War Relief Quota Of $4,000 Set

Springfield has been called upon to raise $4,000 as its quota in the Red-Cross $50,000,000 War Relief Fund, as a committee headed by Charles H. Huff met Monday night to formulate plans for a drive which will begin January 12.

Although Springfield has just completed the most successful Roll Call in its history, collecting about $1,500, it becomes necessary due to the conditions of war, that the township again move forward to its responsibility in the nation-wide campaign.

Of the money being raised by the Red Cross, a portion will be set aside for men in the Armed Forces, civilian defense, and other uses, in addition to a percentage being retained by the local chapter.

The organization of Roll Call captains and their workers, totaling about 60, will be augmented by other residents, possibly up to at least 100 persons.

Mr. Huff is chairman of the War Relief Fund Committee, with Mrs. Richard Greenoak as secretary. The following committees were announced: Special gifts, Ebert B. Johnson, James M. Duguid and Fred A. Brown; house-to-house canvass, Mrs. Charles Phillips, Sr., Mrs. Robert D. Trent, Mrs. Fred Compton, Mrs. Onias Zimmerman, and Mrs. Joseph E. Worthington, Jr.; business houses, Dr. Stewart O. Burns, special projects, Mrs. John J. King, Alvin H. Dammig, Milton P. Brown and Richard T. Bunnell; publicity, Mrs. Leslie Joyner, Milton Keeshan and Edwin A. Kirch; delegate to information committee to be formed by the Red Cross Chapter, Mrs. Kirch.

Further details will be announced later. Contributions will be acknowledged in the SUN as released by the chairman.

SOUTHERNAIRES TO SING AT REGIONAL

Volunteers For Varied Jobs Sought By Defense Councils

Just because you aren't a soldier or a sailor, don't think there is nothing for you to do in the war emergency.

In the belief that every man and woman in New Jersey earnestly desires to take an active part in our Nation's war efforts, the State Defense Council suggested today through the Local Defense Council that noncommissioned could help of services by their Local Council.

Every municipality in the State has a Defense Council; and every Council has a real need for volunteers to carry out a well-planned, coordinated program that will provide maximum civilian safety in event of air raids, sabotage, fire, or other contingencies.

Roosevelt and Churchill Conferences Aim at Strategy for Smashing Axis; Army Is Withdrawn to Spare Manila; Jap Sub Is Sunk Off California Coast

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL

PHILIPPINES: Battle

In the hope of saving the city from bombing by Japanese, Manila had been proclaimed an open city and military headquarters of the forces defending the Philippines had been moved elsewhere.

It was becoming evident from the news dispatches from the Far East that the intensity of the Japanese drive against the Philippines was growing and that the defenders, facing six invasion points, and the constant landing of reinforcements, were going to have all they could do to defend the islands.

Five of the landing spots had been on the island of Luzon, three to the north, one to the east and one to the southwest of Manila, and the sixth was on the island of Mindanao at Davao, which the Japanese claimed to have occupied.

This island and particularly Davao port are heavily populated by Japanese, and though the defenders had aid from the Dutch air force, they had considerable fifth column activity to face as well.

Most important landings were on the Lingayen gulf, in which an estimated 80 transports had been sighted on the first day, and at Altmanan, 75 miles east and slightly south of Manila, where there were said to be 40 transports.

Washington had estimated the total landing forces of the Japanese at from 80,000 to 100,000 men, and while Manila sources seemed to think this a little high, it was probable that they revised their estimate upward after the Altmanan landing.

The combined Filipino and American forces had held the enemy pretty much to a standstill in the north, but it was evident that the Lingayen-gulf landing and that at Altmanan had as their object the splitting of General Douglas MacArthur's defense forces into two groups, a typical Axis maneuver.

CHURCHILL: Drama

The arrival in Washington of Winston Churchill, prime minister of England, for a long series of Christmas conferences with President Roosevelt and the working out of a united method of conducting the war was dramatic.

It was precedent-shattering for one thing. It was a triumph for American and British censorship, for another thing.

It burst on the American press at 6:50 one evening after most of the newsmen in Washington had known all about the plans for a week, and "hadn't breathed it to a soul."

Churchill, his pipe, his cane, his navy jacket and the rest, looking very much as he did during the August conference, was escorted in the White House while Mr. Roosevelt sat smiling on the sidelines, watching his conferees from overseas fence with the newspaper men and chuckle into his cloak.

One of the prime minister's wisecracks made history. A newsman asked him, "How long will it take to win the war?" He replied "About half as long if we do, it well as if we do it badly."

The reporters roared, the President laughed merrily and the prime minister gave one of his well-known chuckles of merriment.

COAST: Sea Attacks The Japanese submarine fleet, at least part of it, was apparently active off the California coast, coming close inshore to attack coastwise vessels.

At least one submarine had been sunk, according to an official announcement. This craft had been blown into debris by an army bomber.

Two tankers, at least, had been sunk, but some five others, after attack, had been able to escape. Few of them, if any, carried guns as protection, and the skippers seemed to feel they would be extremely useful.

Some of those who escaped told of the submarines coming to the surface and shelling them, and that if they'd had guns "the subs would have made wonderful targets."

Japanese marksmanship had been so bad that the escaped vessels were able to turn away from the foe and make it to the mainland coves in safety.

Traffic attacks were widespread up and down the coast, reaching from the farther northern seaboard to points south of San Francisco.

LIBYA: Epic of Destruction While the numbers of troops engaged was not enormous as figured from the Russian front, the British Libyan offensive had taken on all the aspects of what British commentators called "an epic of annihilation."

Plenty of Action

From the Philippines came the report that before he had removed his base of military command from the city of Manila General MacArthur had rushed to the fighting front to take personal command of fighting off the Japanese attacks.

HITLER: At the Helm

The holiday period had been electrified by the German disaster in Libya and Russia, and the "Aring" of leading Nazi General Marshal Brauchitsch, and his replacement by Adolf Hitler himself.

Many believed this "purge at the top" would be followed by other generals leaving their command rather than trust themselves and their troops to Hitler's "fateful" policies of military management.

At the same time all Europe had been in a state of litters wondering what "Der Fuehrer" would pull in the way of trickery out of the hat of his ingenuity to scare his opponents and to cause what he might call a "victory" to bring him forward into public favor again.

Most thought that an occupation of Spain and France's north African bases, and perhaps the taking over of the French fleet might be the answer.

In line with this it had been reported that Petain had given up his position as dictator of unoccupied France and head of the Vichy government, turning the reins over to pro-Axis Berlin.

It was also reported that 15 divisions of Nazi troops were on the march toward Spain through France and that the occupation of Bizerte and other important Tunisian and Moroccan points was as good as accomplished.

Europe, "waiting to see," was having a bad case of nerves.

RUSSIA: Finds Line

After disastrous withdrawals all along the nearly 1,000-mile front in Russia, late dispatches from that district of the world war seemed to indicate that the German Resistance was stiffening and that at long last the Reds had found the Nazi "winning line of resistance."

Up to that point the withdrawal had been practically a rout, and there was photographic evidence appearing in the press to bear out the Russian claims of enormous losses of material in the mow-wastes of that part of the Soviet the Germans had invaded.

Whether Hitler, reported, raging at his generals, would be able to halt the backward sweep with Russian pressure apparently undiminished, was a problem.

But the tone of the Reds' dispatches had changed somewhat, and were no longer telling of pursuits, but rather of break-throughs that indicated a German effort at holding was now in progress.

Most of the other theaters of war hoped the Germans would leave plenty of troops in Russia, and Churchill, in the United States, frankly said that "Stalin had done the world an enormous service."

SARAWAK: Navy Successes

An "allied navy" and air force, which might or might not have included Americans, was reported by the British to have fallen with terrific force on an enemy landing force at Sarawak.

The Washington Merry-go-round

Washington, D. C. MONEY CONTROL

Money—capital—is headed for early, far-reaching controls by the U. S. government. Those controls will be much different from those employed in World War I.

So far, practically every other phase of U. S. economy has been marshalled to the defense of the nation. But because there has been no immediate shortage of money as such, capital has been left alone. This will be changed in the near future.

A significant hint of what is in the offing was contained in a recent little-noticed speech in Detroit by Ganson Purcell, crack young member of the Securities and Exchange commission. This is the outline of the control program under consideration in inner defense circles.

There will be no private capital issues committees in various cities as in the last war. Instead, there will be a single inter-departmental committee composed of treasury, SEC, RFC, Federal Reserve and other U. S. financial officials.

Object of this committee will be not to prevent the investment of capital in stocks and bonds of non-defense projects (because priorities lists make such investments useless), but to "steer" the financial practices of corporations so as to direct as much of their earnings as possible into the defense program.

For example: A calling may be put on corporation salaries in order to compel firms to build up reserves and prevent officers from offsetting personal income taxes by boosting their pay checks.

Ceillings also may be put on dividends so that defense profits above a "reasonable" limit would be available for additional defense plant expansion or the purchase of government bonds to finance the war. Also, such reserves may be needed after the war to enable corporations to readjust their affairs to peace-time production.

Problems of capital control are great and complex, but defense authorities consider them vitally essential. Prior to the sudden outbreak of the Japanese conflict, the subject had been under quiet consideration for some time and tentative plans had been mapped out.

With the nation engaged in war and confronted with the necessity of at least tripling previous defense appropriations, the regulation of capital becomes an urgently immediate requirement.

Every business man, banker and broker may expect early government action.

"POLITICAL TRUCE?" Democratic chiefs may be reading a lot more into the wartime "political truce" with the GOP than actually is warranted.

If the Democrats figure that the exchange of cordial telegrams between Democratic National Chairman Ed Flynn and Republican National Chairman Joe Martin mean the G.O.P. will abandon plans for a vigorous 1942 campaign, they've got another thing coming.

Martin has no thought of laying off campaign activity. He considers that his reply to Flynn means only cessation of partisanship in congressional consideration of administration measures to wage the war. That is the sole extent of the "political truce."

In fact, behind the scenes, Martin already is busy putting both the national committee and the Republican congressional campaign committee in shape for a knock-down fight against the Democrats next year.

Martin's objective is to capture the house and strengthen the G.O.P. in the senate as the foundation stone for a Republican presidential victory in 1944.

Until recently, Martin's ambitious plans were sorely handicapped by lack of funds. But this problem has been solved by two angels who have come to his financial rescue—Pennsylvania oil millionaire Joseph Pew and Pennsylvania steel millionaire Ernest T. Weir. They have agreed to fork over personally, and also to obtain other contributions.

Uncle Sam's Aerial Giant, B-19

It is comforting in these days of air blitzes to know that Uncle Sam can boast the largest bombing plane in the world. It is the $3,500,000 B-19, a four-engined Douglas whose engines produce a total of 8,000 h. p. The gross load weight of this aerial giant is 82 tons, and it has a wing-spread of 212 feet. These pictures acquaint you with our new flying fortress.

Snapped in flight over a river in southern California is the giant B-19. The picture was made during a test flight, with twenty persons aboard.

Looking aft from the pilot's cabin we see the radio and control panel which, with the pilot's instrument panel, comprise the "brains" of the world's mightiest plane.

Lt. Col. Stanley Umstead is here pictured at the controls, during a three-hour test flight.

A view of the two starboard motors as seen from the cabin of the B-19.

Man About Town

After his conviction in Brooklyn Federal Court, Gestapo agent Carl Reuper (one of the 14 convicted Nazi agents) granted: "We will be rescued soon by the German army when they take over."

The FBI is now accepting applications from lawyers and expert accountants (between the ages of 23 and 35) to enlarge its field of action. Must be physically fit and ready for duty anywhere. Apply by mail to J. Edgar Hoover, the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C.

Some Vincent, who weighs 265, told pals at LaMartinoche the other night that he was thinking of joining the navy. "As what?" taunted a wag, "an anchor?"

Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. has been called to the colors. He is specially assigned with the army and is down in the Pacific area. Vanderbilt was a private with the AEP and was gassed. He is a Major in Army Intelligence.

One of New York's more famous playboys was paying his estranged wife $1,000 weekly not to divorce him—so he could beat the draft. She agreed while he paid. Last week he stopped paying—and enlisted.

Tommy Manville met an old school chum and his wife strolling along 5th Avenue. Tommy greeted him with: "I'm very glad to see you again—and is this your, most charming wife?" The friend glared, and then, in his most sarcastic tones, squelched: "This is my ONLY wife!"

There'll be no attempt to curtail the sale or manufacture of hooch in the U. S. because of the war. Representatives in the liquor industry were so assured by Washington. Don't rate the Doris Duke Cromwell-Errol Flynn romances as another cafe society silly. Hundreds of New York newspaper men have been assigned locations to cover in the event of air raids.

Here is an amazing story. The aunt of one of New York's better known girls recently died in California. The body was shipped East. The family thought they would like to take a last look and had the coffin opened. Instead of seeing auntie, they saw an old General in full uniform. Frantically, they telephoned the War Dept. After much delay they were informed there had been a mistake—and that the General's body would be picked up. Auntie, it seems, had been buried at Arlington with full military honors.

The Story Tellers: In Reader's Digest, Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney burns up about the harm nicotine can do. We knew somebody would start a spirited campaign against smoking as soon as someone perfected a lighter that works. Life was right on the nose with its piece on General Douglas MacArthur by Clare Boothe. Very interesting blogging. "Stag is a new mag with a promising future. Many of your old favorites are contributors. Raymond Gram Swing's article, "Beware the Falck Revolution," is a tipoff on how the Nazis intend to stay in power even when they lose the war. Jim Tully's "Man Without Arms" has already been selected for inclusion in the next O'Brien anthology. Maj. George Fielding Elliot is to be Look's military expert. In Metropolitan Host, drama editor I. Cahn, in reviewing the new hit, "Angel Street," remarked: "The author didn't shoot the audience's emotions until he saw the whites of their knuckles."

The Front Pages: The Times dug up a reminder that Japan has always specialized in snark tactics. The Japs "mugged" Russia in 1904, just like Pearl Harbor. Dorothy Thompson isn't one to be fooled by the first patriotic squeals of some of the mischief-makers, and pointed out: "Germany wants to continue to use her fifth column in the U. S., and they will all begin yelling now that we take away our interests from Europe and fight our own war."

It is laughable to note that some of the people who weren't worried about the safety of the flag—were now trying to hide behind it. The reason they refuse to eat their words is that they know they're poisonous.

Jerry Lewis from H'wood reports: "Aside from the war stuff, everything here is as quiet as the cash register in a Suki-Yaki joint."

Peggy Joyce tells her chums that she will marry again. She won't tell his name. He is said to be an executive of Lloyd's, London.

From "Trial by Fury," Craig Rice's murder novel: "Her voice didn't have a lisp but her wide eyes did." You know, fathning eyoth.

One evening while she and Colt are dining and discussing plans for pressing her claims, Richard Wayne, Karen's father, Garrett Waterson, arrives in Honolulu to attempt to gain control of the property.

On an impulse Karen said, "I'll tell you why I have to go. I have to go because I'm afraid of those Waynes."

"I always heard," Tonga Dick said, "that Garrett Waterson was a great old boy—quite a character."
"Character be damned," Willard fumed. "He had no character at all. He was an outrageous old brawler, always at the center of every disturbance of any kind. He was always doing incredible, outlandish things."
"And he sold Alakoa for fifteen thousand dollars," Tonga Dick commented. "What's it worth today? Three million?"
"Ridiculous," Ernest snapped. "The assets, as we carry them on the book—"

John Colt looked at her curiously. To this man, this watchful and restless planner, honesty was a rigid thing; rights of property were matters decided only in courts, and no other rights existed.
"Listen to me," he said. "Everything they have based upon the fact that they took the island of Alakoa from your grandfather after he had become incompetent—a we shall prove. Thus everything they have is literally stolen from you."
Something of John Colt's own spirit of conquest came back into Karen Waterson. "Yes," she said; "and I'm not wavering, John. You can be perfectly sure of this—I'll never turn back now."

CHAPTER III

Tonga Dick considered; and presently allowed himself a slow grin. "You know, it's just possible that the girl really has you!"
Ernest flared up. "You have just as much interest in Alakoa as we have—or ought to have!"
"I guess," Dick said speculatively, "it had better have a talk with this Waterson girl."

Lying full length on a deck chair, Karen drank a pre-lunch Martini, and watched the stunning blue and white of the sea stream past the foredeck of Richard Wayne's yacht. Here, out upon the slowly breathing Pacific, John Colt himself seemed as far away as San Francisco had seemed from the lagoon of the Royal Hawaiian.
At first, sheering away from Barber's Point, Karen had experienced a sharp sinking of spirits.
But during the morning hours on the sea a new vitality had come into her, as if from the long swells of the open sea itself; and after lunch she sought a way to push ahead with her self-elected task of studying Tonga Dick. The Holokai was a two-masted schooner of 110 feet; Dick Wayne called her a trading schooner, with auxiliary power, but very definitely she was something else. Her racing-schooner hull, astonishingly loaded by her great Diesel, had hardly any cargo space at all, other than that needed for her own stores. Karen put out a tentative feeler.

"I was wondering how your schooner came by her name."
"Holokai means 'sea-rider,'" he told her.
"That's peculiarly poetic."
"Oh, I didn't name her myself. She was named by the man from whom she came to me."
"Who?" Karen asked innocently.
"Tonga Dick bragged, 'There are all manner of boats knocking about the Pacific. You can always get hold of a boat.'"
She studied Tonga Dick Wayne, covertly. In the bright reflected light of the cloudless sea he still seemed young, even younger than she had believed the night before. She thought now that she detected something faintly ironic in his gaze. It was as if the darkness that was under the blue of the sea had come nearer behind his eyes.
Karen turned uneasy. She said, "Dick—what is it?"
"You're very lovely," he said, "it's only fair to tell you this: I every way that I can imagine, you're the loveliest thing I've ever seen on the earth or the face of the sea."
"Well, really, are you making love to me now?" I was a flimsy defense; in contradiction to his words, she knew that he was not making love.

"No man of any sense pretends to know anything about women," Tonga Dick was saying. "The old island people drew deadlines past which no woman could come, and those lines were drawn by darkness, and fear. They knew the truth—that it is not possible for a man to know what things govern a woman. Yet I'll tell you this: it would be easy for anyone to believe in you, even without understanding you at all."
He was speaking as if from behind a wall. Suddenly Karen Waterson knew what he had meant, and it accounted for the flat sound of words that should have been love-making. A sharp and immediate panic swept her as she understood, all at once and completely, that Richard Wayne knew who she was.
She jerked her eyes from his face and stood up, bracing herself against the reel of the little schooner. A glance across the face of the sea told her a startling thing, before unconsidered. All that day, since early morning, they had been striking straight out from Honolulu into the open Pacific.

John Colt came to take breakfast with Karen Waterson next morning. Their brightly silvered breakfast table overlooked the beach, where the warm sea was breaking in emerald combers shot through with the early sun. Looking out at the lazy sea, Karen Waterson knew that she was afraid.
The exultant assurance of victory which she had felt the night before was gone, suddenly unable to live in all this sunlight.
She could hardly remember what had persuaded her to make an incognito date to sail with the one man who had most reason to be her enemy. In spite of the evening, Tonga Dick remained a shadowy and mysterious figure—an unaccountable stranger whose very name was outlandish according to any standards she knew.
In this mood she found it pleasant to sit across a breakfast table from John Colt. It did not happen very often, and was the more helpful because it did not.
Some day, she knew, John Colt would make love to her; whether they won or lost, that time would come as inevitably as the falling of Hawaiian rain. Often she speculated curiously as to whether this would happen before or after their fight with the Waynes was closed, and amused herself by imagining what she would do about it when it came.
"I am very much, at a loss to imagine," he said now, "why you have committed yourself to this peculiar arrangement."
On an impulse Karen said, "I'll tell you why I have to go. I have to go because I'm afraid of those Waynes."
"They're people," Karen said, "from whom we are about to take everything they have."
"What you're taking is yours," John Colt said.
"Sometimes I wonder if it really

Cleaning rugs and upholstery SOILED carpets, rugs and upholstery can be cleaned by shampooing with soap jelly. Ordinary soiling will come out easily, but other methods should be used for obstinate and unusual stains. These may call for professional work. Further, shampooing should be applied only to fabrics of which the colors are fast.

The jelly is made of chips or flakes of pure and mild soap; the kind of soap that is used for the laundry. Four cups are put in a bowl or wide-mouthed jar, and one cup of water is added. The jelly will form within an hour. A portion of the jelly is put into a mixing bowl and beaten with an egg-beater, which will raise suds as stiff as whipped cream. Using a soft brush, jelly is worked on the fabric in a space 12 inches or so across. After a few minutes for the loosening of the dirt, the space is wiped with a cloth damp with clear water and with a stiffer brush, the nap is brushed in its proper direction. An adjoining space should then be cleaned. The suds are so dry that upholstery fabric will not be soaked, as would be the case with soapsuds as usually used. After cleaning, the fabric should be quickly dried. A rug can be supported on boxes and chairs, so that air can get at the back as well as the front.

Mounting Maps There have been few times when maps have been studied to the extent that they now are; maps of Europe, Africa, the Near and Far East, as well as the parts of the world not at present involved in war. For a map to be useful, it should be mounted on a stiff support. One-eighth plywood, is excellent. The first step in mounting is to lay the map on the plywood, and to mark the positions of the four corners. The plywood is then given a coat of shellac on both sides and on the edges. When this is dry, another coat of shellac is applied, the map is rolled up, and one of its ends is laid down with the corners on the marks. With the water leaning over the board, the rest of the map is then thrown over the head, to be supported by it. The rest of the map is then quickly laid on the damp shellac, and smoothed with the two hands, which are free. As soon as the map is down, it should be gone over with a stiff brush, working from the center toward the edges, to push out air bubbles that may have been caught. Should any remain, they can be disposed of through a pin hole in the paper in the center of the bulge.

White Fur

For the twilight hour and its flattering candlelight, there's romantic elegance needed, and you will be equal to the occasion if you make a dinner dress which combines a long-sleeved, front-buttoned, long-torso basque top of black cotton lace with a shirred wide-spreading rayon moire skirt which repeats the black lace in a hip border inset after the manner of the gown which the figure seated in the foreground is wearing.

And again your evening splendor will be definitely established in a mist-blue jersey dress that molds and tapers to your form in draped and flowing lines like those of the gown shown to the right in the trio of evening modes pictured above. Drapery treatments are very important and are outstanding this season. They are ever so easy to manipulate, even for the inexperienced, with the aid of a new molded-to-you thermo-plastic dress form. With an exact reproduction of your figure before you, it requires no special gift to drap the folds of a material in a way that will most effectively dramatize your silhouette.
Gay and inexpensive materials make the luxurious looking dinner dress centered in the group above. There is style distinction reflected in the chrome yellow velveteen jacket that hangs with easy grace from broad-looking shoulders encrusted with importantly new embroidered motifs that are repeated on the pockets. This jacket would be lovely with a candle-slim floor green crepe floor-length skirt. Believe it or not, the embroidered motifs that so definitely enhance this jacket were stitched up in practically no time on a modern sewing machine, and the finished job looks for all the world like fine handwork.
The fashion suggestions above are destined to turn your "date" into a successful drama, and they will inspire repeat performances in the future.

Floor Cleaning Question: Good oak floors are discolored and revarnished. How can I clean them and make them light? How can I clean stair treads? Sanding would be expensive.
Answer: At a hardware store you can get an alkali powder to be mixed with water that will take off the varnish and the discolorations. Directions on the label of the box should be carefully followed.

Rain Now Calls for Gay Fashion Parade

Away with somber attire on a rainy day! No longer are leaden-cast skies, downpours of rain and muddy streets a sign that one must match the somberness of the scene with clothes equally depressing. According to the new theory, a rainy day is just the time to come out in bright array. In fact, rainy days are turning into cheerful events. There are gay, new, casual, fitted coats and trench model coats, some in white, some in blue and, most exciting of all, those in bright red rainproof transparencies or processed cloth, if you prefer. You can get red or white boots to match. There's a style and charm, too, in the new processed black satin raincoats that are fashioned with smart details and given a glamour touch in that the newest out are fashioned with jeweled buttons.

Magazine Tells What the College Girl Is Wearing

College co-eds are braiding their hair in "country cousin" style. Earrings are being worn with the braids.
Sixty-inch pearls worn on "Sloppy Joe" cardigans are "tops" everywhere.
Cowboy boots, plaid sweaters, lime yellow shirts, corduroy jackets, the "V" neck sweater and knee length argyle plaid socks also storm the American campus scene.

For the Young

Take yards and yards of bright red net. Fashion this into a full skirt. Top this with a snug-fitting bodice made of jersey in matching red. Outline the décolletage, sleeve edges and finish off the waistline with a single-row beading of sparkling red sequins.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

YES, a dress to admire for its very fresh approach to the problem of looking slim and stately when your figure is too heavy! Pattern No. 1482-B happily overcomes your figure difficulties with a v-neck effect through the top, extending as a slim waist treatment. The softly gathered side pieces permit easy roominess through the bodice, the low pointed neckline is youthful and flattering to the face.

The skirt attached at a low waistline takes pounds away from your hips because of its adroit piecing—and weight-minimizing smoothness at the sides—and in back. The dress may be finished with short sleeves or sleeves of the new "below-the-elbow" drapes. The style is suitable for silk, rayon or wool crepes, for satin, faille or romaine.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1482-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36, 3/4 sleeves requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material. Send your order to:

WORLD-WIDE PATTERN

Everyone must realize by now that the Japanese-American war is not an isolated conflict in the Pacific, without bearing on the wars that are going on elsewhere in the world.

As the President has said, this war is primarily a war against Nazism and everything else is incidental to that.

Second, if Japan can succeed in her drive to isolate this country from the Far East, the Axis powers will have control of immense quantities of vital war materials.

It has long been said that this country should be able to defeat Japan in a very brief period of time.

The Japanese are fanatical fighters, and their Samurai tradition holds that a man who dies in battle will go to an Asiatic Valhalla in which all is milk and honey.

The loss of one American and two British battleships, along with a number of lesser warcraft, is admittedly serious.

In the long run, most authorities think, this will come down to a war of resources—a war of oil production, steel capacity, etc.

In the meantime, the Allies have much to be cheerful about. The Russians have done the apparently impossible in not only holding off the German legions, but in actually forcing them into a major retreat.

IT REMAINED for Florida and West Point to get the first war All-American in Colin Kelly who delivered the three death thrusts to the first Japanese battleship to be sunk.

Grantland Rice... The Florida and West Point fighter found death in a brilliant counter stroke when such was badly needed after the Japanese raids on Hawaii.

Sports Fortune... Queries including letters and telegrams continue to arrive asking what the future of sport should be.

The war situation in regard to sport is a far different thing from what it was at this time a year ago. Then there was largely apathy on all sides.

Sport can still play its part in the way of national conditioning and national morale, but there will be a far larger call on all athletes to keep out and classed as well as changed abruptly and on an extended scale.

Getting in Shape... Jack Kelly, who might be known as national commissioner of national physical condition, now has one of the country's important jobs to handle.

There should be no national softness in times of peace. There is certainly no place for national softness in times of war.

This can be done by closer attention to diet—by making more exercise—a personal point of getting back into better shape.

Too Many Spectators... The point has been made that we have too many looking on—not enough taking part.

It will have a decided effect on the financial side, which will be nothing to cry about. And there can't be the same keen interest in results.

Japs Have Exceeded Germans in Inflicting Naval Losses

WASHINGTON—Naturally there was grim satisfaction in Berlin, especially at the offices of the admiralty, over the naval losses suffered by the United States and Britain in the actions at Pearl Harbor and near Singapore.

For the Germans have been unable to do nearly as much damage to the British navy as have the Japs to the British and U. S. combined fleets.

At the outset of the war, it will be remembered, a German sub managed to get inside Scapa Flow and sank the British battleship Royal Oak. This was an old battleship, but a battle wagon in a battle wagon when it comes to a real sea battle.

The idea is based on several talks the writer had with high German naval officers several years prior to the outbreak of this war.

In a big battle between fleets, of course, this is vital, since the distance between them normally would be such as to make personal marksmanship almost unimportant.

Moreover this German brag about their better optical glass seems to have been justified both at Jutland and Dogger Bank in the last war.

However, since those earlier successes—the Royal Oak and the aircraft carrier—the Germans have paid virtually ship for ship for their attempted whittling down of the British fleet.

What the Germans have been building meanwhile is not known. But the British have been busy, and so has the United States.

What the German admiralty is really sick about, since the Japanese destruction of U. S. and British capital ships at the outbreak of the Pacific war, is that they did not attempt the same sort of air blitz on the British navy, before the British admiralty learned its first bitter lesson at Scapa Flow.

They must be thinking, that if instead of sending one Nazi U-boat on a "suicide" raid into Scapa Flow, the one which sank the Royal Oak and escaped—they had sent several subs and several hundred bombers, they might have so smashed the British grand fleet that they could have risked a big sea battle in that first winter of the war.

Interesting in this connection is the belief by experts here that the Japanese naval operations in the Pacific were planned by the Germans. Indeed, experts believe the planes which did so much damage at Pearl Harbor and Hickam field were not Japanese planes at all, but four Nazi bomber planes.

But naval knowledge has increased enormously in the last little while. It was the argument of the old admirals, in our navy and the British particularly, that battleships could not be sunk by airplanes. We know now that it is easier, as a matter of fact, to sink a battleship by airplanes than by gunfire.

Kathleen Norris Says: Happy Marriage Demands Character

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

My husband began telling me of a pretty girl in an adjoining office. All the men there were crazy about her. When he expressed the hope she would soon marry he said gloomily she had admitted she loved him.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS WHEN a man is mentally defective, girls perceive his affliction, and nobody wants to marry him.

There ought to be. There ought to be questionnaires and tests for the husband-to-be, simple questions as to whether he respected the truth, knew anything about the responsibilities of marriage and was prepared for the sacrifices.

For the happiest marriage is a matter of generous adjustments, and is bound to have its dark, difficult and bewildered moments.

From his very early days a boy ought to be trained to think of his marriage. He ought to be told that he will owe his wife honesty and faithfulness.

Don't Forget Marriage. You mothers who are so anxious about your small boys' teeth and manners, the schools they attend and the friends they make, don't forget to include in your education and care of them an occasional serious talk about marriage.

If men were schooled to simple decency in marriage I could not receive such a letter as came to me this week from "Daphne."

"I am in real trouble and I honestly don't know what to do," writes Daphne. "I have been married three years, and am 23. Billy, my husband, is 27; he is steady, works in an automobile-parts shop and makes a good salary. We have a little boy 15 months old, and I am bringing another child in February.

My opinion of Billy could hardly be printed in a family paper. The writer of this letter lives in Sacramento, Calif., less than a hundred miles away from me, and my answer was to drive up and see her and have a personal talk.

But the misery of it, the heart-break and tears and loneliness and sense of future isn't assured by any such solution as that. Daphne took all a girl's dreams and hopes into her married life. She loved her little home, her husband, her first baby.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO By VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THANKS to the war, Errol Flynn lost his chance to be Prince Charming at a huge debutante party in New York. Picture the scene as it was planned—According to announcements, he was to be seated in a silver coach, which at midnight would rise from the orchestra pit.

Hollywood's station wagon battalion, formed a few weeks ago to meet emergencies in time of war, is now being put through its paces, according to the King's men, the quartet of the Fibber McGee and Molly program. They are listed among the 200 members of the battalion.

Ginger Rogers will star in "The Major and the Minor," a romantic comedy, as her first picture under her recently signed agreement with Paramount. It ought to be a swell picture.

GINGER ROGERS picture; its authors wrote "Hold Back the Dawn," "Ninotchka" and "Ball of Fire." Incidentally, Ginger has spent six years attempting to gain six pounds, and has finally achieved that goal.

With practically all the other girls in Hollywood going in for very short hair, Claudette Colbert, who has worn hers fairly short, will have the longest bob she's ever worn in "The Palm Beach Story."

Once again Director Norman Taurog is looking for a baby. He's the man who, eight years ago, conducted the search for an infant who could mimic Maurice Chevalier's out-thrust lower lip—a search that brought Baby Le Roy to the screen.

As soon as the first word in Japan's attack on Hawaii reached the United States the March of Time began preparing as its next release a comprehensive film story of how this country, in the last war, came through to final victory.

One night not so long ago Mickey Rooney was called to the telephone. It was Carmen Miranda—she'd heard that he was going to do an impersonation of her in "Babes on Broadway."

Cary Grant's main idea, when he finished working in "Suspicion," with Joan Fontaine, was to catch up on sleep. Said he hadn't had a day or evening to himself since he started work in "My Favorite Wife," more than a year ago; "Suspicion" was his fifth picture in a row without a good long vacation.

Joan Blaine, who soon starts doubling between two air circuits for a total of three broadcasts a day, vastly prefers radio to any other branch of show business.

ODDS AND ENDS—Paula Winslow was brought in to do Shirley Temple's screams in the little star's first radio series; the first time she yelled Shirley herself jumped in alarm.

There's no cure for a man like that. If this had come after 12, 15 years of marriage there might be. He might then have lost his senses for a while, only to recover and begin to realize the value of what he had tried to throw away.

SHOE TYING

YANKEE DOODLE

He fumbles and he misses—
He often fans the air;
He makes his share of boners
And often splits a hair;
He wastes a lot of motions
And has a wagging tongue...
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When once his chin is stung!

He does much shadow-boxing
And dances in the dark;
His oratory often
Goes far wide of the mark;
He dearly loves to muddle
And hark to a little queer...
But not a second after
His duty is made clear.

He can be fooled and kidded
And often seems a boob;
Amid the foreign slickers
He sometimes plays the rube;
He often seems the duffer,
And likes to play the clown...
But it's another story
When once the chips are down!

He often plays the sucker
In ways a little dumb;
In fact he's pretty childish
(Until the punches come);
He trusts a lot to fancy
And hark to fairy tales
Until he gets his wind up
And then he NEVER FAILS!

He often is too gabby
And trusts a lot to facts;
He sometimes wears dark glasses
So he won't know the facts;
He's futile and loquacious
Until he's good and sore
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When he gets into war!

He glorifies debating
And dearly loves the stump;
He likes to hear the gossip
Around the village pump;
He certainly can addle
Upon the old dishepan...
But when it comes to fighting—
It's "Gangway for a MAN!"

He dearly loves his pleasures
And all his comforts, too;
He much prefers life festive
Than when it's very blue;
The peaceful road's the best one—
He nourishes that hunch;
But once that road ain't open,
You'd better duck that punch!

THE V DRIVE
V is for Victory,
Vigor and Vim;
Hitler's aware it is Volleyed at him.

V is for Valor,
V's for the Vote
Well worth preserving
And keeping aloft.

V is for Voltage
Behind every clout;
V is for Vermin
We've got to drive out.

V is for Vortex
Into it war-lords
Will presently go.

V is for "Vittles"
By sea and by air;
V's for Velocity
Speeding 'em there.

V is for Vertical—
'That's where we'll be Long after Adolf is Flat as cold tea.

V means Vitality—
V stands for Vow—
V is for Victory
Coming... and how!

V is for Vitamins
Needed in war;
We have a lot and can
Find a lot more.

V stands for Verdun
And Vimy Ridge, too;
That it's for Vichy
Is awful but true.

So plaster the highways
'Ee! I have a hunch
V's will be vital in Planting THAT PUNCH!

Big Game in U.S. Holding Its Own

Decline of Some Types Is Made Up by Increase in Others.

SAN FRANCISCO—Despite the assertions of those who long audibly for the "good old days," big game in the United States is generally holding its own, figures released by the fish and wild game service of the department of the interior show.

With the American sportsman already spending as much money in the field each year as all other protection in the world combined, the welfare of the big game of the nation is assuming a steadily growing importance, both economically and aesthetically, officials of the service said. In addition, scientists, conservationists, naturalists, and nature lovers are all vitally interested in the propagation and protection of the animals.

Declines in the population, some of them listed as "serious" by the wild life service, of bison sheep, mountain goats, grizzly bears, moose and caribou have been offset by substantial increases in the number of elk, deer, antelope and buffalo.

Concentrate on Big Game. Officials hope conservation methods and public interest that brought back elk, deer, antelope and buffalo in ever-increasing numbers during the past 20 years will serve to do the same for the categories of big game that are vanishing from the American scene.

That conservation and intelligent planning can do the job is contended by the conservation experts when they point to such examples as the American bison and the pronghorn antelope, both of which were thought to be doomed as long ago as 1905. Today both are increasing at a rapid, though controlled, rate on numerous refuges and national parks scattered over the nation.

Figures on antelope population in particular show the results of rigid protection and selection conservation methods. In 1924 E. W. Nelson, prominent naturalist, estimated the antelope population of the entire nation to be 26,000. Today accurate counts by the division of wild life research show antelope numbering 164,043, with the herds increasing as rapidly as range and other conditions will permit.

"Transplanting" of the pronghorn is being effected successfully in a number of areas, and some states have opened limited hunting seasons on the animals.

Buffalo's Position Secure. A better-known illustration of the results of conservation is the bison, which once roamed North America in herds estimated at 60,000,000 but in 1905 were virtually at the vanishing point. The first preserve for the big animals was begun in that year in Oklahoma, 15 of the bison being stocked on a 61,000-acre area under the supervision of the forest service.

Today the nation's bison number well over 5,000 and the supervised killing of the animals for food is allowed on some Indian reservations in western states. Although the animals never again will become numerous in the sense that they were when the white man first came to America, authorities say there is no danger of extinction and under continued careful protection herds can multiply several times.

With the success of the bison project, well established, the conservation and propagation of big game rapidly became more and more of a science as new information was gathered and disseminated.

Old Newspaper Tells of Great Lakes Naval War. ATLANTA—A yellowed newspaper lying in an antiquated little cowhide trunk now in the State Capitol museum reveals a glimpse of the freedom-of-the-seas issue 129 years ago.

The historic chest was used by Capt. Jack-Fulton to hold shaving equipment in the War of 1812, and was sent to the museum by William Felton of Cartersville, Ga., great-grandson of the original owner.

A news sheet titled simply, "The War," was pasted to the lining of the cowhide chest. The main story in the newspaper, published in New York, November 14, 1812, was an account of the battles on the Great Lakes between American and British warships as related in a letter from Capt. Jesse D. Elliott to Secretary of the Navy Paul Hamilton.

An item under the heading "Our Navy" mentioned that the "Constitution" (the revered "Old Ironsides") had sailed from Boston on a cruise, just after sinking a British ship.

Bronze Grave Markers For Soldiers Banned. WASHINGTON—The budget bureau recently banned the erection of bronze markers on soldiers' graves.

Harold D. Smith, budget director, explained that in rejecting a war department request for money in the next fiscal year's budget, he found that the cost of bronze markers had risen from $3.95 to $12.85 each and, moreover, that the bronze was needed in defense industry.

Noise Used as Cure For Shell-Shocked

Blast Ears With Recordings Of Heavy Air Raids.

ST. LOUIS.—The "crash-conditioning" of Britons shell-shocked in air raids by subjecting them to additional noise was described to members of the Southern Medical association.

The idea of blasting the ears of persons who already are psychopathic and confined to hospitals, may be fantastic. But it works.

It didn't work, however, on a group of people who heard-for-the-first time the whine of dive bombers, the shrieks of falling bombs and the blasts as they struck. The sound picture of what modern air war is like made women faint and men shudder or get up and leave.

The sounds were transcribed on records by the British Broadcasting corporation, using microphones placed in open fields, homes and bomb shelters near Dover and London during the Battle of Britain a year ago.

These records have been used in the newest experiment of the war on men, women and children, who are frightened even by a door squeak, subjecting them to the terrifying noises in blacked-out cellars or at midnight in a hospital ward.

The process was described as one of "deconditioning" persons to bomb-raid noises. At first people were screaming from the rooms, holding their ears and tearing at anything in their way.

Within two weeks of treatment in which the bombardments are repeated with the constant warnings that "these are the ones which won't hurt you," the survivors of actual air raids take it as calmly as the passengers roaring along on a New York subway.

And British children have even invented a name for the air-raid sirens. They are "moaning Minnies."

The Mint Has a Mystery—Where Are Those Coins? PHILADELPHIA—The mint has a mystery.

Superintendent Edwin H. Dressell wants to know what happens to all half-dollars, quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies produced by the world's largest coin factory. The bulk of them never turn up for remelting.

"For example," he said today, "in the year ending July, 1941, we sent out $33,000,000 worth of subsilver (halves, quarters and dimes) and $17,000,000 worth of the minor coins (nickels and pennies)."

"Do you know what we had returned?—$3,000,000 worth of the subsilver and $225,000 worth of the minor."

It may be, he said, that people who "are now earning good salaries are carrying more coins around with them."

Another answer, he went on, could be the more widespread use of vending and slot machines. Then, too, "thousands of the smaller coins are lost every year and never found."

During Dressell's six-year tenure, the mint has produced 4,395,000,000 coins, or 32.8 per cent of the plant's total output since it was established 149 years ago.

"Nowadays," Dressell explained, "one may purchase anything through the use of coin machines. You have penny vending machines, soft drinks, cigarettes, food machines, juke-boxes, and slot machines—bandits, the slot machines."

Wyoming Yields Ancient Tracks of Rhinoceros. PHILADELPHIA—Tracks made 40,000,000 years ago in the Oligocene period by rhinoceroses, three-toed horses and saber-toothed tigers have been discovered in the Hat Creek Basin of Wyoming by a paleontological party from the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia.

The party, headed by Robert G. Chaffee, assistant curator at the academy, considered the rhinoceros tracks, embedded in a 600-pound block of sandstone, the most important of the discoveries.

The animals seemed to have walked in the mud around a water-hole in the basin, Chaffee said, leaving deep foot imprints. Soon afterward a layer of sand, carried by a flood, covered over the mud and filled the tracks, he explained. The sand hardened like cement to form a heavy slab.

Millions of years later, after the region had been uplifted and eroded into hills and gullies, the sandstone was exposed, showing molds of ancient tracks on the undersides.

The block brought here by the party was taken from this sandstone. It also contains the tracks of tiny camels, giant pigs, ancestral dogs and ancient rabbits.

Thirsty Britons Are Paying Huge Tariff. LONDON—Britain is becoming a thirsty country. The nation's receipts from beer, wine and spirits have gone up more than $200,000,000 since the beginning of the war. Revenue from the sale of tobacco has gone up the same amount.

Tea is bringing a greatly increased revenue. An increase of $5,900,000 has been noted.

Alumni Festivities Night Planned

Regional alumni will have an opportunity to visit their old alma mater Friday night when the regional High School athletic association sponsors the third annual "Alumni-Festivities Night" at the High School. Athletic events between the alumni and high school teams will be a feature of the evening, with both wrestling matches and a basketball game scheduled. Dancing will complete the program.

In the wrestling matches, the high school team will have its first contest of the season. Prospects look bright for the team which last year was undefeated. Alumni who will compete against the team and also against the basketball team will be chosen from graduates of the past three years. The two preceding contests were won by school teams. The wrestling match is scheduled for 7, the basketball game for 7:30.

Active Program For Clubwomen

An active program, including lectures on such widely diverse subjects as war-torn England, the Little Theatre, and Bach, is being planned for the month of January by the various departments of the Millburn Women's Club. Each of the departments, meeting at the homes of members, is sponsoring a lecturer.

Mrs. J. Paul Anderson of North-orn drive, Short Hills, will be hostess to the International Relations Department on January 7 when Mrs. Hubert C. Chappell of Regents Park, London, England, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Chappell and her husband have recently returned to this country after living for three and one-half years in London, where they experienced air raids and bombings. Her talk will be of special interest to First Aid and Red Cross workers.

Drama Department members will hear Mrs. Kenneth Adams, Little theatre authority, who will speak at their next meeting at the home of Mrs. Ralph S. Dupleday, 256 Glen avenue, Millburn, on January 14. The Drama Department is also preparing two one-act plays for the regular Club Day meeting in March. Mrs. Bernard C. Berry and Mrs. Dupleday are directing. A theatre party by the department is being planned for February.

"Work Among the Parole Girls in New Jersey" will be the topic of Mrs. William Dunlap of Summit, who will address the Education and Welfare Department on January 21. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Christian V. Holland, 11 The Crescent, Short Hills. This department is sponsoring the second Nutrition Class, given by the Adult School and the Red Cross, at the Recreation Building, Taylor Park, Millburn, beginning January 5. The Music Department at its meeting January 28 at the home of Mrs. Joseph E. Friend, Northern Drive, Short Hills, will have as guest, Mrs. Rodney Saylor, representative of the Bach Society of New Jersey. Mrs. Saylor, who is the wife of the conductor of Bach's Mass, will lecture and illustrate the distinguishing features of the great work.

New Regent Film Full Of Hilarity

To the accompaniment of some of the most resounding laughs it has ever been this reviewer's good fortune to hear, Paramount's new contribution to the jollity of the nation, "Nothing But The Truth," is now at the Elizabeth Regent Theatre, starring that master of merriment, Bob Hope, and beautiful Paulette Goddard, one of the more welcome of the lovely and talented screen visions.

The opening night audience nearly laughed its head off, as Hope pitched out gag after gag in some of the funniest situations he has found himself in on the screen to date. There are few comedians who have Hope's ability to build up a gag and then deliver it with such side-splitting effect. In "Nothing But The Truth" he is in top form. As if the players were inspiring each other, the entire cast turned in performances that hit exactly the right comical note, making the whole a brilliant, speedy, zestful and hilarious production. Directed by Elliott Nugent, who can be given much of the credit for the film's swift tempo, "Nothing But The Truth" features in its first-rate supporting cast Edward Arnold, Lief Erickson, Helen Vinson, Catharine Doucet, Glenn Anders, Grant Mitchell, Rose Hobart and Willie East.

The story hinges on a bet that Hope, as a stockbroker, makes with his two partners, Edward Arnold and Glenn Anders, and one of their clients, Lief Erickson, that he can tell the truth for twenty-four hours.

Movie Property Insured During the production of the new Universal-adventure-romance, "This Woman Is Mine," which is the associate film, Producer-director Frank Lloyd had the full-rigged schooner Tonquin insured, of all things, against being torpedoed. The 180-foot Tonquin, valued at more than $200,000, was all-important to Lloyd's picture, which deals with a voyage made around the Horn in 1810 to establish the American fur trade in the Pacific Northwest.

Since the Tonquin is the only full-rigged schooner in commission on the Pacific Coast, Lloyd decided to take no chances with the valuable vessel, regardless of how remote the menace of submarines in Southern California waters might be. Accordingly he took out an all-risk policy that included, by specific mention, torpedoing, in recognition of unsettled world conditions. It might be added that Lloyd filmed scenes aboard the Tonquin for several weeks without incident. Franchot Tone, John Carroll, Walter Brennan and Carol Bruce are co-starred in "This Woman Is Mine."
