MATTER of OPINION

Our library continues to widen its field of service. Leadership with a vision and loyal and faithful cooperation from a group of intelligent and truly interested people who care enough about the library to set aside their leisure time upon which there are many other demands—certain periods each week to the service of the reading public—these are the qualities which led behind the remarkable growth of the institution. For it is an institution, make no mistake about that.

MATTER of OPINION

All we know about the Roselle Park High School is what we read in the "Quill," and what we hear of our own Junior Miss. We see that Ralph Padlock is president of the Junior Class; that Salvatore Casale is assistant editor and Howard Lott, Sidney Zubatkin and Sonora Franklin are on the staff of the "Quill." National Prohibition Passes Out and Foreign Liquor Comes In—Johnson Put in Control of AAA Codes Will Budget Director Douglas Resign?

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

NATIONAL prohibition went into the discard on December 5. State conventions in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Utah ratified the repeal amendment on that day, making the necessary thirty-six, and immediately on being notified by telegraph, President Roosevelt and Acting Secretary of State William Phillips issued "proclamation 1710" that the Eighteenth amendment was no longer a part of the Constitution. In twenty-four of the forty-eight states the manufacture and sale of liquor now is or soon will be legal. The state laws under which it can be sold vary from those providing "wide open" saloons in Nevada to a strict system of dispensing hard liquor in Montana only through state-owned stores, one in every county. Most widely enacted of the laws is one providing for serving of hard liquor only with meals.

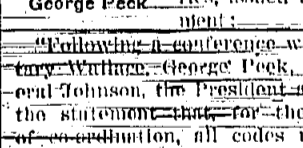

Joseph H. Choate, Jr.

Governmental agencies in Washington were swamped with preparatory measures to deal with the importation of foreign liquors, many huge cargoes of which were waiting for entry; and with the federal restrictions necessary to protect the states that remain dry. Joseph H. Choate, Jr., of New York, son of the famous lawyer and statesman, had been appointed director of the federal alcohol control administration, and he arrived in the capital to take up his duties. Mr. Choate halted the issuance of import permits until a few hours before noon in the morning officials checked the financial standing of importers and worked out quotas for foreign countries.

It was understood that between four and five million gallons of foreign spirits and wines would be allowed entry during December and January, and that if the demand were greater than the supply, the quantity might be increased in order to discourage bootlegging. The government sought to prevent a flood of foreign liquor from swamping the American market to the detriment of domestic producers.

Codes for the distillers and importers already were in effect, and those for the brewers, the rectifiers and blenders and the wine growers were being completed. When congress meets in January one of the first matters to be taken up will be legislation to increase the taxes on liquor and for permanent control of the traffic. To draw up such legislation the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee were called to meet in joint sessions beginning December 31.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Director George Peck of the agricultural adjustment administration, disagreeing radically concerning authority and methods, laid their dispute before President Roosevelt, with the result that the powers of the A. A. A. were sharply curtailed, part of its code-work being transferred to the National Recovery administration. Stephen H. Early, one of the A. A. A. officials, resigned, issued this statement: "Following a conference with Secretary Wallace, George Peck, and General Johnson, the President authorized the termination of the A. A. A. for the purpose of the NRA, including those under negotiations by the AAA, will be turned over to the administration of the NRA."

When Col. Charles A. Lindbergh starts out to do something in the way of aviation, he does it competently, skillfully and neatly. Accompanied and ably assisted by Mrs. Lindbergh, he piloted his big monoplane across the southern Atlantic from Bathurst, Gambia, Africa, to Natal, Brazil, making the 5,275 miles in 16 hours and 30 minutes and landing smoothly in the Natal harbor where the entire population of the city was gathered to welcome them. Through the "Big Flight" Mrs. Lindbergh at the various instrument kept in constant communication with Rio de Janeiro.

LATEST of the farm relief experiment, a $250,000,000 campaign to control the production of corn and hops by paying federal bounties to the producers, was launched by Secretary Wallace. The money will be raised by processing taxes which the consumer will pay and will go to farmers who sign agreements to reduce their acreage of corn and production of hops in 1934. Benefit payments on corn, under the program, will be at the rate of 30 cents a bushel for each bushel the farmer agrees to withhold from production in 1934. The payment will be based on the average yield of the contracted acreage during the previous five-year period. One-half the payment will be made to the farmer as soon as his contract has been approved, the other half when he has fulfilled the terms of the agreement.

DEATH came suddenly to Alexander Lezge, president of the International Harvester company and one of the country's leading industrialists, in his suburban home near Chicago. He was almost sixty-eight years of age and apparently had been in good health.

Mr. Lezge was the first chairman of the federal farm board, under President Hoover, giving up his $100,000 post with the Harvester company in the summer of 1929 to accept the $12,000-a-year government position. For 20 months he devoted himself to farm relief experiments, standing his ground in the face of widespread criticism. Then he resigned and returned to his former place.

By the gift of $100,000 some time prior to his death and of $500,000 in his will, Mr. Lezge brought to completion months of work to perfect a philanthropic organization to be known as the Farm Foundation. It was made known by Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and chairman of the foundation.

In developing his project, whose funds and activities will be devoted to the improvement of the social, cultural and economic conditions of rural life, Mr. Lezge enlisted as trustees a group of twenty industrialists, educators, capitalists and farm leaders from all parts of the country.

WITH considerable ceremony and military display the seventh Pan-American conference was opened in Montevideo, Uruguay, to continue probably three weeks. Its deliberations are being managed by Enrique B. Buero, secretary general. He is one of Uruguay's most prominent young diplomats and was summoned from his post as minister to Germany to this duty in the conference.

In his speech inaugurating the sessions, President Gabriel Terra of Uruguay demanded the "ending down in all American countries of customs tariffs which President Roosevelt justly termed unjust, fatal and direct originators of world economic disaster." He referred to Mr. Roosevelt's indictment of the Hawley-Smoot tariff measure and retaliatory acts "to which other nations were forced."

Concerning the war in the Gran Chaco between Bolivia and Paraguay, he said, "The noble American judicial tradition cannot remain buried in the swamps of the Chaco."

Postponed from 1932 because of the depression, a gathering in which all 21 nations of the western hemisphere were participating found uppermost in the minds of delegates a mutual search for co-operative methods to improve the economic status of their countries.

Secretary of State Hull heads the delegation from United States, and nine other foreign ministers are participating in the conference.

Howe About: Fifty Famous Frontiersmen

Love and Poverty World Garden Spots Disrobing the Great

By ED HOWE

I HEARD a lot of love stories. In addition to those hurled themselves at me from nearby, others get into the newspapers, magazines and books, and every library is full of such kernels hundreds of years old. So far as I am tired of the love story as form of the poetry story. We are all poor, and all of us have been shamefully in love, but should we not be quieter about such misfortunes, instead of making moving pictures of them? The unfortunate, in their love and financial affairs, have not only broken my heart, but are boring me to death.

In motoring, I note that when we stop for gasoline, the attendant tells us his town is in the Garden Spot of the World. A little rougher country beyond, he will admit, but his section is perfect. I have long lived in a section of the West we call the Garden Spot of the World; I'd like to take you over it. It is really very beautiful, very fertile; the residents very worthy people. Everybody in the United States lives in the Garden Spot of the World. Will we let such a country go to the how wows unecessarily? We are not making the effort we should to save it from the present effort of the politicians to ruin it.

A thing I have noticed all my life is that great men do not amount to very much more than the rest of us. I have lived in many communities with noted persons, and after their Washington robes have been replaced with the usual rags, we have said of them: "You wouldn't think that man had been in congress, would you?"

Judging from what I see in the papers, it is quite a job to leave a wife. I wonder so many men risk it (although lately I note judges and juries are treating men rather more leniently). One man was treated almost justly in a recent alimony suit, although it must be admitted the defendant himself was a United States judge; that makes a difference.

It occasionally happens that the men can out talk the women in these dreadful affairs, but, in a recent case, the wife of a pastor is easily the peer of her husband, presumably a trained orator. Her statements in print are like magazine articles. She charges her husband with habitual drunkenness; with cursing their young lady daughter and her friends (all very tough); with visiting the home of his bishop, and being reprimanded by the bishop's wife for acting in a vulgar manner in presence of her children.

The pastor, in court, when his wife testified that she bought his wedding suit, and fed him, before marriage, called out: "It's a lie." This conduct has been weak all through his quarrel with his terribly capable wife, easily the heroine of the past two weeks.

The men say that quarrels between husband and wife become so bitter that the most faithful wives fall shedding falsehoods and believe them. Women are more truthful than men, as a rule, but in quarrels with husbands, the men say (and I say) women throw truth and discretion to the winds. When a woman talks to me about the men (especially her husband) I believe her no more than I believe a man when he talks of the fish he catches, the ducks he shoots, or of his outrages.

Men do not reach the stars through difficulties, or in any other way. At a certain point on the way to the stars, they encounter a strong attraction from the earth and human nature they have left, and are buffeted around until they combine to fly back a ways to try opening again in an element they are fitted for.

A smart woman I know is greatly burdened by the care of a very old and very foolish relative. "I have been studying the faults of the old," she said, "and have already discovered forty, with no compensating features. No one above seventy-five is at all agreeable, or knows anything."

ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Capt. Bill McDonald, Texas Ranger

ONE of the classic stories of the Old West is the tale of the riot which broke out in a Texas town and how its mitigated mayor sent a hurry-up call for a company of Texas Rangers to come forthwith and suppress the rioters. In due course a lone ranger rode into town and sought out the fearful burroughmaster, who, seeing him, spluttered indignantly: "Why—why— I asked for a whole company of Rangers, and they've sent only one!" "Well," drawled that imperious guardian of the law in the Lone Star state, "There ain't but one riot, is there?"

The identity of this esauil officer has never been authoritatively established, but it might very well have been Capt. Bill McDonald, for it was just about the sort of statement you could expect from the man of whom it was once said: "Hed-charge Hell with a bucket of water."

Is remembered as the deputy United States marshal who, almost single-handed, redeemed No Man's Land in Indian territory, named the Texas Panhandle and reformed the notorious Cherokee strip. In doing this he faced a task which federal, state and territorial officers of the law declared impossible and, braving death a hundred times at the hands of desperadoes to whom there were no rules of war and whose slogan was "Shoot Capt. Bill McDonald on sight," he lived to see the rule of law and order prevail in those regions.

But he was more than just a hard-riding, hard-fighting officer who knew not the name of fear. His native intelligence made him a defective whose feats of solving baffling mysteries compare favorably with some of the best celebrated sleuths in the history of crime detection. And he had something else—a psychology which made him invincible, and which is best expressed in his own words: "No man in the wrong can stand up against a fellow that's in the right and keeps on a-coming!"

When Captain Bill died in 1918, press dispatches recalled the fact that he had been a friend of President's the had accompanied President Roosevelt on T. I.'s wolf-hunting expedition in Oklahoma in 1905 as chief guide and special bodyguard, and he had served as bodyguard for President Wilson during his campaign for reelection in 1910. But it is doubtful if he himself would care to be remembered for being "a friend of presidents" so much as he would for being "Capt. Bill McDonald, Texas Ranger."

He Made the Bowie Knife Famous

BEFORE the race of dime novel writers died out, they really should have banded together and erected a monument to Samuel Colt and James Bowie. For, without placing a trusty knife in the hands of their heroes, how could they have ever made us many "redskins like the dust"? Or, without providing those same heroes with "a huge bowie-knife," how could it have been possible for them to "envy their boss another man that hits at me, or dissect their inwards of their pligrin or tender-loot what looks crossways or pucks a lip at me?"

Yes, indeed, the dime novelists owed a great debt to Col. James Bowie, a native of Tennessee, who emigrated with his brother, Rezin P. Bowie, to Louisiana in the early 1830's. Described as "a man of surpassing vigor, headlong energy and of great intellect to lend, six feet tall and all muscle." His favorite sport was roping and riding alligators. Usually, soft-spoken and reserved in manner, when his name was raised, he was like an enraged tiger.

On such occasions he was accustomed to give a good account of himself with a long-bladed "knife" which was a fearful weapon at close quarters when handled by such a man as "Big Jim" Bowie. Whether it was James Bowie or some other man who "invented" the knife which bears his name, is a matter of dispute among historians.

But whoever the "inventor" may have been, the fact remains that it was James Bowie who made the knife famous in more than one desperate encounter. One of them was the celebrated "Sandbar Duel" near Natchez, Miss., on September 19, 1827, a free-for-all among twelve men in which three were badly wounded and two killed. Another was Bowie's fight with three desperadoes who attacked him and all of whom he killed. After that, men began styling to blacksmiths, "Make me a knife like Bowie's," and later they shortened that to "Make me a Bowie knife."

It is wholly appropriate that the last act in "Big Jim's" life should find him with such a knife in his hand. That was on March 6, 1836 at the Alamo. When the Mexicans swept over the walls of the old fortress and galled the defenders there, Bowie was beset with a fever. But he left a trail of dead Mexicans from the door of his room to the side of his bed where they finally succeeded in bearing him down to his death. And when others of Santa Anna's men came swarming into that death chamber they saw one of their fellows sprawled across the American's body with that terrible Bowie knife buried deep in his heart!

Director Peter H. Meisel

THE selection of Peter H. Meisel of Springfield by a Republican caucus to be chairman of the small Board of Freeholders when it takes office January 1 reflects good judgment in our opinion. Likewise, the Elizabeth Daily Journal has expressed a warm sentiment toward the Springfield representative on the board in an editorial. We are pleased to publish the article for the benefit of Springfield persons who did not see the tribute. It follows:

"It is important that an able and experienced member of the small Board of Freeholders should act as its director. By experience Peter H. Meisel is recognized to lead the board. He served several years as director of the old Board of Freeholders, and has served on the important committees of the old board. Moreover, Mr. Meisel served three years as purchasing agent of the county.

"There is none of the business of the freeholders with which he is not fully acquainted. Moreover, there is none of the business of the presiding officer of the board with which he is not familiar. And beyond his experience on the board, are years of experience as a prominent business man of the county.

"It is evident that the services of Mr. Meisel on the former Board of Freeholders recommended him

What the SUN Advocates
 Believing that the following improvements are vital necessities to nourish Springfield's betterment and substantial progress, the SUN advocates:

1. A High school.
2. Removal of dilapidated buildings which are "sore spots."
3. Sidewalks—wherever needed.
4. Encouraging clean factories, to increase the ratables.
5. An active Board of Trade to stimulate "Buying in Springfield."
6. Postal-carrier delivery.
7. Reduced bus fare within town limits and to Millburn R. R. station.
8. Full time position for the township clerk's office.
9. Set-of Building Zones, before township is developed.
10. A county park.

 Monday, 7:30 to 9:30 P. M.
 Wednesday, 2:30 to 5 P. M.
 Friday, 7:30 to 9:30 P. M.

There are so many interesting happenings each day of this era of change that to retain ones bearings is difficult. The shore line, as it were, is moving with the boat. True it is not the first time the world has been amazed at conditions. History tells us so—right from the first writings up to now. Biography and letters tell us so. Even some great fiction writers reflect such situations. The poets—prophets of their day sound passionate warnings of the wrath to come or plead the cause of the humbler part of civilization. So for the contemplative mind there is much food on our non-fiction shelves. No winter evening is long with Dunbar, Dickens, Roosevelt, Page or You-know, to name a few.

Shortly will come another expansion of our library. Two new cases must be added to place all our volumes where readers may not them. Also to provide more floor space to move about. We expected to be assisted in our work by additional helpers—thus providing a form of employment in keeping with the times. The Book Committee have moved a number of pay-shelf books to the free shelf. This will cause additional interest in that department. Also will be found some old favorites rebound with new covers.—F. P. L.

Fashion Declares in Favor of Gold

By CHIERIE NICHOLAS

Well, anyway, fashion is coming out strong for the gold standard no matter what the rest of the world may be doing about it.

If you are dressing up for afternoon tea or an afternoon reception or a musicale or what ever the happy event quite the most wishful thing you can do is to enliven your best black frock with a dash of gold here and there.

If there is one place more than another where the gold fever is spreading it is throughout the neckwear departments.

You can also get sets on this order which include detachable scarves and bib effects and other equally fascinating accents which are sparkled with shimmering sequins.

Among the scores of intriguing articles of adornment brought out this season there are perhaps none more attractive than the new metal-mesh accessories.

It is not only that accessories and jewelry have so enthusiastically subscribed to the gold code.

The hat and the veil continue the gold theme.

Metal mesh is also a first choice for high-style evening gowns.

FORMAL WRAPS BY CHIERIE NICHOLAS

Fashion is more enthusiastic than ever about rich velvet for formal wraps.

CHARMING VELVETS GIVE COLOR TOUCH

The wool scarf has rivals in the new velveteens and corduroys, which come in the brightest of luscious reds, brilliant greens and shimmering blues.

Bright gloves, at first thought to be a mere whimsy of the Paris opulents, are actually being seen where smart women gather.

Various Blue Shades Are Popular for Sports Wear

Revealing the dark rich tones which are so smart for formal costumes are the various shades of blue which continue to be exceedingly popular for sports.

Blue is a color which many women find becoming.

Over this is worn a loose raglan coat of the tweed, in three-quarter length.

Fruit Cake of High Quality

Many Ways of Making It, but All Have One Common Foundation—Liberality in Fruit for the Mixture Is Indispensable.

The other day, says a writer on home economics, some one asked me to define different types of fruit cakes according to their native origin.

White Fruit Cake
1 cup seeded white raisins,
1/2 cup sliced orange peel,
1/2 cup sliced lemon peel,
1/2 cup sliced citron,
1 package shredded coconut.

Honey Fruit Cake
2 pounds raisins,
1/2 pound currants,
1/2 pound citron,
1/2 pound candied orange peel,
1/2 pound dates,
1/2 pound figs,
1/2 pound blanched almonds,1/2 pound flour,
1/2 pound shortening,
1/2 pound sugar,
6 eggs (well beaten),
1 cup sour milk,
1 cup honey,
1/2 cup sweet jelly,
1/2 teaspoon salt,
2 teaspoon nutmeg,
2 teaspoon cinnamon,
1/2 teaspoon cloves,
1 teaspoon allspice,
1/2 cup orange juice.

Dark Fruit Cake
1 pound citron,
1 pound candied apricots,
1 pound candied pineapple,
1 pound candied cherries,
3 pounds seeded raisins,
1 pound currants,
1/2 pound raw almonds,
1/2 pound figs,
1 teaspoon baking powder,
1 teaspoon nutmeg,
1/2 pound butter,
1/2 pound brown sugar,
6 eggs,
1 1/2 cups cider,
1 glass jelly.
Yield—10 pounds.

LARGE HEAD NOT SURE-INDICATION OF BRAIN POWER

Is the size of our heads an index to our intelligence? A Washington scientist has asked British members of parliament to let him have particulars of the length, breadth, and circumference of their heads.

Of the six largest women's brains—all smaller than any of those mentioned above—two belonged to lunatics, and a third to a medical student who committed suicide because she was afraid she had failed in her final examination.

TREAT FOR THE WIFE

The hour of midnight was just striking as the householder crept silently down the stairs. With a quick movement he snapped on the electric light and gasped as his eyes fell on a burglar tampering with his safe. "Jove, a real burglar!" he smiled. "Wait a minute, will you?" The burglar prepared to make his escape. "While you call a copper, eh?" he said. "Not me!" "No," said the householder. "Only wait while I call my wife. She's heard you every night for 32 years, and it'll be a real pleasure to her to see you at last."

CAMOUFLAGE

Biggs, the manager of the restaurant, was talking in undertones to his head chef. Afterwards he called all his waitresses into his private office. "Girls," he said, "I want you all to look your very best today. Add an extra dab of powder to your cheeks and take a little more care with your hair." "Why, what's the matter?" asked the head waitress. "Butter-bad again?" "No," said the manager; "the beef's tough."—London Tit-Bits.
