Funds

TO DISCUSS FINAL PLANS WEDNESDAY

HERE AND THERE, SINCE the Public Service Co. corrected the bus fume exhaust complaint on one of the school buses it operates between here and Roselle Park it stands to reason that similar ventilator fans should be installed on the other two as soon as possible. . . although the students claim only one vehicle, No. 1112, was uncomfortable for traveling, it does not relieve the P. S. officials of their responsibility. . . The SUN takes pride in having the incident handled, as it was, due somewhat to what we feel was the publicity carried on by this paper. . . we see Jack Tenenbaum, local popular newspaper delivery man, has been elected Commander of Summit Post American Legion. . . he has been active in the Summit Post for many years. . . Tenenbaum has seen service in the thick of the Battle of the Argonne and several other major World War battles. . . speaking of Legion items, the post will have an important election of officers next Thursday night. . . elsewhere in this issue is a new column inaugurated this week, which will be carried in the SUN as a weekly feature under the heading of "The Legion Reporter".

Everything is in readiness for the 1934 Roll Call of the American Red Cross in Springfield, according to the announcement of the Roll Call chairman, Mrs. Hattie Doerries, who hopes to see each of the workers who have assisted in the canvass in previous years, at the rally which will be held Wednesday night at her home, 35 Keeler Street. The executive board will also attend and committee chairmen will give brief talks on the various phases of relief and welfare work which has been conducted by the Red Cross in this community during the past year, in cooperation with the Emergency Relief Administration and other agencies.

Mrs. Marjorie Gulick will be present and describe the objectives of the visiting nurse service and will endeavor to show the value of the work that is being done from the view point of conserving the public health by promptly meeting emergencies, by preventive measures, and by giving examples in health hygiene in the home. She will answer questions put to her about the service, in order that Roll Call workers may be informed on the subject. Membership cards, window posters and buttons for the Roll Call will be distributed, and districts assigned. At least thirty are expected to volunteer. Refreshments will be served.

Low Macartney will again handle the reins this year for the kiddies Christmas party. . . the affair will probably be held about December 23 in the Town Hall start collecting your old toys before "Mac" gets after you. . . From around Morris avenue near the Old Hotel, we learn that State approval will be coming shortly to cut down a large tree in front of the Sibley Building, which is beginning to outlive its usefulness. . . causing sidewalk to crack due to expanding roots, the timber will be used as fuel among local needy families. . . Red Cross members are anxiously awaiting the Roll Call which begins earlier this year than usual and commences Thursday. . . the advance guard of 25 recruits from Camp Dix will usher in Civilian Conservation Camp activity next week. . . while on the C. C. C. it should be mentioned that local firemen are concerned over the failure of either Army officials or Park Commission authorities to provide fire protection in the form of a hydrant on the camp grounds at the old chemical works, which is county park property. . . the government orders instructed the installation of a fire hydrant mains while 6-inch pipe is needed for proper fire pressure purposes. . . as a result a proposition was made to the Park Commission to change the pipe on an equal basis but nothing was done about it, indicating the lack of interest on the part of the park heads. . . under present conditions, 1500 feet of hose would be needed from the nearest hydrant in case of fire. . . there are buildings on the camp grounds and the park's storage building, three stories high, is said to contain about $20,000 in equipment alone. . . too bad the hydrant was not provided for. . . the water lines are being installed at this time and it may be too late. . . unless, however, the pipes are torn up and that certainly will not be done.

Springfield Gets Two Golf Winners

Bert Heinz and Chas. Cannon Cop County Titles

Springfield had the distinction of placing two winners in the annual Union County Golf Tournament recently for public link players at Gallop Hill Course. Bert Heinz, crack local golfer, who finished as the runner-up last year, won the third title. Chas. Cannon, son of Mayor Cannon, making his first initial entry in competitive golf, finished first in the fifth flight of players. Heinz was carried to the thirty-six hole in an interesting match by his opponent, Thomas McDarley of Elizabeth, to win, 1 up. Cannon had a comparatively easy time in disposing of his opponent, 8 up and, so go. Both players look forward to make a more impressive showing in the tournament next year.

WILL CONTINUE COMMUNITY DANCES

Following the success of the Young People's Community Dance Friday night in the Town Hall auditorium, the Parent-Teacher Association which is sponsoring the affair, has decided to continue the events each month throughout the winter season. The dances, open to High School pupils and young people in the township, will be held the third Friday of the month.

About forty attended the first dance. Don Gibson's College Club Orchestra played. Mrs. John E. Gunn is chairman of arrangements. Young people are invited to come out for the next dance November 4.

Macartney Again Heads Xmas Party For Kiddies

Lewis F. Macartney, chairman of the annual Christmas Kiddies Party sponsored by the American Legion, seeks assistance of residents to give broken toys which may be repaired and repainted and distributed at Christmas to poor children. Local firemen will again co-operate as in the past. The toys may be left at the firehouse or with Mr. Macartney who will arrange to pick them up. His telephone, Millburn 6-1973.

Legion "Amateur Night" Success

Entertaining Program Given By Continental Post

Continental Post held "Amateur Night" exercises last Thursday night in headquarters. John Potts, entertainment chairman, arranged a fine program for the forty members who attended. A good time was missed by absent members. Excellent talent marked the program which was headed by the comedy team of "Sandy" Ferguson on his harmonica and "Squid" Walker with the guitar in rendering hill billy songs. Herald Jones followed on the cello, accompanied by Frank Johnson at the piano in several songs. Our genial adjutant, Gregg Frost, sang "The Last Round Up" in his usual inimitable manner and Cliff Spill used to work on his piano as only he can. Elton Chase entertained with vocal numbers and Legions J. Johnson and Spill played several piano-banjo duets which kept the boys interested until refreshments were served, consisting of home-made sandwiches and cider. So successful was the program that it was decided to continue the "Amateur Night" feature. Election of officers will be held November 2. All members should turn out for this important meeting. Dues are being collected for next year so members, get yours right in now. Don't forget the Armistice Eve dance November 10 in United Singers Park. We expect a large attendance. Tickets may be purchased from Chairman Al Sorge or any legitimate address by ticket which admits gentleman and lady. There will also be valuable door prizes. The annual Christmas Kiddies Party will be held sometime in December in the Town Hall as a result of the successful event last year. We will need toast. Legion men will be pleased to call at homes for old toys which may be of no use to the contributor but may be repaired and repainted. Toys will make some children who are less fortunate happier at the holiday season and persons who are able to donate the articles, are asked to leave them at the firehouse. We hope to get fine cooperation from township workers with Chairman Lewis F. Macartney. He may be made to him, Millburn 6-1973, to have toys picked up. The program will again support the repair and painting.

Flood Relief Plans Making Some Headway

Cannon Reports Progress on Railway River Drainage Problem at Meeting

Township Committee Chairman Cannon, reporting at a committee meeting Monday night said progress had been made in flood relief along the Railway River. Elwood Carmichael of Battle Hill avenue had asked concerning flood conditions. A letter from the State Water Policy Commission stated that a dam on property of Ewald Broeker at Milltown road could be removed if judged a menace to public safety by the commission. Township Counsel Charles W. Weeks said the Union County Park Commission, owners of land along the river, should make such a complaint. Committee member Trundle suggested the park commission be asked accordingly. Township Engineer Arthur H. Lennox believed removal of the dam would aid conditions. The matter was referred to Committee Chairman Geiger's committee and action was deferred to a special meeting this week. Cannon said aid in clearing the river might be obtained from the Civilian Conservation Corps on the site of the old chemical works in Meisel avenue, Springfield.

Claims Obstruction Is Not Causing Flood Damage

To the Editor of the SUN: We have just received the SUN and note: "Removal of Broeker Dam Seen Vital in Flood Relief Issue." These spasmodic floods of the Railway River which winds its way mostly peacefully through our beauty spot, Eldorado Springs, and the sudden opening up of water storage reservoirs further back, has cost us thousands of dollars and a lot of inconvenience during the last fifteen years. But to our regret and probably a few others, the old Mill Dam had nothing whatever to do with it.

There remains to be built a lavatory and showers. Thirteen men were laid off today due to the completion of most of the work. Forty-four men remain on the job, a maximum crew of fifty-seven skilled as well as unskilled workers having been working since the construction began several weeks ago.

The wages paid thus far have been $3.10 per day for unskilled labor and $5.40 per day for skilled labor, such as carpenters, plumbers, painters, etc. Negotiations have been under way, however, to provide some increase for union skilled labor which will be effected shortly.

Colonel Hall, district colonel commandant, is the Army officer in charge of New Jersey District 1, which includes the Springfield camp. It is expected that approximately 25 recruits will be added weekly until the capacity enrollment is reached.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—Almost no one can talk about Russia, her relations with other nations, or her form of government without taking sides. Whether it is right or wrong to recognize the Soviet government and establish diplomatic negotiations is rather likely to continue a long time as a controversial question, but there are numerous facts available that are important to know. It is from that angle that I propose to examine the question.

Obviously, economic questions enter into international relationships which ever the focal point at the moment. And economic questions are to the fore in the present Russian situation. Outstanding proponents of Russian recognition, and a great many others who merely think they are outstanding, are urging that the United States has suffered immense loss of trade by the long delayed recognition. They argue also that our position of delay has afforded other powerful industrial nations to get ahead of us, to gain a foothold from which it will be difficult to jar them loose. Because of recognition being withheld so long, they contend, other early birds got the important worm.

Another thing about which recognition proponents proclaim their feelings is that our government has been inconsistent in its foreign policy and has insulted the people of a great nation by withholding diplomatic relations from them. They point to that which is true, that the United States has recognized de facto, or revolution-made, governments throughout the Central and South American nations with the very minimum of delay. Why, they have asked, has our government refused recognition to governments in South America where the individuals at their heads have been tried, if anything, more than brigands (banksters, we call them in our own circles)?

Much of the propaganda favoring recognition has had its origin among individuals and groups with very definite and discoverable axes to grind. Some of it has come as straight as the arrow flies from Communist sympathizers. If not from actual Communist agents, they are master propagandists. That being their job, I think it is unfair to criticize them, though I disagree with them and their position. From many students of the situation, I hear only the demand that the propagandists come out in the open instead of seeking their ends and aims by dirty, sneaking trickery.

Being acquainted with a good deal of the Soviet program to bring about recognition of their government by the United States, I took occasion to look up the trade records. The figures in black and white ought to be convincing to anyone. They fail to show that any nation which has established diplomatic relations with the Soviet under the dictator, Stalin, has profited from that recognition.

In the case of our own nation, our commerce with the Soviet was virtually on a level with any of the nations whose diplomatic representatives were accredited to the Soviet. Our trade has gone up or has gone just about the same as has the volume of those nations that have recognized the Russian experimental regime. This seemed to me to establish that recognition had nothing whatever to do with the question. Further, it seemed to prove that the other nations which gained no advantage, no foothold, which our own exporters had not had, by me, the figures definitely confirmed the statement made by the former secretary of state, Vandergrift (Colby), that recognition had no bearing whatsoever on trade results.

There are some social and humanitarian objections to recognition, however, that strike me as being worthwhile in view of the history of our nation and the freedom of religious worship which was guaranteed by being written into the Constitution. President Roosevelt got very close to the key in his speech in New York on October 5 when he suggested that no nation denying its citizens the right of religious worship could, under any circumstances, be a government worthy of being admitted from other peoples, and if that be true, then Mr. Roosevelt predicted the ultimate outcome of the system of which Stalin is now the overlord. So it seems to me that instead of insulting the Soviet by denying, or rather, withholding, recognition, we insult our own people when we take a position that makes equals of those who destroy all evidence and rights of religious worship.

Now as to reasons for the lack of development of Russian trade: the best authorities tell me that Russia can export only a given volume of the several commodities figuring in international trade. She cannot increase that because she has had insufficient equipment with which to produce, except by a very slow process. The natural question to follow, of course, why not sell her that equipment? To this the reply is simple: who will pay?

Russia has not the money and she cannot get the money from outside her domain because she has no credit.

I had the pleasure of witnessing quite an unusual ceremony in the treasury the other day, and it was so interesting that I feel it should be described in these columns. The treasury had decided to exercise its option of right to redeem a portion of the platinum fourth Liberty loan. It wanted to "call for maturity" approximately one-third of the issue which now has a total outstanding in excess of $2,285,000,000. To accomplish that purpose, there were certain requirements of law to be met, and one of them was a determination of which of the bonds would be called by a method of chance.

The event, issued during the strife and strain of World War days and on the basis of patriotic appeal, was not due to mature until twenty years after its issue, which made it mature in October, 1938. But when the government sold the bonds, it reserved the right to call them for redemption five years before maturity if it so desired. Money market conditions made it seem likely that bonds bearing a cheaper rate of interest than the 4 1/2 per cent carried by the fourth Liberty bonds could be sold. If they could, the government, which means the taxpayers, could save money on interest. Hence, the determination to call a part of the issue and, hence, the ceremony. It was felt that only a portion of the big issue could be resold at this time, so only one-third of it was called.

Knowing of the program, I went in advance to the lobby of the undersecretary's office. A tall, wooden pedestal stood in the middle of the room. Atop it was a glass bowl. At the appointed time, an attaché of the treasury's office deposited ten envelopes in the bowl. Each was neatly rolled and held by a rubber band. Each envelope carried a formal order directing the retirement of certain portions of the issue and stating that interest on those bonds would cease as of April 15, 1944, the future date being necessary because the bonds themselves stated that a notice of six months had to be given in case of redemption in advance of actual maturity.

Presently, the tall, dignified, Dean Acheson, undersecretary of the treasury, entered the room. There was much talking of pictures, stills and movies. Mr. Acheson then reached into the bowl and drew therefrom an envelope. It was opened by Frank Birgeford, the treasury's chief clerk. Mr. Acheson read its contents aloud. It said that fourth Liberty bonds whose numbers ended in the digits "9 0" or "1" or whose letter designations were either "J," "K" or "A" were called for redemption. That meant that anybody holding any of those bonds either would have to turn them into the government or lose interest on them after next April.

The new issue will bear only 3 1/2 per cent interest, so that the saving will be almost $10,000,000 a year, because the bonds called total $1,375,000,000.

Secretary Hull, of the State department, apparently has had a stomachful of German, or rather of Hitler's, assaults on American citizens by Hitler's storm troopers, and has asked pointedly what is being done about ending such indignities. He will be told, of course, that efforts are being made to punish the offenders, but I think it is no longer a secret that the Washington government is not at all satisfied with the way Hitler and his cohorts are treating citizens of other nations. Indeed, I believe I can see signs that the Washington administration is growing a bit "cold" on Hitler, himself.

The incident may or may not produce anything. It is possible that the secretary of state may take that step, as bold as it is rare, of issuing a proclamation that the United States cannot guarantee the safety of American citizens in Germany. The best judgment I can obtain is that this stage will not be reached in the controversy. Because, to make such a declaration is an action between nations and ugly word to an individual. On the other hand, attention must be called to the latent dangers in the situation and one must consider as well that Hitler is playing a far-flung game.

To Washington observers, the early advice in response to Mr. Hull's order to check up on punishment of storm troopers who have assaulted American citizens has been nothing but that Nazi government—nothing but that Nazi government—nothing but that Nazi government was dodging the issue. When his foreign office said "efforts were being made" to catch the offenders, the corps of students of the situation here immediately calculated that slung, but quite effective, expression: "Oh! Yeah." For it is to be remembered that Mr. Hull has complete domination of German affairs, and that under conditions where the detestation is so completely in control there ought to be little difficulty in putting an end to the condition of which Mr. Hull complains.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Hitler Takes Germany Out of League of Nations and Disarmament Conference—Depositors in Closed Banks to Get 50 Per Cent Payment.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

GERMANY, feeling that it is being treated like a second-class nation, started the world by withdrawing from membership in the League of Nations and from the disarmament conference. At first blush this looked rather like a throat of war, but sober consideration of the facts and conditions dispelled most of the fear that armed conflict was near. In the first place, the German government left the way open for its return to the league of nations if properly conducted by the other nations. More notable, perhaps, is the fact that none of the nations is financially able to support a war at this time. Nor do the people of any of the countries directly involved wish to go to war, unless it will be the always militaristic Prussians of the Reich.

Chancellor Hitler, having announced Germany's withdrawal, President Von Hindenburg immediately decreed the dissolution of the reichstag and proclaimed a general parliamentary election for November 12, with a plebiscite at the same time to obtain the nation's approval of the government's decision. All the state parliaments were dissolved and there will be no new state elections, so the power will be centralized in Berlin.

Hitler's speech of appeal to the German people to support his policy was full of ardor and yet was half deliberate and caused hopes in Great Britain and the United States, if not elsewhere, that the reich might be brought to a reconsideration of its action. The officials of other nations refused to get excited, and some of them admitted privately that Hitler's protest was justified, but not his methods. The managers of the disarmament conference were naturally displeased and decided to adjourn until October 25. Some of them were ready to quit in definitely, but this move was blocked by Norman H. Davis, the American representative.

A little later Mr. Davis received instructions from the White House and thereupon his position became considerably more delicate. In a statement to the press he informed the European nations that America would gladly cooperate in any disarmament negotiations, but was "not interested in the political element or any purely European aspect of the picture." In other words, the United States will leave Europe to settle its own quarrels in its own way.

Italian officials rather hoped the disarmament negotiations could be continued with the framework of the four-power pact, but France indicated she would not consent to this.

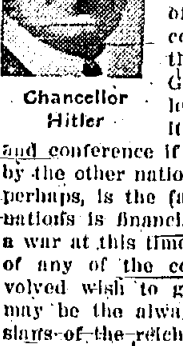

The British cabinet heard a report from Sir John Simon, foreign minister, who had been in violent controversy with Baron Von Neurath, foreign minister of Germany—and was said to be in a conciliatory mood, though there was no indication that it would abandon its attitude of cooperation with France.

Hopes that Germany would come back into the concert of nations by the back door were dashed by Hitler who, with power at hand, declared that Germany is determined in the future to attend no conference, enter no league, agree to no convention, and sign nothing so long as she is not treated equally.

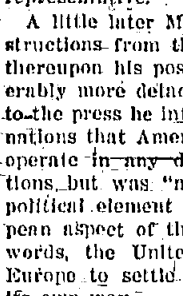

One billion dollars will be put into circulation immediately when and if the President's program for the liquidation of closed national and state banks is carried out. The depositors will be paid about 50 per cent of their deposits, the money being loaned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. To administer the liquidation a special division of the RFC is set up to make loans to the several thousands of closed banks, C. R. Merriam, a director of the RFC, is the head of the liquidation board, and other members are: Jesse H. Jones, chairman of Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Dean G. Acheson, undersecretary of the treasury; Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget; J. F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency; and Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Deposit Insurance Corporation.

In general, loans to closed banks will be limited to 50 per cent of deposits, thus establishing a 50 per cent maximum for payment to depositors. In some cases, where assets justify, a somewhat larger distribution may be possible, but where assets are not worth 50 per cent of deposits the dividend will be less. In some cases, no dividends beyond those already paid will be possible.

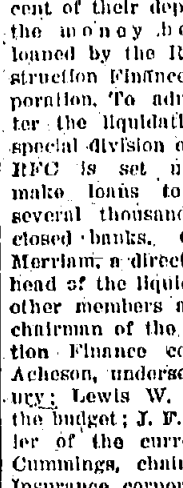

The division will make loans to closed banks, taking over their assets as security to the extent of the appraised value of the assets. Thus a INDUSTRIAL control of trade is now being tried, with cotton textiles as the ground for the experiment, under regulations approved by Administrator Johnson. From now on no man may start a new cotton mill without the approval of Johnson after a committee of cotton men elected to supervise operation of the industry's code has made recommendations. Not only that, but no mill owner may increase his productive machinery without the same approval, recorded in a certificate bearing the industrial administrator's signature.

AN IMMEDIATE embargo on imported medicinal liquors was ordered by President Roosevelt on evidence that such importations had increased sharply in violation of prohibition repeal. The President also rejected a proposal to permit importation of beverage liquors in bond pending the date of legal sale.

INVESTIGATION of the federal hospital at Canton, S. D., revealed what Secretary of the Interior Ickes calls "shocking and intolerable" conditions and the confinement of perfectly sane Indians among the insane. Mr. Ickes issued a statement severely condemning local political and commercial interests for preventing the removal of the sane patients by obtaining an injunction from a Canton court.

Sec'y Ickes and for bringing political pressure to bear on officials of the Indian Bureau in Washington. The bureau has sought for several years to close the institution.

"Those responsible for securing this injunction presumably are actuated by a desire to save for Canton the revenue that continued operation of the institution there means," Mr. Ickes declared. "They appear to be willing to make a profit out of the degradation of helpless Indians. They do not object to locking up sane human beings in an insane asylum."

Conditions in the institution were revealed by Dr. Samuel A. Silk, medical director of St. Elizabeth's hospital. He conducted an investigation at the request of Secretary Ickes. His report, made public by Mr. Ickes, described the asylum as "filthy, inhuman, and revolting."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in an address from the White House opened the four weeks' drive of the 1933 mobilization for human needs which is headed by Newton D. Baker. He urged that individuals everywhere give what they can to local organizations carrying on welfare services, instead of leaving it all to the national government. He re-emphasized his position that state and local responsibility come first in the relief program.

"It is true," said he, "that I have declared that government must not let any one starve this winter; but at the same time this policy is based on the assumption that the individual American citizen will continue to do his and her part, even more unselfishly than in the past."

"Let me stress that a great many people will still need the help of relief agencies this winter. It is true that because of a partial, but I believe a steadily growing, re-employment of the unemployed, many families and many individuals have been taken off of the relief rolls."

"But on the other hand, the need of those who are still on the rolls is proportionately greater than it was before, and in addition to the work of direct relief, it is necessary for us to continue our support of the permanent hospital and welfare services that exist in every county and in most communities."

Howe About:

Wordsworth Success Easier Than Failure How Time Passes

By ED HOWE

I DO not like poets, but frequently admire a sentence they have written. Wordsworth wrote of "the mighty sum of things forever speaking." Here is sufficient brevity, originality and common sense, but he is a poet, color their product too highly, and prose suits me better; than the jumbled way in which versifiers arrange their lines. The sentiment I quote from Wordsworth appeals to me because it is my natural way to pay constant attention to the mighty sum of things forever speaking. There are so many of these mighty voices clamoring to be heard, I can give each one only a few lines.

William Feather—I published this paragraph: "No man can go completely to the devil without a great deal of determination." Ted Robinson, the newspaper columnist, retorted: "That's wrong. Some can go to the devil just by standing still." I do not intend to let Mr. Robinson dismiss in a few words the most important practical philosophy ever formulated. E. W. Howe, of Kansas, says success is easier than failure, and has written much of this theme. Consider the man who stands still on a sidewalk. He is jostled and cursed by those who are moving, and who want him to get out of the way. The most comfortable way to spend time on the sidewalk is to go someplace. Over-drinking, or over-indulgence of any kind, is followed by a headache. Over-spending or over-speculation is followed by the barking of creditors. Violation of the ethical law is followed by arrest and sentence to the workhouse. Every man who goes completely to the devil gets there by easy stages. At every turn he suffers more than the man who behaves himself. Never does he rise in the morning without a wringing that unless he reforms, his troubles will increase. His wife scolds him, his employer threatens him, and his friends avoid him. It takes the strongest kind of will to ignore the signs on the road to hell, and to bear the cross of self-imposed failure.

Think about this, and you'll admit it is true: Success is easier than failure.

For several years, an hour before ending my considerable meal of the day—I have had the habit of taking a swallow of tasteless mineral oil, in connection with a pinch of seaweed-celery agar. I suppose some one induced me to try it, and, as it did me no harm and some good, I continued it. Once I was at table with a quite noted doctor and health specialist, and said to him:

"Every noted man is pestered somewhat by those to whom he is introduced. I shall bother you with only a simple question." Then I outlined my habit, and asked:

"Is it a good idea?"

"Well," the noted man replied (he is upwards of eighty), "I do it." I pursued the inquiry no further; but what I started out to say is that time passes so rapidly when one is old that it seems to me now I take mineral oil every hour instead of every twenty-four.

As impressive reading as may be found in our American books concerns the firing on Fort Sumter, which started the Civil war. The battle lasted four days, and the exchange of shots from big guns between Northerners in the fort and Southerners on shore was tremendously noisy, impressive and smoky, yet not a man on either side was injured during the entire exhibition.

However, when the Yankees surrendered and retired from the fort, the Southerners, being brave men themselves, wished to honor the gallantry of their defeated foes (I have long observed that opposing fighters usually commend the bravery of each other).

PASSED UP ALL FOR CLAM PIE

Delicacy That Made Hit With "Sea Devil"

Jot Knoll was telling me about the time Count von Luckner ("The Sea Devil") visited Commander McMillen, of Arctic fame, in Provincetown, Mass.

"Mac brought the count and some other guests over here to my Galley for supper one night. Jot related, 'And I just looked the doors after they got in, so we wouldn't be disturbed by no other customers.' 'Well, it was a Saturday night, so of course the principal dish was baked beans. And after while, I got to noticing that Von Luckner didn't seem to care much for the beans. Oh, he was polite about it, all right, but he wasn't what you might call engaged. He'd eat bread and he'd drink coffee, and he'd pushed the beans and went through the motions. But beans wasn't his dish. 'So, pretty soon I whispered to Mac, 'Do you think he'd like clam pie?'"

"Try him and see what happens," says Mac.

"So I cut a big wedge of clam pie and put it down by his plate. He looked at it, sort of uncertain, for a minute. Then he reached out his fork and cut off a little nibble. Then I seen his eyes kind of sparkle. He took a bigger bite. Then he took both hands and made a motion like a man swimming, and pushed the beans one way and the coffee and bread the other, and pulled that pie right in front of him.

"By Cheve," he hollered, 'I had found something!'"

"He swallowed that wedge like a logfish stein! and he held out his plate for more. That happened three times, and then he'd eat the dum pie, and every time he'd finish a piece, he'd say, 'By Cheve, I had found something!'"

"He'd be dropping his fork in these waters again, some day. Because they're going to have a book of a time tryin' to teach 'em to make clam pie in Germany!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Vast Pampa Source of Welfare in Argentina

Argentina, richest of South American countries, draws its wealth from the pampa—a rockless, treeless sea of grass, 2,800 miles long and 800 miles wide, grazed by millions of head of stock. Feeding half wild herds of horses and cattle, seed of the conquistadores' mounts and milk cows, have been scientifically bred up to the stable and the abattoir.

Calmer herds, tamer men. Almost gone is the gaucho, cowboy son of Spanish-settler and Indian squaw. Apotheosis of the type was Dictator Juan Manuel Rosas, who a century ago rode the Indians—united his countrymen, and ruled in a palace, with a court jester. On the pampas only the pampero—cold wind, rain or hail storms) and locust plagues remain fiercely primitive.

Buenos Aires, with its 2,000,000 in Paris, Chicago and pampa in one. Quite a city, now. It no longer flaunts in its main section advertisements of cheap, expeditious murder by expert assassins. For safety and comfort, wheeled traffic is barred from the city's shopping district between 4 and 8 p.m.—World's Work.

When children won't eat and won't gain weight.

The youngster who has no appetite, probably has stasis. A little syrup of figs will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat—and gain!

Mothers should never coax a child to eat. Nature knows best. Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for sluggish, listless children in every part of the country!

SYNOPSIS

A girl finds herself in a tangle in New York with a strange man who speaks of "an awful shock." He leaves her for a moment, and she tries to get the facts. She stops at the telephone, wondering who she is. Her memory is gone. She has a wedding ring. At the hotel, a young woman comes with the girl's key. An elderly woman, Mrs. Oscar De Val, partially greets the nameless girl, addressing her as "Doris," wife of Mrs. Du Val's son, Rocky. Rocky is abroad, and Doris is taken to the home of Mrs. Du Val and her neighbor, Mrs. Oscar. Doris falls in love with Rocky's photograph, but cannot remember having married him. She returns to observation. Rocky returns. He demands to know who she is and why his wife sent her to his home. She cannot tell him. Her memory has not returned. He offers to let her stay with him, but she refuses. He tells her to go to her home. She goes to her home, but finds it empty. She goes to a newspaper office and finds a headline: "Killer's Bride Found; Diana Marcella's Father Identifies It." Doris faints. When she awakes, her memory has not returned. Rocky informs her he is going to take her to Canada by motor. They get out.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

As Doris stared, she remembered her promise to Rocky that she would keep her face turned away from any people they met. She bent her head, and turned over and over a black leather purse belonging to the real Doris.

"The car was coming nearer. In a moment it would be just. But as it approached it slackened. It came almost to a stop. Someone shouted:—

"Doris!"

Startled she looked up. A dazed-eyed girl in a green evening dress called.

"Oh—I beg your pardon!" said the girl. "I thought you were someone I knew."

A blond young man stuck his head forward. "It's Rocky's car."

"There's Rocky! Well, I thought you were in Europe, you dope!"

"He's leading a double life!"

"The party, in evening clothes, got down. Rocky, approaching Doris with a chain in each hand, looked at them steadily. If he was surprised and chagrined, he did not show it.

"Have a chain," he said.

The girl in the green evening dress staggered up and seized one of the chains. Two unsteady young men supported each other.

"Claims! Just what I want!"

"Good old Rocky's got claims!"

Rocky was climbing in the car beside Doris. He was starting up the engine.

"Hey, wait—a minute. Where you going? Say, wait a minute, Rocky!"

His friends were running after him. The girl in the green evening dress jumped on the running board.

"What's your hurry, Rocky? We're all friends here, aren't we?"

She looked at Doris.

"This is Miss Smith, my father's secretary. I'm just driving her down to my father's house."

The girl closed one of her big eyes. She exposed a dimple in her brown cheek.

"Pretty name, Smith."

Rocky frowned. "Go on, beat it will you, Molly! I've really got to go."

"Rocky, the saint! Rocky—this pure young man." Eyes looked piously heavenward. Then the blimpies appeared again. "Never mind, Rocky. I like you all the better for it."

She jumped down from the car. Rocky's face was set and grim. Without a backward glance he started up the car and got away.

Doris was red and angry. The car turned on. The red sun appeared, a brilliant eye in the east.

"I'm really sorry about that," murmured Rocky.

Doris fixed her eyes on the thing in the sky. Her good humor had gone. She was talking with Rocky, resentful of her false position.

"That girl, I suppose, is a friend of Doris—the real Doris. And she'll tell her you're leading about the country with a—well, a—"

"With a—good. She'll make it good, anyway."

"I think you'd better let me out here."

"What for?"

"So you can go and find Doris."

"What do I want to find Doris for? I want—"

"You're not acting very well about Doris."

"I know it. I can't act well about women, and I'm acting awfully about you. Better worry about that."

Doris was silent. She was being a fool as usual. She knew that Rocky was acting in this extraordinary fashion for her own safety. Whatever peril threatened her, it was necessary that she get to Canada. Why Canada? She gave it up. If she was going to trust Rocky she would have to trust him, and stop criticizing. Meanwhile it was fun being with Rocky. Sooner or later this companionship between them would have to end. He would go back to Doris. Doris would have him all her life.

She sat up very straight. She was being sentimental again. If Rocky was going to be so nice, she would fall in love with him all over. And he did have a wife. It was a good thing those people on the road had reminded her.

Once outside of New York, the car made good speed.

Rocky looked at her abruptly. "Put your glasses on again. They're good for little girls. Come on, Doris! Make me stop the car so that I can put them on you."

Doris complied when she realized that he meant it. It was a subject she was tired arguing about. Rocky was making things, apparently, with a high hand. But as she looked at him now, his warm face gleaming with a pride in accomplishing something that she felt sure was in the interests of her safety, it was easy to forgive him anything.

Rocky had provided food enough to last them throughout the trip, without stopping at inns. He had explained that by picnicking this way, they would save a good deal of time.

"I'd like to see a paper," Doris announced suddenly, as if the question had not been broached before. Rocky munched a sandwich doggedly.

"I'm sorry," Rocky ate hungrily.

"Well?" Her voice with its high note arrested him. She threw her hand, seriously objecting eyes to her face. His half-eaten sandwich was poised for the next bite.

"Well?" he repeated. "You know the answer to that—no, don't you?" His tone was playfully hurt. "The last time you happened to read a paper you didn't behave very well." He grinned faintly and took another bite, watching her.

"Oh!" Doris flung out an emerald-encrusted arm. "Would you ever forget that? I could read anything today and not lose my health. Besides I have a feeling there is something in this morning's paper I ought to see. Tell me, please," she leaned over suddenly, "what it's all about."

"Put your glasses on."

"Why?"

"The better to see me with."

She put them on, turning her head to look up and down the road. "Who are those people, do you suppose?" A small automobile had opened its doors to let out a crowd of motorists.

Rocky was already looking. He had even brought out a pair of binoculars. Leveling them long and earnestly at the group in question, he answered, "As near as I can make out it's a healthy bootlegger who's taken his wife and family out for a picnic. He's laughing, but didn't seem overmuch interested. "Should we go on?"

They got back into the car, soon making up the time lost in the picnic. Rocky's plan was to reach Vermont by midnight.

In the next town their car went cautiously through the business street. As it passed a news stand, Doris pushed her glasses above her eyes for an instant. There was a headline:—

"Her car hatched forward."

"Don't be a fool, Doris! Unreasonable words poured from Rocky: "This is no time to strain your eyes trying to read a paper. If you would only do what I ask!"

Doris, with the glasses slipped back into place, looked at Rocky. His lips were tense in a desperate sort of annoyance. She wondered what had upset him. His eyes moved with a light wariness across the road in front of them. He was quiet for a while.

Towards nightfall, they neared the Vermont border-line. A little before dark, Rocky stopped the car and they got out for a picnic supper. Doris asked him where they were going to spend the night.

"In the car," he answered grimly. "This trip doesn't end for nobody or nothing until we get to Canada."

"You are in a hurry," she answered. "I think you could at least have asked me if I minded not going to a hotel."

"I could have," he replied cheerfully. "But I had my plans all made to drive right through the night."

"And what you say goes?" She gave him an unflinching glance.

"D—n right!" He began to whistle. It was evident that he was beginning to feel pleased over the day's work.

Subsistence Homesteads Planned

PART of the "new deal," and a very important part, is the plan to get people back to the farm to live on "subsistence homesteads" which are to be financed by the government to the extent of $25,000,000. Dr. M. L. Wilson of the Interior department, director of the plan (left), is showing a model of one of the homesteads to W. A. Julian, treasurer of the United States.

Then when he puts on the polite airs that no one knows better than he how to put on, brings into his eyes an innocent look, and smiles, he is as pleasant a fellow as you would care to meet. Only when he forgets and grins a little too broad,

NOT REALLY RAINING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

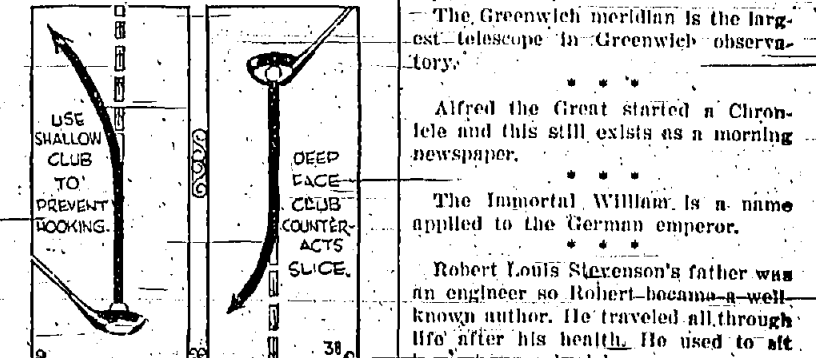

THE mists of morning always rise. Melt in the warmth of better skies. I never see the vapor drifting. But in the morning it is lifting. Give breezes time, the sun a chance. And, as the hours of day advance, The mists of morning rise and scatter And prove a very little matter.

I wonder if we do not make On-morning mists this mistake?— Mistake some little ego for sorrow. Although it ends before the morning; Make for ourselves a doleful list Of losses that are only mist. That blows away, amid complaining, Because it isn't really raining.

I know we have our larger grief. But much that frets us is the brief. Upon life's surface floating bubbles, But mists that are not really troubles. Though many losses bring bringings, We weigh the most of our little things. Let us be glad, somehow or other, Unless it's really raining, brother.

GRAPHIC GOLF

OVERCOMING HOOK AND SLICE

ONE reason for the popularity of deep faced clubs is their tendency to cure a slice. While most of the average golfer's either slice or hook, the slice is far more prevalent. For this reason the ordinary golfer would undoubtedly find that the deeper faced clubs were more suitable to his particular case. Deep faced clubs have the power to counteract the slice and this fills a particular niche in most games that cannot be easily discounted. On the other hand those golfers who show a penchant for hooking might find it well to switch to shallow faced clubs. With these clubs the tendency to slice would overcome the hooking proclivity and a fairly straight ball would result. With these two facts in mind it should be a simple matter to find the club that best suits one's game. There's nothing like a straight ball off the tee to start the hole right.

Molasses Pie

It may be baked in individual tins or in the usual sized pie plates. Line a pie plate with flaky pastry and fill with the following mixture. Bring one cupful of molasses to the boiling point and add carefully a tablespoonful of butter rubbed to a paste with a tablespoonful of flour, cook in the molasses until slightly thickened, then remove from the fire and add the juice of a large lemon and a pinch of cinnamon. Walnut meats may be added, to make it more tasty. Cover with a top crust and bake in a moderate oven.

Raisin Pie

Line a pie plate with rich pastry. Pour boiling water over one and one-half cupfuls of seeded raisins, let stand until cool, drain and mix with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Turn the mixture into a pie pan, bring to a boil in the center, sprinkle with the juice of a lemon and grating of the rind, add one-half cupful of water in which the raisins were soaked and dot with two tablespoonfuls of butter cut into small pieces. Cover with pastry and bake forty minutes. Have the oven very hot the first ten minutes to bake the pastry, then reduce the heat. Serve hot or cold.

Pupils in This Class Must Keep Wide Awake

HERE is a class at Catalina Island, Calif., whose pupils cannot afford to show any indifference to their studies. If they fall in their work, they go into the drink with a big splash and that's all there's to it. When you hit the water a few times traveling at the speed of 40 miles per hour, you either make up your mind to stay on the skiddy board or quit school. This novel "aquaplane college" was organized by Roy Arnold, who is seen leading the class.

 The Real "Bad Wolf" is Not Always An Animal

CONSIDERING the qualities of the candidates offered by both political parties for public office this year in which all four are outstanding citizens, we must lament the lack of interest in the approaching general election.

Leaders of both parties are far from optimistic in hoping for a large vote for the off-presidential year. The township requires just as good men in public office in 1933 as it did in 1932, but all the shouting and frantic pleading of block leaders and newspaper editorials will mean nothing in asking citizens to exercise their just and hard-earned right of franchise, unless voters see the light.

A canvass of many homes in Springfield, and the number will surprise even the most optimistic, will reveal that residents seem to lack that spirit of community spirit with which progressive communities are blessed. The fact that these same disinterested residents own property, pay taxes, have children in local schools, attend local churches and make up a municipality of over 4,000 souls governed by one common group of township officials, still fails to impress the big majority that they shirk their duty.

Without a doubt there is a great need for the replenishment of
 children's books in the adult section.
 Statistics show that circulation and interest are equally divided in the two departments. There are many, whose opinions are to be carefully considered,
 who feel that the real constructive
 work is done in the juvenile division
 of library work and the point is well
 taken.

Our Library is particularly fortunate
 in that its appeals bring desired results.
 Often we ask for more book donations

Express Gratitude to Donors Of Store Space, Lumber, Etc.

To the Editor of the Sun:
 Will you be kind enough to grant us space for this letter of thanks to those who have recently been of help to the Red-Cross? Mr. Morris Lichtenstein has donated the use of one of his stores, to which we have moved the remainder of the clothing which is to be distributed to the needy. The Emergency Relief Administration provided men for moving the articles, and also a carpenter to make tables to hold the clothing.
 Mr. Nicholas C. Schmidt donated lumber for this purpose and the carpenter has also loaned us some shiplap for the tables. Mr. E. E. Clayton was of assistance in setting up the display illustrating the nursing service.
 We could not carry on our work effectively, were it not for the kindness of our many friends, for which we are very grateful.

 Chairman of Publicity.

Without a doubt there is a great
 need for the replenishment of
 children's books in the adult section.
 Statistics show that circulation and
 interest are equally divided in the two departments. There are many, whose opinions are to be carefully considered,
 who feel that the real constructive
 work is done in the juvenile division
 of library work and the point is well
 taken.

Our Library is particularly fortunate
 in that its appeals bring desired results.

Peter H. Meisel Looms Formidable For Freeholder

An intimate acquaintance from boyhood with the Springfield-Union-Summit-New Providence territory in Union County, which widened in later years through business and public activities to include the entire county, makes Peter H. Meisel loom as a formidable contender for ballots in the coming election for the nine man Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Mr. Meisel is the only freeholder candidate in either party from this quarter of the county and the people in this area as well as in the county at large, know him to be admirably qualified to administer the affairs of government county wide in scope.

This year the nine man board is being chosen to supplant the present twenty-five member plan of county organization, as a result of a county wide referendum by the voters a year ago. Under the new plan, the nine members are named from the county at large, instead of being chosen from each municipality by the voters of that municipality.

Whatever may be gained by this means of revising the form of county government, the entire county will lose nothing by naming Meisel to the new board, his friends argue. His experience on the large Board of Freeholders some years ago and later as County Purchasing Agent, give him a county wide viewpoint, and a knowledge of the special needs of every section of the county, it is pointed out.

The nine Republican candidates are well distributed geographically, to insure fair and impartial representation for all parts of the county, Mr. Meisel says. Four are from Elizabeth, two from Rahway and one each from Westfield, Plainfield and Springfield.

Mr. Meisel has literally grown up with Union County. Brought here as a small boy by his parents, he has made himself acquainted with every highway and byway in and about the county as few others know it. Incidentally, he has the distinction of having employed union labor ever since locals came into existence, and of never having had a strike on one of his contract jobs.

He was elected to the Board of Freeholders in 1904 and served the county for years, during which time the splendid system of county roads and bridges were planned and built. Mr. Meisel was largely instrumental in founding and planning Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, to care for those afflicted with tuberculosis, and in the efficient handling of that institution during his years in office.

He advocated and inaugurated the county wide drainage survey to relieve floods and control streams and was active in promoting the system of county parks. He is also a strong advocate of mosquito control in the county as a necessary public service. He was an alternate to the Republican convention which nominated President Coolidge, and a former Vice-President of the State Freeholders Association.—Adv.

PIETY'S REWARD
Archaeologists from the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Chicago have been digging at Beth-zur in Palestine, all in the hope of shedding new light upon the history of religion. But alas, Beth-zur turns out to have been a tough little army post in its day, and, whereas "the only religious image extant is a statuette of Ashtaroth (goddess of love), the big outstanding find so far has been a skeleton. Dating from 200 B. C., it ranks with the oldest known—Literary Digest.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation. Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys. Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured, the action can thus be controlled. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pills or tablets may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go! Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. MAKES YOU LOSE UNHEALTHY FAT
Make No Mistake—Fat Is Dangerous—Ask Your Doctor
To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kraschen Sella in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—one bottle lasts 4 weeks—get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you that it is the SAFE and HARMLESS way to lose fat—your money returned.

Reduces From 154 to 128
In less than 4 weeks ago I started taking Kraschen. I weighed 154 and lost 26 lbs. all the while. Now I weigh 128. I feel so full of energy. I feel like I've been reborn. Mrs. R. H. Hamilton, Carbonado, Pa.
While losing fat with Kraschen you gain in physical attractiveness—you look and feel younger—no more "grey" and, actually, no more constipation.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. E. B. FITZPATRICK, D. D., Member of First Presbyterian Church, Chicago) © 1932, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 29
WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY
LESSON TEXT—Romans 12:11-14; 14:7-9, 15:21
GOLDEN TEXT—Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law, Romans 13:10
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Laws Are Made
JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Citizen
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Obey the Law?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Use of Personal Liberty.

I. Supreme Motive Governing the Life of a Christian.
The attitude of a Christian is that of eager expectancy. The time of salvation is drawing near. The salvation here mentioned is not that which we obtain in justification and sanctification, but is that which we get when our redemption is completed in glorification—at the second coming of Christ. The reasons for this attitude of expectancy are that the night of Christ's absence is far spent and the day of his glorious appearing is at hand. The proper conduct in view of this is—

1. To put off the works of darkness (v. 12). These are—reveling, drunkenness, clamoring, wantonness, strife, and jealousy.
2. Put on the armor of light (v. 12). The figure here is of the Roman soldier who arose from sleep and cast aside his slumber robes and put on his gleaming armor.
3. Walk honestly as in the day (v. 13). The Christian, therefore, will so order his life that his conduct will conform to his high calling.
4. Put on the Lord Jesus Christ (v. 14). This means to enthroned Jesus Christ as the Lord of the life, to bring the life under his control. No provision is to be made for the flesh; no forethought is to be given to that which the carnal nature desires.

II. No Man Liveth unto Himself.
The supreme purpose of Christ's death and resurrection was that he might be the Christian's Lord in life and in death. By virtue of Christ becoming one with the race, there can be no indifference of attitude toward him.

1. All must stand before the judgment seat of Christ. It is not to be a class judgment, but individual.
2. Account must be rendered unto God. Nothing can be concealed from him. Nothing can escape his judgment, for he is omniscient.
3. A Stumbling Block Should Not Be Placed in the Way of Another. (Rom. 14:1-21).

A properly enlightened Christian may have perfect liberty concerning a matter so far as he himself is concerned, but this very liberty may become an occasion of stumbling to others. Two urgent reasons are set forth for the abandonment of our liberties in such cases—

1. We may destroy the weak brother for whom Christ died (v. 15). If it was worth while for Christ to die for a man, surely it is worth while that we should deny ourselves some privileges for his sake. Nor should this be deemed a hardship. Self-denial and cross-bearing attest the sincerity of the believer (Luke 9:23), who thus follows his Master.
2. We should not allow our good to be evil spoken of (v. 16). Liberty in Christ is a precious thing, which only love knows how to use. The proof that one is in the Kingdom of God and therefore ruled by the Holy Spirit is not by eating and drinking, but by living daily the love-life which is characterized as follows—

A Pilgrimage
All faith recognizes that life is a pilgrimage whose course and direction cannot be foreseen and therefore it takes these lives of ours out of our own weak, trembling and uncertain control, and puts them in the hand of God.
What Are You Doing?
What are you doing to make life a little brighter and better for somebody? Mostly we are complaining because of the gross we ourselves have done nothing to dissipate.

What's Doing in the Fabric Realm

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

EVOLVING wardrobes which must prove 100-per cent efficient in meeting the demands of the present autumn and coming winter sports and social season, designers are playing up fabrics with more than usual zest. More and more are we brought to realize that there is a fabric for every occasion, and for every occasion there is a fabric. Present couturier displays are a real schooling in this respect, since they so unmissably classify materials as to their intent.

An especially intriguing display is being made this season of handsome woolsens and sturdy novelty weaves which tell you at a glance that they are essentially for sports and practical town and country wear. In this class a spectacular showing of plaids indicates that they will animate many a grandstand assemblage during the coming weeks. A costume which tapers in admirably to a colorful autumn picture is shown in the group illustrated. It includes a skirt with matching belt and tie of brown and beige velvet plaid. The jacket of brown ribbed velvet tops a blouse of beige silk.

This idea of combining several weaves as instanced in this ensemble of plaid-woolens, ribbed velvet and rough-corded silk, is significant in that it is a gesture among designers which offers fascinating possibilities not only as to working several materials together, but the promise for alluring color schemes is limitless.

Buttons in Front HELP TO CHILDREN

Small children arriving at the age to be taught to dress themselves will learn more quickly if their garments button in the front. The foundation garment should consist of a small waist, on to which the panties may be buttoned. Petticoats may be of the wide-armed and open-necked variety, which slip over the head without buttons. Girdles, dresses and suits, which button or tie, or snap down the front, can be buttoned easily.

Unique New Fabrics for Shoes. Entered for Fall

A thrilling new material has just been produced by the man who launched the pin-tucked kid which was such a success in the spring. It is kid, stitched and attached every which way, so that the finished effect is wholly reptilian. It has the advantage of combining practically with great beauty and elastic. Patent leather is a newcomer in the serious walking class and appears in the form of a low-heeled oxford. Alligator is our hardest perennial. It holds its well-deserved place in the sun along with its less utilitarian cousin, lizard.

Bird on Nellie's Hat Makes Comeback in Fall Mode

It now looks as though you could get out your hat again with the bird on it. You know, the one folks sang about in 1910. And furthermore, you'll probably want to add a few side-dishes for 1933 in the way of a feather cape, feather muff, feather purse and so on. You may even hide behind your feather fan and roll your big movie eyes from that point of vantage if you like.

Balance of Acid Kept by Nature

Necessary Substance for Body's Welfare Found in Most Foods.

Housewives who may have been concerned over the presence or absence of acids in the diet will find their perplexities lessened by this authoritative explanation: "Will you please tell me what fruits and vegetables have an acid reaction? This is a question which comes very often to this column, probably because there is a common misconception of the importance of considering the acid-base qualities of foods in choosing a good diet. "Before I answer the question I should make plain the fact that many foods which are acid in digestion are the opposite after absorption. The outstanding examples of this are lemons and other citrus fruits. After digestion and absorption we find the foods which give an alkaline reaction are, first of all, most of the fruits and vegetables. Milk and cream are slightly alkaline. Meats, fish and eggs give an acid reaction after digestion. Cereals are slightly acid. Fats, sugars and starches are neutral.

"You can easily see that in the ordinary diet a balance of acid and base is almost automatically provided. This balance is necessary for body welfare, and, although we are considering a practically impossible situation, it would be fatal for us to be deprived of foods which are acid in reaction. "The digestive mechanism of the body is so delicately and efficiently adjusted that it maintains a "buffer" system in the blood and also an alkaline reserve stored in the body which is called upon to neutralize any excess acidity which we may occasionally take into the body through food. The "buffer" quality of the blood seems to be independent of the food we eat, but the alkaline reserve is supplied by the potentially alkaline foods we eat.

"The acids formed in the digestion of food are excreted by the skin, the lungs, the kidneys and the feces. It is very important to keep all these natural functions in normal active condition. The inclusion of fruits and vegetables in liberal amounts in the diet and the drinking of goodly quantities of water have a distinct influence upon the matter and are probably much more important to our bodily welfare on this account than because the resulting products of their digestion are base or acid. Dr. Henry Sherman, professor of chemistry at Columbia university and one of the leaders in the field of nutrition, states in the new edition of his "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition" (Macmillan, 1932): "The writer desires to repeat the statement that in his judgment it is still an open question whether the acid-base balance of the mineral elements of the diet is or is not of practical significance in human nutrition. The benefit to health which so generally results from the use of diets consisting largely of fruits, vegetables and milk may perhaps be attributable in part to the fact that these foods yield alkaline residues when oxidized in the body; but also there are several other ways in which the eating of liberal amounts of these foods is apt to be beneficial, notably by enriching the diet in calcium, phosphorus, iron and vitamins and by improving the intestinal conditions."

"In effect, do not worry about whether the foods you eat are basic or acid. Choose a well-rounded diet containing plenty of fruit and vegetables and 'acidosis' will take care of itself."

Stuffed Tomato Salad:
4 ripe tomatoes
1/2 pint cream mayonnaise dressing
2 cucumbers
Salt
Pepper

Scald tomatoes so that the skins can be easily removed. Cut a slice from the top of each and, with a small spoon, scoop out the centers. Peel the cucumbers and cut them into dice, season highly and mix with heavy cream.

at least half the dressing. Fill the tomato cups with this and put another spoon of the dressing on top. Sprinkle a very little finely chopped parsley over and serve on a bed of lettuce leaves.

Black Bean Soup:
1 cup black beans
1 1/2 quarts water
1 onion
1 tablespoon fat
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 hard-boiled eggs
1/2 teaspoon mustard
Pepper
Salt
Paprika

Soak the beans overnight. Drain them and cover with the cold water. Add sliced onion, which has been browned in fat, and simmer until the beans are soft, adding more water if needed. Press through a sieve, again bringing to the boiling point and add seasoning and vinegar. Bind with butter and flour mixed together. Cut the eggs in thin slices and add these to the strained soup just before serving.

POSITIVE PROOF

Up in Bedford, where many interesting things beside the Sluoshen river have their origin, there was an old man who believed the earth was flat, but couldn't convert his neighbors. After long cogitation, he devised a convincing test. In his dooryard was the stump of a tree that had been sawed off level. On the stump, one evening at sundown, he placed a large squash. He went out in the morning and found the squash was still there. "And," said he, triumphantly, "if the earth had really rolled over in the night, the squash would have tumbled off the stump."—Boston Globe.

WEST VIRGINIA CO. CHANGES ITS NAME

Coal & Lumber Firm is Now "Consolidated Supplies"

James Stevenson, manager of the Union plant announced this week that the assets and business of the West Virginia Co. have been purchased by Consolidated Supplies, Inc., headed by Herbert C. Rafetto, who also headed the old concern. There will be no change in management, according to Rafetto, but ownership has passed to employees and officers of the old West Virginia Company. Harry D. MacLague is secretary and treasurer of the new company, a capacity similar to that he filled in the former organization.

"Purchase of the old concern from its owners was made possible by the exceptional growth of an idea," Rafetto said. "Three years ago we introduced on the market, more or less experimentally, our 'Economy Coal,' a mixture of semi-hard Frances pit size and large buckwheat. Today we have 5000 regular consumers of this mixture and with the fall season now getting under way undoubtedly will add many more. The tremendous increase in users pointed the way to us for the future. At this time, with business apparently on the mend, we felt the time was never better for acquiring the old business from its owners for the operating heads and employees."

Not Only Coal Carried
 While "Economy Coal" grades have been the mainstay of the business during the slump in building, the new owners will continue to supply lumber, millwork, building materials and other supplies. The new name of Consolidated Supplies, Inc., was chosen as more truly representative of the company's lines than the former name of West Virginia Company. The change in corporate name and ownership will not interfere with the company's supply of coal for the "Economy" mixture, it was explained. Officials attribute a higher heat yield of their product to the semi-hard Frances coal used in the mixture. This is mined in West Virginia and has an unusually hard structure. The combination with buckwheat was worked out after much experimentation to determine the proper proportions for best heating service. The same desirable source of supply for the semi-hard Frances will continue to be available for serving the trade.

Busy Season Expected
 Although the usual summer lull was experienced this year, officials expect the coming coal season to produce considerably increased volume. Extensive advertising will be employed as heretofore and service of the company's engineers will be offered to consumers to show them how to obtain the best results. It was pointed out that constantly increasing volume of "Economy Coal" sales has brought numerous competitive mixtures into the field, but according to the management, "these imitations have not been able to secure the steady growth in volume of sales because they have been unsuccessful in holding customers." All "Economy Coal" is screened at the yards as an extra precaution to assure a clean, uniform product. This screening is in line with the particular care taken at the mines to
