Opposed To Increase

To the Editor of the SUN: On behalf of the Union County Nutrition Council I am requesting you to publish this letter dealing with the increase in the price of standard milk which is to go into effect January 26.

The Nutrition Council feels that such an increase is unwarranted at this time and will result in a decrease in milk consumption; which in turn will tend to lower the health and efficiency of the people of the community at a time when increased efficiency is necessary.

Therefore, the Council is asking that every citizen who is interested in the health and efficiency of his community, write to the State Milk Director, Arthur F. Foran, at Trenton, N. J., urging the cancellation of the proposed increase in milk prices as of January 26, in order that the health and efficiency of the people of this state may be kept at as high a level of efficiency as possible during this emergency.

Issues Appeal In War Relief Of Red Cross

The Springfield Red Cross Chapter, pledged to a major role in the nation's battles, has issued an appeal to the citizens of Springfield community for an emergency war fund of $4,000 toward the nationwide goal of $50,000,000. Charles H. Huff is general chairman of the War Relief Fund.

"Not since the American Revolution," Mr. Huff declared, "has our nation faced so great a crisis. Not since it was founded, sixty years ago, has the American Red Cross assumed such vast responsibilities toward the defense of its country."

Every service of the Red Cross, Mr. Huff explained, must be greatly enlarged to cope with the national emergency. More volunteers must be certificated into the Red Cross canteen corps, nurse's aide groups, motor corps, and half a dozen other auxiliary squads who are being trained for rescue work.

Already some 3,000,000 men and women in this country have been given courses in first aid, the local War Relief Fund chairman stated. Today, Red Cross first aid instructors are cooperating with municipal defense officials throughout the nation in teaching first aid to a minimum five percent of all workers in large factories, stores or business firms. Industries are organizing "disaster corps" to be trained by the Red Cross to handle possible emergencies within their own plants, whether sabotage, fire or other disaster due to enemy action.

"As for the national Red Cross disaster workers," Mr. Huff went on, "they have, just in the past year, served at 122 disasters within our borders, most of them explosions, fires, and windstorms similar to disasters caused by sabotage and air raids. In the present crisis, their numbers and equipment must be increased as wartime disasters will inevitably increase."

Active At Camps Mr. Huff laid particular emphasis upon the American Red Cross welfare services to the United States armed forces. Since it is the only agency, he explained, that is permitted by law to handle the personal problems of the men in uniform and give them special care, whether on the field, or in hospital, or to their families on the home front, the Red Cross has become the greatest single factor in maintaining morale.

TO SEW FOR RED CROSS The Women's Guild of St. Stephen's Church, Millburn, will meet the first Tuesday of every month at the Parish House of the church at 10 o'clock in the morning to sew for the Red Cross. A short business meeting will be held before lunch, after which the sewing will continue until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Members and friends are invited to bring a box lunch, but tea and coffee will be served.

Ask anyone who was fortunate enough to get one of Wilbur Wojtech's turkeys for Thanksgiving, about the type of bird which he produces on his farm. Wilbur, a senior in the agricultural course at Regional High School, who was selected as "Best Vocational Agriculture Poultry Boy of the Year" by a committee representing the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council, has been honored again. This time he is acting as a steward at the Boston Poultry Show, which is being held in Boston this week. Wilbur is a fellow who can "talk turkey."

Invitations to the dances have been extended to many local girls, who will act as dance partners for the service men. The dances, however, are restricted only to men who are in uniform, the majority of whom will be from Elizabeth. Local boys who are in the service and are on furlough may also attend the dances.

The affair will be held from 8 to 12 midnight, and although a sufficient number of girls have been invited to this dance, a new group is being sought for another similar event in the near future. Refreshments will be served entirely by donations, and it is urgently hoped that residents will respond either through money or food contributions in making this aspect of the dances a success.

General chairman for the dances is Mrs. Richard Horgan. She will be assisted by Mrs. James M. Duguid, Mrs. Gregg L. Frost, Mrs. Roland Nye, Mrs. Russell Pittzinger and Mrs. Charles Zoeller.

About 20 Per Cent Taken In Campaign

About 20 per cent of the $4,000 quota for Springfield Red Cross in the War Relief Fund was reported collected this week, in the first few days of the campaign. The funds will be used for relief and services to our armed forces in the Army, Navy, Marine and Air Corps; and to extend temporary help to those families who are in distress and in need of assistance.

The local chapter is faced with the largest sum ever asked of it in any campaign, because the need is also great. If the regular house-to-house solicitor is delayed for any reason in calling upon you, contributions may be made personally or by mail to Charles H. Huff, chairman, War Relief Fund, Town Hall, Springfield, N. J. Checks should be made payable to the American Red Cross.

There will be a group song as part of the program entitled, "Down and Out," and the school band, supervised by David E. Rusette, music instructor, will be featured.

The playlet, "Just One More Helping," will have the following students in the cast: James Hambacher, Mildred Shimkus, and Mary Glowacki. Edith Pldcoe of Clark Township, will render a vocal selection, also fitting to the general theme of the meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting, there will be a social gathering in the cafeteria. Mrs. P. MacDougal will be in charge.

At a meeting of the executive board of the group held on Thursday evening, Mrs. Elwood Carmichael was appointed chairman of the Parent-Teacher department. It was also announced that the group would join with the Springfield P. T. A. and Red Cross in sponsoring the series of Nutrition courses which are being given every Tuesday evening at the James Caldwell School.

Warren W. Halsey, principal, Mrs. Gilbert Pittenger, president, and Mrs. Thomas Doyle were named to represent the group at the county Founder's Day luncheon to be held in Elizabeth. Your Red Cross War Relief contribution will save lives. Give to the Red Cross now.

Strict Dog Regulation Provided

Stringent regulations affecting dogs and kennels were contained in an ordinance introduced by the Township Committee Wednesday night. The ordinance conforms with recent state regulations regarding licensing of dogs, but certain sections are presumably chiefly applicable to Springfield.

The annual dog license fee will be $1, regardless of the sex of the dog, plus the sum of twenty-five cents registration tag fee required by the state. No kennel, the ordinance stipulates, shall be located at a distance less than one hundred feet from adjacent property lines, or from the highway. Kennel owners who do not comply with this provision will be given a period of nine months in which to do so, or to liquidate. The Building Inspector is authorized to inspect the premises to see whether they are in accordance with the ordinance.

Other provisions in the ordinance regulate the sanitary and health conditions of dogs and kennels. Violations of the ordinance incur a fine not exceeding $50. Second reading and passage of the ordinance will be held at the public hearing of the Township Committee on January 28. The legal notice of the ordinance will be found on page 4 of this issue.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

'Biggest Budget in World's History' For Expanding of U. S. War Program Will Cost Nation 56 Billion Dollars; Russians Continue to Push Back Nazis

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SOMEWHERE IN CHINA.—Veteran Chinese soldiers of this type, pictured at a railway station "Somewhere in China," are advancing toward Malaya to aid the hard-pressed forces of the British against the Japs. It was reported that veterans of this type took part in the slaughter of Jap troops in the Changsha, China, sector.

TAXES: Billions on Billions

Americans who had been given grim satisfaction by the President's stirring message to congress faced with what courage they could muster the huge bill that will have to be paid, 56 billions of dollars. Congress, to a man, had told the President "we will give you the money." OPM had said, "We can and will do it," and labor said, "we will not stop working."

JAPAN: Still Pressing

Reports from the Far Eastern fronts, with the exception of China, were uniformly continuing stories of increased Japanese pressure in occupied zones, and uniform efforts to extend Japanese operations.

The British had doggedly been holding on in Malaya, but steadily and slowly falling back toward Singapore. The Japs apparently had complete mastery of the air in Luzon, and it was deemed only a question of time how long General MacArthur's army could hold out.

Where the main defense was coming was obscure and remained a military secret, but there were certain indications which were said to be giving Tokyo plenty to worry about.

For instance, the naming of Wavell as supreme commander, and the placing of a well-trained Chinese army in Burma, together with other Allied forces, readying themselves for an onslaught on the Japanese rear at Malaya was one of these.

Another was the American and Australian insistence that strongest possible aid be given to the Dutch. On top of this came the word that Java would be chosen as general headquarters of the Allied operations.

A glance at the Southwest-Pacific maps showed the position of Java and Sumatra and their relation to the Malacca straits and the open ocean route to the south to Darwin, Australia, and plainly indicated the general tactic that was most likely to be pursued.

Japan, to break supply lines along this route, would have to move a considerable naval force out of the China sea and into the open South Pacific and that could only be done with grievous results to the land campaign.

REDS: Increasing Pace News from Russia had been uniformly good, with 572 towns reported captured in one week, 10,000 enemy troops slain, and huge quantities of booty taken.

Hitler went to the front, made his headquarters at Smolensk, and suddenly found he was only 45 miles from where the chief fighting was. He was believed to have moved his headquarters hurriedly farther to the rear.

The German debacle was equaling the disaster befalling the German arms in the north around Leningrad. Turkey had temperatures far below zero, coldest in Turkish history, and that was an indication of what the ill-prepared Germans and their Italian and Rumanian allies had to stand in the Crimea, ordinarily the warmest part of Russia.

The Germans were resisting most strongly on the central front. In the north the Russians had even recaptured Hogland Island, which had been taken by the Finns, and it was evident that the Finlanders, reportedly deserted by their Nazi comrades, were rapidly getting into the safest possible places, and losing one dangerous spot after another.

In addition to the 'successes for the Reds on the Crimean peninsula, which were rapidly raising the siege of Sevastopol, the Russians were gaining in the Donets basin.

AFRICA: British Winning British sources reported they had evidence that General Rommel had virtually given up hope of eventual retreat from Libya, and had resolved on a pitch battle in the most favorable ground he could find.

This was a plateau on which there was considerably more clay foundation than desert sand, which would aid the German mechanized forces and afford better than average landing spots for planes.

Cause for Study

Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Finance committee, is pictured looking over the 1,172 pages of the 1943 fiscal year budget. His chief interest in the budget would be a study of it with a view of planning new tax measures. The war budget calls for $56,000,000,000.

FARMER: Has Prospects

President Roosevelt was seen by senate leaders as opposed to the proposal of the farm bloc to have secretary of agriculture given the authority to exercise veto power on wartime controls of farm prices.

Senator Brown of Michigan said that the President approves having a single price administrator handle all price questions, including those of farm products.

Brown, however, conceded that the farm bloc had powerful support and that the vote on such a measure, if it came to that, would be close indeed.

Secretary Wickard is getting support for the post of farm price czar from both parties. The dispute, of course, is between him and Leon Henderson, the price administrator.

Under the present bill, Brown pointed out, $1.40 wheat would be a possibility. The average market price on December 15 was $1.02.

Cotton similarly could be purchased for 16.2 cents a pound, and could go to 19.65 cents before the law would take over control.

Beef, however, had currently been selling higher than it would under the bill, he added.

Also getting considerable support was a Senator Taft proposal that neither Wickard nor Henderson be given farm price control, but that it be vested in a board of five members. This Taft proposal might form the test of sentiment on the other two proposals.

CHINA: Changsha Victory

The Chinese victory over the Japs at Changsha was termed by Chong Kai-shek as a possible turning point of the war. It was the third successive setback for the Japanese at this city, and the most disastrous.

Some Chinese newspapers were urging that the Chinese armies now strike into Thailand and Indo-China direct to menace the Jap rear and relieve the pressure on Malaya.

The Chinese said that in addition to the 30,000 Japs killed in the battle, they got 7,000 more as the fleeing Nipponese attempted to cross a nearby river, with Chinese lying ambushed on the far bank.

A Jap force of 40,000 was said to be trapped in one locality. The total estimated Japanese strength of the drive on Changsha was 100,000 men. Few of them, according to Chungking, were able to get away to the north.

ZEPPELINS: Raid the East?

Army authorities in Washington said it definitely "was in the cards" that Germany might try to get their two huge dirigibles into the air for token raids on the east coast of the United States.

It was revealed after the last war that the big transatlantic Zeppelin of those days was being groomed for just such a trip, but which never came off.

The sister ship of the Von Hindenburg, which was destroyed by flames in New Jersey was said to be still in existence, together with another Zeppelin of the LZ type, capable of flying the Atlantic.

Each of them, army men said, could be loaded with 10 bombing planes, could drop them to take-offs within easy flying distance of east-coast cities.

Or, they pointed out, it would be possible for the airships themselves to be loaded with an enormous quantity of bombs and to make a "suicide" flight over one or more east-coast cities, dropping their deadly cargoes before planes could shoot them down.

Food for Freedom

We all know the vital part that food plays in any war, and food can be expected to play the same role in our war with the Axis powers that it has played in all the wars of the world. Your farm can help, says Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard in urging them to produce more national defense foods such as milk, meat, eggs and vegetables, as part of our new Food for Freedom campaign.

Here is Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. He practices what he preaches by making out an AAA farm plan for his own Indiana farm, showing how he will expand production in 1942.

Perry Thompson gives his hogs extra rations of corn to help provide plenty of pork, drawing on the huge reservoir of feed on hand in the nation's "Ever-Normal Granary."

Farm boys help with milling and similar chores all over the nation, as their fathers strive to increase dairy production.

Cheese is one of the most popular of dairy products. Cheese factories in the U. S. are working overtime to supply the demand.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

INSTALLMENT FIVE

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Watson, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate and fortune of her grandfather, Garrett Watson, arrives in Honolulu to attempt to gain control of the property. Here she meets Richard Wayne, or Tonga Dick, as he is known throughout the South Pacific. He is a member of the Wayne family that has been in control of her grandfather's island, Alaska, since the old man's disappearance. Although Tonga Dick knows who she is, Karen attempts to conceal her identity from him. Dick offers to take her sailing and she accepts. Dick, himself has not taken much of an interest in the island estate, but his half-brothers, Ernest and Willard, are very worried lest Karen's claims be upheld. Next day as Dick takes Karen sailing she learns that he knows who she is and that he is taking her to Alaska. She wants to go back to Honolulu but he refuses to take her. Although she is thrilled by the sight of the island and awaits her here. Dick finds that his uncle, James Wayne, is very ill. When Dick sees him, James Wayne is upset over the pending suit for the island and tells Dick he will under no circumstances come to a settlement. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER V

A slim Hawaiian girl called Lilua had shown Karen her room; and now this girl was back again tapping at the door panel.

"Mister Dick wants to know if you would like to have coffee with him." Uncertain, Karen Watson opened the door. Tonga Dick was surely the last person in the world she wanted to see.

As she hesitated Lilua moved across the room and closed a case that Karen had opened, and Karen experienced a sharp annoyance. There was no air of service in the Hawaiian girl's movement or in her face; rather there was a faint irony in Lilua's eyes, as if she condescended to assist, a helpless person who didn't know how to take care of herself.

Karen put a cigarette into an ebony holder, lighted it, and studied Lilua impersonally. Lilua had the creamy brown skin of the pure Hawaiian; her softly waved hair, black as any night, was drawn back over her ears, brushed severely.

"How old are you?" Karen asked suddenly.

Lilua's unwavering eyes seemed amused. "Eighteen. How old are you?"

If Karen had conceived Lilua to be in any way less than her equal, that idea was evidently not shared by Lilua. Karen turned away.

"Somewhat older," she said shortly. "Tell Mr. Wayne I will come."

"I'll show you where he is," Lilua said.

Karen turned to look at her, impelled by that steady gaze. "You're glad to see him back, aren't you?" Karen said.

Lilua hesitated perceptibly, but her quiet voice did not change as she answered. "I haven't seen him for two years."

Karen, her annoyance unaccountably increased, followed Lilua through the house.

Dick Wayne was stretched out before the fire in the big room whose immense doors opened upon the valley and the fog; Lilua immediately crossed the room to close those doors. Dick rose, looking apologetic.

"I hope you'll make yourself comfortable here. I'm sorry if you feel I've made things awkward for you. I think I'll be able to take you back tomorrow."

"Good."

In the stiff silence between them, Lilua came and stood in front of Dick's chair, looking at him steadily.

"Dick, you must be careful of this night. I don't like this night at all. E makani auane, ke kau, mai la ke kakai o Kakaipal."

"That's rude, Lilua," Dick stopped her. "You know she can't understand that."

Lilua cast a contemptuous glance at Karen, and she did not translate; but she went on in English.

"Pretty soon the clouds are going to rise higher, and the wind is going to blow through. And then it is going to rain, and even the rain is going to be a bad rain."

Dick pulled at his cold pipe, his eyes mused upon the fire. "Don't think much of it myself," he admitted.

"The wrong gods are walking," Lilua said now. "The right gods never walk here any more. Remember how we used to hear them walking? But they haven't walked here for a long time. Something else is here instead. Sometimes I can feel it coming near. And tonight it is very close, terribly close; and even the dog is afraid."

Dick Wayne stilled restively. Perhaps he thought he knew what it was that was near; but he didn't want to look at it, yet. "You'd better go to get some sleep, Lilua."

"Dick, this is a wrong time." "Wrong time for what?" Dick snapped at her.

Lilua glanced at Karen, but what she said next was unintelligible.

"I suppose it amuses you," Karen said, "to make out that my grandfather was a great fool."

seen it, but they swear it's as big as a ship.

"Kai-Ale-Ale is here again," Lilua said; "and there's another thing. The red mullet are running, Dick. Ever since the Islands first came out of the sea, when the red mullet have run a king has died."

"You'd better go on to bed now, Lilua," Dick said.

"You won't want me any more tonight?"

"No; we have everything we'll need, I think."

Lilua stood motionless a moment more. "Are you sure?"

"Yes, yes, of course!"

When Lilua was gone Tonga Dick Wayne sat looking into the fire, saying nothing; and Karen found herself unwilling either to look at him or to speak.

"Do all your servants call you by your first name?" Karen asked at last.

Dick frowned a little. "She isn't exactly a servant. Her people were a very proud people—masters of this island before any haole ever saw it. And she—she's lived here all her life, and I've known her all her life."

"I don't believe," Karen offered, "that that girl has had her eyes off of you one moment since you've been in this house."

Dick Wayne looked startled. "Huh?"

"You don't mean to tell me that you didn't notice that?"

"For a moment," Dick looked worried. "Bunch of nonsense," he said.

"Can it be possible," Karen asked, "that she believes all that—that stuff?"

"Of course. Different races have different ways of talking about the factors that make things happen."

"Well," Dick hesitated, and visibly shifted ground. "Well, it seems to me extremely remarkable that you and I are sitting here tonight, together by this fire."

"It is through no wish of mine," Karen said.

"I'm sorry. I still can't understand why you're not interested. For one thing, this might very well have been the house in which you were born. The room you are in sleep in tonight might have been the very room."

"I thought of that."

"There's a lot of history in this old house," Dick went on. "Of course the most interesting part of it, or at least the most highly colored, goes back to your grandfather's day, before you were born at all—before the Waynes came in. In his day the house was never silent and empty, as it is now."

"You Waynes have certainly turned it into a tomb."

"I'm sorry, sometimes," he said, "that those old days are gone. There are things that are rigid, and dull too, about the Wayne regime."

She looked at him and the shared mother broke up. "How do you know all this?"

"The Waynes were very close friends of Garrett Watson."

"To the profit of the Waynes," Karen said with repressed bitterness.

"Tonga Dick shook his head, not in denial, but in objection. "Your grandfather ended up utterly broke. You see, he was the last of the great old catch-up-can traders, island trading was a tough game after the sandalwood gave out, but Garrett Watson had a tremendous robust energy; and he made himself two or three fortunes. But all that was over a good many years before he sold Alaska. I doubt if he had made a cent for at least a decade. He had no business judgment; even his ownership of this island was an accident. He won Alaska in a poker game with the native king—and even that was partly by mistake, because he thought he was gambling for just the fishing rights. He was actually astounded when he found out he had won it all."

"I suppose it amuses you," Karen said, "to make out that my grandfather was a great fool."

"You shouldn't mind," Dick smiled. "You and John Colt are trying to establish that he was an imbecile."

Karen bit her lip; she was silent for a full minute, and when she spoke she took an entirely new tone.

Prints Make Their Appearance With Bright Floral Patterns

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WELCOME the new prints! They are gay, they are lovely, they are everything you want them to be in the way of chic and refreshing novelty. It's going to be a most exciting time for prints from now on. Not only are they putting in a much earlier appearance than usual, but they are strikingly novel in both color and design.

Smartly in keeping with the vogue for bright touches to add warmth and color to the winter wardrobe, charming rayon prints are appearing in such an out-of-the-ordinary assortment that they set a new high in zestful color and originality.

Speaking of the unusualness of new print design, you'll be thrilled with the charm of the new lace prints which fashion enthusiastically features this season. They are simply stunning! In some instances the lace motifs are so strikingly realistic it almost seems as if they were applied to their background. However, you will find it is really artfully printed patterning. Many of these lace prints are combined with gorgeous florals.

It is just such lavish lace designs as pictured to the right in the foreground of the group illustrated that are calling forth ohs and ahs from print-seeking enthusiasts. Here the patterning captures the delicate tracery of lace paper doilies and the color glory of chrysanthemums for a striking print design on fine acetate rayon jersey. The styling of this winsome midseason dress conveys a message of soft draping and a very important message: it is, too, for the newer silhouettes are making a feature of slenderizing drape technique.

An outstanding treatment found in the new prints is that of wide-spaced, brilliant florals that contrast vividly against navy or black grounds. Such designs as scattered rose or tulip prints vie for popularity with extravagant mixtures of many-colored exotic blooms. See the stunning dress worn by the figure seated on arm of chair, as shown to the left in the picture. The luxurious rayon crepe used for this newest and smartest of afternoon dresses glories in an exquisite flower and feather patterning in many colors. This dainty draped and molded-to-the-figure frock is a typically last-minute creation which answers the question of what's new for immediate wear.

Centered in the picture above is a charming print design of immense parma violets giving an exquisite handpainted effect to the softly draped flat rayon crepe that fastens this graceful, full-skirted frock. Watch for these handpainted effects, which are stunningly achieved with multi-color bouquets or single flowers spaced widely over backgrounds of the rayon crepe in solid tones.

Be on the lookout, also, for the new and fascinating feather prints. Soft plume effects are being importantly featured; also graceful palm fronds that look very tropical when green widely-spaced ferns or palms are printed on white grounds. Other important prints that take you into the realm of small, bright effects carry interestingly diminutive plumes, formalized medallions and curlicues, or exotic paisley patternings.

Crocheted

To give the smart filip to your appearance you really should wear a touch of crocheted somewhere about your costume, now that crocheted has grown to be one of the most outstanding words in the present-day fashion vocabulary. Why not crocheted a beret as pictured above, the original of which was shown in an all-crochet fashion show recently sponsored by the National Needlecraft Bureau?

For the smart beret here shown, Wanda Kofler, a designer noted for her artistry and skill in crocheted, used two shades of pink mercerized cotton. Worn with a corset colored crepe afternoon dress, it makes a smart ensemble for a luncheon or bridge engagement.

Lisle Mesh
Here's your answer to the hostelry problem! It's smart lisle hose in flattering mesh—perfect with your daytime woollens and tweeds. Favorite colors are corncob, brown, butter and honeycomb. If you prefer fine plain lisle without mesh, it is now available in all leading stores.

Plastic Bags
Surprise and delight await those who first see the new huddings made of woven plastic thread. With the possible shortage of other materials plastics are definitely "in."

'Ballerina' Dress Delights the Young

As a compromise, here is an evening dress that looks festive but not too formal. It is a new type of frock—the ballerina dress, which has recently made its appearance in the fashion picture.

As its name implies, this new frock is full-skirted and ankle-length. It really is a forerunner of the short-length—evening dress. Young, pretty and so new is this dainty dress. The prettiest of materials go into its making: Lovely prints yield beautifully to the ballerina silhouette. Perhaps most charming of all are the ballerina dresses made of lace. The bodices that top the ballerina skirts are purposely styled with the utmost simplicity, have short sleeves, fit snugly and add to their lure with deep-cut square or heart-shaped necklines.

A most significant sidelight on the ballerina vogue is that the junior and teen-age girls are so fascinated with the idea they are adopting the fashion for daytime dresses of gay chintz and crisp cottons.

New Sweaters
Luxury-type sweaters are taking on most dazzling details for evening wear. It's a good plan to have one or two sweaters in reserve. They play such a varied and helpful part in either your afternoon or your really "dress-up" wardrobe, with short skirts or the long evening skirts.

TWO FRONTS

The United States must fight on two fronts. First, there is the military front. American soldiers, sailors and airmen are fighting and dying in the Pacific. They are living up to the highest traditions of this nation's military history. They must be given the finest battle equipment in the world, and they must be given it in lavish quantity. All the resources of this nation, human and material alike, must be used to that end.

Second, there is the home front. We have said, time and again, that we are fighting to defend and perpetuate freedom. That is true. But the defense of freedom at home, as on the war front, demands more than lip service. It demands straight thinking from all. It demands a people who will look squarely at the facts, no matter how unpleasant they may be. It demands the kind of national toughness that knows precisely what we are fighting for, and that will permit nothing to stand in the way of victory on the home front no less than the military front.

We will, of necessity, demand and accept a large measure of economic dictatorship during the war. Whether that dictatorship ends when the war ends, will depend upon the resolution and the understanding of the American people. The future of this country and this kind of government is in the balance. The people will decide which way the scales are tipped.

The free enterprise system is at stake in this war. Upon the maintenance of free enterprise all the other freedoms—freedom of press, freedom of speech, freedom of religion—hinge and depend. Anything which weakens and emasculates free enterprise is the enemy of the nation. We cannot have an ever-expanding bureaucracy and have efficiency. We cannot allow non-defense spending to go on unchecked and expect to avoid economic collapse. We cannot punish industry and expect it to be able to do its utmost.

There is nothing dramatic about these statements. They are simply honest truths. The winning of this war—and the winning of the peace that follows—will depend on how well the American people understand them.

There has never been such unity as this country has at present. Every American stands solidly behind the President in the pledge to wage war until international gangsterism is destroyed. The spirit of the nation is one of grim, uncompromising determination. But let all remember that the home front is as vital to war and to the perpetuation of our way of life as the battlefield. There will be subversive influence on both fronts. Only an awakened, aware people can prevent their deprivations.

We fight for freedom, then. And we must fight for it all the way—fight for it here in America, no less than in the broad reaches of the oceans and the lands beyond.

Court Dismisses 14-Year-Old Case

A suit brought by three lawyers to collect $75,000 in fees for services rendered more than fourteen years ago was dismissed this week by the State Court of Errors and Appeals. The suit involved the $1,000,000 estate of the late Louis Keller of Springfield, founder of the famous Social Register. Keller died in 1922. The three lawyers, Mark Townsend of Jersey City; Deacon Murphy of Roslyn, L. I.; and John McK. Minion, Jr., of Jackson Heights, N. Y., along with the late William H. Edwards (Big Bill) Edwards of Princeton football fame) had been originally retained by Louis Lawrence of Cranford, who promised them 30 per cent of any money they might recover in "breaking the trust set up in Keller's will. Lawrence's mother, Marie D. Norton, was Keller's half-sister and had been omitted from his will.

The lawyers were unsuccessful at the time, but since then the death of other beneficiaries of Keller's will had died intestate and their money has reverted to Lawrence. The lawyers claimed that they were entitled to 30 per cent of the reverted estate, which amounted to $75,000. Decision of the court said that the original contract under which they were retained by Lawrence "did not comprehend the omission in Keller's will to make final distribution" of the residue of the estate, and, in effect, they are not entitled to the fee claimed.

NO ROBBERY CLUES

No further clues have been found in the robbery last Thursday at the home of W. F. George on Hillside Avenue. Approximately $400 in jewelry and cash was stolen.

Entrance was gained by breaking the window in the rear door. Most of the articles taken were jewelry, although the thieves also ransacked the house.

Book sellers claim that there will be more reading than ever from now on because people are not going out as much at night or going away over week-ends. They are already beginning to think of the mileage on their tires, and that will have an effect on their reading. Some predict there will be a boom in serious reading.

Our Library has just purchased MISSION TO MOSCOW, written by the former United States Ambassador to Russia, Joseph E. Davies. It is a record of dispatches to the State Department, official and personal correspondence, including notes and comments, up to October, 1941. It also contains confidential letters to the President and others.

Mr. Davies probably knows Russia better than any other American. He was one of the very few who predicted the amazing stand of the Red Army. He tells when Russia first revealed its opposition to Germany, the secret of the Red Army's resistance against Germany, what Stalin told him about European peace, and the Russian foreign policy on the eve of Munich.

The book is a best seller because it answers so many questions about the Soviet Union. President Roosevelt says, in a letter to Mr. Davies, "You exercised a happy faculty in evaluating events at hand and determining with singular accuracy their probable effect on future developments."

BOMBER COMMAND. This is the air ministry account of the bomber command's offensive against the Axis. It contains authentic stories of Britain's bomber crews, and exclusive photos of the Royal Air Force in action. "How many men were killed and drowned, how many boats were wrecked cannot be counted, but no invasion took place because of the men of the Bomber Command."

Miss Teuscher is a graduate of Regional High School. Corp. Stout attended Asbury Park High School. He has been stationed at Fort Dix.

Hughes' Position Will Be Decided

Republican party workers of Springfield will meet tonight with workers from Summit, New Providence Township and New Providence Borough at a special meeting called by County Chairman George D. Rankin to determine their stand on the proposed reappointment of John L. Hughes, a Republican, to the five-year term as judge of the Third District Court at Summit. Senator-elect Herbert J. Pascoe has asked Rankin to call the meeting.

The re-appointment of Hughes, which has caused bitter controversy within Union County Republican ranks, has been held up since last March 31 by the opposition of retiring Senator Charles E. Lottzau. Judge Hughes, meanwhile, has held the post temporarily.

It was decided in consultation last week between Governor Edison and Pascoe that Hughes be re-named as soon as possible. Pascoe is willing to approve the appointment provided Republican party workers in the court district are in favor of Hughes, believing that "if the community wants Judge Hughes, that's whom they should have." It was for this reason that he asked Rankin to call the special meeting.

Giving Tires Longer Life

Tire Rationing Board Offers Suggestions For Getting More Wear

Suggestions for getting more wear out of your present automobile tires were listed yesterday by the local Tire Rationing Board. The suggestions follow:

If your tires are less than four years old and you make a practice of jacking them just because they have worn smooth, you are "burying them alive." You can get four-fifths of the performance of a new tire for one-half or less of the price of a new one by having an old tire recapped.

HOW MUCH DOES TIRE RECONDITIONING COST? HOW LONG DOES IT TAKE?—Seven or eight pounds of rubber are used in recapping or retreading an old tire, with prices in this area ranging from $3.25 to $9, depending on the size. From several days to a week are required for the process.

RECAPPING AND RETREADING VS. REGROOVING—Retreading consists of buffing the old rubber down to the fabric, applying a new breaker strip and adding new rubber. In regrooving, the tire is generally buffed down only to remove the unevenness of the old tread design, and new rubber is added. When the old rubber is removed down to the breaker strip, the process is called topcapping. Regrooving is more practical and economical in retreading.

These processes should not be confused with regrooving, which merely consists of cutting a new tread-design in the old rubber. This lowers potential mileage.

CHECK YOUR TIRE FIRST!—No tire should be retreaded or recapped until it is thoroughly inspected.

1. Beads. Brake drum heat or mounting and dismounting may have damaged the beads or inside rim of the tire. If the reinforcing wire strands have chafed through the fabric, reconditioning should not be considered.

2. Sidewalls. Inspect for excessive cuts or weather checking. If the sidewalls are damaged or the surface rubber aged badly, the tire should not be recapped.

3. Inside Casing. Examine for cuts, nail holes, fissures and bruises. If there are casing defects, the tire should not be recapped.

4. Outer Surface Tread. Cuts and tears in the rubber, if properly cleaned and filled with a padding stock, are no bar to recapping or to retreading, foreign matter should be removed. Cuts extending into the fabric beyond two plies make the tire unsuitable for reconditioning.

5. Carcass Separation. The tread may become separated from the carcass, especially at the shoulder of a badly worn tire. If the tread and carcass are separated, do not recap the tire.

CONSERVE WHAT YOU HAVE. Drive below 40 miles an hour; your tires will last longer. Use care in parking; don't cut the sidewalls on the curb. Avoid jackrabbit starts and sudden stops. Avoid unimproved roads. To equalize wear: keep brakes evenly adjusted, check wheel alignment frequently and switch tires occasionally. Organize shopping trips with your neighbors; use one car instead of four. The Consumers' Information Center, 51 Brantford place, will tell you how. Consider the possibility of getting together with your neighbors, using fewer cars for traveling to business.

taining the morale of the American Army and Navy.

Red Cross services to the armed forces do not end there, he also pointed out. From the membership roles of the Red Cross Nursing Reserves, now put at 43,000, are chosen the nurses willing and fit to enter military service with our Army and Navy. Already thousands of nurses have voluntarily gone out from the Red Cross roster to begin their years of war duty.

"The gift of human blood," Mr. Huff said, "is another responsibility of the American Red Cross. Dried blood plasma is being manufactured today out of whole blood through collection centers in key cities and sent out by the Red Cross to military hospitals and to our ships at sea wherever American forces are stationed. The Army and Navy have asked the Red Cross for 200,000 units of blood, and the Red Cross will see to it that they receive them."

This is not the first time that the American Red Cross has been called upon for great deeds and the expenditure of huge sums. During the first World War, Americans gave approximately $400,000,000 for the Red Cross. Since then, the organization has come of age, until today it has become one of America's first lines of defense and reconstruction.

"The Red Cross campaign ahead of us," Mr. Huff pointed out, "will be our chance as civilians to assume a share in the coming battle and to prove the strength of our community and our nation."

THE army, the navy, the air force and the marines are looking in one main direction for their recruits. This direction is toward the athlete who is supposed to be—who ought to be—in physical condition, plus the alertness he has drawn from competitive sport. This means above all, the football players. After this comes baseball players, basketball players, fighters and track men.

We have received some complaint that too many sports writers are trying to place the main burden on athletes, especially well-known athletes.

This is where the main burden belongs. It is only natural that a country should look to its young men trained in sport, above any other class, when war arrives. These young men make—or should make—the best service material, with something to spare. They should be much more physically fit than others who have had no such chance to get in such shape.

Competition is supposed to develop the form of alertness needed in war—especially football competition, where one has to think and act in a hurry. Most of these new in sport—and not yet in the service—have received unusual recognition from their country in the way of headline and radio tribute. Also, in the way of financial rewards.

More will be expected from our athletes than from any other class. These happen to be better equipped to serve, and only the most vital reasons should keep them from remembering this line—"But when the bugles sounded war—they put their games away."

'Don't Wait Too Long'

I recall the sound advice that Maj. Swede Larson, late excellent navy football coach, gave a prominent gridiron star before we were in the war—as we are now. "Please don't wait too long before enlisting," Swede said. "I don't believe the country at large is going to like famous athletes, still young, cleaning up in other lines. Some form of the service needs men like you—needs them badly. We need what you can give us in a personal way. We need your example even more. So I'm asking you again not to make the mistake of waiting too long."

MAJOR SWEDE LARSON

Again the final verse of Winifred Lett's war poem came back to us—"God bless you happy gentlemen, who laid your good lives down—Who took the khaki and the gun, in place of cap and gown. God bring you to a fairer place than even Oxford town."

Big Time Over

Once again big-time sport for spectators is all through until the war is over—and won.

When men like Collin Kelly are diving at Japanese warships and dying—when a few marines proved what marines are at Wake Island, the broken-field runner and the blocking back and the charging tackle are badly overshadowed.

The nation expects football players to put their games away—as far as all available for service are concerned. It is up to these men in sport—the younger men—to prove that competitively sport—that big-time sport—has a purpose to serve beyond publicity and gate receipts.

This doesn't mean just a small percentage. It means an overwhelming majority. It doesn't mean exemption through fat feet or some minor physical detail. It doesn't mean dependences, unless it is a matter of dire need.

Another Problem

"I have tried to get in both army and navy," a certain well-known athlete writes, "but have been turned down on account of defective eyesight. I have done my best. Yet I can see people looking at me queerly, wondering why I am not in some service. I am not alone in this respect. There are many, many others. Isn't there some way the war or navy department could give us a button that will show we have at least tried to get in? It is too much to keep explaining."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Old Way of Life Is Gone Forever

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Women have a share in the world catastrophe. Make "I will be afraid of nothing your first rule. Yes, even if death is going to be your share, and the boy doesn't come home from the wars—face it.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE strangest years of her history and the greatest crisis she ever has faced are immediately ahead for America. She has always been a friendly country, willing to let other countries solve their problems and worship their gods in their own way, not afraid of her weaker neighbors any more than they were afraid of her.

But all this has been changed, and we have "enemies" now, we are to be the world's arsenal and to attempt to police the world. And you, the quiet mistress of a quiet household, of your share in the world of catastrophe, and must do your bit to pull us all out of a chaos into which the blindness and stupidity of the nations overseas have drawn us.

They talked world brotherhood, world peace, world distribution of opportunities and necessities 20 years ago. But nobody meant those promises or took the slightest interest in their fulfillment; blockades went on; mandatory powers were not released; children starved and their mothers and fathers went mad for revenge.

These conditions will be repeated in a few years when the war is over, for the men who are responsible for it are not dealing honestly with their people now, and are not apt to change afterward. No, they will retire, wealthy and unpunished, as they did 20 years ago, leaving sorrow and ruin and bitter change for all the rest of us to face.

Make Family Unaffaird. Your share is to make the little unit that is your family, and if possible, your group, self-sufficient and unaffaird. Begin this very day to change your house into a place to which a man and children love to return at night. No worry, no fears and no complaining. Life won't ever go back for any of us to what it was. But face it, and in love for those who are left, and who will give less, will suffer less, if you always show a smiling face, learn to bear the unbearable.

For a second rule: Get out of debt. Whatever your income is, live on exactly two-thirds of it. Save; buy a little farm, and when you own it, buy another, to rent. Get your feet solidly on the ground for what is coming; for each one of us who can take care of a neighbor will have to do it then. Cut down everywhere you can.

Maybe your income is inflated now, is much larger than it was before, defense activities began. If that is so, try to live as simply as before, and invest in national bonds, or in those few acres of real estate that some day may mean a cellar full of your own apples and squashes and potatoes, closet shelves filled with preserved berries and fruits, chickens.

And now for a third rule: See that the family income does not

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP!

That's what the women of this and every country are going to have to do—keep their chins up. They are going to have to smile, even when they would rather have a good cry. And they are going to have to make "home," in spite of sorrow, hard work and sacrifice, a peaceful and courageous place. Kathleen Norris believes that a better world is in the making. She says that the more fully we understand the suffering and injustice others must endure, the better able we will be to help build a truly civilized society. There may be fewer millionaires when this is over, but there will probably be fewer poverty stricken shams and pale children looking with bewildered eyes on a heartless world.

come from just one man. You would feel yourself heavily burdened if you had a wife, a boy and girl, an old mother, an occasional maid, a car, a home, insurance and taxes to maintain; and believe me, in the face of the clouds, darkening over the world today, your man does. One of you, or better, two of you, ought to be helping out, in however modest a fashion.

Share the Burden.

One woman in my neighborhood went to a contractor and had him turn her big top-story into an independent flat, with a roofed outer stairway. Both kitchen fittings and stairway were the main expense; stove and plumbing cost her $12. But the husband, who had been getting $8 a day was now getting $16, and sometimes more, and she could pay this off, and did pay this off, at the rate of something more than $100 a month.

Then she furnished it, buying new curtains, but otherwise merely extracting from the 12 rooms downstairs such tables, chairs and beds as she could spare. This apartment rents for $75 a month and she says she could rent three of them.

Now she has taken three back rooms on the second floor—yes, the boys' rooms, both her boys are in the service. But she won't let herself worry or grieve; she says she never thought life was easy, and that she thanks God for all the years she had her sons. She is turning these three rooms into a sitting room, bedroom and kitchen, and they are so pleasant, clean and roomy that even while the papers are in there the suite is rented for a two-year term.

This woman is strong, confident, capable, is ready for anything. Are you? Does your husband come home to an atmosphere of peace, courage, helpful planning? Is his mind at ease about what would happen if he became incapacitated?

Old Way Gone Forever.

That old way is gone forever. But I believe in my heart that new light is shining behind the blackness of these clouds, and that in God's good time it will break through. I think we know more of the suffering of the world than we once did, and that we never again willingly tolerate the crowding, the cold, the hunger and poverty that the world has so long taken for granted.

We may live more simply, but it will be more happily, too. If we can feel that the old day of contented luxuries and miseries is over, and men have learned that the real riches of life lies in sharing.

MICHELE MORGAN, the French actress who will make her American film debut in RKO's "Joan of Paris," will take to the South Seas in her second picture. That is, she will unless some new twist of world affairs makes the South Seas undesirable as a background for a picture. Nowadays, so many changes have had to be made in a hurry in so many scripts that motion picture executives are prepared for anything. Anyway, Miss Morgan is slated to do "Challenge to the Night"—a South Seas romance.

Madeline Carroll has had to do a bit of plan-changing herself. She was determined to go back to England, you know; had got a year's leave of absence and was set to go home and entertain troops or do anything else that would be useful. As soon as "My Favorite Blonde" was finished she'd be on her way. But our entrance into the war has changed all that; she'll stay here, and probably play a lead role in "Her Perfect Mate."

Metro's writers seem to be turning Robert Taylor into a tough guy, making him discard his gentlemanly ways for two guns and a swagger. He was a vicious killer in "Billy the Kid," and in "Johnny Eager" he emerges again as a cruel gangland leader. Even slugs Lana Turner!

"Dumbo," Walt Disney's latest feature, has been voted one of the ten best pictures of the year in a nationwide poll of junior film critics, conducted by the National Board of Review. "The Little Foxes" and "Citizen Kane" were also included.

Paramount's going to make "Wake Island" an all-star picture; it is being written by W. R. Burnett, author of "Little Caesar" and "High Sierra," and was suggested, of course, by the gallant fight put up by the marines on the tiny Pacific outpost.

Dorothy Lamour has 30 new spring hats! She won them—the California Millinery guild voted her America's Best Hatted Girl, and donated the bonnets as a reward. Maybe they just wanted to make sure that she wouldn't join the hatless brigade, that's giving the nation's milliners so much to worry about.

Come woe, come woe, Edward Small goes right on filming those swashbuckling tales of Dumas. The latest, "The Corsican Brothers," with Douglas Fairbanks Jr. playing both of them, was given its first showing at Washington, D. C., with practically everybody of importance on the invitation list.

Elizabeth Wayne, the Mutual chain's young American representative in Batavia, Dutch East Indies, is the envy of many veteran newsmen and broadcasters. After being out the only seven months, she suddenly found herself in a most important spot. She's a free lance journalist, and was writing for local Batavian newspapers when the Dutch radio chain, Niram, asked her to broadcast to America. Since then she has been heard regularly over Mutual.

From now on you're likely to hear any of 14 dialects in any language, spoken by anyone from 18 to 80, on the "Joyce Jordan-Girl" radio series. The reason is the fact that Luis Van Stooten has joined the cast. He's been signed to play a straight role, but how in the world can a script writer resist making use of his amazing talents as an imitator?

ODDS AND ENDS—Pat O'Brien and Brian Donlevy are teamed in Columbia's "Trinidad," with Janet Blair making her screen singing debut—she was the vocalist with the late Hal Kemp's dance band. A film trade paper reports that Gene Autry has risen to second place in national film popularity. "Tarzan's Secret Treasure" will soon be released, and "Tarzan Against the World" has gone into production. Lew Ayres has given up that idea of making a picture in China; naturally, he'll make "Fingers at the Window" next, forsaking Dr. Kildare's stethoscope.

HITLER AND THE DOCTOR

"I'm feeling very funny,"
Said Adolf in disgust;
"You'd better fetch a doctor—
And get one I can trust!"

A doctor came running,
And cried, "You sick! Ah, me!
This news is most amazing—
I thought YOU couldn't be!"

"No small talk," barked Der Fuehrer,
"Just get to work, and quick!
I'm just as dazed as you are
To find I CAN be sick!"

"What seems to be the matter?"
The doctor did inquire;
"You're asking me!" snapped
Adolf—
"That's what you're summoned for!"

"Stick out your tongue," the doctor
Requested (and we quote);
Der Fuehrer sadly did so . . .
And, boy, was that a COAT!

It plainly showed a fever,
And stomach all upset;
"It was that Russian dressing,
And other things he 'ot,"

It showed grave indigestion,
And bile disturbance, too;
It showed amazing symptoms
Of ailments far from few.

It showed clear indications
Of major ailments
Of atrocious ambitions
And chronic treachery.

It showed some bladder trouble—
(No blight could that tongue hide);
"You're spleen's bad," said the doctor,
"Your trouble's deep inside!"

"Your arches they are falling,
Your kidneys aren't good . . .
I don't think you've been doing
Exactly as you should!"

Der Fuehrer's eyes were bulging—
His nerves seem torn apart,
And now the doctor whispered,
"I'll listen to your heart."

He listened and he listened,
He listened everywhere,
He listened most intently—
But heard no ticking there!

The doctor said: "Your heart, sir . . .
I hear no beat, alas!"
And Adolf answered, sneering,
"I have no heart, you ass!"

The doctor was befuddled,
He took another look
At Adolf's tongue deep coated
And wrote this for the book:

"His uniform this patient
Once said he'd never doff,
But one thing I can tell him—
THAT COAT HE MUST TAKE OFF!"

The Russians captured a carload of iron crosses marked "For presentation after the capture of Mos-

Nazis would now like to mark the

Russia's Attitude Toward Japan Has Strong Influence on War's Trend . . . Navy
Long Expected to Fight
Japs.
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—If there were a united high command over the forces of the democracy right now there is little doubt what would be the first step. Russian bombers would be rushed to attack Japan, where they would seek out her oil stores—all above ground since the 1923 earthquake—her munition plants, her harbors and, later on, her warships, transports, supply ships and tankers.

This would be done because Russia has enough air power in eastern Siberia, in the opinion of military experts here, to crush Japan. This would stop the Nipponese in their tracks not only in Malaya, the Philippines and the Netherlands Indies, but also in China.

The Russians still have that great air force in the Far East for the simple reason that, badly as they have needed it, especially in the early stages of the German invasion of European Russia, the Soviet did not trust Japan. They feared an attack in the back despite their fairly recent treaty of amity with the little brown brothers, for the little brown brothers have no more regard for the sanctity of treaties than Adolf Hitler has.

No one, of course, knew just where Japan was going to strike. For Japan is known, and has been known for years, to aspire to domination of Asia, all the way to Suez, and of all the Pacific islands, including Australia. In fact the Japanese have rather flouted their aspirations. They have not concealed their desire to take over control of territory which now is vested in the Soviet, China, Britain, France, the United States, Holland, and various independent or partially independent states.

Moreover, despite Japan's all-out attack on the British and the United States forces and holdings in the Far East, she did not withdraw her large armies from the Siberian border. On the contrary she kept them poised there, ready for an instant blow the moment Russia was so hard pressed in the West that she would be compelled to weaken her forces in the Far East.

Russia and Britain Play Same Game
Russia, however, played the game which the British played in September, 1940, and thereby probably prevented a complete German victory at that time. Britain took it in bombing, but never risked ALL of her air force at one time. So Germany never achieved the complete knockout of the British air force, which would have made the island of Britain another Flanders.

Russia similarly took the pounding in the West, which seemed to the world to be threatening Leningrad, Moscow and Sevastopol, but never risked eastern Siberia! When the hour arrived for the Japanese attack, the Japs thought Hitler had won complete victory in European Russia. They had been told that Moscow would fall in a few days. That is what the rest of the world expected up to a short time before the news of the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, the Philippines, and Hong Kong. It is what everyone, including the Japanese, thought when the attacking forces left Japan.

Two Wins Added By School Five

Accounting for 15 of Regional's 38 points, Johnny Wanca was again star of the game Wednesday afternoon in the contest between the Bulldogs and Somerville. The game was outstanding for smart ball handling and accurate shooting by Regional, who unleashed a final period attack that changed a closely fought battle into a rout, ending at 38-25.

The first quarter finished with a 9-4 tie, but at the half, Regional surged ahead to lead the visitors 18 to 12.

Somerville rallied in the third frame to sink eight points to Regional's six, but victory was assured the Bulldogs in the last quarter when Coach Brown's boys hit their stride to score fourteen points. Ray Schramm and Mike Loh stole the spotlight from Wanca in the fourth frame by pacing the team to victory.

Against Cranford on Friday evening, Regional broke a string of two straight defeats by a victory of 25-9. Although not in championship form, the Bulldogs took the lead at the start of the game and held it to the end.

Regional players found it difficult to hit the basket from the field, but took advantage of Cranford's rough playing and made good 13 foul shots. The game was the poorest ever played by the Cranford squad.

Attack Fatal To Passing Driver

Russell T. Ervin, 65, of 164 South Harrison street, East Orange, was fatally stricken with a heart attack Sunday night while driving along South Springfield avenue with members of his family. He died after he was taken to the home of Paul Prince, 8 South Springfield avenue. He had been returning from a visit to his son, Howard Ervin of 771 Carleton road, Westfield, where he had had supper, when he became ill. He was taken to the Prince home and residents there summoned the police. Patrolman Otto Stent called a local physician and sent for the township ambulance.

The physician treated Mr. Ervin for a heart ailment, but he died a few minutes later. Death was attributed to a heart ailment. The body was taken to East Orange.

A capacity group is expected, for the recent defeat by Plainfield is sure to find the Hillside anxious to rebound to the win column, at the Brownmen's expense.

Schools To Play Part In Defense

WASHINGTON, D. C.—America's 25,000,000 school children will be given an unprecedented opportunity to play a vital part in the defeat of Axis aggression through the Defense Savings Program, under plans announced by the Treasury Department.

The school program of the Defense Savings Staff will place particular emphasis upon the educational efforts through the operation of Defense Savings Stamp Booths by school children, the formation of student "information squads" to explain the aims of national defense, and through the cooperation of Parent-Teachers Association, this program will enable parents, teachers and children to translate materials of the school room into tangible activity in behalf of a great cause.

A detailed outline setting forth various ways by which children can co-operate is contained in new bulletin, "Sharing America," now being distributed to all educational institutions. Prepared by the Treasury Department in consultation with the United States Office of Education, the bulletin already is receiving enthusiastic comment from educators.

The basic theme of the educational program is to teach children why they are being asked to buy Defense Savings Stamps through incorporating Defense Savings philosophy into classroom instruction. "The bulletin, 'Sharing America,' is intended to help teachers and others to introduce the subject in a truly educational manner."

"Sharing America," said D. John W. Studebaker, U. S. Commissioner of Education, "is certain to find favor with school officials and teachers who are eager to do everything they can to help America win the war. The program as outlined in this publication, is educationally sound and offers to every child in the United States an opportunity to participate in an important way in the defense of his country."

Featured At New

Spencer Tracy, Ingrid Bergman (above) and Lana Turner have the title roles in "Hold Back the Dawn" which heads the three day program opening Sunday at the New Theatre, Elizabeth. The companion film will be "Tanks A Million," featuring William Tracy and James Gleason.

"You'll Never Get Rich" starring Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth, tops the bill for tomorrow and Saturday. In addition there will be "Men of the Timberland," with Richard Arlen and Andy Devine, plus March of Time.

The request program next Wednesday and Thursday will consist of James Stewart and Robert Young in "The Mortal Storm," and Ray Milland and Loretta Young in "The Doctor Takes A Wife."

Hold Back Dawn Tops Regent Bill

Handsome Charles Boyer, teamed with Ingrid Bergman and Lana Turner, has the most exciting romantic role of his colorful career in "Hold Back the Dawn," the Paramount picture now at the Elizabeth Regent Theatre.

Produced by Arthur Hornblow Jr. and directed by Mitchell Leisen, the men who gave us "I Wanted Wings," this new excursion into high romance tells the story of an unmitigated scoundrel, a love high-binder from the once bright spots of Europe, who tries to crash U. S. immigration barriers by marrying an unsuspecting American girl. How this cynical, unscrupulous man-of-the-world gets caught in his own trap is the story of "Hold Back the Dawn."

A grand action comedy about gangsters who reform and turn into small town big shots after settling said hamlet on its sleepy ears is on the same bill. The picture is Paramount's "Buy Me That Town" and it's as good an antidote for the blues as anything seen around these parts in many a month.

Lloyd Nolan, no stranger to smooth tangle roles, and blue-eyed Constance Moore who scored in "I Wanted Wings," carry the love interest in this xany tale of mad mobsters who find a new racket in a tiny Connecticut town and end up in leading his respected leading citizens.

Albert Dekker, Ed Brophy, Warren Hymer and Horace MacMahon, respectively Louise, Ziggy, Crusher and Fingers, are four hard-bolled yeggs who never let the picture lag for a second. Sheldon Leonard, as the villain of the piece, Chink Moran, excels himself and does an even better job than he did in "Tall, Dark and Handsome."

FEDERAL INCOME Tax Information

NO. 3

The Revenue Act of 1941 provides a simplified method of computing income tax in the case of individuals whose gross income is derived wholly from salary, wages or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, and does not exceed $3,000. A new Form 1040A has been provided for taxpayers who are entitled to and elect to use such method. A table on the reverse side of this Form shows the amount of tax on increasing amounts of gross income after the proper allowance of $400 for each dependent, if any.

The tax under the simplified method is the same for each $25.00 block of gross income and the taxpayer need only ascertain which block his gross income (less allowance for dependents) falls to determine his tax. A flat reduction of 10 per cent has been made in arriving at the amount of tax shown in the table for deductions such as charitable contributions and taxes paid, so that the taxpayer who uses this method does not list these but gets an automatic deduction of 10 per cent.

Under the simplified method the status of a person on the last day of the taxable year is the governing factor in determining the exemption level ($750 for single persons and married persons not living with husband or wife, and $1,000 for married persons living together) as well as the credit for dependents.

A husband and wife living together on the last day of the taxable year may file separate returns on Form 1040A if the gross income of each is from the prescribed sources and does not exceed $3,000. The use of the simplified method is optional with the taxpayer but once an election has been made for any year, it is irrevocable for that year. If a taxpayer files a return under the simplified method for the taxable year he may not thereafter file a return under the general provisions of the law for that year. Conversely, if he files a return under the general provisions for any taxable year, he may not thereafter file a return under the simplified method for that year. However, a new election is allowed for each succeeding taxable year.
