

The Lamp in the Valley

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. Service

Carol Coburn is Alaska born, the daughter of Klondike Coburn, a "bush rat" who died with an unestablished mining claim.

THE STORY SO FAR
Aboard ship, she is annoyed by Eric (the Ited) Ericson, an agitator. She is rescued by a young engineer.

dark night on the deck of a ship and that chat quite freely.
Carol tells of working her way through university and of a trip to Europe as companion of a rich man's daughter.

INSTALLMENT II

"It was," I agreed. "It was all rather wonderful. But it made me feel like a deserter. And it was too good to last. Just when I was telling myself I had about everything one could ask for, I got a letter from Alaska, nearly seven months old."

"I was beginning to feel it was an oppressively big one," I said as I stared out over the lonely hills.

I liked in that new valley of loneliness. She had Irish gray eyes, a sense of humor, and a frame like a man's. She was, I discovered, really a graduate nurse and should have worn a uniform.

CHAPTER II

"Telling me what?" prompted the voice at my side.

"I'm sorry," said my companion, with a quick note of contrition. He stood beside me, for a full minute of silence.

At Tokluta she plainly found plenty to do. For of the thirty-seven children in our school three had tubercular neck glands, and another dozen either ear trouble or ominous chest coughs.

"That's what I've got to find out," I told him. "But it seems to be somewhere along the Three-Finger Range between the Cranberry and Blackwater Pass. Father, you see, was just an old-fashioned sourdough."

"This is Sandy," he said as he stroked the dog's nose. "There's just Sandy and me."

So they let the white man bask in the glory of the white man's burden. They gave up and unrolled in shiftlessness and loitered about in rags and matted and reproduced and passed their ill-bought offerings over to Tokluta to feed and clothe and make into good little Americans.

"I'm afraid not," I had to admit. "That's one of the things I've got to find out."

"I'm flying in to the Chakitana," he said. "But Sandy doesn't like air travel." I could feel his eyes on me.

Miss Teetzel, I soon discovered, did her best to keep the native girls in the school from talking with the old women of the outside settlement.

"I don't even know your name," he reminded me.

Instead of answering me he led me toward the gangplank.

Capes have dashed into the limelight of fashion dramatically and importantly. Yes, indeed, capes are just about to "steal the show" this spring.

"Who are you?" I found myself asking, foolishly glad because of his nervousness.

"Then in to Tokluta," I said.

It would be funny, wouldn't it, if we found ourselves on the same trail there?" he said.

"I don't know your name," he reminded me.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A SEASON of perfectly fascinating colorful wools and woolenits is with us, so prepare to yield to temptation to the limit of your clothes budget.

IT IS A JOYFUL WORLD. The pretty dress below to the left in the group is a cream beige wool. Its gathered neckline, front plastron effect, and jewel buttons are outstanding style points.

Cravat Silk. Look to your colors! You can align yourself with the pastel enthusiasts or you can go colorfully South American.

Among the new books in the Library for children is AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE ALPHABET by Hendrick Van Loon. One day, Van Loon stopped into his publishers and asked them to print a book he had written for his grandson. The illustrations were utterly fantastic in their gay colors and he was told it just couldn't be done for here were so many colors it would cost too much. His answer was: "I would like to see the kids of America have at least one book of their own written and drawn for the fun of it."

The book not only teaches children their alphabet but gives their "papas and mamas something to think about."

LITTLE MAGIC PAINTER

Muriel H. Fellows is a story of the Stone Age. Fleetfoot, Lame Boy and Oak Leaf were three children who lived with their mother, father and grandfather in a cave thousands of years ago.

It is exciting to read how boys and girls lived long before houses were used when wild beasts crept into caves to protect themselves from Winty storms. Miss Fellows tells of the cavemen's daily activities, adventures with wolves, food gathering, carving tools and making weapons. These are but a few of the adventures described by the author-artist.

PAY DIRT by Glen Rounds

is another exciting story. Grasshoppers and droughts having ruined their ranch, old Uncle Terwall, Whitey and Confusion, the dog, decide to go up in the hills and "stitch gold-a-spell." You should read their adventures in the Black Hills.

Boy Scouts OF AMERICA

A new patrol was organized recently by members of Boy Scout Troop 66. It is composed of the older scouts and will probably be called Senior Patrol.

As a result of this creation, vacancies for new patrol leaders will be sought as most of the older members are in the advanced patrol squad. These boys will study higher scouting and help in supervising troop meetings. They have been making plans for their annual "Parents' Night" which will consist of marching, pantomimes, community singing and other activities. The affair will be held in the near future.

Members of the troop attended the Summit YMCA-Wednesday night and spent an enjoyable evening swimming, wrestling and playing basketball.

customer's request," Aul recalls. "After the investigation, the report showed that the 'electric juice' was nothing more than water from a broken pipe located in the back of an electric fixture."

Remember Ice Storm?

All of Aul's duties are not as difficult as checking "electric juice." Some deal with managing 14 assistants in the office and crew teams such as on the night of January 18 when Northern Jersey was turned into ice land which disrupted electric power and caused a number of Springfield residents to be without lights and heat for hours. Also many of the street lights throughout the township were out.

"I had to call crew men from Lakewood, Boonton, Point Pleasant and Asbury Park so that service could be restored. We worked on a 30-hour stretch and after a little rest, not a night's sleep, but a little rest, back to repairing wires so that Springfield, Short Hills and Millburn could be under electricity. We were satisfied when all the lights were working perfectly."

It is Aul's job, as manager, to direct emergencies when hundreds of telephone calls come pouring into the office. He must calculate by the number of calls where the break in the electric line is. When he has an idea of where it might be, he inspects his district map and locates the exact spot and dispatches an emergency truck or trucks to the source of trouble.

Springfield is served electrically by the Jersey Central Power and Light Company and furnishes today about 1,500 customers. Aul was appointed manager in 1937 and after the next official check-up of consumers in 1938, there were 1,173 persons served in the township. The 1940 report showed an increase of 109 customers due to the building expansion in Springfield. Aul expects that the 1941 report will be as large as the 1940 total or even better.

FIRST-AID
AILING HOUSE
by Roger B. Whitman
(© Roger B. Whitman-WNU Service.)
Closing a Summer House.

WHEN closing a house for some time in cold weather, there are several precautions and preparations to be made. The following are some of them: water supply pipes should be thoroughly drained. First, shut off the water, then open all faucets. Water supply pipes should be disconnected at the point where water enters the house. Some of the pipes may still contain water, however; for there are apt to be places where a pipe sags, from which water cannot drain out. These places should have the water blown out by an air pump applied to the different faucets.

PASADENA, CALIF.—A tall, willowy figure that drifted recently across the California scene. He was headed for the solace of the South Seas to ponder his problems and adjust himself to a strange future he had never considered a year ago. One of the top stars of his profession, one of the smartest; this adjustment will call for exchanging an annual salary of $35,000 a year for a pay check calling for $30 a month. And this is to happen after one of the greatest years he had ever known. I'm speaking of Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers.

What would happen to a genuine Manhattanite if he suddenly found there wasn't a light on him or near him?—No, sir, it would never work in a city like New York. Mr. Twitchell insisted. "Think of what would happen to the stamina of those thousands of New Yorkers who live in night clubs if this blackout came! If they couldn't find the night clubs, they'd be in a bad way. And what would be even worse, suppose they got into a night club and then couldn't be seen in 'em by the columnist!"

There is a big difference in what the owner of a big league ball club can pay an outstanding star and what our Uncle Sam can afford to offer a private soldier. In this case the difference happens to be 100 to 1 if you happen to get the wrong number in the draft.

Hot water or steam systems should be drained and left empty. If there is a wet return passing under the floor, this should be disconnected, for it will not empty through the boiler drain-cock.

Greenberg, for example, is older than either Bobby Feller or Joe Louis, who are not exactly starving. The spin of that draft wheel happened to cost him $25,000 a year, which is the way it should be and has to be in an existence which is now a trifling cock-eyed.

Empty or take away any bottles, containing liquids that might freeze. Clear out all food and garbage.

Long Hank was on his way to Honolulu when I ran across him inspecting the floral beauty of Santa Anita before taking a chunk of the Pacific in his stride.

Roll up your rugs with plenty of moth crystals and moth balls inside, and wrap tightly in heavy paper. Cover the furniture, and put moth crystals and balls on the seats of upholstered chairs and sofas. Blankets and woolen clothing should be put in tight chests, preferably lined with sheet metal, with plenty of moth crystals and balls.

There is a good chance that by next summer army competition in baseball will be quite sharp. And there will be loud cheers from any division or corps that happens to bag the tall tiger.

Be sure that all fires are out, not even a spark remaining.

"This season," he said, "I hope to be in the best early season shape I have ever known. I may not have many weeks to travel, so I can't afford to waste any time getting started. I ought to be in good shape, anyway, to play on some army team."

It would seem hardly necessary to say that no pets should be left behind. Don't forget to lock all outside doors. Notify the milkman, ice man, newspaper delivery service, and local police.

Slate Mantel Facing.

While I still think New York and Cleveland are the teams to beat, the White Sox won't be far away and you'll see a much better team in Fred Haney's St. Louis Browns. The Red Sox must still get better pitching. Aside from that they can play with anybody."

Question: I have three slabs of one-inch polished slate, set in as a mantel facing. Insofar as I am able to determine, these slabs are not keyed into the masonry, and I don't see how the smooth surface offers any bond for the mortar. The problem, therefore, is to avoid disaster with the first fire. I propose to drill through the slate and secure the slabs at top and bottom with anchors and screws. If I use a carbide-tipped drill or burr, should the drilling be wet or dry?

Answer: I would not deface the slate by having screw heads showing on the surface. It is probable that the mechanic who set the slate in place has erected the facing according to the usual practice. The slate slabs are usually made up with dowels embedded in the back. When the slate is set in place, the dowels are anchored into the masonry of the fireplace, and the slabs are cemented in place. Drilling should be wet.

Leaking Windows.

Question: My house is brick, not yet a year old. Windows are steel casements, with cast cement sills. Water leaks around windows so badly that plaster is discolored. How can this be prevented? Steel windows are rusting.

Answer: Leakage is most probably through the joint between the casement frame and the brickwork, and can be prevented with caulking compound, forced in with a caulking gun. Should the joint be covered with a wood moulding, which is likely, this should be taken off to expose the joint, and to permit the compound to be forced in. On returning the moulding to position, it should be on a bed of caulking compound, for final assurance that the joint is tight.

Question: Where can I get information on the different kinds of wood used in a home workshop?

Answer: You can get booklets from the National Lumber Manufacturers association, Washington, D. C. There is a chapter on this subject in the book "Home Craftsmanship" by Emanuele Slier. The makers of tools for home workshops issue booklets that include this subject, which can be had from tool dealers or direct.

Question: I have an old-fashioned iron lantern, which has been wired for electricity, to hang outside my porch. It has become very rusty. Please tell me what is the correct treatment to remove the rust and weatherproof the lantern?

Answer: Clean off the rust by rubbing with kerosene and steel wool. Wipe clean with benzine, having very careful of fire. Then finish with two coats of flat black paint. (Do the benzining on a cloudy day, outdoors.)

Question: I have a five and ten cent store.
