'It was unreal'

Union native talks 'Model' experience

By Joseph M. D'Alise
Staff Writer

UNION — When Aminat Ayinde strolled onto a Miami beach during spring break from college last year, she didn't know she would walk away with a spot on a popular reality television show, let alone, nearly come away with the grand prize.

A talent scout for "America's Next Top Model" approached the 21-year-old Union-native in March 2008 and asked her to participate in Cycle 12 of the hit show, for a chance to win a $100,000 modeling contract with CoverGirl. Ayinde accepted.

"Being on the show was...a blessing," she said. "I met a lot of amazing females."

Ayinde didn't win the grand prize, finishing as second runner up out of 13 contestants, but she said still feels like a winner for having learned so much, not only about the modeling industry but about herself.

"I am definitely a lot stronger than I gave myself credit for," Ayinde said, offering herself kudos. "My positivity really helped me get through some grueling days."

Bad days were not as plentiful as the good. Ayinde touched on some of the difficulties of living with a dozen other women vying for a break into the world of fashion and catwalks.

"Living with 12 other females can get tense, but there was definitely more good than bad," she said. "All the drama was petty and most of it was due to stress. What aired was just good T.V. [The producers] didn't show all of us bonding. They don't want all that 'koom bi ya' stuff, but we really did all become very close friends."

The modeling and production industry is tougher than Ayinde imagined. "This industry is made for the strong. It can be...harsh. You have to have thick skin."

Though she gained somewhat of a reputation in the media for being 'brash,' Ayinde said she doesn't feel cheated by how she was represented each week on the hour-long show.

"My personality and honesty really showed throughout the show. I always spoke my mind, whether anyone wanted to hear it or not," she said. "I may have come off a bit brash...on the show, but I'm really See 'MODEL', Page 11

LINDEN — Customers crowded Raymond Wood Bauer Promenade, hunting for fresh produce, flowers and desserts being sold at a bargain price. Advertisements dotted their paths — a picture of blueberries alongside the phrase "Born to Jam," an image of a tomato partnered with "Born to be Saucy" and an ear of corn pictured next to the motto "Born to be A-Maize-ing."

Linden Cultural Committee kicked off its second Farmer's Market at the promenade May 11, with hopes last year's success will continue in the less-than-nourishing soil of a faltering economy.

Union urged to reject Faulkner Act charter

UNION — The Charter Study Commission was afforded a less-than-appealing glimpse into the Faulkner form of government by area officials detailing their "horror stories."

At the commission's May 18 meeting, Berkeley Heights Councilmen John Bonacci and Louis DiPasquale described their experiences with the mayor-council-administrator style of government their town adopted three years ago.

"I was one of the biggest proponents of the change in government, and I'm the sorriest person in

Berkeley Heights," DiPasquale said. "I should be stoned to death in the center of town for what I did to my township

Two nabbed for theft of jewelry, electronics

Roselle Park

Oscar Hernandez, 24, and a 17-year-old juvenile both of Elizabeth were arrested by officers James Cantrell and John Skebeck at 9:44 a.m. May 7, on the 200 block of East Westfield Avenue, after they were caught with stolen jewelry and electronics. The arrest came after a resident reported seeing the pair suspiciously circling an apartment building on bicycles. The juvenile had jewelry in his pocket and stolen computer equipment was found nearby.

Both were charged with burglary, theft and criminal mischief. The juvenile was released to their parents. Hernandez was also charged with conspiring with a juvenile to commit a criminal offense, and is being held at Union County Jail on $35,000 bail.

Two 15-year-old Roselle Park teens were arrested by officer James Cantrell at 3:02 p.m. May 14, on Seaton Avenue, after shooting another teen with a BB gun.

They were charged with aggravated assault with a weapon and possession of an imitation firearm.

HPL book buy strikes again; nets $700 for new materials

By Paul Greulich
Staff Writer

HILLSIDE — Economical readers of all ages were able to peruse shelves at the township's public library in search of bargains on new and used books, DVDs, audiobooks and CDs through Wednesday.

This year, Hillside Public Library's fourth book sale netted more than $700, which will go toward its materials budget.

More than a thousand books, among other items donated by area community members, were on sale during regular library hours. Many books could be found for a dollar or less.

Hillside resident Bettye Hooks, who stopped by to grab a good read May 14, said the six-day event was useful, especially at a time when many are trying to cut back. "For some people, there is no other way to get books," she said.

"They can't always afford them at Barnes and Noble. This way, their children can still read," Bein added.

The sale was started by library Director Miriam Bein, in an effort to raise money for the facility.

The first year, it lasted three days. An extra day was added each subsequent year due to its popularity, Bein said.

This year, library staff prepared for the sale, aided by only a handful of volunteers. They were not deterred by the prospect of a little heavy lifting, Bein said.

While books sold rapidly, not everything flew from the shelves, staff member Shaheedah Dunn said.

"We had lots of special art prints that were museum-quality. We thought adults would like them. One child...bought a few," Dunn said, noting the sale drew most of its customers when school let out each day.

The sale concluded Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with "bag days," when books could be purchased at even lower prices. This day, teachers were also invited to select books for free for use in their classrooms. Patrons swarmed, collecting paper bags full of materials. Bein said the event typically sees a strong response from the community.

"Bag day is really popular. It's a great bargain. We have all kinds of books for children, adult, paperback," Bein said.

Though library staff has not yet looked ahead to next year, based on this year's turnout, Bein said she has high expectations.

Roselle athlete vying for spot on Cowboys

By Joseph M. D'Alise
Staff Writer

ROSELLE — Second chances can be few and far between. Former Abraham Clark High School and University of North Carolina athletic standout, Jesse Holley, said he will try to make the most out of one he recently received.

Jesse, brother of borough councilman Jamel Holley, was one of 12 players chosen from a pool of 30,000 applicants around the country, to be a part of the Spike network's new reality show, "Fourth and Long," which will award one football player, from the group of six wide receivers and six defensive backs, a spot on the Dallas Cowboys' 80-man pre-season roster. "I'm just excited to be given this unexpected opportunity," the wide receiver said.

Jamel said his family is proud to see Jesse pursuing his dream.

"We are all standing behind Jesse 110 percent," he said. "He is hard-working and dedicated to the game, and we're proud of him."

The show will be hosted by Dallas Cowboy Hall of Fame wide receiver Michael Irvin. The 12 athletes will also get the chance to train for nearly seven weeks with Hall of Fame athletes such as former Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach, as well as Jerry Rice, Terrance Newman and former National Football League coach Joe Avezzano.

During a discussion on Spike, Cowboys owner and general manager, Jerry Jones, told Irvin he wants contestants to have fun, but added the team needs a serious, dedicated football player. "At the end of the day, [they have] to be the real deal," Jones told Irvin.

The 25-year-old former basketball and football player graduated from ACHS in 2003 and played football at UNC from 2003 until he graduated in 2007. He was also a member of the UNC basketball team in the 2003-04 and 2004-05 seasons, winning a National Championship in 2005.

Jesse understands the opportunity he is being given and the amount of work it will take to be a professional athlete. After his time at UNC, he spent some time playing for the Cincinnati Bengals, before being released after seven games.

"I'm very hungry," Jesse explained. "I understand that everyone there is physically gifted, but the great players are the ones that watch film, do their homework and take the time to really study the game."

Jesse said the year he spent away from football has made him even more driven. "It's like riding a bike," he said of getting himself back into the routine of practicing every day, sometimes two or three times daily. "I thought I'd be picked up within days of being released. The year off is...a very humbling experience."

Jesse added that growing up, he did not have a favorite football team, but recently has become a Cowboys fan.

"It would be a dream...to make the team," he said. "I just want to play the game I love to play."

Irvin told Jones he is searching for an "incredible player."

"It's just a matter of putting those few extra things in them to get them over the top and having them understand...there's a difference between good and great, and in this league, you got to be great," Irvin said.

The first of 10 "Fourth and Long" episodes aired at 10 p.m. Monday on Spike.

Murder suspected in death of woman

By John O'Reilly
Staff Writer

RAHWAY — Police are actively investigating the death of a 24-year-old woman found dead in a Rahway apartment two weeks ago.

The body of Jennea Workman was discovered at approximately 9 a.m. May 8 inside her Cambridge Court apartment on West Main Street and Elizabeth Avenue, where she lived alone, Union County Prosecutor's Office spokesman John Holl said.

Rahway Police Lt. Frank Simonetti deferred all questions to the county Prosecutor's Office.

Workman's death was the result of blunt force trauma to her body, according to Holl.

No further details were released by county police.

A few days after the fatal incident, candles, balloons and stuffed teddy bears were being placed outside the apartment as a memorial, according to published reports.

Workman's death is the first murder in Rahway since November 2007. That month, Olga Arroya, 41, of Morganville was found dead in a West Scott Street home after undergoing a botched cosmetic surgery.

Crimestoppers is offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or people responsible for the recent killing. Anyone with information is asked to call county Prosecutor's Task Force Sgt. Dean Marcantonio at 908-527-4699.

Engineers, businesses pave way for 'Streetscape'

By John O'Reilly
Staff Writer

ROSELLE — Plans for a drastic facelift to downtown Roselle are closer to reality after the Urban Enterprise Zone released potential designs and cost estimates for its "Streetscape" project.

A May 15 luncheon of more than a dozen local business and property owners was a follow up to a similar meeting held last month to unveil a sketch of the plan and get input on the project. This summit, however, was to discuss specific details of the plan to renovate the sidewalk along Chestnut Street, between 1st and 3rd avenues, from the type of bricks they may use to the style of benches. "Today [was] step two," said UEZ coordinator Harry Wyatt.

Engineers on the project, from Brick-based CMX firm, said the entire plan — replacing the sidewalk from curbside to storefront — will likely cost between $1 and $1.3 million covered by $1.4 million already gathered in grants by the municipality. Funding includes a $153,000 UEZ grant and the rest from the state Department of Transportation.

The engineers showed different types of concrete and brick sidewalks, models of benches, trash receptacles and lighting, as well as discussing potential color schemes and styles. "Roselle has earthy-toned buildings and structures, brown and tan, with a mix of brick and concrete buildings. You would look at that...to determine a color pattern," said Joseph Perrello, a landscape architect with CMX engineer. He noted other towns with similar aesthetics often have gray sidewalks and white, tan or brown paving.

Wyatt said he wants to hold a public hearing within two weeks in order to finalize designs and complete the bid process quickly.

Engineers said construction could begin as early as this fall or potentially spring 2010, depending on what type of materials are used.

Construction is estimated to last between 60 to 90 days, and the project will be completed in sections, so it will not disrupt businesses in the area, officials said.

In response to concerns raised at the last meeting, business owners were reassured they would not pay into the project and recently renovated facades or sidewalks could be incorporated into the general plan.

Downtown property owners, who uniformly admitted they need help in the current straining economy, said they are pleased with the progress on the project.

"For a long time they've been talking," Jaymini Patel, whose husband owns property along Chestnut Street, said about Roselle's plans to renovate the downtown. "But now, they're finally doing."

The municipality and UEZ are already looking into obtaining grants to cover "Streetscape" expansions on the rest of Chestnut Street, leading up to the public library and businesses on St. Georges Avenue and the Cranford border, Mayor Garrett Smith said.

John O'Reilly can be reached at 908-686-7700, ext. 116, or editorial@thelocalsource.com.

Four arrested, suspected in Route 22 GameStop robbery

By John O'Reilly
Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD — It may be 'Game Over' for a gang of gun-toting video game thieves.

Jennifer Cruz, 30, of Paterson; Jarita Sanchez, 25, and Daniel Calderon, 27, both of Garfield and Merle Jackson, 28, of North Plainfield were all arrested in their homes by Paramus police May 8, following a police investigation into an April 29 armed robbery at a GameStop on Route 17.

The four suspects, which were all charged in the Paramus case, are believed to be responsible for similar incidents at Parsippany and Springfield locations.

Paramus GameStop employees told police they were tied up and forced to kneel on the floor while the suspects ransacked the store, taking game systems, games, cash and employee's wallets and cell phones.

"Prior to leaving, the suspects shut off the power to the store and threatened to kill the employees," Paramus Det. Frank Scott said in a press announcement.

Scott said the department was able to link the crime to a Feb. 3 robbery at the Route 22 GameStop in Springfield, during which two suspects, male and female, entered the store and posed as customers minutes before its 9 p.m. closing time.

While they distracted two employees working at the time, two masked men — one carrying a silver handgun — entered the store and demanded cash and the key to the safe.

The employees were tied up with duct tape and ordered into a back room while the suspects filled a large trash bag with cash and "thousands of dollars" worth of Xbox and Wii consoles and games.

Springfield police said three of the four suspects arrested in Paramus were also charged by the township police department. Sanchez was not a suspect in the Springfield robbery.

In the Parsippany robbery, two armed men robbed a GameStop of $500 cash and $4,500 in gaming merchandise after tying up an employee.

Cruz, Calderon and Jackson have been charged with robbery and kidnapping and were being held in Bergen County Jail on $150,000 bail.

Sanchez was charged with conspiracy to commit robbery and kidnapping and was released on $75,000 bail.

Additional charges from Parsippany and Springfield are expected soon, but had not yet been filed Monday.

Second LHS educator admits padding hours

By John O'Reilly

LINDEN — The second Linden High School teacher accused of double billing employers has pleaded guilty to tampering with payroll records, according to Union County Prosecutor Theodore Romankow.

Kimberly DeMatteo, 38, of Howell admitted to double billing both Linden School District and Manalapan-based Sunny Days Childhood Developmental Services, according to court records.

"As part of her plea deal, DeMatteo will surrender her position in Linden and will be barred from ever seeking public employment," Assistant Prosecutor Ann Rubin said.

According to charges filed in November 2008 by the county Prosecutor's Office, DeMatteo and her husband, Michael Maurer, 37, often claimed they worked two separate jobs at the same time for Linden schools in order to boost their overtime pay between Aug. 22, 2007 and Jan. 30, 2008.

DeMatteo was later charged with pulling the same scam between August 2005 and January 2006 at Sunny Days, a school catering to developmentally disabled or autistic children. At one point, she even billed Sunny Days for seeing its clients at the same time she was billing Linden Board of Education for teaching and tutoring work, Rubin said.

Because of the plea agreement, DeMatteo will likely receive non-custodial probation, according to county police.

Dematteo will be sentenced June 1 in Middlesex County Superior Court.

Maurer pleaded guilty to two counts of fourth-degree falsifying records last month. In his plea agreement, he also ordered to resign his teaching position and cannot seek public employment in New Jersey, according to Rubin.

"[These teachers] are not bad people, they just got caught in something they shouldn't have been doing," Linden Superintendent Rocco Tomazic said.

He added school officials plan to add safeguards to prevent similar scams from reoccurring. A computer program is currently being developed for the district to cross-check all time sheets and detect double billing.

Linden schools will own the program and it is expected to be completed by fall. Representatives from Sunny Days did not return calls for comment.

John O'Reilly can be reached at 908-686-7700, ext. 116, or editorial@thelocalsource.com.

A J.W. Goodliffe and Sons employee was killed while cleaning a 60-pound oxygen tank May 13.

Explosion at Goodliffe kills 30-year employee

By Stacey Eaton and John O'Reilly

LINDEN — An explosion at a welding supply company claimed the life of an employee who police said set off the blast while filling an oxygen tank.

Nine other employees working at J.W. Goodliffe & Sons at the time of the accident were not injured, according to local authorities.

The employee, identified as Thomas Coon, 60, had been filling a 5-foot-tall tank holding approximately 60 pounds of oxygen at the 1900 East Elizabeth Ave. facility when it exploded at approximately 11 a.m. May 13.

A report on the cause of the incident is expected to be filed sometime this week, according to Occupational Safety and Health Administrator investigator Lonnie Simmons.

Linden Police and Fire departments, Office of Emergency Management, Emergency Medical Services, Union County Hazmat and an investigator from the office of Occupational Safety and Health Administration responded to the accident.

The building was briefly evacuated and the area where the explosion occurred was cordoned off. Employees were able to return to work in the rest of the building shortly afterwards.

Coon had been working in a space described as an "enclosed garage area, surrounded by brick and an overhead door," according to Linden Police Lt. James Sarnicki, who said the garage was separate from the main building, where the rest of the employees were working.

The blast "knocked over numerous tanks and damaged the ceiling. An overhead garage door was blown out with damage to the concrete block wall," Linden Police Capt. Raymond Tyra said in a press release issued the day of the accident.

Coon, who lived in Bridgewater, had been working at J. W. Goodliffe & Sons for more than 30 years when he was killed.

"Based on everything [OSHA] is seeing, they said it will be a short investigation. I'm guessing results will come in a few days," said Sarnicki.

The owner of the business, who police identified as Robert Goodliffe, said there has not been an accident at the business since 1986.

Sarnicki noted there have been no previous safety complaints filed against the company.

The business fills and services tanks containing industrial gases including oxygen, nitrogen and acetylene, Tyra said.

Authorities said they were unsure if any charges would be filed against the company.

"It's too premature to say," Sarnicki said last Thursday. "Any charges are contingent upon what the [investigation] determines."

Another area work place death occurred Dec. 1, 2007, when Victor Diaz, 42, of Linden and Carlos Diaz, 41, of Paterson were suffocated by toxic chemicals while cleaning out a 20,000-gallon retention tank at the North East Linen company on East Linden Avenue in Linden. Following the incident, OSHA issued several safety citations against the business owner.

Remember the fallen

On Monday, as is the custom every Memorial Day, red poppies will be seen in abundance at cemeteries, war memorials, town parks and churches to honor those brave soldiers who gave their lives in service to their country. The tradition was started in 1915 by Moina Michael, who had been inspired by the poem "In Flanders Fields" to sell poppies to raise money for servicemen in need. The VFW continued this tradition nationally in 1922.

Originally called Decoration Day, Memorial Day was started by women's groups to honor fallen soldiers shortly before the end of the Civil War. By the late 1800s, all northern states recognized this holiday, although southern states were slower to join in the festivities. The Holiday Act of 1971 ensured the last Monday in May would be designated for Memorial Day, to ensure a three-day weekend. For many, it is the unofficial beginning of summer.

Unfortunately, the true purpose of this day has given way to backyard barbecues or trips to the park or other festive occasions. Cemeteries are often ignored, the grave sites of fallen soldiers unvisited. Few people remember the customs and, except for local parades led by aging survivors of World War II, it can be just another day off from work or school.

Our nation has tried to recommit itself to what this holiday actually stands for in recent years. Beginning in 1998, on the Saturday before Memorial Day, the Boys Scouts and Girl Scouts place a candle at each of the approximately 15,300 grave sites of soldiers buried at Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park on Marye's Heights in Virginia as part of the Luminaria Program. And in 2004, Washington, D.C., had its first Memorial Day parade in more than 60 years.

These are good steps, but more needs to be done locally to remember our fallen heroes. Talk to family and friends about loved ones who gave everything they had to give to protect the freedoms we hold so dear. Visit cemeteries and help maintain the upkeep of their final resting places.

Visit the living as well at VFWs or other local places where veterans congregate. And come out for your town's parade with the entire family, waving your flags proudly and cheering everyone, living or dead, who has served in our armed forces.

This is a day to honor their memory. Let us never let them be forgotten.

Rules and the First Amendment

A Constitutional Law professor used to raise hypotheticals and wait for the answer. A response found acceptable often brought the tinge of a smile. An unacceptable response often spurred the question "Were you a poli-sci major?"

For Dennis Kobitz, the administrator for the County Board of Elections, he wasn't given the chance to respond. The accusers were members of the American Civil Liberties Union. They released a very high sounding report, "Making every vote count: a review of the 2008 elections in New Jersey."

They said "overly restrictive administrative policies and inadequate enforcement of existing rules continue to adversely affect people's ability to vote." They added, "Transparency and public accountability must be improved as well."

Pretty heavy stuff. After all, transparency has risen to a level of great esteem in the public consciousness. What a shame the group wasn't subject to the scrutiny of whether or not high sounding equates to reality.

Their report cited four relatively insignificant examples for the entire county. Dennis Kobitz understands his job. He is accessible and follows up on complaints. He also defends the board employees and poll workers who make the process work.

No one bothered to ask Kobitz about the four examples of election problems that brought forth such a serious report. Two examples had to do with poll workers excessively asking for voter identification. While asking for ID is acceptable, it shouldn't be automatic. In another case, a poll worker used provisional ballots rather than allowing the citizens on the machine to vote. Each complaint was properly dealt with by Kobitz and staff. One last change was so specious so as to need no review.

Where Kobitz became pointed was his response to the charge that four counties, including Union, "continue to roadblock the registration of ex-criminals with 'improper demands.'" The so-called improper demands by Kobitz were to ask for the release documents. Hardly unreasonable, in light of the precious right to vote which is regulated in the case of ex-convicts.

There is a lesson from the experience of Dennis Kobitz. High sounded attacks harking the first amendment need our attention. But, when they turn out to be hollow, that also deserves public scrutiny.

Take the example of Ed Davenport and TV 35 in Cranford. Mr. Davenport, the paid station manager, seems to have his problems periodically with local programming. One ex-mayor called Davenport "a politician with a small 'P.'" Davenport's most recent controversy centers on an improper mixing of appropriate cable television oversight and the fallacious charges of violation of the first amendment. Davenport permitted the mayor of the community, David Robinson, to be part of a panel show consisting of three mayors discussing budget problems. Whether or not a mayor running for election can be on the show is a subject for review of the by laws of the local cable franchise.

What it is not, is a bubbling First Amendment issue. Starting with the Federal Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984 and later the state legislation establishing the Office of Cable Television, your local public access channel is decidedly regulated.

The internal rules usually prohibit candidates from access during the time of the candidacy. Exceptions are made for coverage of public meetings. Look at Deputy Mayor Mark Smith in Cranford and Clark Mayor Sal Bonaccorso who frequently use the time for reports of public officials to lambaste opponents or people in other political parties.

In the case of public access, the usual standard is "qualified individuals and organizations may utilize public access for the purpose of cable casting non commercial access programming in conformance with the petitioners public access rules."

The standards and traditions are always subject to review at the time of renewal of the franchise, usually every 10 years.

The rules regarding access should always be subject to review. The point is that the standard is the agreement between the community and the cable TV franchise provider. To mix up that oversight with a civil liberty or a non-existent First Amendment right would spur the anger of a lot of constitutional law professors.

An attorney, Frank Capece is a resident of Cranford.

'Real world' solutions ignored

To the Editor:

As a child growing in a household where my father was the sole breadwinner, and mom stayed at home to raise us kids, I was taught some of the basic economic facts of life that have more than helped me these many years. I was 66 years young in May.

First, live within your means; second, don't spend what you don't have and third, save for a rainy day. Kenilworth Mayor Kathi Fiamingo ignores all of these "real world" solutions to today's finances.

Instead she spends what she does not have by giving raises to all town employees — who may well deserve raises — in the worst economic climate in many years. She will deplete the town's surplus by using half of it this year and as she said at a recent town meeting, we will not replenish that fund as revenues are down.

The mayor is planning to sell off the most valuable building lots the town owns at a time when they will garner the lowest price. What will she do when there is no more land to sell? All of this will still require a hefty tax hike for you and me.

So when you get your tax bill, pay special attention to how much the borough's taxes have gone up for you.

The problem with parking

To the Editor:

When I shop in the downtown area of Cranford, if I am lucky enough to find street parking, I can only stay one hour. Forget about having your hair or nails done or enjoying a leisurely lunch. You've forced us into the parking lots if we want to shop.

Now you want me to pay to run into the Butcher's Block for milk or to pick up a pizza. The shopping on Centennial Avenue is for a quick stop. Drop off your dry cleaning or grab some flowers. People will stop coming to Centennial Avenue if they have to pay at a central meter just to pick up a sandwich for lunch.

What is next? Parking meters at the municipal pools or in the parking lots of our township schools?

In an effort to raise more money for the township, you will force out the small businesses on Centennial. What you have there is what we have in Cranford Crossing: empty stores.

Prevent layoffs in Cranford

To the Editor:

I feel very fortunate to live in this great town and be able to raise a family here. As I write this letter, layoff notices have gone out to specific employees of the town of Cranford. The news of this development saddens me deeply.

During the past seven years, I have come to know many of the various employees in Cranford's different departments, and have had many positive experiences in my dealings with them both personally and professionally.

Our police officers and firefighters are our first line of defense when our families and the residents of this town need it most. If you have never worked in those professions, or had prolonged exposure to their duties, I feel you are missing out on something special. I firmly believe they have chosen their profession because they want to help others. Those lives that they help on a daily basis, whether it is in an emergency or not, are the lives most often times of complete strangers. It absolutely is their choice to work in these professions and they certainly know all the risks. However, they are the reason why I know that my family and the other families of Cranford can always count on being safe and well protected.

Much has been said and written, including in the May 15 edition of the Cranford Chronicle, about the cost of a newly hired police officer or firefighter. If you were to divide the taxable properties in Cranford — $7,812 — by the salary for a first year police officer or firefighter, you would see that it would only cost the average taxpayer about fifty three cents per month. Is this really a burden on our community financially? Do we really want to risk being down manpower by as much as 25 percent over the course of a year as emergency situations arise in our town? I would hope that as a community we would not want these cuts to happen, along with the negative results that they will bring to us over time.

Several other Cranford departments and their specific employees have also been notified of layoffs within their ranks. I realize how difficult things are financially across our nation, state, and in our town at this time. But, will laying off these hard working and essential employees who work in our public works, construction, zoning, and our other municipal departments enhance our ability to function in a positive manner in Cranford? I firmly believe that these layoffs will in fact have a negative impact. Not to mention the terrible burden it poses for both the employees and their families. This is the worst possible time to have to try and find a new job.

I would ask that the Cranford Township Committee do anything and everything within their power to not layoff any of the employees of the town of Cranford.

Christopher Drew

Difficult decisions

To the Editor:

As a resident of Cranford for 15 years, who was laid off in 2007 and am now officially retired since I cannot find another job, I live on a fixed income. For these past 15 years, my property taxes have nearly doubled.

Like most Cranford residents, my income has not increased at this alarming pace. Many Cranford residents, living on a fixed income are finding the cost of living increasingly burdensome. Several of my friends are being forced to move out of the town we love.

At every election, on local, county and state levels, I hear politicians pay lip service to stemming the rising tide of property taxes. The reality is that to do so, difficult choices have to be made. No one likes to see anyone lose one's job. Many officials, after being elected, absolutely cower away from difficult decisions for fear of criticism from any area.

Other elected people just constantly pander to any side in the hope of making the opposing party look bad. These officials forget that they were elected to make tough choices, not to shy away from them in the hope of being reelected. But government is supposed to serve all of us, not just a particular part of the community or a party.

I would like to thank Cranford's Mayor Robinson for having the courage to consider the difficult issues to help cut taxes. At the end of the day, our local leaders are volunteers and being forced to make serious decisions is difficult. They may consider the taxpayers of Cranford as the silent majority, but we understand the reasons that justify budgetary cuts.

Mary Ann Dixon

Not too late to say thanks

To the Editor:

The 9th Ward has newer, safer equipment in Sunnyside Park, thanks to a bunch of ladies from the ward who felt the park needed new equipment.

How do I know? I was the one they contacted. After our initial meeting, I went to see the mayor and presented my case. (Former) Mayor John (Gregorio) asked me what I thought. I told him the ladies had the right idea. The mayor turned to Al Volpe and told him to talk to Joe and make it happen. Months later I was

Honor their memory

To the Editor:

With the up and coming Memorial Day holiday, I could not find a better time for us, as Americans, to honor our deceased veterans who gave their lives so that we may be able to enjoy the freedom we have today.

Memorial Day is the day we remember and honor those veterans who lost their lives fighting for our nation. More than a day to decorate the graves of our honored dead, Memorial Day is a reaffirmation of our faith in a creator who intended all people to be free and faith that those who fight for freedom will prevail.

The men and women we honor today demonstrated the highest form of faith in the triumph of good over evil. Let us always honor the memory of those brave soldiers who gave the supreme sacrifice, so those of us may continue to experience freedom in a country that is free. Let us forever be reminded of life, liberty, justice, freedom and democracy that we may be ever grateful for those comrades who gave so much for their country.

Finally, as those we honor today had a mission, we, too, have a mission and that is to teach the young people of today to respect America's values, by acquainting them with the price that was paid to preserve them.

Take time to pay tribute

To the Editor:

In a few days we will observe Memorial Day and I would like to remind my fellow New Jerseyans that it represents more than just the beginning of summer season or an occasion to take advantage of sales being offered by local merchants.

Memorial Day is intended to remember and honor the men and women of the United States armed forces who died while protecting and defending the many freedoms that we enjoy. They gave their very lives so that we may continue to pursue the liberties that permit us to enjoy and prosper from the many opportunities that exist in our republic.

Many ceremonies will take place in our local communities over the Memorial Day weekend sponsored by the American Legion and other veterans organizations and I encourage readers to set aside just a little bit of their time to recognize and pay tribute to those who have made the supreme sacrifice by attending such a ceremony. We honor those currently serving when we remember those who did not return. We shall never forget the sacrifice each of them made for America.

Keep children 'safe from danger'

On May 25, 1979 6-year-old Etan Patz disappeared on his way to school in what is now the upscale Soho neighborhood of New York. His was the first photo of a missing child to appear on a milk carton. Almost 30 years later, Etan Patz is still missing.

Etan's disappearance was one of the key events that inspired the missing children's movement, which raised awareness of child abductions and led to new ways to search for missing children.

To help educate the public about this important issue and to remember those children like Etan Patz still missing, May 25 is recognized as the National Missing and Exploited Children's Day. As a member of the Congressional Caucus on Missing, Exploited and Runaway Children, I am proud to support a congressional measure highlighting this important day.

Recently, Marianne Tyler of Watchung and mother of five children told me that, "Making sure our kids are safe from danger is one of the most important jobs we face as parents." I could not agree more.

Doing so requires a lot of hard work, and most importantly means teaching your children at a very young age about their safety.

Fortunately, parents are not alone in this huge, important task. Members of local law enforcement are working around the clock to make sure our kids are safe in our communities. Education professionals, school superintendents, principals and teachers share the same goal: Keep

From the Legislator's Desk

By Leonard Lance

kids safe from harm.

Recently, I teamed up with representatives from the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, local law enforcement and education professionals to hold a special educational event designed for kids, parents and members of the community. We discussed easy, every day things adults can do to help make our kids safer in their homes, at school and out and about in their neighborhoods.

Representatives from the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children have been conducting important educational campaigns across the country designed to heighten awareness about children's safety issues — by taking 25 minutes a day to talk to your kids about their safety.

With a focus on prevention, the campaign encourages parents, guardians and other trusted-adult role models to spend time talking to kids and teaching them ways to be safer.

According to the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, once your children are able to talk, you can begin teaching them some basic safety essentials at home, going to and from school, on the Internet and out and about.

They recommend parents do the following to help make their kids safer at home.

1. Teach your children their full names, address and home phone number. Make sure they know your full name. Make sure your kids know how to reach you at work or on your cell phone.

Teach your children how to use 911 and make sure your children had a trusted adult to call if they're scared or have an emergency.

2. Take your children on a walking tour of your neighborhood and tell them which homes they may visit without you.

Teach them to ask you before leaving home and stay with a friend whenever they're playing outside or going anywhere.

3. Teach your children to never approach a vehicle, occupied or not, unless they know the owner and are accompanied by a parent, guardian or other trusted adult.

4. Learn about the Internet. The more you know about how the Web works, the better prepared you will be to teach your children about potential risks.

If you would like to learn additional steps to take regarding child safety, please visit NCMEC's Web site www.missingkids.org or visit my congressional Web site, www.lance.house.gov.

Or if you would like me to organize a child safety event in your community or school, please call my office at 908-518-7733.

Rep. Leonard Lance represents New Jersey's 7th Congressional District, which includes a portion of Union County.

Study: Youth Center in need of upgrade

By Paul Greulich
Staff Writer

SUMMIT — A 13-month study targeting ways in which youth services can be improved revealed the city's youth center needs a boost.

The study conducted by volunteers from various city organizations stemmed from discussions between officials, and the Department of Community Programs Advisory Board and Shaping Summit Together, a non-profit organization consisting of community members. Findings were reviewed by the two community groups during a special May 12 Common Council meeting.

City youths in grades 6 through 12 were asked what they think should be available at the center, both after-school and on the weekends. Results showed youngsters wanted a place to "hang out," with Internet access and an opportunity for non-structured activities and non-competitive team sports. "There were surveys with the youths and discussions with their families," said Judith Leblein-Josephs, director of Community Program.

Department of Community Programs Advisory Board and Shaping Summit Together had discussed the possibility of selling the existing Summit Youth Center property at 2 Walnut St. — this grew into a broader review of the city's youth services, quality of the program and its funding model.

"We did not deliver... fast recommendation, because, in these times, we find it impossible to do so," Josephs said in regards to the strain the current economy puts on making larger-scale changes, such as building a new center or leasing space to house the facility.

Annette Dwyer, Shaping Summit Together board chair, said the center, which is open to youth on a "drop in" basis and is frequented by more than 200 high school and middle-school-age youngsters, was constructed in the 1950s and is in need of repair, particularly to windows and the heating system.

"Our team findings place a priority on Gateway 2 or near it. We will continue to analyze facility options," said Dwyer, who noted she is unsure how much the youth center property could sell for.

The Gateway 2 project is an effort to transform the eastern entrance into the city's downtown into a residential area that will appeal to commuters.

Josephs assured residents and officials the study was not aimed at eliminating youth programs. "We were looking at the best way and the best location to provide programs," she said.

City Administrator Chris Cotter said the General Services Committee will review the recommendations and report back to the Common Council. Cotter said no timeline for this next stage of the process has been set.

"The goal is to move as rapidly as they can with this, understanding that the disposition of that building rests on the economic climate," Cotter said.

The community center on Morris Avenue is another site that hosts youths programs. A master plan study will be commissioned this year to identify ways to better utilize the center, Cotter said.

Berkeley Heights officials reveal 'horrors' of government unhappy with his Township Committee's practice of selecting the mayor from within, an issue he now sees as minor in comparison to Berkeley Heights' present ills.

Both DiPasquale and Bonacci said state statutes that define the dozen or so various forms of government available to New Jersey's municipalities are not as clear in their delineation of responsibilities, often leading to disputes about authority among governing body members. They also said the mayor's ability to break tie votes discouraged council members from working together and compromising to reach an agreement.

Bonacci said the Faulkner form of government could be effective in larger municipalities and in those cases when relationships between different authorities are well defined in advance of the charter being applied.

"You need strong rules and procedures," Bonacci said.

DiPasquale said that with the mayor-council-administrator charter, the administrator can easily be inclined to show more loyalty and obedience to the mayor than the community.

Commission member Michael Cohan questioned whether problems described in Berkeley Heights were related to the form of government or the individuals who are holding political offices.

DiPasquale and Bonacci said both factors played a part in the township's woes, but remained adamant the Faulkner Act presented considerable opportunity for disagreements between officials. They pointed to Hillside's legal and political strife. "You've got the most pure form of government there is," DiPasquale told the commission. "You don't want the courts getting involved with matters of your town government."

Jakubowski pointed out that while officials can be replaced by better candidates at election time, a municipality's charter is considerably more complicated to alter. "It is our objective to look at the form of government, not the people involved," Jakubowski said.

The commission's next meeting will be June 1.

Besides building lasting friendships, Ayinde's greatest thrill during her three-month experience filming in New York City: meeting famous models.

The graduating senior at William Paterson University said she plans to build on what she learned from the show and capitalize on the exposure it offered. "I want to explore options other than runway modeling," she explained.

For now, Ayinde is exploring college life as a reality television star. "It was unreal," she said about returning to campus when the show aired in March. She didn't tell her friends she was appearing in the show before it aired. "I was like a celebrity at school."

Farmers Market open

"It can be hard to establish yourself as a new market. We were fortunate enough to do that last year," said Jerry Bishop, Cultural Committee Chairman.

Opening day, municipal employees crossed the street from City Hall to sample the market's goods. One man purchased dinner for the night, stuffed sole, and another collected groceries for the week. Meanwhile, a local couple bought corn and assorted vegetables. They said they noticed the market for the first time as they drove down Wood Avenue. "I don't know... if it's a luxury or a savings, but it looks good, so we'll try it," they said about their findings.

Bishop saw the crowd as a good sign. "I don't know if people are excited to see vendors back or it was a sunny day, but based on the first day, I believe we are going to do as well or better than last year," he explained, estimating about 400 people visited the market daily last season. This year's goal is to either exceed or match that number, he added.

Bishop expects customers to cut back this year; however, he noted the farmer's market is changing its hours and bringing in less expensive vendors in an effort to be more cost effective, hopefully leading to more people visiting the center of town.

Larger companies that sponsored the market last year have returned, Bishop said, noting big businesses owners are more likely to sponsor local markets than buy box seats for games at Yankee Stadium.

"They want to be in the community, because that's where their customers are," he said. "Everyone's gotten creative as a...result of the economy. If you don't, you're just going to go away."

Even more indicative of a positive season for the market was the return of most of last year's produce vendors, and the addition of a few new merchants, including Hoboken Farms and Vesco Foods, Bishop said. Hoboken Farms offers frozen gourmet foods and artisan breads, and has a permanent booth at the popular South Street Seaport in New York City. Vesco's Pickles, Olives Etc. booth offers a greater selection of foods at cheaper prices than last year's version, Gem Golden.

Returning vendor, Fred Schieferstein of Schieferstein Farms in Clark, also has hopes for a good season.

"I'm expecting my volume to be down a bit, but I believe we will do well," he said, as he was beckoned by a customer.

Schieferstein touted the market, saying some vendors, like himself, offer something local grocers cannot: crops sold the same day they are picked at nearby farms.

"It's nice to purchase something at three in the afternoon that could've been picked at six in the morning. There is no taste like that in the world," Bishop said.

There are other strategies to ensure customers are satisfied this year, including changing market hours, shifting from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. to 3 to 7 p.m. The new hours are expected to have two benefits: cutting down on vendor's staffing costs and operating during times people are on the roads and likely to see the market during their daily commute.

As the barometer continues to rise, Bishop said more crops will be available, and more vendors are schedule to appear, offering many more state-grown products.

ASTHMA IN PETS

Diagnosing a cat or dog's asthma is largely a hit-or-miss process because coughing and wheezing, the main symptoms of asthma, can be caused by many things. For example, cats often cough when eliminating hairballs, and dogs who are coughing might have kennel cough. When making a diagnosis, your pet's veterinarian will run tests and perform a check x-ray. Once other sicknesses or obstructions have been ruled out a veterinarian will prescribe asthma medication. If the medicine works, a diagnosis of asthma will be made. Asthma is quite manageable, and most pets can lead normal, active lives. However, the disease is more serious in cats than in dogs and is unlikely to be cured.

As in humans, a strong immune system can play a vital role in helping to control pets' symptoms of asthma and to strengthen the body's defenses against environmental triggers. From surgery to basic nail clipping, we want to help ensure that your furry friend is as happy and healthy as can be. BOE to trim $1M from failed spending plan

By Joseph M. D'Alise
Staff Writer

LINDEN — The city school board will cut $1 million from its defeated spending plan, it agreed at a school board meeting two weeks ago.

The decision comes after a recent review of the budget by the City Council's Finance Committee, which suggested cutting the total $109.6 million plan by $1 million in administrative costs, mostly in the areas of transportation and travel.

Mayor Richard Gerbounka said the task was difficult for both the mayor's office and Board of Education. "The two committees...worked together to make this...decision," he said.

The budget was defeated April 21 by a margin of 124 votes. When the $105 million 2008-09 school budget was defeated by voters last year, the City Council only suggested making a $100,000 cut in supplies.

Gerbounka said the nation's current economic crisis prompted the large cut. "We need to save as much as we can," he said.

This year's original budget called for taxpayers with homes assessed at the city average of $148,800 to pay $88 more in the school portion of their taxes from last year. With the new cuts, the average taxpayer will pay $64 more.

Finance Committee Chair Jean Davis said the goal was to save money without losing teachers or programs. "I went into the first meeting...saying...it's time to take a bite out of the school budget."

Superintendent of Schools Rocco Tomazic said the cuts were difficult to make because the spending plan was already limited. "The budget we put out to the voters was already at bare bones."

Davis also said the decision did not come easy. "I hate to have to cut the school budget, because I hate to hurt the kids," he said.

Tomazic would not speculate on why voters rejected the budget.

"I am relieved the process has come to an end and am excited to move forward and teach our students," Tomazic said. "I feel like we settled this matter without [students] loosing anything or feeling the impact."

Budget: Supplies, election costs cut

By Joseph M. D'Alise
Staff Writer

KENILWORTH — Though only 12 percent of residents turned out to defeat the proposed school budget by a mere 23 additional votes against the plan, something had to be cut to "respect the views of the voters," Mayor Kathi Fiamingo said.

The original $21.5 million total budget must be cut by $174,036 allocated for supplies and election costs, the Borough Council concluded during several meetings in the last two weeks. "Cutting a district's budget is never something we enjoy doing," Fiamingo said. "We...chose items that would not directly affect...students."

Superintendent of Schools Lloyd Leschuk agreed with Fiamingo, saying the process of trimming the budget was difficult. "Our...priority was to avoid that which directly impacted the lives of children," he said.

The cut was officially approved by school officials during a special meeting May 18. The change will result in a $34 break for the average homeowner, who would have paid $101.35 if the original budget had been approved. The amended budget shows a $67.35 tax hike for a resident with a home assessed at the borough average of $167,500. The total average payment will be $2,877.76. Last year's budget passed, but the 2007-08 spending plan was also defeated, Fiamingo said.

A new 'course' for Oak Ridge

By Paul Greulich
Staff Writer

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders paid a visit to Clark on May 14 not only for a chance to host their official meeting in one of the municipalities they represent, but to kick off the 2009 Preserve Union County grant application process.

A total of $500,000 is available in matching grants to local historic preservation groups and municipalities.

The kickoff was marked by brief speeches by local and county officials at the historic Homestead Farm at the newly-christened Oak Ridge Park, formerly the Oak Ridge Golf Course. The 250-year-old farmhouse at the site is in need of preservation funds to help address a range of structural issues as well as termite problems.

The Oak Ridge site as a whole was also at the center of the public comments made to the freeholders by residents of Clark and surrounding municipalities during last week's meeting. In March, county officials decided to close Oak Ridge Golf Course and convert it into a park, citing declining usage and a budget deficit of more than $20 million. Preparations are now in place for the site to host a range of entertainment events this summer. However, the future use of the park remains largely undecided. The freeholders accepted suggestions from the public of possible forms of recreation that might be suitable for Oak Ridge.

Residents urged freeholders to consider the park as a location for activities including skateboarding, baseball, softball and a golf-inspired sport known as disc-golf.

While some residents were excited about the prospect of a new park in their town, others have been persistently critical of the county's decision to eliminate golf from the site. Golfers suggested that the lack of revenue plaguing the course stemmed from poor management and could have been easily resolved.

Clark resident Neil Boyle said the freeholders should have actively engaged those who used the facility the most.

"When you made the decision about Oak Ridge, nobody came here until tonight," Boyle said.

However, some Clark residents who are pleased with the county's handling of the local Esposito Park said they feel Oak Ridge will also be successful and popular in its new role.

"I'm looking forward to riding my bicycle in that park," said Clark resident Maureen Connell. "It'd be great for the kids to have someplace to play."

One of the most notable events set to take place at the new park this summer is the Summer Arts Festival, a series of weekly outdoor concerts in July and August, that has been conducted annually since the 1960s.

Mike Brennan, who works as assistant to the head of the Union County Department of Public Works, said changes to the facility have involved levelling off the T boxes, folding in sand traps, and levelling any steeply-graded slopes. Brennan said transforming the golf course into a park has not presented a major challenge.

"It wasn't a big earth-moving project," Brennan said. "It was just getting it ready for passive recreation."

The park will be open for passive recreation by June 21, when Center for Hope Hospice is scheduled to host a 5k walk at the site, county officials said.

LINDEN — Two years after a Roselle man was shot and killed on a residential street in Linden, an arrest has been made in the case, with the help of the Union County Homicide Task Force.

Kareem Prunty, 32, of Linden was arrested Friday in connection with the April 2007 murder of Gregory Fils-Aime, 28, after arguing at a local bar, according to Union County Prosecutor Theodore Romankow.

Prunty is accused of the shooting. Fils-Aime's body was found with several gunshot wounds to the torso on a residential lawn on the 1200 block of Roselle Street, near Cleveland Street.

Before his death, Fils-Aime had recently moved with his family from Irvington to a home on Crescent Street.

A joint investigation between the Union County Homicide Task Force and Linden Police Department determined the two men were arguing inside a local bar earlier in the night and both left shortly after, according to Romankow.

"As Mr. Fils-Aime walked west on Roselle Street, the investigation revealed...Mr. Prunty approached and fired several shots at the victim," Romankow added.

Prunty was charged with first-degree homicide and is being held at Union County Jail on $2 million bail.

The Homicide Task Force has successfully made a number of breaks in cases during the past several weeks, including arrests in a 1982 Plainfield homicide and a February murder in Elizabeth.

The March shooting of Roselle liquor store owner Jitendra Parikh, 64, is currently being investigated by the task force.

Authorities cited calls from citizens as the major reason they were able to break the decade-old cold cases.

"There may be people out there who know something about an unsolved homicide, even if it's a year or many years later," Holl said. "Sometimes all it takes is a call to one of our investigators to really reignite a case. Our guys never give up trying to solve a case."

Green Boot Camp will get tough

By Paul Greulich
Staff Writer

Middle School teachers looking for a crash course in the very latest environmentally-friendly or "green" educational topics may be candidates for Green Boot Camp — an intensive, hands-on program hosted by the county's Vocational-Technical Schools campus this summer.

The five-day course is available free of charge to Union County middle school teachers through a grant from Honeywell. The program, which is supported by the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, is designed to help educators get the latest information on teaching green and sustainable concepts to middle school students.

Steve Guglich, a life science teacher at Lawton C. Johnson Middle School in Summit said he is eager to participate in the camp.

"I'm really excited about it. I'm looking forward to seeing how I can implement all the stuff we hear about and actually teach about it,"

Guglich said. Guglich said it is important for kids to know how to implement "green" strategies in their daily lives.

"It sounds like its going to be a really intense but good program," Guglich said.

At the May 14 meeting of the Freeholder Board, county officials issued a resolution thanking Honeywell for its forward-thinking and financial support in the area of green education for the youth of Union County.

"I hope that every school district in Union County participates in this unique program," said Union County Freeholder Chairman Alexander Mirabella. "The knowledge gained by just a few educators can ripple out and touch thousands of children and families in every community."

Thomas Bistocchi, superintendent of the Union County Vocational-Technical School, said these programs are "incredibly valuable and important."

"The structure is to provide an energy conscience for young people. They begin to think about energy and become more aware of it so they understand that every little piece you do helps the entire environment," Bistocchi said. "The better we can translate this to young people, the better off we'll all be in the long run."

Bistocchi said the school expects about 20 teachers total to attend.

Kelly Reed, director of Honeywell Home-town Solutions said nearly 50 percent of Honeywell's portfolio is linked to energy efficiency.

"Honeywell is excited to sponsor the Boot Camp," Reed said. "It will help give teachers the information and tools they need to prepare students for green careers."

The program will use the Vo-Tech campus as a hands-on working laboratory, where teachers can explore interactive projects such as designing and building a wind turbine and a solar house. The program also includes the latest computer-based technologies for teaching a green curriculum.

Clark centenarian's secret: just 'enjoy life' with family

By Joseph M. D'Alise
Staff Writer

CLARK — President William Taft was inaugurated as the 27th president during a 10-inch snow-storm. The Queensboro Bridge first opened, linking Manhattan and Queens. The University of Minnesota became the first United States school of nursing. The North Pole was first reached by Americans Robert Peary and Matthew Henson.

It was a much different world in 1909, according to Jean Rathyen, who on Tuesday, celebrated her 100th birthday.

Rathyen currently lives in Clark with her daughter, Marjorie. She also has a son, Fred, three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Rathyen recently took the time to talk about life in the early 20th Century, how the world was a different place, as well as revealing some secrets on how to live a happy, healthy and very long life.

Q: When did you first move to Clark?

A: Well, I was born in Bayonne and moved to Clark in 1945.

Q: Did you ever work?

A: I worked for RCA in New York as a secretary for, I'd say, four or five years.

Q: What are some of your fondest memories growing up?

A: There was so much — that's tough. I lived through the first car, the first television, the first airplane. My fondest memories probably revolved around family. When I was married and when I had children, I guess would be my answer.

Q: What do you think was the most groundbreaking invention in the last 100 years?

A: Cars.

Q: What was the first car you drove?

A: That old Ford that kept stalling, the Model T. It was my father's first car.

Q: What is the biggest difference between the world now and the world when you were a young girl?

A: I don't know. People now aren't as nice as then. Now everybody is in such a rush doing this and going there.

Q: How did you celebrate your 100th birthday?

A: We went out to the Kenilworth Inn with all my friends and my family. I also got a letter congratulating me for the mayor and from Hillary Clinton.

Q: What kind of gifts did you receive?

A: I got a lot of flowers and

Jean Rathyen

some money and gift cards to restaurants.

Q: What are some of your hobbies?

A: I love to read, mostly love stories. I used to love to travel with my husband and I love going out to eat.

Q: Where was your favorite place to travel?

A: We used to always go down the shore, me and my husband Fred.

Q: Do you have any secrets to living a long life?

A: I don't have any secrets. I just ate and I slept. I also had a glass of wine every night with dinner. Just enjoy your life with good friends and a good family at home. I feel good, and I'm very happy.

Local artists take work on tour through town

By Paul Greulich
Staff Writer

CRANFORD — Residents and visitors were afforded a first-hand look at the work of local artists during an Artists Tour organized by the Jersey Central Arts Studios on May 17. The event allowed visitors to see artists at work in 11 different studios throughout the town.

JCAS President Deb Leber, whose own studio was one of the stops on the tour, said the event was very successful and created a buzz around the future of the arts in Cranford.

"People were excited about the potential arts center. They were impressed that there were so many artists locally," Leber said.

The tour began with a kickoff at the Hansen House, where attendees got a taste of what was in store for them with a small, but eye-catching display of work by the local artists they would be visiting.

Kate Fackina, a sophomore at Cranford High School, was among the volunteers helping sell tickets at the kickoff. Fackina said an arts center in the town would be appreciated by young people as well as adults.

Julie Barkin gives an art demonstration during the recent Artists Tour organized by the Jersey Central Arts Studios in Cranford.

"A lot of kids like art in this town," Fackina said.

Fackina said she hopes to have a studio of her own some day, though not necessarily in Cranford.

The JCAS is presently in negotiations with the crossing's broker, Jeffrey Realty, to lease studio space in the Cranford Crossing, a prominent mixed-use redevelopment project in the downtown with much open space. Leber said a concentration of studios that are open to the public can help to revitalize the downtown.

"We want the town to feel that there is economic value in the arts. That's one of our main goals," Leber said.

Township officials expressed support for the idea of JCAS taking up residence in a prominent downtown location such as the crossing, but stressed that the negotiations between JCAS and the broker is a private matter not involving Cranford's government.

"It'd be great if they come to terms and could have this in our town center," said Mayor David Robinson, who was present at the kickoff.

Public Affairs Commissioner Dan Aschenbach was also supportive of the arts initiative.

"This would be a real great thing for the town to have. It would help get the Cranford Crossing on its way," Aschenbach said.

Leber said the amount of money raised from the tour has not yet been determined as the money collected from tickets sold at individual locations has not been collected.

Paul Greulich can be reached at 908-686-7700 ext. 121, or at editorial@thelocalsource.com.

A day in the 'Park'

Cranford photographer Miriam Jarney displays some of the work she will display at the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders' exhibit of giclée prints entitled 'Images of Your Neighborhood Parks.' The exhibit is on display through June 1 in the Freeholders Gallery, located on the sixth floor of the Union County Administration Building, Elizabethtown Plaza, Elizabeth. The gallery is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays. Admission is free.

Art grants support Union County groups

For the 12th consecutive year, New Jersey State Council on the Arts has designated Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs as a "Major Service Organization." As a result, 51 Union County organizations that present arts programs in the county will receive a total of $90,295 from the Union County FY2009 Local Arts Grant Program.

According to Steve Runk, NJSCA executive director, designation as a "Major Service Organization" singles out Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs as one of the "anchor institutions that contribute vitally to the quality of life in New Jersey," and recognizes its "solid history of service excellence, substantial activity and broad public service." The office also received a certificate of excellence from NJSCA which commends it for exhibiting the highest standards of excellence in its artistry, operations, governance and public benefit.

"We are glad to offer a wide variety of wonderful activities to county residents through these programs," said Freeholder Bette Jane Kowalski, liaison to the Union County Cultural and Heritage Programs Advisory Board.

Some of the grant recipients include the following:

- Clark — Mother Seton Regional High School, $1,000 to support musical theatre production with choreographer and costumes.
- Cranford — CDC Community Theater, $2,325 for general operating support for three theatrical productions; Celebration Singers, $2,000 for music programs performed by adult and children's choruses.
- Kenilworth — Kenilworth Public Library, $1,000, for a series of art programming, including Hudson Shakespeare CO.
- Linden — Linden Public Library, $1,350 for a multi-disciplinary series of family-orientated cultural performances.
- Rahway — Alliance Repertory Theatre Co., $1,840 for general operating support for theater productions.
- Summit — Summit Chorale, $2,550 for three choral concerts for adults and students and a holiday program.
- Union — Restore Ministries, $2,850 for youth at-risk program utilizing drama, music and writing.

We need a reader-in-chief!

By Helen Argers
Correspondent

Dear Sir:

Just in case the economy, the wars and foreign affairs are not enough to keep you busy, I have a new assignment that may be the most important and most influential one that any president has ever undertaken.

The people of the United States are becoming more and more tied up in the entangling strings of the many Web sites or by some of the TV media that prefer to Twitter in one line or two or deal with gossip rather than reacting to your recent proud announcement: "I Am A Reader!"

We need someone that most of the country respects to set us on the right path — toward reading the great books. We need you to have us relishing the written word instead of texting in half words and having our ideas summed up in sound bytes.

You, President Obama, are, and have always been, a devoted reader. You are meant to be our communicator-in-chief! Not only do I judge that from your speeches, where it is obvious that you are inspired by "words," but from the list of favorite books you put out.

Biblically speaking: "To whom much is given, much is expected." You have been given the respect and votes of more than half the country, so I don't hesitate to ask you to give more than other presidents gave us. Yes, leadership. Yes, solving our country's problems. But other presidents have done that. Only you have the power to pass on your love of reading to the country.

That is why I recommend that, once a week or twice a month, you take on FDR's fireside chats and not talk, but read passages from one of your favorite books to the country. It can even be videoed via You

Point Of View

By Helen Argers

Tube. Think of the influence that would have! Why, libraries would be stormed. Book stores will sell out. The written word will once more be respected. You will even outdo Oprah in bringing the nation back to reading which, awakens our souls. The favorite books you have already mentioned are remarkable for their variety — from the works of Jefferson, Emerson, Lincoln and, of course, King. But you went beyond that. Mark Twain, for instance. I can just hear your voice reading that dilemma moment in "Huckleberry Finn" when Huck is trying to decide whether to turn in Jim, his escaped slave friend, as is the law. He anguishes about his Bible teachings that warn him breaking the law will mean he goes to hell. Yet remembering the grand times Jim and he had together, Huck decides, "All right, I'll go to hell!"

Those words have moved generations of readers. But in your voice, it will have the Harry Potter fans dropping those books and dipping into Mark Twain. And older people will remember why they loved reading Twain and take time to reread him.

Occasionally, make your readings just for children or young adults. That way, many children who never had the privilege that your daughters do of their father reading to them will be influenced to read books that widen their horizons.

But don't make it the easy books that look down on readers. I, as a novelist, having grown up loving words and their rhythms and the way they sink into your memory and give birth to light, know the more challenging novels you read, the deeper the joy and pride. As well as "Alice in Wonderland," give them glimpses of older classics with appropriate selections from works of such authors as Jane Austen and William Faulkner.

Occasionally, make your fireside reads be pure poetry. Having had a marvelous Elizabeth Alexander poem reading at your inaugural, I know you appreciate poetry.

Read, read to us and open the world of letters. You've turned the youth to chanting: "Yes, we can!" Rile them up to say, "Yes, we can read!" "Yes, we can love literature!"

Fewer novels are being read today or being promoted, since newspapers are cutting review sections where readers might hear about them.

Bringing together people to share a greater goal is the essence I feel of your victory. Spread that communal communication to us all by reading from great literature and/or current novels. Make the "word" important again. Spread the word. Read to us.

Be not only our commander-in-chief but our reader-in-chief.

HOROSCOPE

May 24 to 30

ARIES, March 21 to April 20: Aries, your eyes are open and looking for new possibilities. It could be romance, business or a combination of both. Either way, you'll impress the crowds with your charisma.

TAURUS, April 21 to May 21: Taurus, this week is a good time to get over some grievance you've been holding onto for some time. Let the wounds heal and get on with your life. Brooding won't help.

GEMINI, May 22 to June 21: Gemini, you're feeling aggravated with a coworker who feels he or she knows everything. Even though you know the truth, keep it to yourself so you don't start an argument.

CANCER, June 22 to July 22: Sometimes there's no avoiding the issue, Cancer. This week you have to meet it head on so you can get on with your life. It may take some time, but it will happen.

LEO, July 23 to Aug. 23: Leo, your enthusiasm might overwhelm family and friends this week, so don't be surprised if they don't share your level of excitement. Just embrace it all yourself and have fun.

VIRGO, Aug. 24 to Sept. 22: If you are single Virgo, this is your week for exploring new romantic opportunities. Attached Virgos can spend time with their partners strengthening the relationship.

LIBRA, Sept. 23 to Oct. 23: Libra, you feel a bad mood coming on but you know it is just temporary and will blow over. Gemini helps you get over the barrier a little quicker.

SCORPIO, Oct. 24 to Nov. 22: Scorpio, you feel pretty confident about what you want out of life and this week you set a plan in motion to get those things you desire the most.

SAGITTARIUS, Nov. 23 to

Dec. 21: There's nothing to be gained by dancing around an important issue, Sagittarius. You simply have to go for it this week and take the proverbial bull by the horns.

CAPRICORN, Dec. 22 to Jan. 20: You are feeling pretty good this week, Capricorn. Then some really good news comes your way and you will be on Cloud 9 for some time. Others are jealous of your fortune.

AQUARIUS, Jan. 21 to Feb. 18: Aquarius, you must be the disciplinarian at work or at home this week. You really don't relish the idea of wielding power, though, even though it must be done.

PISCES, Feb. 19 to March 20: Use your energy to round up people for a good cause, Pisces. Organize a march or a clean-up committee.

Also born this week: Priscilla Presley, Stacy London, Stevie Nicks, Joseph Fiennes, John Fogerty and Melanie Brown.

HEALTH & WELLNESS

New physicians join staff at Trinitas

Patrick Anderson, MD and Gara M. Sommers, MD, both board certified gynecologic oncologists, now lead the Gynecologic Oncology Program at the Trinitas Comprehensive Cancer Center.

Anderson and Sommers are both experienced in using the most advanced minimally invasive gynecological surgical procedures using the DaVinci robotic system.

Anderson completed his obstetric, gynecological residency and oncology fellowship at Albert Einstein College of Medicine and is a graduate of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey Medical School.

Sommers completed her residency at New York University School of Medicine and fellowships at Memorial Sloan-Kettering in New York, Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, Mo., and the Beckman Institute of Hope in Duarte, Calif.

In their new roles at Trinitas, Anderson and Sommers will collaborate with community physicians and Trinitas Comprehensive Cancer Center Medical and radiation oncologists to develop and expand clinical programs and support services for patients with gynecologic cancers. Their presence on the medical staff adds a new dimension of cancer care and treatment to the multidisciplinary team currently at TCCC.

Enroll in CPS-3

American Cancer Society's Cancer Prevention Study CPS-3 enrollment will take place at Governor Livingston High School, 175 Watchung Blvd., Berkeley Heights.

Volunteers are needed between the ages of 30 and 65 with no history of cancer for nationwide statistical research study. A short survey and small blood sample will be taken. This is the only opportunity to sign up in Union County.

For study information contact American Cancer Society at 888-604-5888 or on the Web at www.cancer.org/cps3.

Help fight cancer

You can make a difference in the fight against cancer. All members of the community are invited to learn about the upcoming American Cancer Society's Relay For Life of Clark event.

Volunteer committee members and individual participants are needed for event planning as well as day-of-event set-up. New teams and volunteer team captains are welcome to join as well.

For information, contact Stephen Frost, volunteer chairman at 732-986-4048 or via e-mail at frost4acure@yahoo.com or Betty Newborn of the American Cancer Society at 973-736-7771, ext. 2005, or via e-mail at beatriz.newborn@cancer.org. Information can Springfield squad in search of volunteers

Attention all Springfield senior citizens. The Springfield Volunteer First Aid Squad's greatest need is people who are interested in helping others.

The squad is seeking new members. No prior experience is needed. The squad will provide volunteers with the necessary training. The main requirements are that you are a caring person looking to help others and that you are in good physical health.

If you are interested in joining, a membership application is available online at www.springfieldfas.org/volunteer.html. Complete and sign the application then return it to the squad building, located at 10 North Trivett Ave. in Springfield. If you are not ready to join, but would like to get additional information, send an e-mail to membership@springfieldfas.org or call 973-376-2040 and leave a message. Someone will contact you to answer all of your questions.

If you are not sure if volunteering is for you, visit the volunteer site www.springfieldfas.org/volunteer.html and take some time to view the "You Tube" video.

Get control of anxiety

Programs geared toward helping anyone suffering from panic, anxiety and agoraphobia to cope with these disorders will be conducted in the Roselle Park and Clark areas, Wednesdays, from 7 to 8 p.m.

Learn to control panic attacks and anticipatory anxiety. Learn how attitudes and current thoughts affect panic and anxiety.

If you are interested in attending these meetings, call 732-940-9658.

Liroy recognized as distinguished lecturer

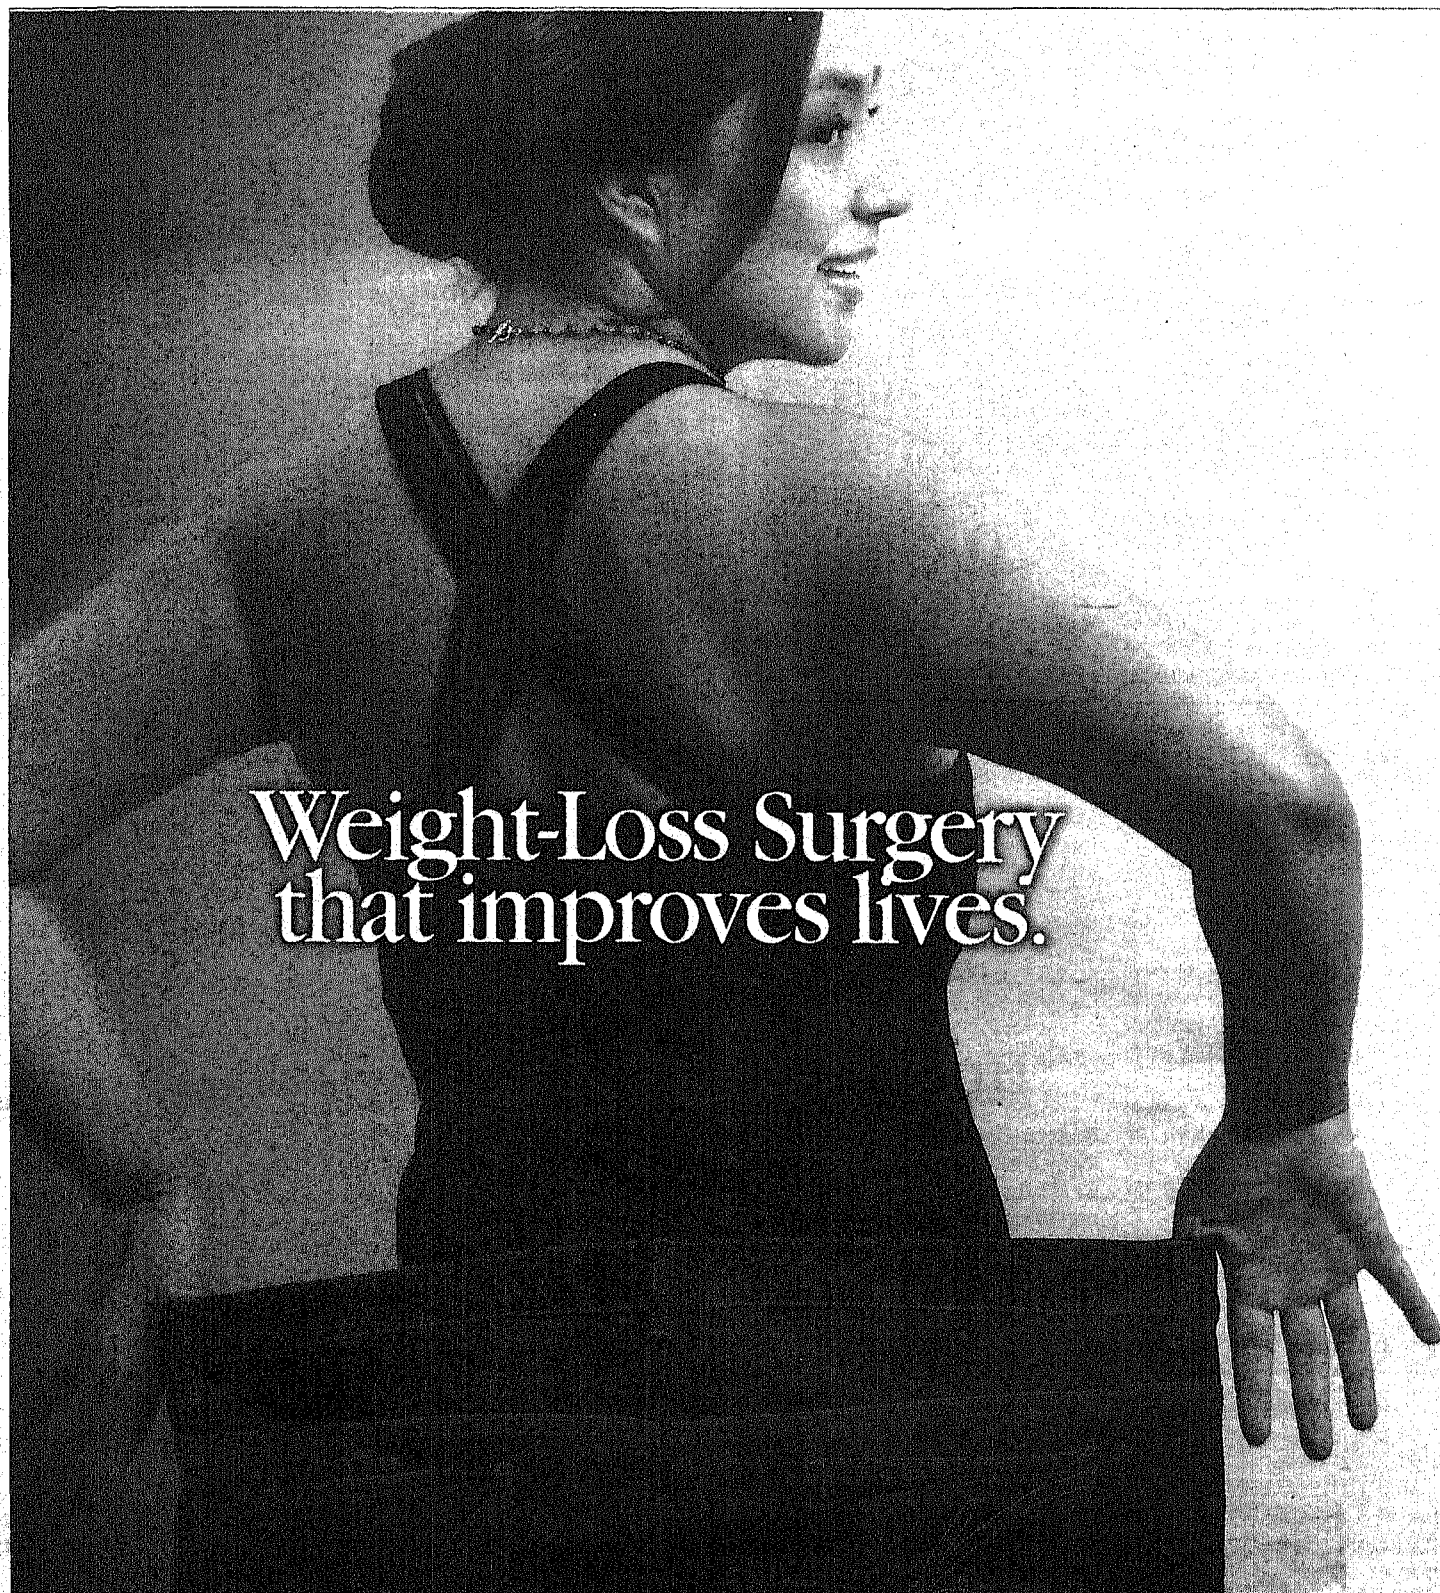

Cranford resident Paul J. Liroy, professor and vice chairman of the Department of Environmental and Occupational Medicine at UMDNJ-Robert Wood Johnson Medical School has been recognized as a distinguished lecturer in exposure science by the International Society of Exposure Science.

Liroy will join a group of professionals chosen by ISES to promote exposure science to scientific and policy audiences. Liroy is currently the deputy director for government relations at the Environmental and Occupational Health Sciences Institute, a joint program of UMDNJ-Robert Wood Johnson Medical School and Rutgers University and is the director of the Institute's program in Exposure Science.

Volunteers needed at local nursing homes

Dedicated, committed and caring people are needed to be volunteer advocates for nursing home residents in Union, Essex, Hudson and Morris counties.

Bergen Family Center, under contract with the New Jersey Department of the Public Advocate, Division of Elder Advocacy, Office of the Ombudsman, conducts the Volunteer Advocate Program.

Students give warning about drinking and driving

The Amber Pizzo Memorial Fund and The Union County Coalition for the Prevention of Substance Abuse recently sponsored the Union County Public Service Announcement Contest on Underage Drinking Prevention.

The contest was open to all high school students across Union County. Participants were asked to create a 30-second public service announcement to educate their peers on the dangers of underage drinking. Participants were required to submit a script and a story board but not a produced video which allowed for more students to participate.

A total of eight Union County schools participated including Elizabeth, Cranford, Westfield, Berkeley Heights, Springfield, Roselle, Hillside and Summit high schools.

Six sophomore students from Hillside High School were chosen as the first place winners. Hillside High school will receive a plaque and the grand prize of $1,000 for their winning entry. The prize money will be issued to the school for use in their audio/visual department and/or future prevention efforts done by the school.

The first runner-up submission was from Roselle Park High School and they will also receive a plaque and $750. The second runner up submission was also from Hillside High School and they will be receiving a plaque and $500. Countywide judges using a three-category independent judging system picked the top three winners based on creativity, effectiveness, and producibility. To further acknowledge all the hard work by all the participants, honorable mentions from each participating school were chosen.

The grand prize winning submission from Hillside High School entitled "Drinking and Driving is like Driving with Death" will be professionally produced by Lou Media with the expectation of having the final cut debuted at the Union County Red Ribbon drug awareness event. The second annual PSA Contest received 29 submissions this year, more than doubling the amount of participants from last year. This event has continued to be a great success thanks to the sponsoring agencies.

For information about this contest or any other prevention programs, contact Jason M. Victor at 732-381-4100 or visit www.preventionlinks.org.

Simple medical screenings can help prevent stroke

In the amount of time it takes you to perform a simple morning task such as brushing your teeth or buttoning your shirt, at least one person in the United States will have experienced a stroke.

Stroke is the United States' number three killer and a leading cause of serious, long term disability but black people are at increased risk due to high rates of factors such as family history, diabetes and high blood pressure.

Throughout the month of May, American Stroke Month, the American Stroke Association, a division of the American Heart Association, will offer Stroke Alert! — a free stroke awareness risk assessment and screening program.

The American Stroke Association is collaborating with various health organizations to provide stroke risk assessments throughout the state.

The American Stroke Association hopes to combat stroke's staggering toll on U.S. blacks — more than 100,000 suffer a stroke each year — with its Power To End Stroke campaign that includes various initiatives to educate and empower blacks to reduce their risks and improve their health.

"We have to make sure that people know the signs and symptoms of stroke because a person must get to the hospital as soon as possible to have a much higher chance of survival and to avoid potential disabilities," said Dr. Donald E. Casey, Jr., MD, president of the American Heart Association Northern New Jersey Regional board and vice president, quality and chief medical officer of Atlantic Health in Morristown.

The warning signs of stroke include the following:

- Sudden numbness or weakness of the face, arm or leg, especially on one side of the body.
- Sudden confusion, trouble speaking or understanding.
- Sudden trouble seeing in one or both eyes.
- Sudden trouble walking, dizziness, loss of balance or coordination.
- Sudden severe headache with no known cause.

"If we want to improve awareness, we must be more focused on educating those at increased risk and those who have the least knowledge about the symptoms," said Casey.

At particularly high risk for stroke are: stroke survivors; blacks; women; mature adults age 55 and older; hispanics and survivors of a cardiovascular event, such as a heart attack or heart surgery.

Each year about 60,000 more women than men have a stroke and at all ages stroke kills more women than men. Blacks have almost twice the risk of a first-ever stroke compared with caucasians.

Trinitas Regional Medical Center will be offering free stroke screenings during the month of May.

Call 1-888-4-STROKE for dates and times at a specific location or for information visit on-line at www.StrokeAssociation.org.

That's the beauty of Trinitas.

Today, the accomplished bariatric surgical team of Glenn Forrester, MD and Ajay Goyal, MD, is performing weight loss surgery at Trinitas Regional Medical Center. This team is a safety leader with a record of zero mortality in more than 1,000 procedures. Their expertise means that Trinitas can now offer minimally invasive laparoscopic techniques for both the gastric band and gastric bypass procedures.

Beyond surgical expertise, Trinitas offers bariatric candidates a complete continuum of care pre- and post-surgery. This is weight loss surgery at its best. And it's available right here, right now.

Training program to assist hospital staff

Runnells helps medical workers keep up with 'latest regulations'

A new online training program is helping the staff at Runnells Specialized Hospital of Union County hone their care giving skills while keeping up with the latest regulatory changes in the health care field. The program, called Silverchair Learning Systems, was developed especially for health care facilities like Runnells.

"Care providers at Runnells have dedicated themselves to a life-long process of training and learning," said Union County Freeholder Chairman Alexander Mirabella. "This new program takes advantage of the latest online educational technology and software to help them keep their skills and knowledge up to date."

Runnells Specialized Hospital is a state of the art Union County nursing care and rehabilitation facility that has served central New Jersey for more than 95 years.

It is known for its high quality service and its variety of events and activities for patients and residents.

The Silverchair program was introduced at Runnells earlier this year.

When fully up and running, it is expected to provide greater flexibility in scheduling staff training sessions, and make more efficient use of staff time. Silverchair users can also access the program from home.

The system is available in English and Spanish.

It provides quick access to the latest updates in health care protocols, such as influenza prevention and pain management. The courses also include emergency preparedness, residents' rights, and many other issues that are related to health care facilities.

The Silverchair system is one of a number of measures adopted by Runnells to continue providing high quality care and services, while streamlining administrative operations and enhancing the accuracy of its scheduling, record-keeping and reporting.

Runnells Specialized Hospital is located at 40 Watchung Way, Berkeley Heights.

Union junior left hander Amanda Kardys tossed a 2-hitter in beating Linden 3-1 in last Saturday's UCT softball championship game at Linden's Memorial Field. Kardys improved her three-year UCT record to 8-1.

Union captures its record 11th UCT softball crown

Linden downs Cranford in semifinals

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

LINDEN - Give Amanda Kardys a three-run lead on the big stage and she's going to be pretty tough to beat.

"There's no one stronger than her," Union senior catcher Hana Gross said.

Although the latter two of three first inning runs Union scored were unearned, they were enough of a cushion for Kardys, who allowed only one unearned run herself in the bottom of the first.

Sometimes you get a game where all of the scoring is done in the first inning and then the two pitchers settle down and are very tough to score on the rest of the way.

That was the story last Saturday afternoon at Memorial Field as second-seeded Union downed fifth-seeded Linden 3-1 in the 34th annual Union County Tournament softball championship game.

Union won its first crown since 2000 and its record 11th championship.

Linden won its only title in 1980.

Union scored three runs in the top of the first - with only the first being earned - while Linden came back with an unearned run in the bottom of the first.

As far as the scoring went, that was it.

Linden senior right hander Angela Riscinti settled down and was superb over her final six innings.

Kardys also found her groove and was nearly unhit-able the rest of the way.

It was a sweet victory for Union, which lost last year's title game here to Cranford 2-0.

"This one (holding the trophy in her hand) says No. 1 this time," said Gross, who will continue playing at Alfred University. "That's what we've played for all season. We wanted to win this real bad. We won this and our 20th game on the same day, which were two of our goals."

Union improved to 20-4 and won its second straight, while Linden fell to 16-9.

The Tigers were able to score two bizarre runs in extra innings to come back and take out top-seeded and three-time defending champion Cranford 2-1 in 10 innings last Friday night after Union came back with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to oust sixth-seeded Governor Livingston 3-2 in Friday night's first semifinal.

So, for the last UCT involving teams from the Watchung Conference and teams from the Mountain Valley Conference, the Watchung went 2-0 in head-to-head matchups Friday night. Next year a new Union County Conference will be in place, with the Watchung and Mountain Valley conferences ceasing to exist.

Kardys improved to 14-4 and finished 4-0 in the UCT for the first time. Her lifetime record is now 39-14 and her UCT mark 8-1.

She was 9-6 and 1-0 in the UCT two years ago and 16-4 and 3-1 in the UCT last year.

Riscinti, who defeated Union and Kardys 4-2 in Union last Thursday in a Watchung Conference game, fell to 7-6 and 0-1 in the UCT.

Union defeated Linden 5-1 at Memorial Field on April 8 in the first conference game between the squads.

This win over Linden at Memorial was a bit sweeter.

"We had a tough week after losing to Westfield and Linden, but we pulled through the last two games," said Gross, who had one of Union's three hits off Riscinti. "Linden has a great team and great coaches. We had our minds set to be champions and we came out and did it."

Kardys tossed a two-hitter, striking out five, walking one and hitting one batter. After a less-than-spectacular first inning, she allowed only three baserunners the next six shutouts innings.

"Amanda needed to believe in herself," Gross said. "She really came through for us."

Riscinti allowed six baserunners in the first inning, but only three over six shutout innings herself from the second through the seventh.

Dayton boys' tennis triumphs

The Dayton boys' tennis team captured the North 2, Group 1 championship for the fourth consecutive season Monday when the top-seeded Bulldogs downed second-seeded New Providence 4-1 at Kent Place in Summit.

Now Dayton will attempt to win the Group 1 state championship for the third straight year.

Dayton will play South Jersey champion Pennsville today at Mercer County Park in West Windsor in a Group 1 semifinal.

The other semifinal pits North 1 champ New Milford vs. the Central Jersey champion Point Pleasant Beach.

After the semifinal matches, the Group 1 state championship match will take place later today.

Head coach Scott Keele's team did not lose an entire match against New Providence Monday.

Dayton standout junior Dan Karlin drew with Dylan Glendinning 6-4, 2-6 at first singles and Jon Friedman drew with New Providence's Stefan Nonnenmann 5-7, 6-2 at third singles.

Jordan Gelband won at second singles, Colin Greten and Matt Neubauer at first doubles and Umber to Annunziata and Shawn Gutman at second doubles for the Bulldogs.

Dayton improved to 12-5, while New Providence fell to 13-3. Dayton also defeated New Providence 3-2 on April 30 when the Pioneers were 9-0.

In the Group 1 semifinals and final last year, Dayton defeated Central Jersey champion New Providence 3.5-1.5 in the semifinals and then South Jersey champ Point Pleasant Beach 5-0 in the final.

In 2007, Dayton defeated South Jersey champion Pennsville 4-1 in the Group 1 final after beating North 1, Group 1 champ Palisades Park 5-0 in the Group 1 semis.

Dayton blanked Ridgefield 5-0 in last year's sectional final at Memorial Field in Summit and the year before defeated Ridgefield 4-1 in the section title match at West Essex.

In 2006, the Bulldogs blanked Secaucus 5-0 in the N2, G1 final at Kent Place and then lost to Pennsville 3.5-1.5 in the Group 1 semifinals.

RC softball wins Summit Invitational

The Roselle Catholic softball team had something tangible to play for last Saturday and made the most of its opportunity.

Roselle Catholic defeated Summit 3-0 and then a red-hot Kent Place team 7-3 to capture the Summit Invitational championship.

In its first-round game against host Summit, the Lions received a one-hitter from winning pitcher Caitlin Abbate.

She struck out 10 and walked two.

Four Roselle Catholic players banged out two hits, with Natalie Santillo going 2-for-4 with one RBI.

After falling at Kent Place 3-2 on Friday - with Santillo slugging a two-run homer - the Lions came back to beat the Summit school Saturday.

Abatte allowed six hits and two earned runs in seven innings, striking out eight and walking two.

Kent Place was 17-4 and had won four straight before facing Roselle Catholic again.

Offensively for Roselle Catholic, Lisa O'Reilly was 3-for-3, with a run and an RBI; Sam Gniazdowski was 2-for-3 with an run and an RBI and Michelle Cocuzza was 2-for-4, with two RBI.

Kent Place defeated Rahway 10-3 in its first round game, with pitcher Rachel Uhlman winning her 17th game after tossing a nine-hitter, that included three earned runs, four strikeouts and two walks.

Jayne Pasternak went 2-for-4, with a triple and three RBI, while Nya Earrusso was 2-for-3, with a double, a run and an RBI.

Rahway improved to 5-10 after beating Summit by a 10-5 score in the consolation game.

Chantelle Lewis and Asia Huey drove in three runs and Natalie Lara two for the Indians. Cindy Rivera improved to 2-3 on the mound, tossing a seven-hitter that included three earned runs, five strikeouts and six walks.

Summit fell to 2-17, with Gina Stelluto going 2-for-4, with a run and an RBI.

Union, Cranford, Rah. track excel

By Jeff Cummins
Correspondent

The Union girls' track team loosened Cranford's grip on the county track championship last Saturday, ever so slightly.

Cranford and Union finished tied for the county title at 69 points apiece at the Union County Track and Field Championships held last Friday and Saturday at Hub Stine Field in Plainfield.

The result was fairly controversial, due to an error in communication. Some runners in the 200 meter dash thought there would be a final, while others were informed that they would only be running in their particular heat. Cranford sophomore Natalie Englese won the 200 with a time of 25.57, while Union's Ugonna Ndu, who was told by an event clerk that there would be a final, eased up slightly at the end of the race, finishing in 25.75. The result gave Cranford enough points to tie the team score at the end of the day.

Johnson finished third with 60 points, Rahway was fourth with 53. Plainfield sixth with 35 and Scotch Plains seventh with 31. Governor Livingston placed seventh with 28 points, Roselle eighth with 27, Westfield ninth with 24, Roselle Catholic 10th with 21, Summit 11th with 18, Dayton 12th with 15, Union Catholic and New Providence tied for 13th with 10, Elizabeth 15th with nine, Hillside and Kent Place tied for 16th with six, Oak Knoll 18th with four and Benedictine 20th with one. GL was also listed as finishing 19 with two points.

"I had two other teammates running in the 200 as well, and they were expecting there would be a final, but I talked to my coach, and he assured me there would be no final," Englese said. "So I ran pretty much with everything I had in the 200. I feel bad for the people who didn't know, but I guess the officials made a mistake and that was their way of going about it, not having finals and sticking to what they originally said."

Controversy aside, Englese and her teammates were happy with the title, even though they tied for the championship.

"It was just awesome to have a team title and to see our team finally come together, because we have so many different strengths whether it's Julianne Grandal throwing or Kelly Burke jumping, and we have a lot of good runners, both distance runners and sprinters," Englese said. "We were all so happy about it, whether it was a tie or we won it by ourselves."

In addition to her win in the 200, Englese captured the title in the 400, while Grandal, a senior, won the javelin title with a throw of 116-7. Burke, a junior, almost won two gold medals. She jumped 38-5.25 to top the triple jump record set by Johnson's Emily Vargas. Vargas, also a senior, responded with a jump of 38-9.5 to reclaim both the county record and the gold medal in the triple jump.

Burke fared much better in the pole vault, where her jump of 10 feet even topped her nearest competitors, Claire Smith and Julia Scales of GL, by a foot.

Cranford's strength is that it has several girls who are good at different events. Whether it's throwing, jumping or running, Cranford has a few girls who excel in each variety of event.

"It allows us to stay balanced and stay in competition in some of these bigger meets," Cranford coach John Schiano said. "That's how we were able to do so well in this meet. We weren't really expected to compete, but our depth and our balance throughout all the events really gave us that advantage."

Ndu and Cristina Vilsaint won gold medals for Union. Ndu captured the 100 meter hurdles with a time of 14.60, outracing Ernestine Rodgers of Rahway, who finished in second place with a time of 15.65, while Roselle's Genera Randall finished in third with a time of 15.99. Vilsaint easily won the shot put with a throw of 36-2.25. Najah Allen of Rahway threw 34-4.75 to place third.

On the boys' side of the meet, Rahway gained revenge over Union for its two-point loss to the Farmers at the Union County Relays, by scoring 110 points, which gave Rahway its first team championship in the boys' county meet. Rahway's closest competitor was host Plainfield, with 92 points.

Union Catholic finished third with 54 points, Westfield fourth with 43.5, Scotch Plains fifth with 42, GL sixth with 34, Summit and Union seventh with 24, Dayton ninth with 21, Cranford 10th with 11.5, Johnson and Elizabeth 11th with 10, Oratory Prep 13th with seven, New Providence 14th with six, Roselle Catholic 15th with four, Hillside 16th with two and Roselle 17th with one.

Pierre Darisme of Rahway won the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.22 and Mark Jones of Summit captured the high jump at 6-6.

Mike Scarfuto of Cranford was first in the shot put at 46-10 and George Osti of Union won the discus event with a throw of 133-2.

Rahway captured the 1,600-meter relay in a meet record time of 3:16.19. The season continues with this weekend's sectional meets at different sites. The group meets are the last weekend in May and the Meet of Champions is set for June 3 at South Plainfield.

Linden grid star Woodley to play on the next level

Will continue at Southern Conn. State

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

When Deon Candia took over as the Linden head football coach last year, he looked for senior players that would not only excel on the field, but become leaders in and out of the locker room.

One upperclassman he could count on was Sebron Woodley.

A seven-interception season by Woodley that helped Linden improve to 5-5 caught the eye of many small college scouts.

As a result, the 5-11, 185-pound Woodley - First Team All County by The Star-Ledger in 2008 - will continue on the Division 2 level at Southern Connecticut State University in New Haven, Conn.

Nearly a third of the 2008 SCS roster consisted of players from New Jersey, with many from Union County.

"I always wanted to play football in college," said Woodley, who will be one of nine players from Union County to compete for the North squad in next month's annual North-South All Star Football Game at Kean University in Union.

The SCS Owls compete in the Northeast-10 Conference.

"When I visited, the facilities and the weight room were great and the players sold me on the program," Woodley said.

Rich Cavanaugh is entering his 25th season as the head coach at SCS.

He is the winningest and longest tenured head coach in program history and has built on the outstanding tradition that was in place when he assumed the duties in 1985.

Woodley's college position will be in the secondary, most likely cornerback.

"I like to do everything, especially playing zone where I can see the field better," said Woodley, who grew up playing Pop Warner football in Roselle and then played as a freshman and sophomore at Roselle High School before finishing at Linden High his junior and senior seasons.

"Sebron came on really strong for us," Candia said. "He was also a backup quarterback, played receiver and was the holder on extra points. He played many positions well."

Woodley also considered East Stroudsburg, American International and Kutztown.

Woodley's play in the secondary this past season was a big reason why Linden improved by four games and just missed qualifying for the North 2, Group 4 playoffs.

In their sectional consolation game, the Tigers routed Bayonne 50-22 in Hudson County.

Linden almost knocked off North 2, Group 4 semifinalist Union on the road in the season-finale for both, falling 27-21 in overtime.

With his seven picks, Woodley was someone in the secondary who was always thinking interception.

"I just saw the ball and knew what I had to do," Woodley said. "The coaches put me in the right position."

Before he embarks on his Southern Connecticut State University football career, Woodley is looking forward to playing with fellow Division 1, 2 and 3 players who are looking to make an impact in the North-South All Star Game, which will be played at Kean for the first time.

"I want to try to have a couple of interceptions," Woodley said.

There's a reason for being selected to play in an all star game and I want to play like an all star in it and who people what I can do."

NORTH-SOUTH ALL STAR GAME LESS THAN 6 WEEKS AWAY

For the first time the North-South All Star Football Game will be played in Union County, with this year's 31st edition set for a 7 p.m. kickoff on Monday, June 29 at Kean University in Union.

Union County has a strong player and coaching representation, with this being the first contest not played at Rutgers Stadium in Piscataway since the 1997 game was played at The College of New Jersey in Ewing Township.

UNION COUNTY PLAYERS ON THE NORTH ROSTER:

TROY EASTMAN, (6-2, 190), RAHWAY, QB

Geminis and Entertainers win youth softball games

The following are Union Suffragettes Softball League results of make-up games played Sunday:

SENIOR DIVISION

Geminis 18, Capricorns 5: Michelle Cocuzza blasted a three-run homer and drove in six runs, while Alexis Kearny scored five runs and pitched two scoreless innings for the Geminis. Jennifer Puschak drove in two runs, Melissa Puschak had five hits, Adrianna Ferreira had three hits and Nichole Kearney drove in five runs on four hits and made an outstanding play at catcher for the last out of the game. Amanda Londino pitched well in her debut. Sydnie Simmons and Jess Dragone shared pitching duties for the Capricorns. Laura Corveleyn played her first full game at catcher and Claire and Olivia Corveleyn played well in the outfield.

Aquarians 10, Pisces 2: Jessie Ludolph pitched three scoreless innings and Melinda Kieri pitched three innings and had three hits, two of them triples for the 6-0 Aquarians. Stephanie Lawzno had three hits and drove in two runs and Monica Keller and Rachelle Anyebrant had two hits.

Libras 10, Comets 2: Lexi Laraway belted a bases-clearing triple and Nicole Fuscalo pitched well in relief for the Libras. Sam Gniadzowski and Nikki Laraway played well defensively.

Scorpions 16, Leos 14: All players Scorpion players contributed.

JUNIOR DIVISION

Entertainers 9, Farmers 6: Jessie McDonough started the game off for the Entertainers with a double and collected two more hits to go along with a complete game on the mound. Kelsey Krupa drove in the game's first run and reached base safely on all three plate appearances. The offense was further supported by Sienna Bach and Heather Kearney who each added two hits. Erika Grusinski drove in two runs with a single and Alanna Smith doubled in a run. The Farmers received a two-run double off the bat of Alyssa Ingallari in the bottom of the sixth.

Artists 16, Inventors 3: Suzette "Shorty" Garrido blasted a grand slam to end the game and seal the victory. Rebecca Shaw, Maria Tobon, Catie Stadler and Katie Wacater played solid defensive games, while Heather Butler and Stadler had strong pitching performances. Butler recorded her first ever strikeout. Stadler and Tobon had one RBI each.

Professionals 10, Explorers 4: Jasmine Bonaparte struck out 10 in four innings for the Professionals and also banded out two hits. Chelsea Jenkins had a couple of hits, while Itiya Barnos and Allison Pierce also hits safely with singles. Halle Sarkodie played well in the field.

In other action, the Competitors topped the Educators 19-1.

Pisces 6, Comets 4: Kelly Hoffman of the Pisces allowed only one run in 3 innings, while also hitting a home run and driving in two runs. Courtney Quintal pitched two shutout innings and made some outstanding plays in the field for the Comets. This game was made up last Saturday.

Geminis 17, Leos 1: Michelle Cocuzza slugged a home run and drove in five runs. Brianna Creegan, Adrianna Ferreira and Margaret Forde combined one a one-hitter, while also striking out eight.

Aquarians 18, Capricorns 3: Melinda Kieri pitched three strong innings and also blasted a grand slam. Monica Keller banded out three hits. This game was made up last Saturday.

In other action, the Libras defeated the Scorpions 13-4.

JUNIOR DIVISION

Educators 16 Diplomats 6: Alyssa Rivera, Daniela Santos and Stephanie Creegan led the offense for the Educators with eight hits between them. Amanda Rivera, Celia Rizzo, Jewel Owusu and Grace Gelcius played well defensively.

Farmers 17 Artists 16: Michelle Farone drove in two runs and hit a triple for the Farmers, while Alana Smith slugged a two-run homer.

Competitors 13, Professionals 6: Amanda Ferrigno hit for the cycle, with four hits and three RBI to lead the Competitors offensively.

Explorers 19, Entertainers 1: Winning pitcher Jasmine Bonaparte went the distance, striking out five. She also banded out three singles.

Summit tops ALJ for boys' crown

Lacrosse champs 5th time

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

For the second year in a row Johnson had a lead on Summit in the boys' lacrosse Union County Tournament championship game.

Johnson made its first appearance in the final last year and last Saturday night hosted its first title contest at Nolan Field in Clark.

With Johnson seeking its first championship and Summit's No. 2 state ranking on the line, the visiting Hilltoppers more than made up for a one-goal halftime deficit by shutting out the host Crusaders the entire second half.

Summit went on to a 9-3 victory, outscoring Johnson 7-0 in the second half after trailing 3-2 at the half.

The Hilltoppers, who improved to 16-1 with their 16th straight victory, outscored the Crusaders 4-0 in the third quarter and 3-0 in the fourth.

Johnson fell to 11-6. The Crusaders jumped out to a 3-0 lead in last year's title game at Summit's Tatlock Field before falling 7-6.

Summit has now won two consecutive UCT crowns and five of the first seven.

The Hilltoppers have appeared in all seven finals.

Johnson, which will next seek success in the Group 1 state playoffs, is now 0-2 in the final.

Summit is the favorite to capture the Group 2 state championship.

In Saturday night's win, Kyle Mahoney paced Summit with three goals. James Kennedy, Adolfo Arrieta and Marcel Godino netted two.

Brian Feeney made three saves, with Summit outshooting Johnson 33-9.

Vin Ferdinandi, Scott Klimchak and Brian Megill scored first half goals for Johnson.

Ferdinandi will continue playing at Virginia Military Institute, Klimchak at Rutgers and Megill at Syracuse.

Springfield Roadrunners boot Cyclones for fourth victory in six matches

The Springfield Roadrunners 13-and-under Flight 3 boys' soccer team came back in the second half to defeat the host Lenape Valley Cyclones 3-1 Sunday. Springfield improved to 4-1-1 with the two-goal triumph.

Lenape Valley is the only team that defeated Springfield so far this spring season.

Scoring in the second half for the Roadrunners were Matthew Pacheco twice and Asmar Johnson. Kevin Castebianco earned an assist on one of Pacheco's goals.

Playing well on defense for Springfield were Andre Maldonado, Patrick Zahn, Eric Pereira and Stephano Gonzaga. They limited Lenape Valley to three shots on goal.

Also playing well for the Roadrunners were Arrington Joyner-Corniffe, Noah Guber, Johnny Chumbiauca, Roy Bahar, Austin Lopes, Kevin Shulca, Kevin Chabla, Nile Gregory, Jason Barreira, Danny Micolta and Tyler Citrin.

Springfield is scheduled to play four games this weekend in the Chatham Memorial Day Tournament.

The Union softball team defeated Roselle Catholic, Johnson, Governor Livingston and Linden to win its record 11th UCT championship and first in nine years.

Farmers defeat Tigers for 1st county title since 2000

Riscinti allowed six baserunners in the first inning, but only three over six shutout innings herself from the second through the seventh.

"Angela was phenomenal," Linden head coach Cherie Zimmerman said. "She shut them down after the first inning."

Riscinti got Union senior shortstop Jessica Goncalves - who will continue at Richard Stockton University - to ground out to third on the second pitch of the game. Amazingly, somewhat, Union won Friday night and Saturday afternoon without Goncalves - one of the leading hitters in Union County - getting a single hit in either game.

Kristen Wilson then worked a walk on a 3-1 count and was moved to second on an opposite field single hit to right by Gross.

On a 1-1 count, Kardys then grounded out to second, with both runners moving up a base to second and third.

Then Riscinti walked Allie Davis on a 3-2 count to load the bases. Riscinti fell behind Kristen Scioscia as well and walked her on a 3-1 pitch to force in a run, with Wilson scoring and Union taking a 1-0 lead.

Union's next batter, Heather Baumann, reached on an infield error that allowed Gross to score to give Union a 2-0 lead, with the bases still loaded. Then Amanda Brando hit a ball to third, with the throw home too late to get Davis out. Brando was credited with an RBI on the 5-2 fielder's choice attempt that was unsuccessful.

Now Union led 3-0 and still had the bases loaded with two outs. Riscinti struck out Union's next batter on three pitches to end the top of the first and was then nearly unhittable herself the rest of the way, allowing only two singles the next six innings, one of them a bunt single.

"I was worried that we would have a letdown after Friday night's emotional win, but that was not the case," Zimmerman said. "We made some defensive mistakes in the first inning and that has been our nemesis all year."

To Linden's credit, the Tigers came back and got one run back in the bottom of the first, but - ultimately - it wasn't enough.

Sophomore third baseman Jackie Lima led off and reached on an infield error and on the same play moved to second base on another infield error, the latter one the result of a bad throw past first base. Sophomore center fielder Erin Walsh was then hit by a pitch, putting runners on first and second with nobody out.

Kardys reached back and struck out the next Linden batter looking before giving up a single to left field by senior catcher and Kean University-bound Courtney Melchionna that loaded the bases with one out.

Junior second baseman Alexis Frees managed to hit a 2-2 pitch to second base where she grounded out, but Lima came home to score to make it a 3-1 game.

Then with runners on second and third and two outs, Kardys managed to get her first strikeout swinging and prevent further damage.

After that, Riscinti and Kardys threw nothing but zeros.

NOTES: Union lost in its two previous trips to the final, both times to Cranford in 2002 and 2008.

Linden has lost two of the last three championship games.

Union won two titles in this decade. Cranford won the most with four, while Roselle Park also won two and Brearley and Governor Livingston one.

This was the first UCT final that Cranford wasn't in and also the first one that didn't result in a shutout since Brearley defeated Governor Livingston 2-1 in 10 innings in the 2005 contest, giving the Bears their first championship.

In the North 2, Group 4 playoffs, sixth-seeded Linden was scheduled to play at third-seeded North Hunterdon Tuesday in a quarterfinal. Union earned the top seed and was to host eighth-seeded Bridgewater-Raritan one day this week in its quarterfinal.

Linden lost at North Hunterdon 2-0 last year in the semifinals, while Union lost at home to J.P. Stevens 10-0 in the quarterfinals. Linden finished 20-9 last year and Union 24-4.

AT-BAT OF THE GAME: The bases were loaded and there were two outs in the top of the first when senior right fielder Kristen Scioscia stepped up to the plate for the Farmers after junior third baseman Allie Davis walked ahead of her. Scioscia got the count to 3-1 in her favor and was waiting for a good pitch to hit. She didn't quite get one and yet still had the plate discipline to take ball four. That gave Union a 1-0 lead and put the Farmers ahead for good. Scioscia gets credited with the game-winning RBI and it was the only one of the four runs in the game that was earned. Union's next two runs in the inning came after a Linden error and were unearned.

DEFENSIVE PLAY OF THE GAME: There were really no super outstanding defensive plays made by either team, so I'll go with the final out of the tournament. Down to its last strike, Linden pitcher Angela Riscinti hit an Amanda Kardys fastball to left field, with Union left fielder Heather Baumann making the catch. Union becomes UCT champions for the first time in nine years.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ing on June 1, 2009 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers, 512 Springfield Avenue, Summit, New Jersey, to consider an application affecting the property whose street address is known as 38 Fairview Avenue, Block 1703, Lot 19.

The conditions affecting this property and the reason for the application being heard are as follows: Applicant seeks a bulk variance that would permit the repair of a non-conforming driveway by replacing an impervious surface with a pervious surface.

Applicant requests any other waivers or variances as may be required by the Board or its professionals at the time of the hearing.

The application forms and supporting documents are on file in the Department of Community Services, 512 Springfield Avenue, and may be inspected on any workday during business hours, 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Any interested party may appear at the hearing and participate therein, subject to the rules of the Board.

 FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY
 PENDING ORDINANCE #2009-01

AN ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH THE SALARIES, WAGES OR COMPENSATIONS OF AND FOR THE EMPLOYEES OF THE FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY OF THE CITY OF SUMMIT, IN THE COUNTY OF UNION, AND STATE OF NEW JERSEY. (CWA - LOCAL 1031)

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY OF THE CITY OF SUMMIT. As follows:

SECTION 1. PURPOSE
 Salaries, wages, longevity and other compensation as set forth in Schedules A, B, and C, which are attached hereto and made a part hereof, are hereby fixed for the employees of the Free Public Library, City of Summit at the respective rates and sums shown therein effective as of January 1, 2009.
SECTION 2. PAYMENT
 All salaries, wages, longevity and other compensation for full-time employees shall be paid in bi-weekly installments within the ranges and according to the conditions herein set forth.
 Other part-time employees shall be paid in bi-weekly installments within the specified ranges.

SECTION 3. SALARIES
 Salaries for the various positions of employment in the Free Public Library shall be at or within the range of the minimum and maximum amounts as delineated on Schedules A, B & C, attached hereto and made a part hereof.

All individuals hired by the Library Board will be hired at the minimum step level in the position classification. Under exceptional circumstances, approval may be given to consider credit for experience outside of the City of Summit in the same position or type of work as his/her employment with the City of Summit. In such instances, upon approval of the Board, and individual may be hired on a step level above the minimum.

SECTION 4. LONGEVITY
 Employees represented by contract with the Library Board of Trustees shall comply with the provisions contained in those agreements.

SECTION 5. HOLIDAY PAY
 Employees represented by contract will be granted twelve (12) paid holidays in accordance with provision contained in those agreements.

SECTION 6. OVERTIME - Fair Labor Standards Act:
 Notwithstanding any other provisions of this ordinance, overtime compensation shall be paid in accordance with the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act as they apply to units of local government. If any provisions of this ordinance are administratively found to be in conflict with provisions of FLSA, the Director shall ensure that the requirements of federal law and regulations, when issued, are met.

SECTION 7. SALARY INCREMENTS
 Any employee whose performance review shows acceptable performance shall receive an increment in accordance with the step level of the position classification until the maximum for the position is reached.

Unless prohibited under the terms of a union agreement, the Director may withhold all or part of a salary increase from an employee for reasons of poor performance. This will be limited to situations in which the employee has received prior written notice of performance problems and has failed to correct the problem. This action may be taken only with the approval of the Library Board of Trustees.

Monthly anniversary dates for step increases and longevity shall be as follows:
 1. All anniversary dates will be January 1 and July 1.
 2. Any employee hired after January 1 or July 1 will be moved forward for the increases.

SECTION 8. STEP LEVELS AND JOB CLASSIFICATIONS
 Employees will be eligible to have salary adjustments within the ranges of Schedule B and C, as appropriate, listed below:

Performance Rating	Salary Increment
Unsatisfactory. The employee's performance is unsatisfactory, job standards are not being met, and major improvement is required.	0 steps; base increase may also be withheld
Need Improvement. The employee is making acceptable progress but needs improvement to meet the performance standards and criteria for the position. Progress is slower than would normally be expected.	0-2 steps
Meets Standards. The employee meets the job standards for the position. Progress in developing skills is at an acceptable pace.	3 steps
The employee exhibits no significant problems.
Exceeds Standards. The employee performs will above expected standards, exceeding normal performance standards and expectations in most areas.	4 steps

SECTION 9. PERSONNEL OFFICER
 The Library Director is hereby appointed as Personnel Officer.

SECTION 10.
 All ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed and this ordinance shall take effect 20 days after date of publication in accordance with N.J.S.A. 40A: 9-165.

4-11.1 is hereby created so as to cause business entities seeking to locate clothing bins within the Township of Clark to be required to be licensed.

4-11.2 Definitions. For the purposes of this Chapter, the following definitions are hereby adopted:

Non-profit making vendor - A person or business entity formed pursuant to the laws of the State of New Jersey as a not-profit corporation whose status as such as been approved by the Department of Treasury Internal Revenue Service, which conducts a business the proceeds of which are devoted exclusively to the purposes of a philanthropic, charitable or religious society or upon whose behalf he or she acts as agent, without or without pay, which locates or seeks to locate anywhere within the Township of Clark clothing bins the purpose of which is to receive and collect first or second-hand clothing of all types, the proceeds of which are used solely for non-profit purposes of the licensee.

Clothing bin - An enclosed container suitably constructed of metal or such other material as may be employed which is not susceptible to deterioration, forced entry, rusting or exposure to the elements within which residents of the Township of Clark may choose to place new or used clothing or materials of such type for collection by the licensee.

Licensee - Licensee shall mean any person or entity who has applied for, been issued, and holds a valid license in accord with the terms and provisions of this section.

Applicant - shall mean any person or entity who has applied for a license in accord with the terms and provisions hereof.

4-11.3 Requirements for the Placement of Clothing Bins for Solicitation Purposes. Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, no person or entity shall place, use or employ a donation clothing bin within the Township of Clark for solicitation purposes without first obtaining a permit from the Municipal Clerk (which permit is approved by the Township Council). Permits shall be renewable on an annual basis in accord with the terms hereinafter set forth.

4-11.4 Permit Fee. There shall be an annual permit fee in the amount of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) per annum to be paid to the Township Clerk in order to offset the cost involved in enforcing the provisions of this Chapter.

4-11.5 Eligibility. Only non-profit corporations as defined hereinbefore shall be eligible for the issuance of a license pursuant to the provisions hereof. At the time of application, the applicant shall submit to the Township Clerk evidence of its non-profit status in the form of a copy of its Certificate of Incorporation and non-profit status and together with its approval by the Internal Revenue Service of its non-profit status.

4-11.6 For-Profit Entities and Companies. For-profit entities and companies that pay royalties to charities in order to utilize the charity's name and status on their bins do not qualify as licensees under this Ordinance. The purpose of the Ordinance is to license only legitimate not-for-profit entities engaged in this endeavor on a not for profit basis.

4-11.8 Application Requirements. The application for obtaining a permit shall include:

a. The name and telephone number of the non-profit entity seeking the license and any person who is an officer or agent at which such person can be reached during normal business hours. For the purposes of this subsection, an answering machine or service unrelated to the person does not constitute a bona fide office;

 b. The location where the bin would be situated, as precisely as possible. A licensee hereunder may be issued for location only in such zones in which such use is a permitted use;
 c. Written consent from the property owner to place the bin on his property;
 d. The manner in which the licensee anticipates any clothing or other donations collected would be used, sold, or dispersed, and the method by which the proceeds of collected donations are to be utilized by the licensee.

4-11.7 Display of Permit. The following information shall be clearly and conspicuously displayed on the exterior of the donation clothing bin:
 a. The permit number and its date of expiration;
 b. The name and address of the registered entity which owns the bin, and of any other entity which may share or profit from any clothing or other donations collected via the bin;
 c. The telephone number of the licensee's principal office in the State of New Jersey, and, if applicable, the telephone number of the principal office of any other entity which may share or profit from any clothing or other donations collected via the bin. For the purposes of this subsection, an answering machine or service unrelated to the person shall not constitute a principal office;

d. In cases when any entity other than the licensee which owns the bin may share or profit from any clothing or other donations collected via the bin, a notice, written in a clear and easily understandable manner, indicating that clothing or other donations collected via the bin, their proceeds, or both, may be shared, or given entirely to, an entity other than the person who owns the bin, and identifying all such entities which may share or profit from such donations; and
 e. A statement, consistent with the information provided to the Township in the most recent permit or renewal application, indicating the manner in which the owner anticipates any clothing, or other donations collected via the bin would be used, sold, or dispersed, and the method by which the proceeds of collected donations are to be utilized by the licensee.

4-11.8 Receipt Investigation of Complaints Relative to Donation Clothing Bin. The Police Department and/or Construction Official shall receive and investigate and enforce any complaints regarding the licensee, location of any bin, or any other complaint with respect to the violation of this Ordinance. Whenever it appears that a licensee has engaged in, or is engaging in any act or practice in violation of this Ordinance, the licensee shall be issued a warning directing the correction of the violation within 10 days. Failure to abate the violation will cause the Township Council to adopt a resolution terminating the license, in which case the bin will be seized or removed at the expense of the licensee who placed the bin, and any clothing or other donations collected will be disposed of as refuse.

4-11.9 Additional Penalties. Remedies. In addition to any other penalties or remedies authorized by the laws of this State, any person who violates any provision of this Ordinance or the provisions of P.L. 2007, c.209 (N.J.S.A. 40:48-2.60, et seq.) shall be:
 a. Subject to a penalty of up to $500.00 for each violation. Each day the violation remains unabated shall constitute a separate offense and continuing violation and subject the licensee to continuing penalties.
 b. The Township of Clark may bring this action in the Township of Clark Municipal Court or the Superior Court of New Jersey as a summary proceeding under the Penalty Enforcement Law of 1999, P.L. 1999, c.274 (N.J.S.A. 2A:58-10 et seq.), and any penalty monies collected shall be paid to the chief financial officer of the Township; and
 c. Deemed ineligible to place, use, or employ a donation clothing bin for solicitation purposes pursuant to this Chapter and P.L. 2007, c.209 (N.J.S.A. 40:48-2.61).
 d. A person disqualified from placing, using, or employing a donation clothing bin by violating the provisions of P.L. 2007, c.209 (N.J.S.A. 40:48-2.60 et seq.) may apply to the Township Council of the Township of Clark to have that person's eligibility restored. The Township Council may restore the eligibility of an entity who:
 (1) Acts within the public interest; and
 (2) Demonstrates that he made a good faith effort to comply with the provisions of this Chapter and P.L. 2007, c.209 (N.J.S.A. 40:48-2.60 et seq.), and all other applicable laws and regulations, or had no fraudulent intentions.

SECTION 2. Inconsistent Ordinance. Any ordinances inconsistent with the foregoing are hereby repealed to the extent of such inconsistency.
SECTION 3. Effect. This Ordinance shall take effect upon adoption and upon publication according to law.

Money-saving travel tips

With summer upon us once more, the summer vacation season is about to hit full swing. With the economy suffering through a recession, however, travel industry forecasters are predicting a slow season ahead as vacationers forgo their travel plans during these trying financial times.

But saving on travel doesn't have to mean staying home entirely. Rather, there are ways for vacationers to still hit the road without breaking the bank:

- Do your homework. Good deals are out there, it just takes time and effort to find them. Many people are familiar with the variety of Web sites such as Orbitz or Hotwire that offer discounted airline tickets. While these sites are a valuable resource, they should not be your final destination when looking for deals.

Often times, these discount sites can be better as a barometer, showing you the variety of airlines that travel to a given destination. But when you go the extra mile and visit the individual airlines' Web site, you're likely to find a less expensive flight there than you would on the discount sites. Also, don't forget to check with a local travel agent for deals.

- Visit off-season. If you can't afford to travel during the peak vacation season, great deals can be found during the off-season. Hotels need business during the off-season, and they will often provide great deals to entice travelers. The added benefit of vacationing in the off-season is it's likely to be far less crowded with fellow tourists, perhaps providing a more intimate and relaxing feel to your vacation.

- Subscribe to alerts and newsletters. Travel Web sites and even some travel agencies provide customers with alerts and newsletters that are sent out when airlines or hotels are offering discounted rates. These alerts and newsletters don't necessarily demand an immediate response, but the sooner you act the more likely you will be to get a great deal.

Visiting a resort during the off-season when guests are sparse is one way to save money on travel.

proudly presents

A classic love story is brought up-to-date in one of the most stunning theatrical spectacles of all time. In "Miss Saigon," Alain Boublil and Claude. Michael Schönberg (the creators of "Les Misérables"), along with Richard Maltby Jr., bring Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" to the modern world in a moving testament to the human spirit and a scathing indictment of the tragedies of war.

Seasonal entertaining made easy

It's time to dust off the outdoor furniture, fire up the grill and get ready for a season of warm-weather fun. Statistics indicate that the spring and summer months are peak times for parties and other social functions. A simple tour of your neighborhood will corroborate those claims as you'll see people gathered for backyard bash-es all over town.

As this season gets into full swing, it's best to ready yourself for the entertaining you, too, will be doing. Here are some tips that can set your event apart from the others:

• Become a culinary grill-master: Grilled and barbecued food and the warm weather go hand in hand. So sure up your skills when cooking over an open flame. Key things to consider are cooking times for the foods you'll be serving. Poultry will take longer to cook than meats, so partially cook it ahead of time indoors if you want to serve your drumsticks alongside your franks and burgers. Seafood cooks in a snap, so that should go on at the very last moment.

Create foolproof burgers — a barbecue staple — by forming homemade patties with a small ice cube housed inside the center of the ground beef. As the burgers cook, the cube will melt and keep the burger moist. For innovative flavors while grilling, experiment with marinades and even aromatic woods that can be placed with the coals, such as mesquite.

• Explore drink mixology: Light and refreshing beverages complement warm-weather parties, so have a variety of drinks on hand to appeal to the palette — from cocktails to non-alcoholic refreshment. Think unique when crafting drinks and move beyond the standard fare.

Warm-weather entertaining is a time for friends, family and fun. With a few simple ideas, you can host your own event and enjoy it as well.

Exploring inexpensive family vacations

When an economy begins to suffer, few industries get hit harder than the tourism industry. Typically, vacationers choose to stay home during a recession, as money is tight and futures are less certain than during economic boom times.

Considering the current state of the economy, it's no surprise many families are choosing to save money this year and forgo their annual vacations. However, families staying home this vacation season don't have to spend that valuable vacation time on the couch. The following inexpensive ideas can help families make lasting vacation memories while protecting their bottom line as well:

- Visit family: Visiting relatives for vacations can be a great way to reconnect with family and save money at the same time. If planned ahead of time, families can arrange to visit their relatives and save money by staying with family rather than in a costly hotel. Even if you need to fly, the money you save on hotel accommodations can make the cost of flying much easier to handle.

- Do some local sightseeing: Though you might not realize it, the country has history nearly everywhere you look, including in your backyard. Appreciating the country's history doesn't have to be limited to costly vacations to tourist attractions such as Ellis Island or the Liberty Bell. Chances are, there's just as much local history to explore and appreciate in your own neck of the woods, and doing so won't force you to break the bank. Day trips to local historical sites can be as valuable an experience as traveling far and wide to experience the nation's vast and storied history.

- Visit the local amusement park: For kids, few days are better than days spent at the amusement park. And it doesn't have to be Disney World for kids to have fun. The local amusement park will suffice for kids and parents alike, and it will do so at a fraction of the cost of traveling to more popular and expensive amusement parks.

Trips to the local amusement park can be fun for kids and parents alike while also helping parents save money and stay closer to home in a difficult economy.

Oak Knoll launches program for girls in grades 6-8

Oak Knoll is proud to introduce Summer of Discovery, an Oak Knoll Adventures Program providing a unique learning experience for sixth- through eighth-grade girls. Through an innovative academic curriculum and an exciting wellness program, participants will have the opportunity to challenge their mind all while having fun! Two two-week-long sessions will run July 6-17 and July 20-31.

Participants will enjoy a busy day of activities between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. In session one, "Global Consumption: We Are What We Eat!," participants will work collaboratively to utilize 21st-century skills and technology to understand an individual's impact on the global environment.

Through hands-on scientific exploration and discovery, they will learn about air and water pollution, plant and animal species, and local and global consumption, focusing on the food we eat. As participants explore these varied topics, they will work together to produce an eco-friendly electronic publication to educate their chosen audience on the culmination of their research.

During session two, "Eco-Fashion Revolution: You Are What You Wear!," participants will work collaboratively to utilize 21st-century skills and technology to understand the fashion industry's impact on the global environment. They will explore our use of resources and determine the environmental impact of individual and global consumption.

Students will research international fashion merchandisers for their eco-friendly products and examine the need for more products to be made from recycled materials. Participants will explore the need for a more environmentally friendly fashion industry and create a fashion item using renewable sources.

For information, call 908-522-8186 or visit www.oakknoll.org to learn more about Summer of Discovery in the "Summer and Afterschool Adventures" section.

Enjoy adventure-filled summer

Summer Adventures at Oak Knoll is a great place for children to spend all or part of their summer.

Their goal is to create an environment where your child can interact with other children, make new friends and develop social skills. This year's sessions run June 22 through Aug. 14.

Summer Adventures offers programs for preschool campers all the way through middle school campers.

For information or to learn more about Summer Adventures in the "Summer and After-school Adventures" section, call 908-522-8186 or visit www.oakknoll.org.

Summer sun may not be fun for everyone

For most people, sun exposure is a part of spring and summer. After a long winter spent inside, most people can't wait to head to a nearby lake or ocean and enjoy the warmer air of the fairer seasons.

For many of those same people, overexposure to sun is also a big part of spring and summer. With the tanning craze still in full swing, hitting the beach or the park to catch a few rays is as popular as ever. However, overexposure to the sun is no less dangerous than it was 20 years ago. While some might look at a sunburn as an annual rite of summer, that sunburn is actually a condition known as photodermatitis, and even those who aren't fair-skinned are potentially at risk.

What is photodermatitis?

Photodermatitis is an abnormal reaction to ultraviolet rays from sunlight. Sunburn is a form

Safely turn a yard into a play area

Yards can add a lot to a home. For gardeners, a sprawling outdoor space can act as a weekend getaway of sorts, allowing homeowners the chance to go outside in the spring and summer sun and escape all of life's other distractions.

For parents, a yard can be a great place to let children play and enjoy themselves, all within viewing distance of mom and dad's watchful eyes.

Though backyard playgrounds might not be as prevalent as they once were, that doesn't mean they're still not fun for children. Of course, a backyard play area is only as fun as it is safe, so parents considering creating one for their children should consider the following tips before beginning such a project:

- Be mindful of drainage. Building a play area in a spot on the lawn that doesn't have proper drainage is asking for trouble. During winter, such areas are likely to have excessive ice, threatening children's balance and potentially leading to injury. Even in warmer months, poor drainage could result in puddles after spring or summer rains, attracting mosquitoes and other insects and making children more susceptible to bug bites.

- If possible, build in a relatively shaded area. While it might not be possible to create the play area entirely in the shade, try to keep as much as possible out of the sun. This will protect children from the sun, particularly during those hot summer afternoons when children love being outdoors but UV rays are at their most harmful.

- Build away from patio or barbecue areas. Erect play areas away from patios or barbecue areas. In addition to concrete sidewalks that can hurt children, you won't want children playing anywhere near charcoal, starter fluid or propane tanks.

When building a backyard play area for children, it's important to consider several safety issues before starting the project.

Exposure to the sun can do damage to the skin

(Continued from Page 7) of photodermatitis, which can manifest itself in a rash, scaly patches on the skin or even blisters. For some people, it can be a chronic condition, wherein they're certain to have this abnormal reaction whenever their skin is exposed to UV rays.

What signs indicate photodermatitis?

Photodermatitis is more than just sunburn. In addition to the redness and pain associated with sunburn, symptoms of photodermatitis include hyperpigmentation or dark patches on the skin, lesions that resemble eczema — a condition in which patches of skin become rough and inflamed, with blisters resulting in itching and bleeding — chills, headache, fever and nausea. Fair skin alone rarely produces photodermatitis symptoms when a fair-skinned person gets a sunburn. This highlights the point that photodermatitis is more than a sunburn, and can be the result of additional factors beyond fair/sensitive skin.

Who is most at risk?

People with fair to light skin remain very susceptible to sunlight. In addition, those with blond or red hair and green or blue eyes also tend to be more sensitive, as does anyone taking any of the aforementioned medications.

A great many people also put themselves at a greater risk by allowing themselves to be exposed to harmful UV rays throughout the summer months. Exposure longer than 30 minutes greatly increases a person's risk for photodermatitis. Exposure between the hours of 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. only compounds that risk, as 50 percent of UV radiation is emitted during that time period.

Burgers and drinks: entertainment made easy

 must-have for anyone's personal bar inventory because its versatility and distinctive taste works well in many settings — and the Sambuca recipe has remained virtually unchanged since its inception in 1945, by spirit purveyor Angelo Molinari. Today, Molinari Sambuca Extra is the primary choice of Sambuca lovers everywhere and is, by far, Italy's favorite. Sambuca can be enjoyed as an after-dinner digestive. It's also the perfect companion to coffee, particularly espresso, and it is often enjoyed chilled ice cold, or as part of delicious desserts and other recipes. It can be especially versatile for summertime entertaining when mixed with seasonal berries and other refreshing ingredients to create innovative drinks. Here's a recipe to get you started.

• Keep it simple: Summer-time entertaining should be carefree and informal. Good food and drinks done well will go a long way toward keeping guests satiated. As host or hostess you also want to be able to enjoy your event, so prep as much as you can in advance a day or two before your party.

Enlist the help of a friend or family member to serve as the resident bartender to keep tabs on guests' consumption and safely steer them elsewhere when they've had too much.

Music camp provides unique experience

A unique camping experience continues this summer in Stokes Forest fusing the best of two worlds: music and nature. Established in 1992, the Stokes Forest Music Camp continues to offer students sessions of intense music making, combined with environmental studies and recreational activities. The Preparatory Center for the Arts, a division within the renowned John J. Cali School of Music at Montclair State University, developed the camp's curriculum and continues to oversee its musical activities and endeavors. The Preparatory Center was established in 1976 to provide musical education and training for all age groups.

Through the years, the Preparatory Center has served as a supplemental musical enrichment for some and comprehensive musical training ground for others who have gone on to pursue careers in music. The Preparatory Center for the Arts and its programs are dedicated to providing students of all ages, backgrounds and levels of ability with the experience of learning music in an encouraging environment intended to enhance creative growth and promote a lifelong understanding of and appreciation for the musical arts as well as creative expression.

The New Jersey School of Conservation provides the beautiful campus where the Stokes Forest Music Camp is offered and the environmental experts who run ecology classes, hikes and activities. It is a school within the College of Science and Mathematics at Montclair State University and serves as the Environmental Education Field Campus for the University. It also has the distinguished title of the oldest university-operated environmental education center in the nation. The School of Conservation is located 57 miles from the Montclair State University campus on a 240-acre tract of land located in Stokes State Forest in Sussex County.

S.T.A.R. Camp has many summer programs

Welcome to S.T.A.R. Camp for students entering grades one through eight. Running six one-week sessions from June 29 to Aug. 7, S.T.A.R. Camp, standing for Sports, Theatre, Arts and Recreation, offers campers the opportunity to sample many different activities throughout the day, as well as an inclusive lunch program and special events and trips.

Under the leadership of Ralph Pacifico, MKA's director of children's sports and programming, head varsity baseball coach and the highly successful director of 'Bitty' basketball and baseball camps, together with his wife, Amy, an experienced teacher with more than 16 years experience in the West Orange public school system, S.T.A.R. Camp provides a unique summer opportunity for high level instruction from some of the area's best-known coaches, including Essex County Coach of the Year Injoo Han, field hockey, MKA's state championship-winning coach and NJ Coach of the Year Mike Tully, volleyball, and members of the MKA varsity football coaching staff.

For those students interested in theater and the arts, local professionals will be on-hand to lead theater and dance workshops, together with a state-certified art teacher who will provide campers with the ultimate experience in both performing and studio art.

If you are searching for a unique, innovative and exciting way for your child to spend his or her summer, then Brookside Day Camp is the place to be! The Brookside Day Camp is a New Jersey certified summer camp that provides a caring, child-centered environment where each camper is encouraged to grow and learn.

Your children are kept happy and busy through an array of hands-on daily activities. Campers will enjoy daily swim instructions, as well as free swim, arts and crafts, nature, music and movement, cooking, and a wide variety of organized sports and games. Brookside Day Camp is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will run for seven weeks, from June 29 to Aug. 14, for boys and girls ages 4-10.

To accommodate parents' busy work schedules, weekly enrollment, extended a.m. and p.m. hours, an optional hot lunch program and bus service are all available. Ice Cream Socials, Carnival Craze, Parental Swim Observation Days, Wacky Water Fun, After Camp Swim Parties and theme days are just a few of the exciting things planned for your child this summer. Monthly group tours are available beginning in February and major credit cards are accepted. So, take the first step in providing your little ones with an unforgettable summer of fun and friends by calling The Montclair Kimberley Academy today at 973-783-6438. Look out for our 2009 brochure coming soon!

Stoke Forest Music Camp offers comprehensive programs

Making youth sports fun again for children

Thousands of children participate in some sort of organized sport, whether it is school-related or on an independent team. Children as young as 4 are now playing organized soccer and baseball. However, with the pressure to succeed put on children so early, there are many people who wonder if the benefits of youth sports participation outweigh the negative aspects.

Consider these myths and revelations:

Myth: My child should play sports — and begin early — because he or she could eventually earn a college scholarship.

Fact: According to research by the National Center for Educational Statistics, less than 1 percent of the children participating in organized sports today will be good enough to land a college scholarship. There are very few young athletes who will go on to be the Tiger Woods, David Beckham, Michael Jordan and Venus Williams of the future. Putting stock in youth sports simply for Children benefit from youth sports in a number of ways when the focus is put on fun and not winning.

the fame or fortune it may bring is being short-sighted and frivolous, say experts.

Myth: Winning is important, and it's good to teach children early on to strive for success.

Fact: Various studies show that 73 percent of children quit their childhood sport by age 13 because it ceases to be fun. Pressure from coaches and parents simply doesn't make it worthwhile for children to play any further. Children should be encouraged to play for the fun of it and not for the potential trophies and medals they could win.

With these clarifications in mind, parents, coaches and caregivers need to discover how to make sports fun again for children and motivate them in positive ways.

Parents should regularly attend games and practices to see how player-coach interaction unfolds. Physical or verbal altercations should not be tolerated and do not motivate players in a positive way.

By making changes to the way adults view youth sports, there is the greater likelihood for children to enjoy themselves for the love of the game.

Schering-Plough and New Jersey Catch Some Rays

By Rod Hirsch

Parking decks continue to sprout across New Jersey like so many cactus plants in the Arizona desert. Yet today these drab, monolithic concrete structures are more akin to grey rainbows anchored in pots of gold.

Parking decks – and other similarly built structures – hold bright promise for helping New Jersey meet the goals of its ambitious Energy Master Plan – to reduce energy consumption by 20 percent while generating 30 percent of its energy needs from renewable energy like solar and wind power by 2020.

The rooftops of these multiple-story structures provide an ideal platform for the installation of environmentally friendly solar panels used to generate electricity, much like the endless stretches of barren desert floor in the Southwestern United States are being transformed into solar farms that produce electricity.

Global health care giant Schering-Plough last month became the latest New Jersey company to “go solar.” The company literally threw the switch on one of the largest solar energy systems in the United States and the largest in New Jersey, an innovative network of 22,000 solar panels installed on the rooftops of seven buildings at its Summit campus.

The 1.7 megawatt system, installed over a 15-month period by PPL Renewable Energy, is expected to deliver about 12 percent of the energy needs at the Summit facility annually. That is the equivalent of enough electricity to power 200 homes during peak hours.

While helping to reduce reliance on more conventional fossil-based fuels, the solar project also takes advantage of an innovative commodity brokerage system that will trade SRECs – Solar Renewable Energy Credits – and replace a costly rebate program that had helped launch solar initiatives in the state with a robust free market system.

The project also embodies a classic win-win situation for a partnership forged between private enterprise and state government, with tangible economic and environmental benefits.

It is a symbiotic business and environmental relationship that benefits all partners – Schering-Plough, PPL, New Jersey and, in a larger sense, the global community.

Power generated by the grid will help the pharmaceutical giant’s bottom line by reducing and helping to manage energy costs. PPL will derive income from its investment, as Schering Plough is under contract with the company to purchase energy for the next 15 years.

“It’s good for the bottom line,” said Fred Hassan, Schering-Plough chairman and CEO. “It’s also a good model for what we might see in this country as we work on energy conservation.”

The Summit solar system is expected to reduce greenhouse emissions by 3 million pounds of carbon dioxide annually. That is equal to:

- Removing 250 cars from the road
- Saving 150,000 gallons of gasoline
- Reducing oil imports by 3,000 barrels
- Not using 52,000 propane cylinders for home barbecues
- Planting 123 acres of pine forest

Throughout the state, in downtown shopping districts, train stations, college campuses, hospitals, shopping malls, casinos, industrial parks and corporate campuses, parking decks and other sprawling buildings with substantial rooftops offer more partnership opportunities for companies like PPL Renewable Energy, which has several other solar and wind-powered installations in New Jersey and other northeastern states.

Thanks in large part to installations similar to the Schering-Plough project, New Jersey is at the forefront of solar-power; only California has more.

“Here in the state of New Jersey we are number two in solar installations in the

Chambers of Commerce Offer Food for Thought in Down Economy

By Karen Miller

In the early 1900s the leading packaged cereal manufacturer in the United States was Post. Lagging behind in the number two spot was a lesser known company, Kellogg.

When the Great Depression hit, Post did the predictable – decreasing expenses by cutting back on marketing – while Kellogg did the opposite, doubling its marketing budget. By 1933, Kellogg’s profits had increased almost 30 percent and the company had taken the lead as the number one cereal manufacturer – a place it still holds today.

As the economy began to slow in 2008 Jim Coyle, president of the Gateway Regional Chamber of Commerce, wondered if the business downturn would mean that many area business would follow the example of Post, cutting back on their marketing by cutting out their chamber membership, or Kellogg, increasing marketing to expand their sales. The answer was not long in coming.

“It’s been pretty amazing,” said Coyle. “(Membership) started slowly in 2008, then picked up dramatically this year.”

Gran'ther Pendleton Returns

By Andy Gole

Gran'ther Pendleton has been a treasured literary favorite since childhood. Dorothy Canfield Fisher tells his story in Heyday of the Blood. Everyone should know Gran'ther and his zest for life – particularly in these challenging times.

At the outset, Gran'ther's great grandson Professor Mallory – nearing retirement – talks with his unhappy young assistant.

The younger man started, "Why-Why-" his face twitched. He went on desperately, "I've lost my nerve, Professor Mallory."

"What do you mean – nerve?" Asked Mallory, challenging impatience in his tone.

The younger man started, "Why, Why" His face twitched. He went trembling so the papers he held fell on the floor. "I worry – I forgot things – I take no interest in life. The psychiatrists tell me to relax, to rest. I try to, but it's no good. I never go out – every evening I'm in bed by nine o' clock."

To inspire his assistant, Mallory tells of an extraordinary experience with Gran'ther at the turn of the century. Gran'ther – 88 years old, in very poor health – worried everyone in the extended family, who tried restricting his activities appropriately.

Gran'ther ignored obvious and sound medical advice, did what he pleased and:

"He used to remark triumphantly that he had now outlived six doctors, who had each given him but a year to live, 'and the seventh is going downhill fast, so I hear!"

Professor Mallory recounts a glorious childhood day, when he and Gran'ther stole off to the county fair after being forbidden by his parents. Here's a taste of that day, a description of the horse race:

"If I live to be a hundred and break the bank at Monte Carlo three times a week," said Mallory, shaking his head reminiscently, "I could not know a tenth part of the frantic excitement of that race or of the mad triumph when our horse won. Gran'ther cast his hat upon the ground, screaming like a steam calliope with exultation as the sorrel swept past the judges' stand ahead of all the others, and I jumped up and down in an agony of delight which was almost more than my little body could hold."

Mallory recounts Gran'ther's view on fear:

"I've learned a lot about the way folks is made. The trouble with most of 'em is, they're 'fraid-cats!... The only way to manage this business of livin' is to give a whoop and let her rip!"

Mallory concludes with Gran'ther's recurring motto:

"Live while you live, and then die and be done with it!"

Gran'ther is a fictional character. My father-in-law is a flesh-and-blood relative of Gran'ther.

Grandpa Charles, now 85 and largely retired, has a unique business in upstate New York. He purchases merchandise and drives into the countryside to migrant work camps. He is the store.

His health has been failing for many years, but he continues to do what he loves – to the extent he can – going on the road, selling merchandise, against medical advice.

Last fall, Charles was hospitalized for a heart attack; his kidney function declined dangerously. We drove to Rochester to say goodbye.

He was ashen, largely confined to bed.

When he and I were alone in the hospital room, I asked him how he kept mentally alert. He told me he was planning his next sales trip. I felt this kept him going, thinking about getting back on the road.

We were concerned he wouldn't last the week.

Well, he did last the week. He returned home, his kidneys regained some functionality, and within a few months, he started getting out again.

On Mother's Day my mother-in-law returned from a morning walk and passed Charles taking off in his car, going on the road to sell – against medical advice.

We waited all day for his safe return. When he returned safely, I was reminded of Gran'ther's motto:

The only way to manage this business of livin' is to give a whoop and let her rip!

Chambers of Commerce Offer Food for Thought in Down Economy

Instead of contracting, membership at the Gateway has grown each month and now stands at about 1,500, an increase of about 200 over last year.

The numbers tell the tale. In February/March of 2007 17 new members enrolled in the Gateway, 20 new members joined in February/March of 2008, and 34 new members enrolled in the same period this year. In addition, the Gateway Chamber, the largest business-to-business association in the New York/New Jersey region, continues to maintain a retention rate of about 95 percent.

But numbers are only part of the story. People and benefits are the real explanation behind the organization's growth, according to Coyle.

Marcy Sasso, director of operations for the Ambulatory Surgical Center of Union County, "had heard rumblings about how good the Gateway Chamber was for awhile," she said. Sasso looked into the dues-versus-benefits ratio and decided to enroll a few months ago.

"In times like these it only makes sense for businesses to band together to support one another," Sasso said. She found the chamber to be a great place to network and also found other services she needs for her business.

"I saw some work done by Blu Hand Design Studio at the Chamber and I asked them to design a poster for us," she said. Now Sasso is encouraging other healthcare businesses to join the chamber.

Not every chamber of commerce is doing as well as the Gateway during the downturn.

"Membership is somewhat flat, which we consider a positive during this time," said Kevin Friedlander, senior vice president of communications for the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce.

While some businesses have cut back on marketing, including budgets for organization memberships, many others, both current and prospective members, understand the value of face-to-face networking chambers offer.

Mick Fleming, president of the American Chambers of Commerce Executives, a national association for chamber of commerce executives, says that trends in membership vary from region to region and even chamber to chamber. Chambers that give the most value for the dollar are retaining more members in hard times than those that give less, he said.

"It used to be that many companies joined the chamber just for the concept of civic rent," Fleming said. "They felt an obligation to have that chamber sign in their window, just to support the organization in principal. But that has been changing in the last few years. Chambers must earn the respect of the members."

For example, the Gateway Chamber offers a wide variety of meetings at various locations and times of day.

"We have over 200 meetings a year. That's almost daily networking opportunities," Coyle said.

The Gateway is an umbrella organization for 14 other chambers and business groups, including local chambers in communities such as Springfield, Clark and Linden and specialized groups such as a women's business group, a group for veterans and even an Irish business group. There also are committees that work with municipal governments and an education committee that meets with local officials from both area universities and local school boards.

The Gateway's Affinity program also offers discounts for members at a variety of businesses. That program was particularly attractive to new member Lynette Walcott of Cavagna North America, Inc. Cavagna joined the Chamber in February and has already "reached out to a number of businesses to see where we can develop partnerships and take advantage of discounts," Walcott said. In fact, the cost savings Cavagna receives through the Affinity Partnership program will help make the chamber membership pay for itself.

For businesses that want to follow Kellogg's example and come out the other side of the recession on top, joining a chamber of commerce is a cost-effective way to develop new business relationships, according to chamber experts and business people.

"I tell everyone I talk to about the Gateway Chamber," says Sasso. "It just makes good sense to join."

Executives Staying More Connected During Vacations

Out of sight does not necessarily mean out of mind for vacationing executives, according to results from a recent business survey of marketing and advertising executives. The survey showed that 61 percent of those polled said they check in with work at least once a day while on break.

That compares to 47 percent in 2006 and 38 percent in 2001.

The national study was developed by The Creative Group, a specialized staffing service providing creative, advertising, marketing and web professionals on a project and full-time basis, and conducted by an independent research firm.

Advertising and marketing executives were asked, "How often do you check in with work while on vacation?"

"For better or worse, technology has made it easier for professionals to check in with the office from just about anywhere," said Megan Slabinski, executive director of The Creative Group. "While periodic updates may provide peace of mind, being overly connected can detract from the benefits of time spent away from work."

Slabinski said careful planning can help employees disengage while on holiday.

"Professionals should prepare for their vacation as if they won't be available, rather than planning to check in," she said. "Handing off projects ahead of time can help workers come back genuinely refreshed."

Tips to help professionals make a clean break from the office include:

- Put someone on point – Managers should select someone whose judgment they trust to make decisions in their absence. It's important to give the point person the responsibility and authority to make judgment calls.

	Current	2006	2001
Several times daily	30%	19%	11%
Once daily	31%	28%	27%
Two to three times a week	18%	27%	27%
At least once a week	13%	13%	16%
Never; don't check in	8%	13%	19%
	100%	100%	100%

- Establish ground rules – If you need to check in, set specific times when you'll be checking in, rather than having people contact you throughout the day.
- Don't leave them hanging – Use out-of-office functions to let your clients and customers know when you're away, and provide the names and contact information of colleagues to contact in your absence.
- Let it go – Delegate projects that must continue in your absence. Be sure to let coworkers know where to find key materials.
- Bring in reinforcements – Hiring temporary or freelance professionals to bridge gaps can help projects stay on course while you're gone.
- Consider remote locales – If you have a hard time breaking away from the office, consider vacationing in a spot that doesn't have cell phone or Internet access.

Bayway Lumber

Answering the Call for 81 Years

With a foundation anchored in more than 80 years of family tradition, Bayway Lumber is built on a reputation of customer service and responsiveness that rises above expectations like the world-class structures it helps create.

It is a reputation built on honesty, quality and value and borne out by Bayway Lumber's commitment to responding to customer needs of all sizes – from the local contractor and municipality to world-class builders and the Port Authority of New York/New Jersey.

Bayway Lumber is known throughout the tri-state region and beyond as a premiere supplier of building materials, doors and hardware. The company occupies 50,000 square feet of manufacturing and storage space, including five warehouses, a walk-in showroom and a 9,000-square-foot state-of-the-art manufacturing shop for wood and metal doors and metal frames.

Bayway Lumber serves the commercial building, municipal and industrial sectors, as well as small and medium-sized contractors – providing “a box of screws to a truckful of sheetrock,” according to its president, Robert Dattilo.

Yet it is Bayway's customer service that sets it apart from other companies. Customers flowing into Bayway's showroom each morning are greeted by friendly faces and familiar voices.

“I treat my employees and customers the same way, as family,” Dattilo said. “I try to create with the customer the same tradition you have with your family. I want them to feel comfortable.”

Bayway Lumber combines that sense of family values ingrained by the family's great grandfather and company founder, John Dattilo, with a keen business knowledge developed over the years by Robert Dattilo and his brothers Dennis and Jeffrey.

“I started as a kid, 12 years old, working in the shop and yards,” Robert Dattilo said. “I did window glazing, helped unload trucks, put lumber away and later worked in sales, at the counter and in ordering lumber.”

Bayway Lumber remains as committed to unrivaled customer service and community involvement as when the company opened its doors in 1928.

“All business today is driven by economics and price,” Robert Dattilo said. “We try to enhance that with the building of trust, honesty and family.”

Education also plays a significant role in allowing Bayway to build customer loyalty, according to Dennis Dattilo. He believes many consumers mistakenly view independent suppliers as being more expensive than national chains. Being part of the True Value cooperative system of buying allows Bayway Lumber to supplement its customer service with the value that comes with volume wholesale buying of large co-op programs.

“We have a cooperative of over 3,500 stores, allowing us to buy as competitively as the large retailers,” said Jeffrey Dattilo.

While Bayway Lumber has been at the same location just off the Bayway Circle in Linden since its founding, not everything has stayed the same. The company's embrace of technology has allowed it to become a national and now global supplier.

“Technology is what brings you into the future,” Robert Dattilo said. “The name of the game is getting back to customer requests as quickly as possible for the best service. A customer can reach anyone in this business 24/7. That's unusual nowadays, but that's what we do to develop clientele.”

That responsiveness has taken on many different forms for Bayway Lumber and the Dattilo family. Robert Dattilo was at the World Trade Center in 1993 when a terrorist bomb exploded on the other side of the wall. He received a citation of bravery for helping the injured. Eight years later Bayway Lumber once again was tapped by the Port Authority during the 9/11 crisis and was among the leaders in responding to the disaster.

“We were the first convoy of trucks that made it into the disaster site,” Robert Dattilo said.

While those days were remarkable, Bayway Lumber's response was typical.

“With our heritage of five generations in this business, we will continue to instill that feeling of friendship, family and benevolence with every one of our customers,” he said. “That's our promise.”

Bayway Lumber can be reached at 908.486.4480 or www.baywaylumber.com.

United States,” said Joseph Fiordaliso, a commissioner on the state Board of Public Utilities. “We're number seven in the world. Per square mile we have more solar installations than any state in the union.”

Added Gov. Jon Corzine, “New Jersey has been a national leader in solar energy programs, and this private sector project is a fine complement to our own initiatives as we work to secure and strengthen the state's energy future.”

“Managing energy well is critical to our operations,” said Tom Pagliuco, energy director for Schering-Plough. “We are making our consumption of energy ‘greener’ by using renewable sources like solar and by reusing byproduct heat created in generating electricity on our sites.

“However, reducing overall energy consumption is our main goal. We believe the greenest kilowatt is the one not used.”

The BPU has enabled companies like PPL to more aggressively pursue solar installations by approving the transition of New Jersey's solar program from an up-front rebate system to a commodity market based upon Solar Renewable Energy Credits (SRECs).

“What the state has done is to create and support a market for renewable energy credits,” explained PPL's John Steckel. “We're not getting any money from the state for the Schering project, but what the state did do was create the market for SRECs so that the value of SRECs replaced the need for grants to build projects. The state provided a revenue stream that made the project economically feasible. That's why there is as much solar in the state.”

Traditionally, solar had been funded by rebates and grants,” Pagliuco explained. “SRECs were a smaller piece of the puzzle. The state knew they couldn't do it with rebates alone but to fund that level of activity were looking for a more market-driven approach. The state went with a solar REC market-driven approach in 2007. That's when we were first approached by PPL about the project.”

Under the program, solar system owners earn SRECs for solar electricity production, which are registered and traded among electricity suppliers and other buyers within an established infrastructure. Electricity suppliers are required to buy the SRECs, or pay a Solar Alternative Compliance Payment in lieu of the purchase.

The SRECs allow renewable energy producers to raise cash. One SREC is equivalent to 1,000 kilowatt hours (kWh), or one megawatt-hour (MWh).

SRECs represent the renewable attributes (clean energy benefits) of solar power generated from a solar electric system, and they can be bought or sold separately from the electricity, thus providing the solar system owner with a source of revenue to help offset the cost of the system installation.

The BPU expects to phase out rebates by 2012 and rely on SREC-based financing to spur private investment and market development for solar technologies.

The Summit project will help push Schering-Plough closer to its goal of reducing energy consumption 10 percent at its facilities worldwide by 2013.

Schering-Plough's ambitious global strategy has earned recognition from the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). In March, the EPA named Schering-Plough a 2009 ENERGY STAR Partner of the Year, which recognizes corporate efforts to use energy efficiently in facility operations and to integrate superior energy management into overall organizational strategy.

The EPA cited the company's Global Energy Management Team, which develops global policies, programs and initiatives aimed at energy reductions.

Progress is already being made. Worldwide Schering-Plough managed a 3.7 percent reduction in energy usage last year aided by a web-based data management system that monitors and controls 16 million square feet of facility space worldwide.

“Three years ago Schering-Plough initiated a global strategic energy management initiative to build a foundation for an energy-efficient future,” Hassan said. “This project is a major achievement of that initiative. It represents the achievement of three objectives – savings, sustainability and societal benefit.”

Recession Disables Special Needs Workforce

By Christopher Reardon

The tractor trailers pulling into the Occupational Center of Union County are a reflection of the down economy gripping the nation and the far-reaching impact the recession is having on many levels.

In better times three trailers might offload at the Occupational Center, a vocational training facility for people with disabilities in Roselle that specializes in high-volume, light-hand assembly and packaging of consumer goods. These days, more often than not only one trailer pulls in.

That means less work for the 250 full- and part-time individuals employed by the Occupational Center. It also reflects a wider pool of ripples, according to Mark Lasky, the center's president.

"The last couple months have been a bit of a struggle to fully employ our people," Lasky said. "We have a tradition of full employment. Now we don't have a backlog of work. Our leads begin to say call us back next week."

The Occupational Center's clientele includes companies that supply the big box chains and price clubs. Lasky sees imports slowing, orders dropping and inventories not being replenished, resulting in less work coming through his doors.

"One company kept 30 or 40 (of our) people busy year-round," he said. "Now they're going under."

Individuals with disabilities and special needs are among those in the work force being hardest hit by the recession, according to Lasky and other human services experts.

The federal Office of Disability Employment Policy reported that in April the unemployment rate for those with disabilities was 12.9 percent, compared with 8.4 percent for persons with no disability.

In New Jersey the Corzine administration is proposing to cut $3.8 million in funding for non-profit agencies that help train and place people with disabilities in the workforce, a reduction that will further hamper the efforts of organizations like the Occupational Center, according to Lasky.

In addition to its in-house vocational training, the Occupational Center also places candidates into the workplace and provides transitional support. At any time the center might have 40 to 50 individuals working on-site at companies, and Lasky is finding those placements harder to come by, as well.

"We're having a little bit of a hard time finding entry-level positions," he said. "Due to layoffs throughout the state there are more people qualified on paper."

Down the road from the Occupational Center the Cerebral Palsy League also is feeling the pinch of a slower economy. The League operates adult services that include in-house work training and a vocational center.

"We operate within a larger community and many of the organizations that subcontract with us are declining in activity," said Louis Brigando, associate executive director. "Consequently less work is subcontracted to us."

The Union County Educational Services Commission helps special needs individuals aged 16-21 transition into the work environment, placing students from its own five schools and four other Union County school districts with employers.

The commission places students in entry-level positions, attempting to find a good match that benefits both employer and employee.

"The whole idea of doing it in school is so when they come out as young adults they are trained for the work force," said Jim Quinn, transition coordinator at the commission.

Quinn has seen a reduction of available spots for students as a result of the slow economy.

"I approach smaller businesses and they tell me they've laid off people and really don't have any work," Quinn said.

Hard times seem to hit individuals with disabilities and special needs hardest, experts agree.

"Persons with disabilities experience a curious paradox," said Brigando. "Specifically, the benefits of good economic times are often attenuated in the face of higher competition and productivity demands. On the other hand, the consequences of stressed economic times are often accelerated, meaning that there are clearly fewer opportunities and major likelihood of reduction of support and services essential to maintaining viable employment."

When the loss of work opportunity that comes with a tight economy is matched with cuts in state funding supporting non-profits working on behalf of people with disabilities and special needs, the repercussions of the single trailer at the Occupation Center are magnified for this sector of society.

"The safety net is going to begin to break down as more and more people look strictly at the dollars," Lasky said.

As the safety net unravels, so does an integral part of the lives of people with disabilities and special needs.

"Working is essential to the quality of life," Brigando said.

Irrational Thinking Won't Produce a Rational Budget

Last month, on April 15, tax day, I attended a presentation by Assemblyman Joe Cryan (D-20) on next year's budget. It was an excellent presentation where Assemblyman Cryan outlined the efforts of the Corzine Administration to produce a rational budget in the middle of the worst recession in generations. The Assemblyman described it as a budget of sacrifice and cutback, furloughs and belt tightening.

So far so good.

Then came the kicker in his presentation. Even with all this sacrifice and belt tightening the state government needs more revenue, i.e. a tax increase. The Assemblyman said don't worry, however, taxes would be increased for only the top 1 percent of income earners, those making more than $500,000 per year.

Cryan said there were fewer than 30,000 filers in this category, and they could well afford to ante up a bit more to keep the state solvent. And it had been shown by Governor McGreevy that the wealthiest don't flee the state when their taxes are raised.

Assemblyman Cryan is also the chairman of the Democratic Party for the state, and what he said was great politics. First he appealed to all of us with the talk of cutbacks and sacrifice. Then he said that the pain of the tax increase would be limited to only 1 percent of the population. The other 99 percent of us get off scot-free.

Good politics this may be, but it is bad policy.

Our politicians seem to forget that the annual variation in income is the greatest for that top 1 percent of earners. In other words, when times are good, these folks make a lot. This floods government coffers and leads to increased spending. Everyone is happy in these fat years.

In the lean years, however, the folks at the top make a lot less, and the government that is used to feasting on their largesse is suddenly put on a diet. Remember, nearly half of all state income tax revenue comes from this measly 1 percent of earners.

Thus a drop in income of just 10 percent for these earners results in a drop of 5 percent in state income tax revenue. Given that much of the income in this group is related to investment performance, it is easy to see why we are facing such a deep hole.

All we have to do is take a look at our leader, Governor Corzine. In 2007 the Governor had investment income of $11.8 million. His contribution to the state through income tax was just more than $1 million.

In 2008, however, the Governor lost nearly $3 million. That means that his state and federal taxes are zero. Here's one of the richest guys in the state and he isn't paying anything. A lot of the top 1 percenters are in this same fix. Investment revenues are down, bonuses are down and tax obligations are down.

On April 15 I mentioned to Assemblyman Cryan that I would be surprised if the tax collections that they expected for 2008 were accurate. I expected them to be way short.

And way short they are, with the shortfall now estimated to be $1.2 billion for this fiscal year. I would guess that this fact also will necessitate a new estimate of 2009 revenues. The economy is not recovering and large income growth in any sector certainly is not on the horizon.

So, what will they do? Will they see an even greater shortfall and raise taxes on the most volatile even more? If more tax revenue is needed, from a policy perspective, it would be much more sensible to raise taxes for a far greater number of people, maybe the top 50 percent of income earners.

We are, however, dealing with politicians. Why would we ever expect anything sensible to come out of them?

Where the Chamber Stands...

No Accounting for Accountability

The New Jersey Legislature is considering a bill that would prohibit an employer from looking at a job applicant's credit history or finances when deciding whether or not to hire that individual.

What's next, outlawing resumes for being intrusive and labeling typing tests as genetically biased?

Sometimes it seems as if New Jersey's lawmakers want every business in the state to pull up stakes and head to Pennsylvania or Delaware. There can be no other explanation for the never-ending parade of suffocating regulations and laws that handcuff businesses in a state that consistently polls among the least-business friendly in the nation.

Now during the worst economic downturn in 60 years the newest kick in the gut to the state's business community seeks to bar companies from considering an applicant's history of paying their bills or their state of finances.

Specifically, A3804, introduced by Assemblyman Anthony Chiappone (D-31), "Prohibits job discrimination on basis of credit history or financial status."

Certainly any bill trumpeted as being anti-discriminatory sounds like a good idea. Certainly it is unfair for someone to be denied employment because through no fault of their own they have lost their job in a sour economy and have fallen behind in mortgage payments and perhaps medical bills. Certainly that individual should be protected.

The problem with A3804 is that there already exists a law that does just that. The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) ensures that job applicants are protected from their credit histories being used unfairly in denying them employment.

Among other things, the FCRA states a job applicant:

- Must be told if any information in their credit report has been used against them to deny employment;
- Has the right to know what is in their file;
- Has the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information and have that information either corrected or deleted; and
- May seek damages from violators.

Most important, under the FCRA a job applicant must give consent for credit reports to be shared with existing or potential employers. Simply put, a job applicant can refuse to allow his or her credit history to be revealed.

Yet A3804 seeks to extend this protection so far as to make it impossible for a potential employer to even ask to consider this information, forcing them to hire blind and fill positions in which a poor credit history might indeed be relevant.

Few if any employers would use a credit history as the sole determinant for a decision to hire a candidate. Yet credit histories are relevant because they reflect how people handle their personal obligations.

An unemployed individual making good faith effort payments on their bills while seeking employment is viewed in a different light than a person with five maxed credit cards or a practicing doctor or lawyer living beyond their means.

In addition, the personal comportment that is often reflected in an individual's credit history takes on importance at many different levels in the business environment. A bank teller in serious credit card debt is a liability no institution would be expected to carry. Yet a department head or administrative assistant with access to proprietary information valued by the competition is no less a threat to a company's health. Is an individual with six-figure student loan debt a sound choice for a student loan management position at a college?

It is often noted that one bad employee can cost a business more money than a good employee can bring in. At a time when businesses throughout the state are fighting for survival, it is illogical to force employers to increase their risk of hiring bad employees when sufficient protection already exists for any job applicant.

Times are hard. Résumés are being padded and work histories are being forged. Honest job applicants are competing with those less so. When a trust-worthy individual loses out on a job to someone less scrupled, it is not only the honest applicant who suffers. The employer and its customers suffer, as well.

A personal credit history reflecting short-term difficulties in no way reflects dishonesty or desperation. However, long-term trends may indeed be indicative of more deeply rooted problems.

Job applicants deserve – and have – the right to ensure their credit histories are accurate and are being fairly used when evaluating them. Employers have a right to perform that evaluation.

Bill A3804 is a bad idea.

U.S. Rep. Frank Pallone, Jr. (D-6) Chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Health

Reforming Health Care: Then and Now

In 1994, when Congress last tried to reform our nation's healthcare system, I was still a fairly new member of Congress serving out my third term in the House. Fast forward 15 years and I think it's a useful exercise to ask, "What has changed?"

My colleagues and I from the 1994 battle are still here. We are a little bit older, but we are also a little bit wiser about how to approach health reform. We have the benefit of having a second chance and we have no intention of making the same mistakes that were made during the last go-round on health reform.

For example, in the House the three committees that have jurisdiction over health issues are working together in a unified fashion to develop a single proposal based on the key principles outlined by President Obama. This is a stark contrast from 1994 when the three committees were handed a legislative proposal from above in which they had little or no input and went to work on separate paths.

Even though it was early in his first term, President Clinton's health reform plan came too late. He had already spent significant political capital on other priorities, like the North American Free Trade Agreement, making it more difficult to get healthcare reform across the finish line.

Another major difference between today and the 1994 debate is how various stakeholders are positioning themselves now. Back then, lines were drawn and many organizations and interests took sides. The debate became polarized and politicized, including the use of campaign-style attack ads.

The attitudes and actions of everyone involved, including the business community, are completely different now. Industry representatives, such as America's Health Insurance Plans and PhRMA, have teamed up with consumer groups like Families USA and AARP. Similarly, groups representing employers' interests have joined forces with unions.

They all recognize the importance – even the imperative – of working together.

They understand that we all have a vested interest in reforming health care. Businesses want healthy workers who improve productivity. Workers want a job that provides important benefits such as health coverage for themselves and their families.

For businesses large and small, health care costs are a growing expense. They have become a costly burden for some and they make it all but impossible for many small businesses to provide health care to their employees. The cost of coverage for businesses has increased by as much as 80 percent in the past five years alone. As a result, one in five small businesses in New Jersey can't afford health insurance.

Businesses want workers who are in good health, who don't lose time to illness and who don't seek work elsewhere just to get health coverage. The "cost" to businesses of not providing coverage includes lost productivity.

The longer we debate this issue, the longer healthcare costs continue to spiral out of control and the longer Americans have to wait for access to affordable and quality health care coverage.

We need people who are willing to take their seats and stay firmly planted as we hammer out these details, especially on the most controversial aspects of health reform.

There are many other details that will need to be flushed out that require tough choices on the part of patients, providers, insurers, manufacturers and members of Congress. I'm hopeful that we all have learned from our previous mistakes and will continue to work together to finally reform our nation's healthcare system. We literally can't afford to let history repeat itself; we may not get a third chance to do it right.

When the Correct Decision Adds Up

By Sidney Blanchard

The writer and poet Karl Kraus once said, "In case of doubt, decide in favor of what is correct."

The New Jersey Legislature is in the unique position of doing both what is fiscally wise – at a time when fiscal wisdom is nothing short of imperative – and also what is morally correct. The Legislature is considering a bill to close five of the state's seven institutions for people with developmental disabilities. The legislation, A3625/S2654 introduced by Assemblyman Louis Greenwald, will more closely align New Jersey with the national trend of moving people with developmental disabilities out of institutions and into the community while also more efficiently allocating scarce budget dollars.

At a time when state leaders are desperate for solutions to help close the projected $1.2 billion budget deficit, this bill offers the Legislature the chance to save money while also doing what is correct.

First let's look at the numbers. Nearly 3,000 New Jersey residents live in developmental centers at an annual cost of about $225,000 each, or two to three times the average cost of community living. By comparison, the cost for providing community housing for members of Community Access Unlimited (CAU) runs just $20,000 to $80,000 annually.

New Jersey's seven developmental centers consume 31 percent of the $1.4 billion budget of the Division of Developmental Disabilities (DDD) while serving less than 8 percent of the population served by the department. Closing five of the seven centers and moving those residents into community living will equate to a considerable cost saving for DDD and the state.

So clearly the numbers support closing New Jersey's developmental centers. So does our moral obligation to do what is correct, to enable each member of society to live more fulfilling lives.

Community living offers people with developmental disabilities the opportunity to live in their own homes while receiving the supports they need. They contribute to the fabric of society, in many ways financial – by paying rent or mortgages and through income taxes when they work – and build self-esteem.

This year at Community Access Unlimited we are celebrating our 30th year of helping people with disabilities and at-risk youth. We began CAU in 1979 by successfully removing 20 people with developmental disabilities from institutional living and integrating them into the community. In our 30 years we have supported more than 7,000 individuals, helping 3,000 people with developmental disabilities to live independently or semi-independently.

While it has been immeasurably rewarding to provide this support for three decades, equally important is that our business model works. CAU was one of the first non-profit agencies in the nation to see the federal low-income housing tax credit as an opportunity to acquire property to be used for community housing for its members. Today, in addition to 55,000 square feet of commercial space, CAU owns more than 200 units of housing throughout Union County. Each year we assist more than 3,500 individuals with all kinds of disabilities.

Our core value and belief has always been that all people can be independent citizens participating in and contributing to the community. One of our first members, Adelaide, spent the first 22 years of her life in institutions and foster care before coming to CAU in 1979. Today she lives independently and is a member of our board of trustees, an officer in our self-advocacy arm, Helping Hands, and a proud partial owner of Jump Start, our self-advocacy consulting business.

A look at the dollars makes closing New Jersey's developmental centers a fiscally sound decision. A look at the thousands of people with disabilities whose lives have been improved through community living makes it a correct decision.

Sidney Blanchard is the executive director of Community Access Unlimited, a multi-faceted, human services agency that provides support services for at-risk youth and people with disabilities.

Did You Know...

There are Myths of Mobile Marketing?

By Kim Dushinski

There's been a lot of buzz in the past few years about mobile marketing coming of age. Quite a few thoughts about using this medium for marketing have taken root as common knowledge. Since mobile marketing is seemingly here to stay it is important for businesses and consumers to understand which of these concepts are true and which are false.

It's Just Teenagers, Right?

While it may seem that teens and 20-somethings are the only demographic groups a business can reach via mobile marketing it is actually one of the biggest myths surrounding this powerful new marketing tool. The reality is that in the U.S. there are 270 million cell phone subscribers – 88 percent of our population. Clearly it is not just teens using cell phones.

Usually the first form of mobile marketing that comes to mind is text messaging (also known as SMS). A common misunderstanding on this topic is that only teens send and receive text messages.

In fact, according to Nielsen Mobile, 123 million Americans use text messaging regularly and up through the age of 44 people actually send more text messages than make phone calls. Yes, the teens are the most voracious users of SMS, but they are not the only users.

I Don't Want to Start Getting Spam on My Phone

Of course consumers and businesses alike are very concerned about mobile spam, as well they should be. But it is important to note that mobile spam is the exception not the rule. Due to the consumer-focused guidelines and best practices outlined by the Mobile Marketing Association and enforced by the cell phone carriers, the vast majority of text message vendors are very strict about ensuring that text messages are sent only with the recipient's explicit permission.

In addition to the industry's best practices there is legislation (m-SPAM Act of 2009, S.788) before Congress that, if passed, will make sending mobile spam illegal. Consumers should be careful to only sign up for text message programs from reputable companies or businesses they currently do business with. However, they should not forgo all text message offers if they are interested. Text messaging is not synonymous with mobile spam.

We Don't Need to Develop a Mobile Website

Many businesses don't realize that their audience may already be interacting with them on the mobile web whether or not they are ready for them. Nielsen Mobile reports that 44 million Americans regularly use the mobile web and a survey done by iCrossing shows that 84 percent of mobile web users expect sites they visit frequently to provide a dedicated mobile version of their site.

Since the iPhone hit the market thinking has started down the path that a mobile-specific site is not necessary since this device can handle the full-sized Internet with ease. Yes, the iPhone is amazing and has changed the face of mobile marketing forever, but the sites that are shown in the commercials are iPhone-developed sites. They work that way because they are developed to do so. It doesn't happen naturally.

Secondly, even as well as the iPhone has sold, as late as third quarter 2008 it was only fourth in the list of Top 10 Mobile Phones in the U.S., with a 1.5 percent market share of all subscribers. Bottom line, people are using other phones besides the iPhone and they need and expect to find a mobile-specific version when they get there.

People Don't Want to be Marketed to on Their Phone

Of course no one wants to be marketed to on their phone. We don't want to watch commercials on TV either. People do not read a newspaper or magazine specifically for the ads.

What people do want is to have valuable interaction with businesses on their terms. If businesses keep their customers' needs first and follow all applicable best practices, the marketing efforts they make will not feel like marketing to the people receiving them.

As an example, a mobile coupon from a company that comes after they have signed up to receive it is welcome. Getting a tidbit of information on a topic of interest (daily horoscope, sports scores, stock quotes) is fine. Finding out about a hard-to-find product being available is valuable. Being able to purchase a theater ticket or find a local restaurant on the go is helpful. The list is virtually endless if a business just pays attention to what their customers want.

One other aspect of mobile marketing that is important is trust. People buy from companies they trust and they are more likely to interact via mobile with trustworthy companies. If the trust is there then that also takes the edge off it feeling like marketing to the consumer.

While it may seem cumbersome to figure out how to get started in mobile marketing it is something that businesses cannot afford to ignore. Consumers are using mobile media and they expect businesses to be there for them.

Kim Dushinski is the author of The Mobile Marketing Handbook and founder of Mobile Marketing Profits, a Denver, Colorado, firm that educates marketing professionals about how to use mobile marketing effectively. For more information visit www.mobilemarketingprofits.com.
