

POST-WAR SPRINGFIELD

This seems to be a good time to talk about post-war Springfield. Frankly, we have no plan to offer at the moment—but it is that very fact which makes us think the subject ought to be brought up for discussion.

Perhaps what we mean is not exactly a post-war plan but simply a "plan for the future" which, at this particular moment is also a post-war plan.

It seems to us that a plan for the future must begin by establishing certain basic convictions to which a large part of the population can agree.

Without trying to write a program, but simply to illustrate, here are some that occur to us:

(1) Springfield is a residential community and should remain so. (2) Springfield should appeal to a high type of specialized industry which is clean, neat, orderly and desirable and it should continue to do so.

(3) Springfield is a commuting community but it may be able to move more and more to bring to it desirable kinds of industries which can employ more and more of its people locally.

(4) Springfield is ideally located as a fine shopping area and should capitalize this natural advantage to the full.

(5) Springfield must probably expect an increasing number of small homes and should have a plan to encourage the development of attractive small homes and to discourage unsightly small homes.

(6) Springfield should begin to think now how it can best make the transition from war to peace—with special reference to what can be done to absorb or assist men mustered out of the armed services.

We could probably think of a lot more fundamental convictions and perhaps many more significant ones, but these will serve to suggest the kind of conclusions which, it seems to us, must first be arrived at.

Until we know, as a community, in what direction we want to go, specific plans for getting there are meaningless. The perfect plan for going north is valueless if you want to go south.

A community plan, moreover, must be known to the people generally and approved by them in principle. Community planning is not a job which can be done by some small group and then handed to the community.

That's why if we had a plan we wouldn't want to offer it now. We've all got to decide first what we want before we try to decide how to get it.

We would certainly like to hear some discussion of this subject. If anyone has views to express we shall be more than glad to publish them. If enough of you have suggestions to justify our doing so we will start a special department of The Springfield Sun devoted exclusively to your letters and comments on post-war objectives (for Springfield of course, not for the world at large) and on post-war programs.

Write to us now or later, briefly or at length (within reason), fully or on specific items. The floor is yours.

By the way, we would be especially interested to hear from men in service.

School Board Orders Special Election To Approve Conversion

The Springfield Board of Education Tuesday night decided on a special election to be held Monday, July 19, on asking voters to approve expenditure of $2,500 to convert the Raymond Chisholm School from oil to coal heat and $700 for additional janitorial service.

In a resolution passed by the school board, it was pointed out that "Whereas, the war emergency caused drastic restrictions to be placed on the use of fuel oil, and the OPA has denied petition of the Board of Education for an adequate supply of fuel oil for the 1943-44 season, and every effort has been made by appeal, and otherwise, to avoid the necessity of converting the fuel oil burner in the Raymond Chisholm School to a solid fuel burner, and since no funds are available to defray the cost of said conversion," the said election be ordered.

Coal Dealers Asked To Curtail Delivery

Coal dealers in this area have been requested to deliver to their customers no more than two-thirds of their winter's supply at one time, local members of the Fuel Merchants Association of New Jersey have been informed.

Accidents Unchanged Although Lights Cut

The cutting down of the number of traffic lights in use in Springfield has had little effect on the amount of accidents, according to Chief M. C. Runyon. Alaskan Sends Praise On Decernment Posting

Even in Alaska, it seems, there are "draft dodgers" who seek to hide behind unessential industries to avoid being called. In a letter recently received by the Springfield and Union Draft Board No. 2, Daniel Highwater, 52-year-old worker in an Alaskan construction company, praises the list published by the local draft board in April of "those deferred and why."

Give your baby his rightful place in the world as a little citizen. See to it that his birth is registered. Take no chances with his eyesight. Follow the doctor's directions. Follow by law in most states, provide the baby's eyes at birth with a suitable prophylactic to prevent infection and eye blindness.

Mother's milk, unless unusual conditions cause the doctor to advise against it, is the very best food for babies. The mother who is well-balanced emotionally and who accepts her maternal responsibilities cheerfully is much more apt to be able to nurse her baby than the one who worries over everything. It is important that nursing time be one of relaxation for both mother and child. If bottle feeding is necessary, the conditions should resemble those of breast feeding as far as possible. Include the proper ingredients, be sure they are kept sterile, feed slowly with food at the right temperature.

For the baby as for the adult, water is needed daily as an aid to elimination and in regulating body temperature.

By far the greater part of the baby's time is spent in bed. Provide a firm and even mattress, light but warm covering. When a crib is used, choose one with bars close together so the baby cannot see his head caught. After the first few weeks, he needs an opportunity to kick and stretch freely every day.

Sunshine aids in calcification of bones and teeth. Overexposure of sun, however, are harmful. So practice caution. Start with a three-minute exposure of both front and back, working up to fifteen minutes daily. Protect the baby's eyes from direct glare.

Surplus Cabbages May Be Used To Make Sauerkraut

It often happens that several heads of cabbage or celery cabbage become firm at the same time. When there is too much cabbage to use immediately, it can be made into sauerkraut. Kraut made from early cabbages must be used soon after preparation, whereas kraut from late cabbages keeps well for longer periods of time. Heads of cabbage to be used for kraut should be firm and entirely mature. While you are in the garden, remove all the outer leaves that are dirty or marred. Quarter the heads and remove the cores. Now shred the cabbage finely. As soon as you have five pounds (about five plants) shredded, mix it with two ounces (2-1/2 tablespoons) of cooking or dairy salt. For every additional five pounds of cabbage add the same proportion of salt. Mix the salt and cabbage with your hands. After all the shredded cabbage and salt are thoroughly mixed, the whole thing must be fermented for at least two weeks. Fermentation can take place either in a crock or in clean glass jars. Jars which have glass tops are preferred to other types. In either container, the kraut should be packed down firmly. If you pack it into jars, leave them partly sealed. If you have put it in a crock, cover the kraut with a cloth and plate and put a weight on top. Store the sauerkraut where the temperature will be about 55 degrees Fahrenheit. Each day upon the jars or the crock and remove the scum that has accumulated. The kraut may be left in the crock through the winter if you have a cool place to keep it. When there is no cool place to store the sauerkraut, it may be packed into sterile jars, with just enough brine added for the liquid to reach up to within one-half inch of the top of the jar. If there isn't enough brine in the crock for all jars, prepare a weakling — using two tablespoons of salt to one quart of water. Kraut made in jars may remain in these jars, but it may be necessary to add more brine. Partly seal the jars and process them in a hot water bath 30 minutes for quart jars and 25 minutes for pints. The hot water should cover the jars, and remember that the time is counted from the time the water boils again after adding them. Seal the jars at the end of

IT'S 200 PER CENT OVER THE FIGURES LAST YEAR

There's a reason why the SUN has the largest gain in the number of readers in Mountainside, far in excess of any other weekly or daily newspaper in the borough.

More and more, Mountainside readers know they can rely upon the SUN each week for ALL their local news and pictures aplenty of people they know.

If you are not getting the SUN regularly, you're missing what so many others have already learned is the best value for Mountainside readers.

McMane Is Candidate To Succeed Self

Current needs should be met from current revenues, three Republicans members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders declared today in announcing that they will seek another term. That dictum is to be the platform of William I. McMane, Summit, now director of the board; Clifford R. Gehring, Rahway, and Colonel J. H. Dudley, Elizabeth. Their names will be bracketed on the voting machines for the primary election, September 21. "During our service as members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders," said McMane, speaking for the candidates, "we have supported consistently every move to lower the county's bonded indebtedness and at all times we have opposed proposals for bond issuance to finance current needs, which, we believe, should be met from current revenues. "As a result of this record, which we have found to be in accord with the wishes of the majority of the voters as a practical and effective means of curtailing property taxes, and in view of the knowledge of county governmental activities we have gained as members of the board, we are seeking reappointment at the coming primary election."

FREEHOLDER HEAD

SEEKS RE-ELECTION William I. McMane, of Summit, director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, announced today he is a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself.

Lesson-Sermon

"Sacrament" is the Lesson-Sermon subject for Sunday, July 11, in all Christian Science Churches and Societies throughout the world. The Golden Text is: "We being many are one bread, and one body; for we are all partakers of that one bread." (1 Cor. 10:17). Among the Lesson-Sermon citations is the following from the Bible: "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, 'Take, eat; this is my body.'" (Matt. 26:26). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread." (p. 32) "Their bread indeed came down from heaven. It was the 'bread' of truth of spiritual living, healing the sick and casting out error." (p. 35).

Did you write this week to someone in the service? It builds up morale—especially if the news is good news.

Home Made Pickles Give Zest To Meals

Many people are fond of good homemade pickles. "The mother used to make." Probably she has given you the recipes for some of them, for each family seems to have certain kinds which are definitely its favorites. To make good pickles it is essential to use good vinegar. It should be high grade cider vinegar or pure grain vinegar of 10-40 to per cent strength (four to six per cent acetic acid). If you want full flavor from the spices you use, buy them fresh every year. Save sugar from your weekly ration if you wish to make pickles; caustic sugar is not for this purpose. Glass top jars are desirable for pickles containing a lot of vinegar or strong salt solution. If metal jars cover are used, the jar should be thoroughly washed and dried. Incidentally, good jar rimmer that still have a lot of elasticity in their joints may be reused on pickles. Sometimes knowing what possible failures can be made will help you to avoid a similar experience. Tough, shrivelled pickles are rather unpalatable. Water with an excess of mineral should be avoided. The annual meeting of the shareholders of Hallmark Greeting Cards and Stationery Co. will be held Monday at 7:30 at 257 Morris Avenue. The shareholders will elect their officers and directors for the coming year at this time. TRY A SUN CLASSIFIED AD.

OURS IS THE GARDEN STATE!

THIS YEAR it is flourishing with victory gardens. As the vegetables and bush fruits ripen, they'll be canned and stored. You'll be as proud of your well-stocked pantry shelves as you were of the first sprouts in your garden.

There are heavy drains on the country's food supply. So much of it must be shipped abroad. The government has asked us to meet this emergency by doing as much home canning as possible. Knowing how readily New Jersey homemakers would respond to this request, we have prepared a booklet on canning. It gives complete directions. You'll find canning easy with your gas range. Ask for a copy of 'Can It'. There is no charge.

You may obtain any of these publications listed below from your County Extension: "Canning Vegetables and Fruits," Marie Doermann; "Preservation of Food Products by Freezing," J. Harold Clark; "Salting and Brining," Marie Doermann; "Home Storage of Fresh Fruits and Vegetables," C. H. Nisley; "Food Preservation by Drying," W. C. Krueger.
