ROSARY SOCIETY RENAMES OFFICERS

Mrs. Herman Treiber and Mrs. Fred V. Betz were re-elected to their present offices, president and vice-president, respectively, at the meeting of the Rosary-Altar Society of St. James' Church held Monday in the rectory. Mrs. Edward Coffey was elected secretary.

The group held a Christmas party and each member received a gift. The next meeting will be held on January 6 when the elected officials will be installed into office.

They're Building Again

(Editor's note: The author of "They're Building Again," who remains anonymous, has been inspired by the community drive to build a combined volunteer group of members of Continental Post-American Legion, who are erecting their new building on the tract of Town Hall ground.)

The little boys are building, houses as of yore. They used to build once upon a time in somebody's yard, or the goodie in sea shore.

It's a sight to smile at, wonder at, ponder if you will. What animates a "bunch of guys" who somehow want to build.

There's the time when Bill and Harry, or was it good old Jack; who started to build a lean-to just over by the track.

It's too near the shop-yard, argued Jimmie, some day to be a cop. What's the diff, answered Herbie, who talking, never seemed to stop.

Who cares, yelled our Frosted, digging with a vim.

He's a little thin guy who can take with a grin.

Hey, you! Fred, where's Tommie, Jack and Bill, and all those other guys.

Are we building this place to have fun in or for the rats and flies?

Getta move on it you fellers, yelled Shrimple, it's getting dark to see. Sides I got to get home 'fore the old man-whales Hell out of me.

So it went, was it weeks or was it years?

Who cared or cried, as time slipped by, or listened to the jeers.

We had fun, you bet you. That's all that mattered and then. All of a sudden we were men.

Picking up the daily grind for daily bread, some cake, perhaps some wine.

But before we could get fairly started. The war opened with a bang. And off we went we hoped, some one to hang.

And so we were on our way, to fight for liberty and peace. Hoping by our fighting, these bloody wars would cease.

Some of that gang that went away, never did get back. To start again that lean-to down by the railroad track.

But there's Harry, Herb and Peety, Bill, Tony and Bob, Jim, Joe, is around, WPAing and bossing up the job.

That's most of the old gang now that's working here. With just a few new guys, to bend their backs and lend a little cheer.

This and other things I remembered as we build our Legion Shack. Stand still in silent memory of the ones that can't come back.

So I leave with this thought of mine, if you will be still. That the little big boys are building, building as of yore.

A sight to smile at, to wonder at, ponder if you will. Just what animates a bunch of guys who somehow want to build?

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Key Albanian Cities Fall as Greeks Continue to Drive Back Italy's Army; Turks Declare Martial Law in 'Crisis'; Murray Heads CIO as Lewis Resigns

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BACK DOOR: War in Reverse

Events on the Albanian and nearby fronts gave military experts what they considered proof that the grand British plan of conducting the war from now on will be to knock out Italy first, then turn attention to Germany.

Hence Europe was treated to a war in reverse. Although England was continuing bombing raids against military objectives on German and occupied European bases including Norway, chief attention was focused on Italy, both on the continent and in Africa.

To fall reports on the Taranto attack were added the fall of Koriza, accomplished with British air aid, and further Greek successes were accompanied by word that British territorial forces were fighting side by side with Greeks in the snowy and mountainous terrain of the Albanian frontier.

Mussolini, after denying all British and Greek claims of victory, two days later was the first to announce to the world the fall of Koriza and that a major defeat had met Italian arms.

Gen. John Metaxas, handsome Greek leader, was hailed as the savior of the nation from the Italian menace, and the numbers of prisoners taken were succinctly summed up as "too many to handle."

MONKEY WRENCH: In Diplomacy?

Germany's diplomatic maneuvers, usually believed forerunner to huge military operations, continued to be watched closely in half a dozen capitals, and wonder was expressed again whether perhaps Soviet Russia might throw a monkey wrench into the proceedings again.

Balkan resistance to Axis domination showed signs of crumbling, with Hungary first to give in to Nazi demands, and Rumania showing final collapse, though it was pointed out that the latter was already in Nazi hands.

At this moment, Russia stepped in with two moves, the significant character of which was evident, but the meaning of which was not at once ascertainable.

Russia recalled Schwarzkov, Moscow's ambassador to the Reich, and replaced him with another commissar.

Russia sent a warning to her little Slav neighbor, Bulgaria, to be slow and careful about joining fully in the Axis plans.

Taxes issued a flat denial, publicly, that Russia had had any hand in Hungary's joining the Axis.

These three moves were projected on the diplomatic screen for what

The Turks expressed their own attitude as follows:

"If the Germans are to aid Italy against Greece, Russia will not be willing to sit idle.

"However, even if Russia gives her consent, Turkey will defend herself.

"Bulgaria must be kept aloof from this newest move."

So Turkey, joining Russia in the warning to Bulgaria, evidenced that she was on the threshold of entrance into the war on the anti-Axis side.

The counter diplomatic move was coming from Von Papen, who was believed ready to offer Turkey a huge slice of France's Syrian territory if she would agree to remain aloof while the Germans go down through the Balkans and knock out Greece.

Observers felt there was little chance that Turkey would accept, fearing rather Axis domination of the Dardanelles than wishing a slice of territory she could take over herself any time she desired.

S. S. S.: Stress, Strikes, Sabotage

The defense front in the United States moved into the second of the phases that always have confronted this nation in times of industrial stress.

After a series of incidents that were widely interpreted as sabotage, strikes broke out in key industries in widely separated sections of the country.

Leading squabbles involved the Aluminum Company of America, a plant employing 7,500 workers, and the Vultee Aircraft corporation, a work on government orders totaling $84,000,000.

Strike fever spread to Baltimore, where 2,000 city workers went out, demanding more money and pay for overtime, most serious public employees' strike in city's history.

The Aluminum strike was over company's refusal to discharge one employee who owed $12 back C. I. O. union dues.

The Vultee shutdown, also a C. I. O. matter, was blamed by U. S. Attorney General Jackson on "Reds." Workers were demanding raises of .50 to .75 cents an hour in pay.

Back of these scenes of labor stress stood the Dies committee, probing and publishing, charging the Nazis with responsibility for much and the Soviet agents with the rest of it all.

Jackson whipped back at Dies, stating he felt that the Dies group was accomplishing nothing—but breaking down the public confidence in the ability of the G-men to solve crime and keep order and safety in the nation.

The C. I. O. closed its convention, by electing Phillip Murray to John L. Lewis' post, Lewis thus carrying out his "step-down" promise of a presidential campaign. The C. I. O. then announced it would attempt to organize the Ford Motor plant, and in the same breath asked governmental investigation of any affiliations the company might have with Nazi interests.

Home—Slay home for Christmas is the German slogan this year, people being told that railroads will be needed for war purposes, and not for travel.

Surrender—Unconfirmed reports were that a first-line French battle-ship had surrendered to the British at Gibraltar.

Americanized—A veteran of the Argentine battle of American troops in France, seeing the Greco-Italian Pindus mountain fight, said the Greeks fought like the Yanks, from rock to rock and tree to tree.

Classes—W. L. White wrote from London that he couldn't understand Kennedy's statement that democracy was dead in England. He said all classes mix on equal footing when the bombs fall.

IT MUST be remembered, in your remaining prognostications and your selections that while American football is the greatest game ever invented when it comes to a mixture of spirit and skill, to condition, to player interest and to crowd excitement, it is still an unbalanced game in the way of just rewards.

The better team doesn't always win—not by 50 kilometers. I have talked this season with over 20 leading coaches about this phase of football, and they all agree. They admit that you can outplay another team badly—along the ground and through the air—and still lose the ball game.

I've located over 40 teams this season who have made more yards along the ground and through the air and still have lost. When two good teams meet, the breaks almost always carry the winning story. Which means the flip of a coin.

This is no indictment of football, as a game. It is the turn that gives the underdog his chance against better football people. It is the factor that gives its thrills to big crowds, which have realized there are few setups.

First downs have become minor factors. On a recent Saturday 17 teams made more first downs and greater yardage—in many cases by decisive margins—and yet lost. It is something like an open golf championship with a vast roulette wheel spinning the answer.

But it is stupid to say that the "better" team won. It is often truer to say "The lucky team won." And most coaches know this.

Calling the Turn

The forward pass came along in 1906. That was 34 years ago. Four years later, some 30 years ago, I happened to be with Hurry-up-Yost of Michigan and Bill Hanna, one of the star football writers who was a veteran when Frank Hinkley was a freshman at Yale.

"This is a new game," Yost told us. "I've found at Michigan we can beat the second team by seven touchdowns on Tuesday, and fall to score on Wednesday. Passes and plays click one day. They don't the next. It's all different."

That was 30 years ago. But Yost saw what was coming—a better game for the player, a far better game for the crowd, but no longer a game for past performance nor for accepted form. Yost at that time saw ahead how many better football teams were going to be beaten by underdogs, by minor teams.

For Example, Minnesota This season Minnesota stepped into one of the toughest schedules of the year. I'd say the toughest.

The Gophers barely scrambled by Washington, and I happen to know that both Jimmy Phelan and Washington thought they should have won—with 30 per cent of the breaks.

Ohio State had two easy chances to beat Minnesota and blew both, which is nothing to Buckeye credit. An intricate play called in the rain for a one-yard touchdown wasted one of them.

One point after touchdown for Northwestern would have tied Minnesota. Two points after touchdown would have won. The point after touchdown is the cheap concession from the rules committee to the crowd—not to the good of football.

In the Michigan game the Wolverines were all over the Gophers—something like 15 first downs to 5. Michigan that day was the better team on the field. But Minnesota won on a single play.

Yet, I still say Minnesota has turned in the best job of the year, barring nobody, when you look at the Gopher schedule. Yet, without the breaks, Minnesota could easily have lost at least three ball games. Maybe four.

"Minnesota this fall," a veteran Big Nine coach told me, "was like Iowa was last year. Iowa last year could easily have been beaten by Indiana, Minnesota, Purdue and Notre Dame, which Eddie Anderson knows. Notre Dame was in the same spot. Notre Dame on the day's play could easily have lost to both Army and Navy. When you play tough schedules, anything can happen."

You've got to give Minnesota credit for taking the year's big gamble—a gamble that even Minnesota might easily have lost three ways. But it has still been the big job of 1940.

For One Game The main angle in football, Elmer Layden of Notre Dame said, "is the mental attitude for one game. I know how Army and Navy shoot for me. I told you that you could throw out all other games. When you get set to win one game, no one can say what will happen. For example, blocking and tackling are about 80 per cent spirit for that one day.

"Don't figure that any unbeaten team rides safely. They definitely do not."

Sallies in Our Alley: George Jean Nathan, the critic, was asked his opinion of a young newcomer playwright. "The best thing I can say about his writing," Nathan'd George, "is that it is legible." Wilkie Mahoney, the scribe, says that for every genius in Hollywood there's a rotten movie on Broadway . . . A drunk displaying a gigantic Willie button was yelling: "I won with Willie!—I won with Willie!" in front of the Rivoli theater. One of the stem's gamblers asked him: "Whaddaya mean you won with Willie? He came in second!" . . . "So what?" hiccupped the stew, "I had him across the board!"

Midtown Melodrama: Stage magazine's debut was a bit tardy for the darndest reason. The editors investigated the background of one of the four "pretty and promising" girls who were shown meeting all the celebrities—and discovered that one of them, a cute and dimpled thing, was too well-known—about Sixth avenue as a Midnight Madonna . . . And so another had to be selected and new pictures made . . . She is so hurt—she has vowed to tell the wife of her "finger-man" next time she meets them in public.

Making the 'Coin of the Realm' At Rate of $16,799,283 Per Day

$16,799,283 in new paper money every day! And that's some spoudulicks! Most of this is made into dollar bills, as these are in greatest demand, and the life of the dollar bill is only about nine months. After that it is a fiscal wreck, so it is recalled to the treasury department and carefully destroyed. Some of the principal stages in the manufacture of Uncle Sam's paper money are shown here. No coins are minted in Washington.

There is always a large reserve on hand in the finished money vaults—approximately $100,000,000.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. COULD TIP BALANCE The diplomatic reports which President Roosevelt now has on his desk all indicate that the war has reached the most crucial point in its variegated history, and that, albeit, even strong-arm diplomacy by the United States might tip the balance to a British victory.

How this may be done is now the most vital question before the White House and state department.

One possibility was to woo Russia, keep her out of the Axis. This was the chief reason for the Oumansky-Summer Welles conversations. They have partially failed, due to the fact that all the United States can offer Russia is machine tools and gasoline, while Adolf Hitler can make an offer of India, Persia, Afghanistan.

Another possibility was to stiffen U. S. policy against Japan, perhaps by sending ships to Singapore, thus taking over the British burden of policing the South-Pacific. This would have devastating repercussions upon the Axis, but Roosevelt considers it risky, so it is being held in abeyance.

Third possibility, and the one actively under discussion inside the state department now, is to bolster the French forces in North Africa, help bring them in on the side of the British.

This has tremendous possibilities. For at present General Graziani is bogged down in Egypt, where Mussolini has been sending him—pre-emptory orders to advance on Suez, to which Graziani has replied that he will not advance until he has sufficient supplies. So should Graziani be attacked by the French from the Tunis side, and by the British from the Egyptian side, it would mean certain defeat and probably the end of Mussolini.

Furthermore, it would probably take Italy out of the war.

This is the main effort to which American diplomacy is now directed. First step was a plan to send General Pershing, old friend of Marshal Petain, as special ambassador to France. To this end, the 80-year-old general underwent a thorough physical examination at Walter Reed hospital. But although anxious to undertake the mission, his doctors forbade it. Unless he ignores the orders of the physicians, which is not likely, the Pershing mission is out.

However, the chief problem is to influence not merely Petain, who already has veered away from the Axis, but also Marshal Weygand. The latter is now in North Africa, and the French troops in that area would rise to his leadership overnight in any attack upon Italian Libya.

U. S. SHIPS TO DAKAR Another plan which has been considered in army and navy circles is for the United States to take cognizance of the part which Dakar might play in any attack upon South America.

The Germans are now developing Dakar as a giant air base under the protection of the French fleet. This is of vital concern to the United States, Brazil, Argentina—and the rest of South America. Therefore, it has been suggested that the United States investigate joint Pan-American representations, followed perhaps by a naval display off Dakar, in order to persuade the French fleet to divorce itself from Germany and neutralize Dakar.

This plan does not get much encouragement from the White House and state department, where it is considered risky.

NEW CROP CURTAILMENT Beginning December 1, the AAA inaugurated the "Alabama" plan, which marks a sharp turning in the policy of crop control. It is aimed to remedy what has long been loosely described as "paying farmers for not growing something."

Henry Wallace and the AAA never acknowledged that their program was as negative as that, but the new program sets out to eliminate all doubt.

Therefore a farmer could earn benefit payments merely by abandoning a certain acreage—that is, by reducing the number of acres of his major crop. But under the Alabama plan, he is required also to carry out certain soil building practices, such as terracing, planting erosion-resisting crops, and setting aside an acre of permanent pasture.

The plan, first adopted in Alabama, puts farmers on their mettle. If they fail to perform, the benefit payments are withheld. In other words, the objective is shifted, from acreage reduction to improvement of the soil of American farms.

MERRY-GO-ROUND The surplus marketing administration is pushing the consumption of powdered eggs, which its experts claim taste about the same as fresh ones. Last year bakers used 10,000,000 powdered eggs, which sell from three to five cents less than fresh.

Few people realize the expanding scope of the defense commission, or instance, its press relations officer has a representative in Hollywood. Leo Rosten, to explain Washington to film directors.

SLEEPY, an oilcloth burro, is as lazy as he can be. He just nods and sleeps all day, and seems not to care what the children do with him. But he has three redeeming recommendations: a cute personality, ease of making, and his ability to part from fingerprints with the whisk of a damp cloth.

Z9033, 15c. brings outlines and directions for this 12-inch burro with the green yarn mane and red halter. Send order to:

Our Existence

Existence is not to be measured by mere duration. An oak lives in centuries, generation after generation of mortals the meanwhile passing away; but who would exchange for the life of a plant, though protracted for ages, a single day of the existence of a living, conscious, thinking man?—Caird.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and "cure" it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: macaroni, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such as one of the crunchy, loaded, ready-to-eat cereals, Kellogg's All-Bran. Eat it often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

SCHOOL ACQUIRES LIGHTING METER

A photometer has been purchased in Regional High School for the health department to measure lighting conditions in the different sections of the building. According to Miss Eileen Chayer, professor of public health nursing at Columbia University, "Prolonged use of inadequate light causes temporary impairment of vision."

Teachers are now able to set up the photometer easily to determine faulty light conditions so that they may be rectified. Readings are being made in the class rooms and study halls in all parts of the rooms and a check is made on clear days and on cloudy days, with or without lights. In a recent test, the cafeteria study hall light was found to be below the standard and higher watt bulbs were added for the correction. Mrs. Ruth Montgomery, school nurse says, "Adequate lighting helps to prevent fatigue, and I hope that students will carry over into their homes this idea. Being able to measure light will perhaps make them more conscious of what is considered to be adequate light at all times."

HONOR SOCIETY TO CONVENE TONIGHT

The Honor Society of Regional High School will meet tonight at 7:30 in the school with William L. Manze, guidance director, in charge. The society's charter will be presented by Principal Warren W. At a business meeting the group will plan for the purchase of club pins for the members and plan activities for the year.

Adams, a tackle and Nagy, a guard, were given honorable mention. Falzer's selection represents the cream of more than 4,000 football players coming from 185 schools in all parts of the State.

All-Star Eleven Meets Camptowns

Football in the North Jersey Professional League will close Sunday at Irvington High School Field when the Camptown Pros, league champions, engage the All-Star League eleven in a contest which may test the experiment of a sudden-death extra period. Thus, in case of a tie, both teams would play an overtime period and continue until one team scores the deciding points. It has not been ascertained whether this arrangement will be used this week-end, although the league officials met Wednesday night and approved its use in league play next year.

Co-coach Ed Ruby of the Springfield Stars is coach of the All-Star team, which includes the following players from the local squad: Co-coach Bill Brown, Walt Kopling, Jim Dwyer and Carl Vanclo. The fifth player, Bud Hoffman, whose sensational play at center has bolstered the locals' line all season, was injured in Sunday's game with the Camptowns and will be unable to play.

Star team. Another gridders, Ed Smith of Nutley, the league's star center, who also was in the Stars lineup Sunday, is slated to start.

Fur Cape Comes Into Vogue With Hats and Muffs to Match

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

CAPE: Fur capes have come out in spectacular array this winter. Some are wrist length, while others go elbow deep. Among the "little furs" worn separately with a cloth coat, cunning shoulder capes are especially chic.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Reviewed by CARTER FIELD

Make-up of new Senate is surprise to Senators themselves. Republicans have tricky problem in cementing effective opposition.

WASHINGTON.—The new senate in January is going to be a very different group of men from what most of the senators themselves would have predicted, confidentially, last spring. There were quite a few surprises in the primaries, but the election added to them.

One of the biggest surprises of all is not that any particular senator was defeated, but that one of them was re-elected. This is Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania. Most of his colleagues had thought that Joe would run so far behind Roosevelt that he would certainly be retired to private life. When you add to this the fact that privately most of the Democratic senators had thought, following the 1938 election, that Pennsylvania would probably go Republican all the way down the line, the surprise is even greater.

Another big surprise was the defeat of Sen. John C. Townsend of Delaware. Townsend is a fruit grower down in the southern part of his little state, has remained a "farmer" despite being a senator, and was thought to be well liked by his constituents.

His absence will be highly gratifying to the New Deal, and to the Silver state senators, for his constant attacks on the administration's silver-buying policy have been very annoying to both.

Sen. Francis T. Maloney of Connecticut is, like Senator Guffey, one of those who had predicted that he would be re-elected.

LA FOLLETTE STAGES UPSET Still another of these is Robert M. La Follette. Most of the political forecasters missed the boat rather badly in Wisconsin. One of them, who happened to be a great admirer of La Follette, was convinced after a careful study of the state that the electoral vote would be too close to forecast, but that La Follette was certainly beaten. A majority of the political scouts were sure that Willie would carry Wisconsin, and agreed that La Follette could not win on account of the soreness occasioned by his endorsement by the New Deal.

Return of Sen. Peter Goetz of Rhode Island was not a surprise, even to those who had predicted that the electoral votes of this state would go for Willie. Illinois leaders themselves were surprised that Sen. James M. Slattery made such a good showing. Even those who thought Roosevelt would get the 29 electoral votes did not think Slattery had much chance of beating "Curly" Brooks.

There were those also who predicted trouble for Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, especially after the polls began to show how close the state was to the presidency, and how weak the Republican governor was. Vandenberg actually made one of the most spectacular races of any Republican in the country, though pressed closely for this honor by Gov. elect Dwight H. Green of Illinois.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, on the other hand, while he led the national ticket handily, made a much poorer showing than the political wiseacres had expected.

PROBLEMS FACE REPUBLICANS All politics is peculiar, but the problem confronting the Republican party in cementing an opposition to the administration under the leadership of Wendell Willkie is rather tricky when one considers President Roosevelt's caustic references to "Martin, Barton and Fish" during the campaign.

Bruce Barton is no longer in congress, of course. He was defeated trying to win a seat in the senate from James M. Mead. But Hamilton Fish is still in the house, representing the President's own district, and he is the ranking Republican member of the house foreign affairs committee.

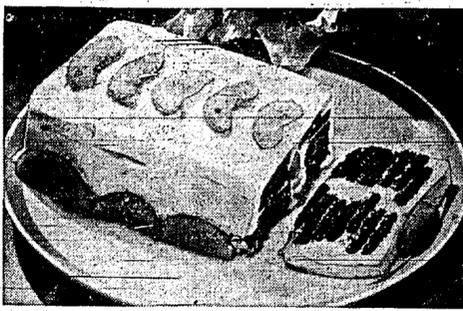

Further, Rep. Joe Martin, whose record on votes affecting foreign affairs were such a campaign target for administration orators from the President down, is still Republican leader in the house.

Over on the senate side Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who opposed repeal of the arms embargo, and took an almost precisely opposite view on foreign affairs in all respects from that taken by Wendell Willkie, was re-elected by a thumping majority in Michigan.

So Vandenberg can say to himself, with some logic, that the people of Michigan are for HIS politics, rather than those of Willkie.

Then there is also in the senate Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who can look over the record of his electorate in his state in 1938 and 1940 and assume that the people of the Buckeye state are more inclined to his views than those of Mr. Willkie.

It is unlikely that these men will readily agree with Mr. Willkie now that the election is past.

FOR YOUR IN-BETWEEN HOLIDAY PARTIES (See Recipes Below)

Household News By Eleanor Howe

Expected, and unexpected situations, too, arise during the holiday seasons. People drop in just to wish you a "Merry Christmas." Others are invited for some specified time. The night before Christmas you may want to have a "trimming the Christmas tree" party. Or, your daughter may ask a few of her chums in for a small party.

Whether you expect to be on the entertainment committee for a family reunion, or just a hostess for a casual holiday gathering, it's a good idea to put on your thinking cap and plan some easy-to-prepare mass refreshments.

Sandwich makings that the guests can put together themselves are always a good choice for quick-party menus.

Fruit refrigerator cakes are the perfect solution for the hostess who does not want to play the role of leslary hostess without last minute culinary responsibilities. They are practical, too from the standpoint of using leftover fruits that might be cluttering up the refrigerator.

These delicacies always have a glamorous "party" look and appeal to every sweet tooth; but, best of all, they can be made in 1/2 time in the morning, leaving the afternoons and early evenings free for "fun."

Peach Refrigerator Cake (Serves 8)

- 1 1/2 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 cup canned sliced peaches (well drained)
2 egg whites (stiffly beaten)
2 chocolate wafers

Blend sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice thoroughly. Stir until mixture thickens. Add sliced peaches, which have been well drained. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Line narrow oblong pan with wax paper. Cover with fruit mixture. Add layer of wafers, alternating with the fruit mixture, finishing with a layer of wafers. Chill in refrigerator 6 hours, or longer. To serve, turn out on small platter, and carefully remove wax paper. Cut in slices, and serve plain or with whipped cream.

Refrigerator Fruit Cake (Serves 8)

- 2 cups graham cracker crumbs (rolled fine)
1/2 pound marshmallows (cut fine)
1/4 cups dates (cut fine)
1/2 cup nut meats (broken)
1/2 cup thin cream

Better Baking. Quality in food is what Americans look for today. Not only must the ingredients be good, but they must be combined in the best way possible for perfect results. Formerly, just the thought of baking pies, cakes or breads would frighten the inexperienced cook. Today, the most timid beginner has little difficulty in following recipe directions.

Miss Howe's cookbook, "Better Baking" contains such recipes, simple and easy to understand, and easy to follow; and the results will do the young cook proud.

You may secure your copy of her cookbook by writing to "Better Baking," in care of Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, and enclosing 10 cents in coin.

Here Comes The Bride

By D. J. WALSH (Associated Newspapers) WNU Service.

GIRLS. It was absolutely wonderful! Marcella's dress was a dream—white satin, a lace veil with orange blossoms and an exquisite shower bouquet, and guess what? Rosalind paused, then added solemnly: "I caught the bride's bouquet! You know what that means?"

"It doesn't mean anything," commented Miss Blake, the president's secretary. "I caught one once. But if I ever do marry," she added thoughtfully, "I shan't have a big, elaborate ceremony. I'd rather be married quietly without any fuss or feathers."

"Oh, applesauce!" cried little Gladys Murphy, the switchboard girl, "every girl wants to have a swell wedding with bridesmaids and Lohengrins and 'Oh, Promise Me' everything!"

"Well," said Rosalind appreciatively, "I have decided that Gerald and I are going to have a church wedding."

"It is to be hoped," Miss Blake remarked as she turned to her desk, "that your young man agrees with you."

Miss Blake's insinuating comment stuck irritatingly in Rosalind's mind as she began typing letters. She had a feeling that Gerald was not entirely in sympathy with her elaborate plans; but she felt sure she could talk him over. She would bring up the subject again that evening and when he saw how her heart was set on it, he would not oppose her.

But, surprisingly enough, Gerald did oppose her. "Rosalind, dear," he said, holding her hand in his and stroking it softly, "you know I've had to work hard for everything I've saved. I've felt happy because I've got enough to furnish a home for us and something in the bank. If we were to have this big wedding it would cost a good deal. I can't afford it, darling, and," he added soberly, "neither can your father."

"Oh, Gerald," cried Rosalind, her blue eyes filling with tears, "you don't understand. All my girl friends have had big weddings with wifery in the papers and wonderful presents and I'd be ashamed if we just got married quietly." She saw him frown slightly and added quickly, "Of course, that's not the real reason, honey. It's because I want every one to see what a splendid man I've got."

But Gerald did not soften to her flattery as she hoped and she went on pleadingly. "Don't worry about daddy. He always gives me what I want and the money comes somehow."

Gerald thought of the pale, careworn man who was "Daddy," and tried to steel his heart anew against Rosalind's blandishments. If he weakened now he might expect the same dull, money-grubbing future for himself. He was lost for a moment in deep thought, then turned to the waiting Rosalind and put his arm tenderly around her. "Dearest," he said, "you know I love you and if you can't be happy without this big wedding, I'll have to see what I can do. We'll have to postpone it, though, because I'll have to save more money."

"Postpone our wedding, Gerald?" Rosalind faltered, her eyes widening in dismay. "Why, I've made all my plans for this fall. I've told Mr. Raibe I was leaving the fifteenth and he's engaged another stenographer in my place."

"Perhaps I can get some night work," said Gerald. "I won't be able to spend as much time with you, but in that way I can save you extra money by spring. I think I'll go over and see Tom McCardle about it."

Before Rosalind could realize it, she was alone, rather puzzled and forlorn at the turn her affairs had taken. As she was kissing Gerald good-by, she had murmured something to the effect that they might live with her parents for a while. "Nothing doing, honey," Gerald had answered. "When we're married we're going to live in our own home by ourselves."

Time lay rather heavy on Rosalind's hands after that. The only evening Gerald was able to spend with her was Sunday, and Sunday evenings seemed far apart. She was delighted when Gerald phoned one Saturday afternoon saying he had to drive out to Hixton and asking if she would like to go along.

"Isn't it a gorgeous day, Gerald?" she bubbled happily, smuggling up to him in the roadster.

"This was to have been our wedding day, dear," said Gerald soberly, "do you remember?"

Did she remember? Could she forget? A sudden pain clutched her heart with a sense of tragic loss. But Gerald was talking now of some business deal and she listened absently, enjoying the heady autumn weather. Suddenly Gerald stopped before a small, dingy house. "You are now in Hixton, Rosalind," he announced, smiling. "The man I came to see lives here. Come, dear."

He knocked at the low door. An old man opened it and peered out. "Oh, it's you, Gerald, my boy," he quavered. "Come in, the both of you."

A hound came up and sniffed casually at Rosalind's hand and the old man disappeared into a back room after a whispered conversation with Gerald.

"What a queer old man, Gerald," whispered Rosalind.

"He was an old friend of my father's, dear," returned Gerald. "He's really a good sort."

The door opened and in marched the old man, attired, to their astonishment, in the full military regalia of his lodge and carrying a flute. Raising this to his lips, he played in a brisk, whispering tone the wedding march from Lohengrin.

"What does this mean, Gerald?" demanded Rosalind, trembling.

"Dearest," he said, drawing her to him gently, "Mr. Jones is a justice of the peace and I have our marriage license in my pocket."

Rosalind's mind was a chaos of emotions. Gerald was silent and she stole a glance at his face to meet a look full of love and longing that she could not and caring a flute. At her nod, the solemn, fastidious old man bent his bowed head and began to read the service. He had to stop once to hush the dog who had begun an excited barking at seeing a cat through the window. Then she was aware that Gerald was slipping a gleaming circlet on her finger and presently they were out in the car again.

"Well, sweetheart," asked Gerald, lifting her face to his.

"Well, Gerald," she laughed softly, happily, "it wasn't a church ceremony, but then, neither was it a quiet, home wedding."

ANOTHER ROAD TO ROME

By DUFORD JENNE (McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

ANNE'S heart gave its queer little jump, just as it always did when she heard Kent's clear voice over the telephone.

"Hello, Anne," the voice came with a swift tender touch on her name. "There is danger ahead. I have just been tipped off by father's secretary that Dad is driving out to see you. You can guess why he is coming—to try to convince you that you should not marry his son."

"Oh, Ken—" she cried in dismay. "Remember—you belong to me, and no one can take you from me. Let him argue; he will do it gently. But—and here's the point—don't pay any attention to what he says. Just as soon as I can get my car, I am coming hot on his trail."

"She turned from the telephone with the guy 'remember' chiming softly in her ears, but the next moment her thoughts were dark. She knew his father as did everybody in her suburban town as a great and successful city lawyer.

"She dreaded the thought of meeting him and her thoughts were anything but happy. In the midst of her troubled musing, the doorbell rang. When she opened the door, she faced a tall man whose bulk frightened her. She knew in a glance it was Kent's father.

He pondered a moment. "Miss Elmer, I suppose you know my errand. I wish there were some quiet way in which we could come to an understanding. You see, Kent is my only boy, and I have great hopes that he will marry the daughter of one of my old friends. I say this frankly because I feel you will see my position—such a marriage means happiness for a circle of us. In addition, his world is quite different than yours."

"She smiled, although her heart was hurt. "Just what do you mean?"

He smiled in turn and said mildly: "Well, his is a world of wealth, and all it means."

"Mine, please, is a happy one even without wealth," she said as mildly as he had spoken. "There are some words of wealth I do not care to enter—even—er—with Kent. If yours is that kind, then you need have no fear. But as I know him, this is a world of friendliness, appreciation of others, regard for men and women no matter whether they are wealthy or not. Is yours different than his?"

He cleared his throat. "You do not see my point, I—"

He paused and half turned toward the door.

"Mother is preparing dinner. You have a long drive back to the city. Won't you stay with us?" she said, eagerly, the thought in her mind that Kent might be along in time to rescue her.

He started when he saw her mother and seemed pleased when she found himself at the attractive dining table.

Anne was soon out of the conversation, for her mother with her quick mind was a match for the lawyer. The minutes passed, and in the midst of them, the bell rang, and without ceremony, as was his way, Kent came in, his black eyes dancing.

"Why, hello, Dad, you here?" he exclaimed.

The older man looked up. "Certainly, and let me tell you something, I suppose you think you are to have a share of this potato. You're not. I'm to have yours!" His gray eyes twinkled. "By the way, what is the idea of forcing me to come out here alone to get acquainted with your bride-to-be?"

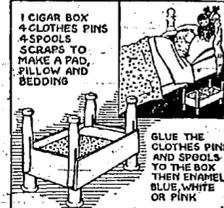

Anne gasped and looked at Kent. He blinked. "Say—say that again, will you, father?"

His father turned to Anne's mother. "You see, I was just saying this younger generation is a bit dumb!"

Auctioneer Had No Trouble Obtaining a Higher Bid

At an auction sale, the business was interrupted by a whispered conversation between the auctioneer and one of the prospective bidders. At the conclusion the master of ceremonies announced: "A gentleman present tells me that since proceedings started in this room he has lost a wallet containing the sum of five hundred dollars. He hereby offers a reward of fifty dollars to anyone for its return."

There was a short period of silence, then one of the members of the crowd nodded his head to the auctioneer and announced: "I bid sixty."

Did you know, you can talk from Newark to Washington or Boston for 30c; to Buffalo for 4.05; Pittsburgh $1.10; St. Louis $2.10. (Station-to-station 3-minute day rates.) In New Jersey 12,000 trained telephone men and women are ready to serve you swiftly and courteously whenever you call.
