FRIENDS!!

We've been accused of stringing the public along in connection with the proposed new Morris avenue garden apartment . . . that isn't exactly so . . . as a matter of truth, your columnist has been dangling at the end of a rope on the proposition for some time, too . ". with final commitments every day for the past month, and hasn't done so because the agency is said to construction organization is slated moment's delay ... that's the story as it now stands and there still one's veracity.

While we're talking about building programs we recall mentioning an item a few columns back about a huge development under consideration for Route-29, near the Union line plans are progressing on that one, too, and FHA is also in the picture so we're liable to have one delay after the other, but the plans ultimately will become a reality . . . it's a $3,000,-000 proposal involving 67 acres of land and calling for the erection of about 200 homes ... several acres are to be donated to the town for playground and school purposes.

From the appearance of the long lines at the local motor vehicle agency all week it might be well to suggest that ear owners not. vait until the last minute to obtain '49 license platce . . . no car registration can be renewed unless the vehicle bears the second period, 1948 inspection sticker . . the deadline is next Thursday!

"Now that official approval has been granted Battle Hill Post, VEW, in connection with land for its proposed new headquarters, plans-have-been-launched to start construction . . . the -vets-are-bubbling-fover-with-enmodel home, one that everyone in town will look noon with pride . . but in order to do the job they'll need lots of help, financial and othorwise . . . volunteer labor, building materials and cash will do the trick!

That Township Attorney Bot Darby does a lot of kidding around at town meetings goes without saying, but he's certainly on his toes when it comes to serious business . . . he proved he couldn't be buffaloed that other night when representatives of a development company sought to blame the town for flooding their lands and allegedly rendering them useless.

Audience reaction to the new sound system in the town hall has been splendid, but something's screwy somewhere now it's difficult for committee members to hear one another!

There are just about 20 game left in the current municipal bowling league tournament and from all indications Springfield Market bowlers have every prize in the bag . . . at the moment, Market bowlers hold first place high for team game, first place high for 3game series, first place in the league, first place high for single game and second, third and fourth places for individual scoring . . there's nothin' left.

A LETTER TO NEW JERSEY PROPERTY OWNERS

Although most New Jersey municipalities have now set their tax rates for 1949, the alert taxpayer knows that only a part of

Your property taxes are determined by multiplying your property assessment by your tax rate. Your rate is generally figured at and is ready to support improved so much per $100 assessed valu-flexible as tax rates. Each year the rate can go up or down, or remain the same. Every property owner is affected. But assessments are different. Chances are that if your own assessment has been too high or too low it will probably remain so this year. If it has been too low, you're getting-the "break." If it's too high, you're paying part of the other fellow's share of the cost of government.

Some municipalities have attempted to correct such inequaliproblem have often failed. The fact is that property assessments generally are inequitable. In New Jersey our citizens often complain about their local assessing but without realizing that taxpayers in this year's property tax story has all parts of the State are suffering from similar conditions,

Real improvement will come only when the public understands more about the assessing problem assessing.

To obtain this, your assessor will need better tools with which to work. First he'll need an adequate assessment records system. He will also need assessment maps, which many municipalities don't have And lastly he'll need a set of standards of land and building values which he can use in placing the value on individual hold-

Only then will your municipality be in position to assess systematically, and, we might add, fairly. Yours for better assessing,

The setup of the board then would be three Re publicans and two Independents Under these circumstances Albert G. Binder is seen as the key man. He could cast his vote at the organization session for the reciection of Robert W. Marshall as chairman or could throw his support to Kuvin, who undoubtedly would have the backing of Sheehan. In that situation Marshall and Brown, close political allies, would find themselves in the mi nority with the Independents, together with Binder, forming a fac-tion which would organize the committee and dictate patronage

Funeral Services For War Victim

MOUNTAINSIDE-A high mage of requiem was sung Saturday at St. James Church, Springfield, for Cpl. Charles A. Dunn, former police recorder and husband of Mrs. Jessica Manning Dunn of Deer Path, who was killed June 9, 1945, on Okinawa. His body was returned from the Pacific last week. military service was conducted Friday night at the Leonard Funeral Home, Elizabeth, by Blue Star

Post 886, American Legion. Corporal Dunn, 38 years old, served with the Sixth Marine Diision. He was the first borough official to enter military service in the recent war. A native of Elizabeth, he was a graduate of St. loseph's School, Roselle, and of St. Benedict's Preparatory School, Newark, where he played football, acketball and baseball.

A resident of this borough for ll years, Corporel Dunn built the gasoline service station which he operated at Route 29 and New Providence road. He was serving his third year as police recorder when he entered service. He also was a justice of the peace and a deputy air raid warden. He had formerly been a member of the board of directors of the Taxpayers' Association and was a member of the American Business Club, Elizabeth; the Echq Lake Country Club, Westfield, and the Kappa Club. Elizabeth. He was a communicant of St. James Church.

In addition to his wife he is survived by a daughter, Jeselca Ann, a son, Charles A. Jr., his mother. Mrs. Anna C. Dunn, of Elizabeth and a brother, Joseph C. Dunn of Maplewood. Interment was in St. Gertrude's Cemetery, Woodbridge.

DRIVE CAREFULLY!

• Telephone service can't wait for the weather to be "nice!" In rain, sleet or snow, telephone men must be on the roads installing new telephones, putting new equipment into operation, and, in general, making sure that the telephone system is always ready to give you good service.

• It takes a lot of driving—at all hours of the day or night. But, we're glad to say, it's careful driving. Last year, for example, only one accident occurred for each 86,500 miles of travel. And by accident, we mean even a scratched fender-if it could have been avoided!

Selling Season Vigorous Spring Selilng Season

The arrival of the first spring fashions in the stores of the country finds retailers generally optimistic, expecting a vigorous pre-Easter selling season, according to a symposium compiled by the New York Dress Institute and released today. Most authorities, however, seem alert to a new necessity for merchandising and promoting fashion in direct competition with other well-organized bidding for the consumer dollar.

Joseph P. Kasper, president of the Associated Merchandising_Corporation, representing a group of 33 big department stores, foresces no lack of business in the first par of the year. He said:

"We in the Associated Merchandising group arecontimistic about the prospects for spring fashior business, with the rull realization that fashlon and its allied industries will have to work for their fair share of the consumer dollar. Insofar as the national economy is concerned, there is nothing that does not point to continued good business. Manufacturers are beginning to do their part by offering much better quality_at better values. They also seem conscious of the need of meeting the customer demand for lower prices wherever possible.

More Competition "Both retailer and manufacturer must be clearly aware that business will not go in the same old pattern of the war years, but will be increasingly competitive. Such other fields of production as home furnishings, the automobile industry and the entertainment industries will step up their promotion plans encemously and go all out in the attempt to get the consumer dollar, The fashion business must meet this competition with new ideas, effective promotion and merchandising techniques."

Arthur C. Kaulmann, executive head of Gimbel Brothers, Philadel phia, cites the cotton dress industry's efforts to give the customer more for her money:

"The fashion business for spring, in my opinion, will be good-very good, indeed, if manufacturers and retallers both face up to the reality that the customer today is in the driver's seat. Fortunately for all of us, we know what her denands are, which, in my opinion, can be amply met by resourcefulness and ingenuity of the designers, manufacturers and retailers of American fashions. The customer is-asking for smarter fashions, better workmanship, more accurate sizing at lower prices. Can it be done? Of course. As an example, I would like to call attention tothe excellent start-made by the and small stores, 130 in all, believes cotton dress industry. Cotton fashlons are smarter this year than they have been in years, in greater variety, better workmanship and at far lower prices—with the resuit that cotton fashion business has been good-very good. It-thislesson is properly learned, every phase of the fashion business will be equally good this spring."

Also stressing the demand for quality at a price, T. J. Carroll, vice-president and general manager of Frederick Atkins, resident buying office, representing 35 stores, said:

"We are cautiously optimistic about business for spring. We think that it will be good if you go after it and plan it properly in keeping with the price demands ness for the first six months. It is estimated that fifteen and one-half billion dollars will be spent for clothing and accessories this spring, nearly 10 per cent more than was spent in spring 1948. On the question of price, statistics show that the demand for better dresses, coats and sults, which has steadily increased in the past 10 years, will go on increasing this spring. An approximate increase of eight and one-half million more families in the middle and high income bracket in the last 10 years accounts for the fact that sales in better dresses have gone up 49 per cent-in-volume, and 72 per cent in unit sales since 1941;

Almost all collections of cottons show at least one iridescent number, which a salesman hastens to explain is not the top promotional number, but merely s novelty in the line.

Actually, buyers feel the manufacturers are showing at least one irldescent because they still believe that somehow they would miss out on some business if they didn't have what the next fellow

However, the football playing with iridescents has actually ruined it for the full popularity it might have attained. As things stand at present, iridescents will be novelty items which will sell to a certain portion of the population, but they'll never become a real "fad" or "rage."-(R. T. W. Scout) she began designing. This year she draws not only on the seven seas but the ships that sail on them. Her Resort and Spring collection is full of such nautical notions as sailcloth trousers and skirts grommeted for "reefing in," and international signal code swimsuits carrying messages in colored

English officers' shorts, trunks with drawstring sides, powder puff swimsuits, (traveling sundresses with long coats, choli patio dresses, wonderful prints done by a new process of stone engraving, fresh reatment of terry cloth and tickings and denims, all bring high news value to this designer's show

Her beach and play clothes of sailcloth, duck, faded blue denim, striped ticking and terry cloth have the painstaking detail that is at once authentic and purposeful. For example, the white sallcloth sailing skirt that is bias cut In the best master crasteman tradition; with grommets about the hem and tie patches above knee height all around for reefings Trimly tailored English cofficer's tropical shorts in shantung weaves with four buttoned pockets at the back of the hips are to landlubbers what the snug-fitting duck trousers are to the seafaring.

If you thought there couldn't possibly be any new approach to terry cloth, consider the "little dryoff sult," a cute trick of a romper, ong sleeved, sleehed down the front and wrapped close to the body by means of a sash—meant to be put on after a swim by those who don't like to sit on the beach in a wet bathing suit. New, too, is the terry cloth striped in bright colors that makes the sleeves or the sash of a white beach coat.

Flag signals following the international code are inspiration for a series of swimsults carrying widely spaced patterns, geometric such gay messages as "Require a blue and white) or "Send me e line" (yellow, royal blue and white). Conveying their own pretty messages are the ruffly little powder puff suits which take their name from a fluff of ruffles set on the edge of the pants. Sometlmes these are topped by short bell skirts that show the ruffles underneath. A practical note is sounded in all nylon taffeta sults that dry before you can count ten,

For these ensembles she uses a cotton of linen-like homespun weave which defles all crushing and creasing. Solid color dresses have plaid costs and viceversa, and just think how they'll simplify life when you can board a plane correctly attired for travel and step off it all ready for fun and sun when you toss off the

An interesting new process of stone engraving aids and abets this designer's love of unusual and subtle colorings. Like a lithograph, the pattern is etched with acid on granite blocks, printed and over-printed with gold leaf. A steam operation enters the procedure somewhere so that the colors are fast forever. This process Miss Leser uses on silks, linens, cottons, colunese taffetas-practically any fabric-in her favored colors of paprika red with cerise, parrot blue with peacock green and violet, oriental gold with sapphire.

Summer Cottons Present Unusual Weaves, Prints

That summer will be sheer delight, no matter how high the thermometer rises, is the promise coming from the new collections of warm-weather clothes now being made in the nation's fashion centers. Not for many a season have there been such crisp, starch-Swish Sheer cottons, soft dainty volles, filmy tissue cottons and aircooled weaves in butcher linens. _Eabric is the news behind the news in style chronicles this year. Not only are there new weaves. new textures and finishes, newold favorites of yesteryear such as mull and dimity, but also patterns in prints and woven-in designs reach a level of perfection never before attained. There's -a 'popcorn' cotton in attractively bumpy blistered weave, a spatter dot cotton taffeta with shiny black raised dots that look like patent leather put on by a special process (washable, too), a leathergrained cotton, and woven damask cottons in lush colors.

A print_these days signifies great deal more than flowers of geometrical figures. Typical of the distinguished patterns on pecker print inspired by an old English design which features, as you might guess, a port little brown_woodpecker on a branch. Ponemah Swish Sheers are particularly important phase of the cotton story. The lovely tape stripe and crossbar-organdies-that in the past were to be had only from Switzerland now are coming from one of our country's great mills, and their scope takes in dark colors—navy, black, grey, toast and copper for sweltering days in town, as well as clouds of garden party white and frothy pastels. Some of the prettiest are printedand adapt the swirling embroidery of a Japanese eri to a floral print motif on white Swish Sheer.

The diaphanous crispness these cottons has inspired dress designers to some of the most ingenious tricks in making one dress play the part of many. One, for example, has a series of garden party frocks-of-multiple personality; the crisp white transparent cotton makes full-skirted, widesashed shepherdess dresses which come with sweet colored cotton taffeta slips with boned bodices. and you wear them together or separately-the white over the color, the slip alone as a sun or dance dress, or the white sheer over a white slip for occasions like graduation.

Navy is the favorite for town wear. One example is a youngafternoon dress of the navy tape stripe sheer with a corselet midriff and a big pussycat bow at the thront. Another adds an emerald green cotton taffeta slip beneath navy crossbar Swish Sheer for a shimmering iridescent effect. Lineary rayons in light, porous weaves that stay book and unruffled get priority in travel and vacation clothes—so easily packable, so hard to put creases in, so "well dressed looking" always -and now they're blossoming out in gay print designs as well as tweedy weaves and solid colors. Example of how a print can be bold and colorful and still well mannered is Brighton's red and blue sweet of color on white lightweight linen-weave rayon for a dress with a wide red cummerbund.

Juniors to Get Fullish Skirts

Long Hemlines For and against the New Look as others were, Juniors were eventually to adopt a trend for longer, fuller skirts that now remains dear to their hearts. And, knowing that Juniors know what they want, New York designers continue to give them fullish skirts, smalllooking waistlines, and even little onger hemlines than those in the headlines.

Otherwise, the answer this spring and summer to the question of what's sharply different about Junior clothes, as compared with Misses', is just two little words

Increase Noted In Home Sewing

Says Expert the increase ever since the war. Figures just compiled by the Extension Service of Rutgers University indicate that this increase was particularly large during the past year.

Figures from other sources such as pattern companies and place goods departments, bear out this statement, says Inez LaBossier, extension specialist in clothing at the State University.

In New Jersey, 17,000 families took part in the program in home sewing during 1948, according to Extension Service records. Persons who attended the various workshop meetings held over the state by the County Home Agents reported that they made anywhere from 4 to 30 additional garments as a result of the class instruction Approximately 80,000 garments were made at home.

Hundreds of young homemakers and business girls learned the art of garment construction and sewed for the first time. More experienced homemakers either learned more advanced steps or brushed up on their techniques.

Homemakers weren't the only ones to profit by these sewing programs. Over 4,000 articles of clothing were made by young 4-H

Since expenses for cost-of-living Items have remained high, homemakers have found it possible to adjust the family budget through stretching the clothing items by home construction. Many women sfeel that they get more in terms of quality from garments, which they make. Another objection to ready-made-clothes, besides the high price, is the poor sizing of garments, especially in children's

Whether or not this interest in home sewing will continue will depend upon market developments. When inexpensive and moderate merchandise of good quality fabric, accurate sizing and adequate workmanship is more easily obtainable, the trend many reverse itself, points out Miss LaBossier.

Paintings, Waves Spark Leading Fashion Designs –

One of the most fascinating in side stories of any fashion season is how the new trends come about. This season the story is apt to date back from behind the trends themselves to the creating of the fabrics themselves.

The other day, Wesley Simpson, the well-known fabric designer, was reminiscing about some of the incidents that "sparked" the fabrics which are now in the collections of leading designers for

Adrian, for instance, was making one of his many visits to New York and went to the Metropolitan Museum to see an exhibition of paintings by Constable, the English-landscape painter of the 18th century. One particular painting showed a number of cows grazing in the foreground. They so delighted Adrian, that he immediately called Mr. Simpson to see if it would be possible to do an amus ing print based on the Constable cows. By working the design out together, there eventually evolved the porky cow print that has ereated so much news in the Adrian

The fact that Wesley Simpson is also married to Adele Simpson, the prize-winning dress designer, may have something to do with the complete workability of his fabrics when related to dress designs. In the Simpson home an atmosphere of artistic happiness. prevails, and many of the ideas that evolve are often of joint creation. The two designers love to travel, more especially when they can be aboard their yacht, the Kraken. It was on one sailing trip, recalls Wesley Simpson, that he was inspired to create the mermaid print, now famous as the fabric-worn by the Maid of Cotton to win this year's contest, as well as a fabulous wardrobe, many of which designs were plotted on Simpson fabrics.

"We had just been on a weeklong trip aboard the Kraken and were just coming into port. I was standing by the rail, watching the waves gently lap the beach as we neared it and thinking how pleasant it was to escape our working world if only for a week. My mind soon began to dwell on the many fabrics I would have to design when I got back, and I suddenly wished I could be a happy little wave with nothing else to do but wash ashore. Well, being a fabric designer rather than a wet wave on a beach, the next thing I knew I was creating wave patterns on a drawing board. Perhaps it makes others think of vacation time and beaches and the sea . . . it has been one of our most successful prints to date."

Frillier Undies

Many manufacturers now realizing that the lingerle blouse creates a demand for an undergarment that is friller and more unusual than the average slip, have developed an attractive line of cambole tops with matching pettleoats.

Fashion Leaders Say What Will Be Seen This Spring

The girl who looks as though she had stepped right out of a picture this spring is likely to be wearing, say experts in the world of fashion , the draped and shirred shepherdess neckline, becomingly low, adhering, and also off-shoulder, and for the deeper and varied Venus neckline, framed with fold drapery, both of which appear in silk prints and after-five taffeta . . pannier-like shepherdess pleats and shepherdess apron fronts giving soft fullness to skirts; and shepherdess-tied sleeves knotted

The airflight bolero, a version of this season's flareback jacket that tops a slim skirt in many a collection, is teamed now with fairly. full-skirted one-piece dresses in matching wools. Several of the dresses are designed with widemoulded Empress waistline curving up under the bosom and defined with narrow braid. A charming cocktail costume combined a black taffeta airflight bolero with a swishing cap-sleeved dress with taffeta skirt and lace top in sugar pink, a featured color.

The full pinwheel skirt, stitchpleated all around and sometimes horizontally tucked all over in addition, keeps taking the eye, according to fashion experts. It is seen in conts as well as in dresses, the latter invariably designed with simple short-sleeved or camisolestrapped bodices, and frequently topped with jackets. The full skirt look le effected in many another, dressler dress with layers of material, as lace over net or starched batiste, dotted silk or tissue faille over margulaette, and chiffon over crepe. One after-five dress in black lace over black net is girdled with a gold taffeta Empress sash tied in a big side bow with open, crisply collared neckline.

The small woolen street suits, medium length or short peplum jackets, some shaped out slightly at the hipline, with either a narrow skirt or one cut with inverted front pleats, are being shown for

Black on its own and black and white are to the fore, particularly in different types of failte-alpaca faille, resistant to creasing, the one faille, and a new crisp faille seen notably in a black and white dotted afternoon suit with velvet-collared jacket. It is mostly in dotted silks and silk shantungs that color is introduced, and in a number of appealing prints, and then, usually, in a single shade with either black or white, The fern print is shown in beige and black, the network print in brown and white, and a small-dotted silk in red and black, this lost neatly handled in a dress and jacket costume with its edges piped in black. Dinner and evening dresses are definitely very young looking, even when decollete or very sophisticated. Among the former is a houssant dress in noic and changeable gray and blue tiffeta with order ribbon" drapery caught with pink roses below one shoulder and tied in pouf-loops at one side of the waistline.

Novelty Fabric Demand Is Seen On the Uptrend

The uptrend in demand for novtweeds, is noted in the latest issue of the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit & Skirt Manufacturers' market letter.

"There continues to be clearly defined indications of the consistent growth in the importance of 'fancles.' notably tweeds." states the current bulletin. "This has been plainly apparent this spring with those materials more prominent than they were a year ago. They promise to be much in evidence this fall for both coats and suits. #### 'Bare Look' Is Summer Fashion For Young Crowd

The bare look back and front is the fashion look for the young crowd. Sundresses without coverups are plentiful and most of these star the rounded camisole top and shoulder tle straps for the big and little sister group. The single bare shoulder sundress is also an eye-catching item. Flyaway boleros are still the favorite cover-ups but newsler than these are reversible capelets, triangular and scarf stoles and snug short jackets with button front or drawstring bottoms that tie tight under the bustline. In teen sizes, the baretop look is especially prevalent and many sundresses feature strapless boned bodice. Long scarf stoles give a dressed up feeling to these sun-

Bare backs are also back again and many young summer dresses are cut with deep V backs or 'surplice crossings in the back Sicevelessness also prevalis throughout the lines and even heers are styled with wide bertha collars that just dip over the shoulder.

The plunging neckline is not yet a strong fashion feature in ummer clothes and some manufacturers believe that the fashion catch on. The tie front, plunging neckline shirt has strong appeal in a separate shirt or in tie front shirts that are parts of blouse and skirt sets. Variations of this are making a big impression in cover-up styles for sundress. Brief sleeve jackets with single, double or triple tie fronts make frequent appearances with baretopdresses. #### Color Plays Top Role in Spring Fashion Drama

Color plays the outstanding role n the fashion drama presented by Philip Mangone for spring 1949 But it's color handled in the Mangone manner, the high vibrant shades achieving the richness and elegance heretolore attributed only to black and navy.

Magnificent lines, superb tailor ing and impeccable details are consplouous, of course, as well as the variety of styles always expectedand found- in the collections of this dean of American designers.

The most noteworthy influence in this collection is its perfectly tailored femininity, with simple classic lines gently eased into a silhouette of figure-consolous flattery. Shoulders are masterfully constructed to minimize hips, their padding more subtly rounded than in the past. Waistlines of fitted costs and suits are defined, but only enough to create a slim midriff-or a reason able facsimile thereof.

While Mr. Mangone shows an almost equal number of both loose and fitted coats, of especial interwith the greatest-of case. For Mr. distinctive design, offers spacious fitting rooms, Mangone's tweed great-coats are almost as necessary to globe-trotters as their visas.

There is nothing more delicious quite low temperatures and rethem garden peas, freshly picked. spond to lots of water provided the They are easily grown if you know their requirements and act accordingly. Being a cool weather crop they do best in this area if sown early to give them time to mature before hot weather sets in. The first sowing should be made just soon as the garden soil can be readled. We usually have a few warm days during the second half of this month at which time the soil can be forked over for a row or two of peas. Old time gardeners always tried to get their peas sown on St. Patrick's Day. However avoid planting in wet soggy ground for the seed of the finer varieties is wrinkled and will tend to rot in cold wet soll. The smooth seeded varieties will not decay so easily but they are not of a high quality. Grow Some Garden Pens

Of the wrinkled seeded varieties loose the proven ones such as World's Record maturing 4-inch pods on 21/2 foot vines in about 57 days, or the new dwarf Greater Progress growing only 18 inches high and xielding 416-inch pods in 62 days. The latter will require no brush or other support. For freezing there is none better than the new Preezonian which is a blunt or square-ended improvement on the old Thomas Laxton with 31/2inch pods on husky 3 foot vines. All of these varieties are sweet, of unexcelled quality and easily obtained from any reliable seedsman. There is no reason for growing cas of inferior varieties.

The seed should be sown in rich fertile soll, about 2 inches apart nd covered with 2 inches of soil. If the soil at the time of sowing is dry enough to work properly it is well to thoroughly mix b pounds of Agrico or other good fertilizer to 100 feet of row. This feeding may be delayed however and later applied between the rows, raked In and watered. Some gardeners like to sow peas in double rows. about 6 inches apart. By this method the vines grow into one another and help to keep them off the ground. Garden peas will stand

Gives Pointers For Precision Garden Lay-Out

Most home gardeners will agree that even a flower border is no more beautiful than a precisely ald-out vegetable plot, with crops growing in straight parallel rows, squared with plot boundaries, without a weed to be seen.

Not only beauty, but efficiency is gained by such a layout. One quick trip with a wheel hoe down the straight aisle between two rows will destroy hundreds of weed sprouts, in a fraction of the time required to cultivate a disorderly garden. Rows should be spaced varying distances between them, depending on two factors: The needs of the crop, and the convegetables may be spaced more closely than in poor; but when formed, fragrant, colorful flowers

Crops growing twelve inches tall or less may be spaced 10 inches to a foot apart if cultivated with hand tools. For a wheel hoe, eighteen inches is likely to be found a minimum distance to avoid disturbing the roots of the vegetables.

Taller vegetables, and those that make vines, large bushes, or have a-sprawling habit, must be given more distance between rows. In small-gardens, 4-feet will usually be the maximum distance, given only for such crops as bush squash and ancombers. ---After you know where the rows are to be, a line should be stretched o mark the first row. Some gardeners use a straight narrow board as a ruler to mark the row. A heavy cord wound on strong cord stretched between two stakes will do. Using the corner of a hoe, draw in the soft soil a shallow trench with this line as a guide. This is known as a drill, Some prefer to use the end of the hoe handle rather than the corner of the blade. Corps Air Reservists flew a rec-Others have small hoes which they

Video Presents Parental Problem

We recently became interested in the implications of an incidental bit of intelligence given us by the pub-licity department of a major television network.

The intelligence, in the form of a publicity release, told of two viewers of this network's programs who became so engrossed in the antics on the video screen that they forgot all about the coffee brewing on their kitchen stove. The coffee, as is the habit of that beverage when left unattended, boiled over-extinguishing the flame. Fortunately, the release added, it was discovered before any damage was done beyoud the loss of one coffee pot.

With the rapid strides made recently in television, parents and choolmen in this area are apparently becoming increasingly con-cerned with the effect this new but on the younger fry of the sub-

He was inclined to believe these not entirely happy characteristics could be attributed to television.

Another principal, who asked to n pecent months any number of parents had come to him, asking graders had television sets in their the school to set up some standard of television viewing hours for "Television," this principal said, was thrust so suddenly on the public that many parents were unaware of the problems this new nedla of communication would involve. Consequently, they are now without any plan for its use by their children.

"I wouldn't doubt that many of them would think more carefully about purchasing a new set if they had it to do over again," he added.

According to the principals, parmts report difficulty getting their children to-hed-once-a television set has been installed in the home. Others complain that their children fall to-show up at the appointed dinner hour. Usually they can be found at a neighbor's house watching television. And at least one parent has reported his child now refuses to eat dinner at the table. Rather, this youngster insists on consuming his dinner be-

> This fact, he recalled, once led him to remark to a television executive that video would raise a generation of non-readers. Unless something is done by parents, he thinks this may be about right. Took Survey

Mr. Groff recently took a survey remain anonymous, claimed that in his school. He found that almost half of the fifth and sixth homes. Better than eighty per cent of the children saw at least one television show a week, either at their own home, or at the home of a friend. The majority of those with sets said they were allowed to watch shows after dinner.

> According to educators, it's this business of letting little tots watch shows after suppor that is the cause of thredness. The shows, they say, often of a stimulating nature (Westerns for Instance) prevent the youngeters from falling to sleep when they finally do reach bed,

Groff-pointed out that recently one second grade teacher reported her children unusually tired at 11:30 in the morning, An inquiry revealed 1/3 of the class had been allowed to stay up to watch a popular late evening video show. Mrs. A. H. Boyle, psychologist for the Summit Schools said, "It's a parent problem."

"In homes which already have well set up codes of family conduct there usually is little problem with television. But in homes which haven't prepared for this eventual ity there often is considerable difficulty," she claimed.

One parent she knew had set up a rule that there would be no television during the day when the youngsters should be outside. Another put the television set in the dents, recently tested, on the fact dining room where it wouldn't interfere with family living. Still another, an electrical engineer, took The problem as expressed by a different approach. He explained to his child that video tubes were expensive and would last for only so long. dressed to Alexander G. Spencer. 65 Forest road, Fanwood,

By ALEXANDER G. SPENCER-Three right out of three on today's quiz gives you "Top on the

1. You are South, playing a three no trump contract, and you hold this combination of hearts: divided three-three, you will make H. A Q 7 5 2

NORTH -RUUTH

What is your best play for four heart tricks, if you have no outside entries to dummy? 2. You are South and hold:

S. Q 4 D. K J 7"6" C. K 853 The bidding has gone NORTH DEAST What do you bid? 3. During the bidding of a hand

Route 29, Union

YOU WILL FIND . . .

diamonds face up on the table. What happens now?

1. Lead a heart from your hand and play the deuce from dummy, deliberately losing the first trick. On regaining the lead, again lead a heart from your hand and finesse the aucen. If it holds, each the ace and if the adverse hearts are four heart tricks. 2. Two no trump: When you hold an opening hid, or just about an opening bid, and your hand de balanced, you should bid two no trump over partner's opening bid of one in a suit, An opening bld opposite an opening bid will usually produce game if you can find a fit with partner's suit, or if the hand can play at no trump. The two no trump response to partner's opening suit bid of one is an absolute force to game, provided you have not made a prior

3. You can go on bidding ak though nothing had happened, but your partner must nass when next it is his turn to call. The card is left face up on the table until the auction closes. If you become a defender the card becomes a penalty card; l. e., it is left face up n the table and you must play it at the first legal opportunity. If the card dropped is lower than a jack, there is no penalty and the card may be picked up, provided you have only exposed one card. If you expose more than one card regardless of rank, they are left face up on the table, and your partner passes for one round as explained above. If you become a defender all-such cards-are-penalty cards, and declarer chooses which is played first.

South was the hero of today's hand, both in the bidding and the play. His bld of three no trump was the master bid, If North couldn't help to stop the spades he would have gone back to dia monds; as it was, North was delighted to hear the no trump bid. The cards:

H. K Q 7 D. KOFK H. 10 96 H. A 3 2 E D. 10 7 4 2 C. A. 4 8 C. J 10 B 2 S. Q 8 8 HL J 8 4

D. A J 6 3 C. Q 9 6 With neither side vulnerable the oldding went: 1>spade double pass 3 diamonds pass EAST O SOUTH 2 diamonds 3 no trump рава

West correctly opened the jack of spades and South let it ride to the queen. South could then count getting of a club trick essential. So, at the second trick, South led the club trick which he had stolen the six of clubs. West didn't realize the danger in time and played dummy's king winning. Now declarer had the contract wrapped up and ready for delivery ond spade stopper before declarto the score sheet. He immediately shifted to the heart suit. the contract-would-have-gone off people. At a recent press conference, a reporter started to pull out a cigaret. One of the newsman's colleagues reminded him that it wasn't proper to smoke in front of the King. Whereupon, the King (himself a heavy smoker) pulled out his lighter and touched the two spades, two hearts, and four to do him any good. South made flame to the reporter's cigaret. Last week he visited a military camp, ate chow with the men. Asked beforehand what he would like to cat, the King thought for a moment and then replied: "Hash, please; I never have it at the palace." - Pathfinder News

A PIECE OF YOUR MIND

By KARL PLATZER, Psychologist

I sometimes think that no woman yet born has been able to understand a boy. She can comprehend a man, yes, but after all, a man is what is left of a boy after many women have gone over him. The man is tamed, domesticated, civilized, and as such he is trusted by the women in his life, at least as far as they feel they can trust him, considering his we would not know the gentle original disposition. pleasures of home, school, learn-But a boy-he is different! His ing, and government by consent of is the original untamed stuff of the the governed. All this is for good, primeval man. Not for him is the but there exists no man who has not occasionally sighed for the more rough and strenuous days.

routine existence plodded along by his prosaic elder, or by his content sister. He wants to explore, he knows he was cut out for a life of derring-do. Let others be satisfied with driving the gelding down the straight furrow, the boy scorns this for the fiery stallion galloping across the plains, on his way to shooting and high adventure.

In all of this he is by nature morally above reproach. When he plays his cowboy game, he wants always to be the avenger who slays the wrongdoer. Indeed, the judgments of the boy are more moral, straitlaced and flerce than were those of the old prophets. No tempering of justice with mercy for him; if you do wrong, you get it fast, and for good!

presentable. She works him over. But alas for the budding hero! No bards shall sing of his deeds, stinctively wendering feet into no epics shull celebrate his might! For before he can properly get going, his mother knocks on the window and informs him that he his natural cowlick—then hands s making somuch noise she is de- him over to another and younger veloping a splitting headache. Chastened, but not yet abashed, he withdraws with his gang into a neighbor's yard, only to be told by her that he'd better run along home now before she tells his mother on him! He is called in presently for supper, only to be subjected to the usual unmanty inquisitions concerning the admittedly dublous-state-of-his-hands, leck, and face.

In school he is patted and re warded when he reads well and acts like a little gentleman. When he wiggles too strenuously,—or plays too active a game on the playground what then is his reward? He sees the principal!

It is not for nothing that the eternal cry of the boy is, "What can I do!" That is the secret of his existence—action, action, from the time he is reluctantly routed from his morning bed through every minute of the day up to the hour when he protestingly goes to hed loudly announcing his utter sleeplessness-only to fall soundly asleep almost before he can pull off his clothes.

A Boy Is A Male

A boy is a man, and a man made for action.Civilization essentially was made by women and for women, and wisely so. If it were not for that fact, we would still be living by the law of the jungle, with every man's club raised against the weak, and with vomen and other belongings at the disposal of the strongest male. It it were not for women. I dare say

Report on Our Municipal Governments

Editor's Note: Below is one of series of articles discussing the recently submitted report of the New Jersey Commission on Municipal Government. Other articles in the series will appear weekly in this newspaper. They will discuss the Commission's program to strengthen municipal government structure and operation.

By The New Jersey Citizens Committee on Municipal Government

Like many a family automobil which has been too long in service, home town government in some of our municipalities needs

Governor Driscoll recognized this in his First Annual Message to the Legislature in 1948. Ho pointed out that in local government today "we find little has been done to adapt it to modern needs and progressive thinking."

On the Governor's recommendation, the 1948 Legislature unanimously voted to create a Commission of Municipal Government The Commission was given the job of finding what's wrong with local government and "suggesting in what respects the laws of New Jersey might be changed to provide fullest opportunity for local selfgovernment consistent with the interests of the State as a whole."

Named to the Commission were: Bayard H. Faulkner, chairman Montclair: Senator Edward J. O'Mara, vice-chairman, Jersey City: Assemblyman Frank Cozzoline, Newark; William W. Evans, Paterson; Mrs. W. B. Heinz, Bridgewater; former Senator Arthur W. Lewis, Riverton; Charles W. McKeever, Penns Grove; John F. Word, Palmyra, and Assemblyman William B. Widnall, Saddle

The Commission of nine citizens. serving without pay, has been at work for more than a year. Its oxamination has been completed. Its recommendation for more modern, efficient home-town government in New Jersey are contained in a 120-page report. This has been submitted to the Governor and is now before the Legislature for study and action.

The recommendations show how local governments may be made business-like. Citizens can ceap large dividends by studying
