With proposed changes to the Open Public Records Act and the Open Public Meetings Act making there way through the state senate, many residents, activists, politicians and municipalities find themselves on very different sides of the issue.

Let the Open Public Record reflect...

Local opinions vary on possible changes to OPRA and OPMA

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

Citizens could have easier access to public records if amendments to two laws pass muster with legislators. But, if county and local elected officials have anything to say about it, the changes will never happen.

Ten years ago if anyone wanted copies of public records it was not an easy process. In fact, the majority of the time it was next to impossible.

In 2002, everything changed when the Open Public Records Act was revised so citizens, including the media, could obtain information previously kept under lock and key by municipal, county, state and school officials.

But while OPRA was initially hailed as a great step in the direction of the public's right to know laws, during the last decade, advances in technology made this process increasingly difficult. Despite evidence that an update was needed, it took one legislator's own experience with this issue to initiate change.

When Democrat State Senator Barbara Buono, Middlesex, found the state Department of Education would not provide information about how New Jersey lost out on a $400 million federal grant, she was frustrated and confused.

"In the end I had to go to some very extensive lengths to get the information. It was a painful process of subpoening the fired education commissioner before the committee," she said.

In early March at a legislative hearing to clarify and strengthen the open public meetings and laws, Buono told legislators about her own personal experiences, stressing the need to change this legislation.

Residents routinely 'suit up' in defense of Open Public Records

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

There are always two sides to every story, and when it comes to the public's right to know, a line has definitely been drawn in the sand between two opposing forces.

Action in recent weeks by a state senate committee could make it considerably easier for citizens and the media to obtain public records and documents. However, until something is finalized, the war between those who protect these public records and those who want copies continues to produce lawsuits that cost taxpayer dollars.

Ten years ago when the Open Public Records Act was revised it was supposed to make it easier for citizens and the media to obtain public records and documents. Some citizens, though, maintain county and local officials continue to skirt the OPRA law, forcing them to file lawsuits in order to obtain the documents they are entitled to receive.

Union resident Anthony Nardiello contends that after filing repeated OPRA requests with township clerk Eileen Birch that resulted in denials, he became frustrated and even angry. But he maintains this is nothing new.

"In the past, requests for information have been blocked by Ms. Birch under flimsy excuses on her part," he said.

But, while Nardiello maintains he had every right to the public documents he requested, Birch explained last week that she is obligated as township clerk and keeper of public records to obey the law.

"I told Mr. Nardiello the records he requested involved medical See PUBLIC, Page 3

UC residents press Christie on Springfield flooding

By Paul Greulich Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD — The township welcomed the distinction of hosting Governor Chris Christie's 75th town hall meeting last week.

The Fire Headquarters was packed with hundreds of area residents and officials as Christie, a Republican, summarized his achievements and challenges since taking office in 2009, shared personal anecdotes, and fielded questions.

Christie's remarks focused on his efforts to solve New Jersey's financial problems. He discussed his accomplishments in reigning in government spending without raising taxes, a strategy he considers common sense.

"Math is math," Christie said. "Numbers either add up or they don't. I'm not doing anything magic here."

The enthusiastic crowd peppered the roly-poly Republican with questions that encompassed local, state and national issues with residents. Topics included the potential nullification of unconstitutional federal laws to strategies for dealing with drug crime in New Jersey.

Christie said he favors imposing treatment rather than imprisonment for non-violent drug possession crimes.

"The war on drugs was well-intentioned when it was started, but it doesn't work," Christie said.

Residents also asked about the governor's plan to fix roads and bridges around the state. One bridge in particular excited the attention of the many Springfield residents at the meeting — an aged structure on Morris Avenue on the Rahway River that contributes to flooding problems. Residents have expressed particular concern about the stated timeline of the project, which is estimated to take about five years.

Resident Karen Bonacorda asked the governor if the replacement of this bridge could be "fast-tracked".

Christie answered that he anticipated the issue of flooding being raised and made sure to bring a representative from the Depart-issues and therefore could not be released," Birch added. "Number 26 in the Governor's executive order backs up that if there is a medical or psychological problem in the records involving a particular person, those documents cannot be released."

Nardiello was seeking copies of any records related to an emergency call that took place at a neighbor's home Jan. 27, 2008, but after he discovered that Birch would not release the documents he hired attorney Victor Rotolo to take over.

Rotolo subsequently sent Birch a copy of a civil action against Nardiello's neighbors and a subpoena requiring the township clerk to turn over the records and documents requested. At that point Birch said she had no other choice but to hand over the information originally requested.

"Supboena's are not unusual," she said, adding that this is the only circumstances she would be able to release the information.

Nardiello said Friday that he did receive the records but said he should not have to go to the lengths he did to get information that is public record. Birch disagreed.

"Some records just cannot be released, she said, adding "it's the law."

For the most part, though, Birch said the ebb and flow of OPRA requests from citizens as well as the media go smoothly. And, she said, if it is a large amount of records, she can, by law, ask for an extension so she can gather the information.

"Certain things are immediate access, but depending on what we are doing, how busy our office is at that moment, we can't always get a copy of, for example, minutes of a meeting," Birch explained, adding that she then will ask a person to return in several hours or up to two or three days.

Another problem Birch often finds is that those requesting records do not know what they want.

"Sometimes they will write down what they think they want, but then it turns out its not what they wanted after all," the township clerk said, adding that it is important that requests are clear about what records or documents are being requested.

"Either way, I just want to do my job right, as any employee should," Birch said.

Things are not so easily accomplished at the county level, where countless lawsuits resulted from one activist's attempts to obtain records that were denied.

Tina Renna, President of the Union County Watchdog Association, has been embroiled in a legal tug of war with county officials for years because she was denied what she says were "absolutely public records."

In early March Renna filed her latest lawsuit against the county because they turned down a request for investigatory records involving county employee Patrick Scanlon Jr., the son of Freeholder Deborah Scanlon.

In March, Renna said she made an OPRA request because of a complaint against Scanlon Jr., concerning allegations that he allegedly sold county property for personal gain.

"We believe the county's investigation of Scanlon Jr. has been closed without formal charges being filed," Renna said about the incident, noting this was a very good reason for her requesting those records.

"The public has a strong interest in learning the details of the county's investigation to determine whether nepotism played any role in the investigation of Scanlon Jr.," the activist said.

According to public records obtained by LocalSource, Scanlon Jr. was hired by the county as a laborer in August, 2011, at a salary of $33,521 annually. Scanlon Jr. later was convicted of Theft by Unlawful Taking on Jan. 25 and sentenced to six months in jail and five years probation by Union County Superior Court Judge Joseph P. Donohue. County records show he left the county payroll sometime in January, 2012.

Donohue is the brother-in-law of Union County Undersheriff, Assemblyman and Union Township Democratic Municipal Chairman Joseph Cryan.

Donohue began his judicial career in the Essex County Sheriff's office under then sheriff John Cryan, Joseph Cryan's father, and undersheriff Patrick Scanlon, Scanlon Jr.'s grandfather.

However, while it is unknown what county property Scanlon Jr. took, this was not a first offense. According to records obtained by LocalSource, Scanlon Jr. first was arrested in Essex county in 2008 on narcotics charges, which was later downgraded and moved to municipal court.

A few months later he again was arrested in Union County on narcotics charges, but again the charges were downgraded to municipal court.

Two months later in October, 2008, Scanlon Jr. was arrested on charges of Theft by Unlawful Taking and pled guilty, but the case was dismissed at sentencing.

After that the freeholder's son had a succession of narcotics charges in Union and Middlesex county.

On April 12, Renna filed another lawsuit against the county in an effort to get the investigatory records she requested initially through OPRA. She maintains the county deliberately thwarts the OPRA law to avoid providing information that could make them look bad.

But Renna and Nardiello are not the only ones finding it difficult to view what is considered public record.

The Union School district also had to contend with a lawsuit from a resident who felt the school board did not comply with an OPRA request. In the end the Superior Court of New Jersey found in favor of the resident and against the school board, who had to comply with the request for a tape of a particular meeting.

According to Walter Luers, an attorney from Clinton in Hunterdon County, who specializes in lawsuits involving OPRA violations, Roxanne Ciampi submitted an OPRA request July 27, 2011, to Board Secretary Patricia Detri for a copy of an audio recording of the July 19, 2011, public board meeting.

However, Detri said she could not comply with the request because the board did not have the equipment to transfer the tape to a compact disk.

Luers said Friday that Detri eventually gave Ciampi six CD's but none contained the meeting date the resident requested. Detri later said the tape broke five minutes into the meeting in question and there was nothing further to provide. The issue continued to remain unresolved and the resident resorted to filing a lawsuit.

According to the transcript of Superior Court Judge Lisa Chrystal's opinion letter dated April 3, regardless whether a malfunction was to blame, the court notes that any limitations on the right of access accorded under OPRA are "construed in favor of the public's right to know."

Chrystal ruled that Ciampi was "entitled to the tape of July 19, 2011, meeting as requested according to OPRA and which was admittedly not provided within seven days of an Oct. 25, 2011, second request. The judge also ruled that a copy of the audio tape was to be given to Ciampi.

ment of Environmental Protection, John Moyle, who works with the DEP's Office of Engineering and Construction.

Bonacorda said it was good to discuss the bridge project and flood control with Moyle, even though she found little new information or specifics.

"We're very happy to have their attention," she said. "We're planning to continue correspondence with Mr. Moyle and Gov. Christie."

Christie assured residents that restrictions were eased after Hurricane Irene to enable a timely cleanup, but Bonacorda said Moyle clarified that a permit is still required to bring a truck across wetlands to drag out the trees, which can present difficulties and delays.

Springfield Mayor Ziad Shehady did not return calls for comment.

A variety of officials from municipalities around Union County were present.

"I'm always impressed with the governor," said Linden Mayor Richard Gerbounka.

Gerbounka, an Independent, said he was especially proud of Christie's plainspoken demeanor and his message that "what you see is what you get."

"I think that's all you can ask of a man, and I think it's refreshing to see a politician take that stance," Gerbounka said. "I think it's a stance that more politicians on both the state and national level could benefit from."

Christie said these town hall meetings are important because they help prevent him from becoming isolated from the public.

"It's been a great thing for me to be in touch with the people who gave me the chance to do this job," Christie said.

City looks to build artist housing off Central Ave.

By Paul Greulich Staff Writer

RAHWAY — Local officials are examining a proposed housing project intended to provide living and working space for artists in the city's arts district.

An organization known as the Actors Fund has a plan to bring 60 units of affordable housing to a vacant site on Central Avenue. The Actors Fund Housing Development Corporation, or AFHDC, a subsidiary of The Actors Fund, is partnering with Crawford Street Partners, a Newark-based developer.

The project is being managed and overseen by the Rahway Redevelopment Agency. A concept plan was presented to the Agency last month.

According to Actors Fund CEO Scott Weiner, development costs are estimated at $15 million.

The proposal would be a total of 62,000 square feet, in addition to 15,000 square feet of parking. The project also includes 2,000 square feet of community space that can be used for rehearsals, meetings and social gatherings. A Payment In Lieu Of Taxes, or PILOT, program is also part of the deal. The site is assessed at $496,400.

The one acre site is occupied only by a two-story office building that is sitting vacant. The proposal calls for that building to be made available to the city of Rahway for an arts education facility. It abuts the Rahway River and is located within the 100 year flood zone. Weiner said the design will account for any potential flooding issues, though it is too early to say what specific measures may be taken.

Weiner stressed the project is still in its early stages, and the precise number and design of the units may vary, but there is one thing of which he is sure.

"We are committed to building affordable housing for artists on that site," Weiner said

Redevelopment Agency Executive Director and City Business Administrator Peter Pelissier said the fund was directed to include parking facilities on-site because of problematic parking in the area, a direction that was addressed at the last meeting.

"When they came last month they showed parking would be underneath the building, similar to some of the other development projects that have taken place in the community," Pelissier said.

Council President Samson Steinman said he supports the plan.

"It ink it's a great idea," Steinman said.

"It compliments everything we're creating in the arts district. It'll be a great addition to the downtown arts district."

Redevelopment Chair William Rack declined to comment as he was not present at the meeting where the project was dis-

Rack explained there are still several more steps in the process before the project can be fully approved.

"Once we've approved a concept it has to go to the Planning Board," Rack said.

Pelissier said the fund made a very good

Laid off county employees 'confused' by pay schedule

By Chervl Hehl Staff Writer

County workers among the 280 expected to be laid off in May are crying foul because they believe their last two week's pay is being withheld.

According to the county this is not the case at all but just a complicated payroll system involving 26-week pay periods verses a 27-week pay period dating back to

Late last week a number of employees asked LocalSource to get to the bottom of what they believe is a ploy to avoid paying employees for the 80 hours they worked for the county before being laid off.

'This is some kind of a runaround. Not only am I getting laid off and have to figure out how to support my family, but they are taking away my last check," said a county worker named Joe, who asked that his last name not appear in print.

"We were just sacrificial lambs, that's all we are," said one union worker who requested anonymity.

Tuesday, Union County Communications Director Sebastian D'Elia said he was aware of the confusion over employees last checks but preferred finance director Bibi Taylor explain how the miscommunication

"We were paying these employees on Thursdays in 2009, but some years there are 27 Thursdays," the finance director explained, pointing out that because of this glitch administration had to decide how this would be handled.

"Part of the problem in 2009 was that if we decided to go with 27 pay periods instead of 26 then employees would have received their last check of the year Dec. 17, and the first check in the new year was Jan. 15, 2010. That meant there would be a gap of almost a month in between paychecks,' Taylor said, noting, for instance, that when paychecks were divided by 27, the amount was significantly less than what employees were use to receiving.

"We did not want this shift to cause any financial hardship for employees,"

This is some kind of a runaround. Not only am I getting layed off and have to figure out how to support my family, but they are taking away my last check.

County employee scheduled to be laid off

the finance director added.

The county decided to move up the January 2010 paydate to Jan.1, but at the 2010

"Because employees were paid for days not yet worked, it created the current pattern of prepayment," Taylor explained.

Taylor said the county consulted with all the union representatives at the time and with their agreement, instituted the current rolling pay day structure whereby the pay day moves forward one day each year.

This resulted in the county prepaying its employees, so those being laid off will received their last paycheck April 24, which pays their salary through the May 1 separa-

"This is just a pay adjustment," the communications director said.

Despite this, one employee said he was told something entirely different by a county payroll employee.

"There should have been a meeting for the employees affected, or a written explanation that clearly is understood by those

"This is an emotional time for all the employees being laid off and this situation has not made it any easier," he said.

Tuesday the county was in the process of distributing a memo to all the employees explaining in detail about their last check.

Possible OPRA, OPMA changes stir debate

"We were able to obtain much information but we really don't know what we didn't see," she said during the hearing, adding her concern was that the average citizen would not have the access she did in order to eventually obtain information.

"It shouldn't be that difficult to obtain public records from public entities," said Buono who is co-sponsoring the OPRA bill with State Senator Loretta Weinberg, Bergen, the prime sponsor of both bills, which cleared the state senate Government, Wagering, Tourism and Historic Preservation Committee in March.

Weinberg agreed completely with Buono. She felt it was time to update both the OPRA law and the Open Public Meetings Act, or Sunshine law, passed 40 years ago. Some of the changes in the amended laws address the role of technology in government, including email and text communications as well as audio and visual recordings at meetings. Specifically, bills 1451 and 1452, after undergoing significant revisions, would amend the Sunshine law, including requiring independent authorities, such as sewerage commissions like Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority, and quasi-public agencies, to hold open meetings and provide agendas that include brief descriptions of items, and narrowing the reasons for going into closed session meetings.

The amendments to the OPRA bill would further clarify exactly what records citizens can access, as well require records be made available on local government websites. Governing body members also would no longer be allowed to text one another during meetings. Currently there are no laws prohibiting this practice that came about as technology advanced.

In Union County, those on both sides of the issue voiced strong opinions about the changes these bills would invoke. In recent weeks many local municipalities, including the county, passed resolutions voicing strong objections to any changes to the current OPRA and OPMA laws, while local activists and citizens stood firmly behind the need for more transparency in government.

The Union County Freeholder Board unanimously passed a resolution opposing both measures, noting that they support the public's right to attend meetings and witness all phases of their deliberation process, but the changes as drafted would be yet another cost-driving force. Union County Communications Director Sebastian D'Elia elaborated on the freeholder's concerns.

"While we agree that government records should be readily accessible and transparent, there should be an appropriate balance between the need for openness and transparency in government and the public's reasonable expectation of privacy," he explained, adding, as an example, the proposed legislation would require video or audio recordings of public meetings be available in unedited form. This he said, presented a problem.

"Current law requires certain discussions not be made public until they can be legally released. That includes advice given to the township by an attorney in closed session, safety and security issues and negotiation strategies," D'Elia said, adding that disclosing this information could adversely affect the public in the long run. "These are terrible requirements that seriously undermine the public interest and could undermine public safety."

D'Elia also had serious concerns about the financial drain the changes would place on municipal and county government if approved by legislators.

"This comes at time when we are being forced to lay off government employees and reduce departmental budgets so that we can meet the strict cap requirements with decreased revenues and increasing mandated expenses," he said. "These burdens include unfunded mandates, numerous costly impractical requirements and impediments to a democratic process."

Tina Renna, community activist and president of the Union County Watchdog Association, though, strongly disagreed, suggesting this is par for the course.

"The freeholders have been outspoken in their opposition to open government measures," Renna said, adding she was not surprised the county came out against the proposed changes to OPRA and OPMA.

The activist readily admitted she ran up against a brick wall when it came to requesting public records from the county because she believes they would prefer keeping this information out of public view.

Forced to file many lawsuits over the years to obtain public records, Renna believes the county deliberately keeps information from the public.

"They consistently lose these lawsuits but it doesn't stop them from instigating them and wasting taxdollars. Its not surprising that they would oppose these revisions, but for them to do so claiming the cost would be too prohibitive is the height of hypocrisy," she added, pointing out "useless county government propaganda and secrecy is costing us millions."

Renna, who is often outspoken on her website regarding the freeholder board and county officials, uses OPRA on a regular basis to request records from the county. Many of these records are posted on the UCWA website revealing county activities or expenditures that previously were unknown. She believes this is deceptive and hides what really is going on at the county level.

"The county spends upwards of a million dollars on their brand of public information; fluff press releases recycled ad nauseum through photo op's in local newspapers and on their newly updated $136,000 website as well as The Directions newspaper which is mailed to everyone in Union County right before the primary and general elections," Renna said.

The activist said information regarding what the county actually spends has to be "obtained by citizens tediously requesting government records through OPRA."

"Attending freeholder meetings doesn't reveal much about government spending because OPMA's spirit isn't upheld by the county prosecutor who is charged with enforcing the law," Renna said, suggesting the proposed updates to the OPMA bill "would give citizens more power to enforce the law through the courts," she added, suggesting "this must be terrifying to union county government and their behind the scenes powerbrokers."

She also pointed out the proposed bill addressed a critical part of the problem — advancements in technology.

"Consider that the OPMA is 30 years old," Renna said, pointing out that fax machines were not even around in 1975 when the law came about, and now there is email and text messaging that allows governing bodies to communicate instantly and conveniently out of the public's view. Although Renna managed to level considerable ammunition at the county, D'Elia made a comment that could be seen as a shot at the activist who regularly stands at the podium during the public portion of freeholder meetings.

"New Jersey Senate Bill 1451 would also impose a new requirement that a governing body may discuss but not take any action on an issue brought up by a citizen at a public meeting if it was not published as an agenda item," he said, suggesting "this is impractical and inhibits the operation of local government."

Renna, however, did not miss an opportunity to bring up how she views freeholder meetings, especially when it came to what she viewed as a lack of transparency.

"Watch a freeholder meeting and you will see them unanimously vote yes on everything on the meeting agenda with no public discussion," she added.

Insurance agent from Westfield charged for 'failing to remit'

Attorney General Jeffrey S. Chiesa announced that a Union County insurance agent was indicted last week for allegedly accepting insurance premium money and failing to remit it to the insurance company.

Virginia Larsen, 66, of Westfield, was charged with theft by failure to make required disposition of property received and two counts of misapplication of entrusted property and property of government or financial institution, all in the second degree.

The state grand jury indictment alleges that between July 29 and Aug. 31, 2009, Larsen, an insurance agent and an officer of Larsen Global Marine, a financial institution, obtained $148,739.70 in insurance premiums that she was obligated to remit to RLI, an insurance company, but failed to make the required payment to RLI, the prosector's office said. The indictment alleges that Larsen was entrusted with the premium money as a fiduciary for RLI, but kept the funds for her own use, knowing that it was unlawful and involved substantial risk of loss to RLI.

Deputy Attorney General Steven Bennet and Detectives Megan Flanagan and Nicole Eiker were assigned to the investigation. Bennet presented the case to the state grand jury. Acting Insurance Fraud Prosecutor Ronald Chillemi thanked RLI for referring the matter to the Office of Insurance Fraud Prosecutor.

The indictment is merely an accusation and the defendant is presumed innocent until proven guilty. Under state law, crimes of the second degree carry a maximum punishment of 10 years in state prison and a criminal fine of $150,000.

Acting Insurance Fraud Prosecutor Ronald Chillemi noted that some important cases have started with anonymous tips.

"People who are concerned about insurance cheating and have information about a fraud can report it anonymously by calling the toll-free hotline at 877-55-FRAUD, or visiting www.NJInsurance-fraud.org," he said in a release. State regulations permit a reward to be paid to an eligible person who provides information that leads to an arrest, prosecution and conviction for insurance fraud.

Rahway hopes to build artists' housing

presentation to the Redevelopment Agency. He said he likes the proposal but harbors concerns about how exactly the fund will restrict residency to persons working in the arts field.

Weiner said that with the municipality's cooperation, the fund can do outreach to target and give preference to artists.

"We will be working hand in hand with the city officials with that process," Weiner said.

Applicants must first qualify based on their income and secondly by the work they do. If no artist is available to fill a particular unit, the space may go to someone who is not an artist, he said

"This is done all over the country," Weiner said. "This is not a novel idea."

Weiner said the federal tax code was amended several years ago to expressly allow for certain buildings to be developed exclusively for artists.

Pelissier said he is unsure of the proper procedure moving forward with the acquisition of the property, stating attorneys will have to hash out the details. The property is owned by Elizabeth Gas company, a publically-traded company.

"There's some procedures that have to be put in place as to how that property can be transferred to this equity fund," Pelissier said. "It could be a little dicey and possibly the Redevelopment Agency might have to be a partner in the acquisition of it. It might be procedurally easier for the gas company to have the redevelopment agency acquire it."

Another Redevelopment Agency meeting was held on May 2. The agency considered a resolution designated the Actors Fund Housing Development Corporation as developer of the parcel.

"Based upon the reception we received at our early presentations, we think there's a lot of support for it," Weiner said.

Embrace open government, cut the waste

A bill has been making its way through the state senate that would make changes to the current Open Public Records Act. We support these changes to include advancements in technology. But we have other concerns about how towns, cities put: they often don't comply.

The spirit of the law is one that every resident, politician, activist, and taxpayer should be very accepting of: providing the public with an open and honest government. To say the law was designed to keep politicians honest would be an understatement, but it would still be accurate.

and counties comply with the law in the first place. Simply Simply embracing this spirit would cause less of a burden on county and municipal coffers, if all parties would work to address OPRA requests without the help of the court system.

In the past few months alone, Union and Union County have both been sued by residents attempting to request what have been legally deemed, in a court of law, open public records. And any attempt to deny these records can be deemed, in a court of public opinion, obstruction of a government for the people and by the people.

Tina Renna, head of the Union County Watchdog Association, is routinely letting her dogs out on the county. Sometimes, her requests may be extravagant. But nevertheless, they have time and time again been determined to be perfectly legal requests. And often times they are very important to the public good.

And time and time again the County of Union has denied her requests, resulting in expensive lawsuits. More than a dozen have been filed by Renna and the Watchdogs alone, and she has only lost one case. She's now suing for records pertaining to a freeholder's son's incarceration while working for the county.

If the freeholders have nothing to hide, then why do they continue to hide public records from the public?

We have asked this question before, and we will continue to ask. But what of the county's response?

In an article published by LocalSource earlier this year, Communications Director Sebastian D'Elia said Renna was costing taxpayers money by continuing to sue. Our response then is the same now.

This is one script that cannot be flipped. The cost of litigation for taxpayers is a direct result of the county not following the law. We recommend all government entities in Union County embrace an open government.

The times, they have changed ... for the better

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

Things sure have changed since I became a reporter in 1989. In fact, if the kids just graduating with a degree in journalism stepped back in time, I'm not sure they would be able to cope without the technology that is so much a part of their lives. How did we ever managed to cope? You might be surprised.

Back in the "old days" reporters had no cell phones, Internet or fancy computers. It was rudimentary at best when it came to the tools of our trade. Our "computer," if you could call it that, was little more than a black screen with grey letters and nothing

But what did I know or care. I was in my dream job as a reporter and everything was new and exciting. I actually thought I entered the high tech newspaper world when they sat me in front of that "computer," which by the way had no spell check, no mail access or anything else for that Since cell phones had not yet become a part of our lives, we relied on the good old newsroom phone, connected to the base by a cord, to make and receive calls. And if we were out on a story and had to call the newsroom, a public phone booth was the only way to make that happen. Not exactly a string and can, or smoke signals, but close, compared to today's technology.

As a rookie reporter I not only had to prove I could handle a "beat," but also come up with six to eight articles and features a week. In between I had my hands full trying to learn how to use that blasted computer, which they told me was "the latest in technology."

To say my first few months as a reporter was something to remember is an understatement. Back then you came to work at REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

BY CHERYL HEHL

8:30 a.m. five days a week and attended meetings three or four nights a week, which often ended in the wee hours of the morning. There was no coming in late to the newsroom. I was up at the crack of dawn to check in at the newsroom and then peruse the halls of the Cranford municipal building, sweet talking my way into getting all those reports, records and documents needed to put together all those articles I had to write.

Just for the record, every reporter worth their salt needs back up reports and records in order to substantiate the articles they write. Getting those documents, though, often required extraordinary feats on my part. Some that make me wonder what the heck I was thinking at the time.

Since there was no Open Public Records Act, or OPRA, as it is known to most people, it was every man, woman and reporter for themselves and being innovative was the name of the game.

It didn't take long to figure out that unless I had great sources who kept me supplied with the documents I needed, or I found a way to get those documents on my own, I was up a creek without a paddle.

I was able to develop great sources, but there were times when they refused to provide certain records or documents due to confidentiality. That's when I put all those years of watching Lois Lane's tactics on Superman to good use. Now that Lois was some reporter and a gal after my own heart. She would do anything to get a story, including getting into some pretty sticky situations. I figured if she could do it, there was absolutely no reason I couldn't employ some of her tactics.

One of my old standby routines for obtaining great leads for stories or those much needed reports was to figure out when the municipal building custodian took the garbage to the dumpster. Then, after it was dark, I dressed all in black and armed with my trusty flashlight, climbed into the dumpster to rifle through all those papers and reports that hit the waste baskets in the building.

Let me tell you, there was some pretty interesting and revealing findings on those covert dumpster missions. Getting out of that dumpster, though, was another story.

Now that was long before shredding documents was even a twinkle in anyone's eye. Back then everyone trusted that when they threw something away, it was protected. Of course, they never expected anyone would be climbing into the dumpster to challenge that opinion.

One of my other tactics was to remain after meetings at town hall, waiting for governing body members to sort through their paperwork and then throw away what they felt was not needed in a nearby trash container as they walked out the door.

The majority of the time, though, I had to beg sources to give me copies of reports that contained information I needed to flesh out a story. Over the years I became quite an expert at using a variety of tactics, until that magical day when I heard there was a new law in the works that would make all that work obsolete.

The law was called OPRA and once I attended a few press association seminars to educate myself, it dawned on me that my life as a reporter was finally going legit.

Gone would be the days of climbing into dumpster. OPRA would make it possible

With the advent of OPRA, Lois can be a superhero, too

(Continued from previous page) for me to simply fill out a form to request public documents and without any begging or cajoling, seven days later those documents would magically be in my hands. It was, and is, a reporters dream.

I could hardly contain myself waiting for the law to take effect. Visions of the untold number of articles I could investigate danced merrily in my head each night before I fell blissfully asleep. There would no more sleepless nights trying to figure out how to get the records I needed or wringing of the hands as I waiting for a governing body member to take pity on me and just hand over the required report. I would be at no one's mercy. The law was finally going to be on my side.

OPRA was the reason my investigative instinct was able to flourish and develop. Without it. I would have been unable to obtain the records needed to break the stories that taxpayers deserve to hear.

Flash forward a decade and the excitement over OPRA has not faded, but the glow is definitely gone.

First of all, waiting seven business days is torture sometimes. Sure you get the records requested, but unless the request was very specific and the information clearly stated, the OPRA request can be denied. That leaves me back to square one trying to figure out how to interpret what I need so I can get in my hands on it as fast as possible. Especially because this is a competitive business and time is a reporter's enemy.

After using OPRA multiple times over the years I have become very adept at getting what I asked for, but what about the average citizen? Would they be able to figure out what it took someone doing it weekly or even monthly in order to get what they requested? Probably not. And OPRA, while usually clear to those handling these requests, is not clear to all municipal, county and state officials.

In 2010 I discovered while doing a multi-county prosecutor office investigation, that the majority of employees had no clue how to direct a person looking for the department handling OPRA requests. I even had one employee in Middlesex County actually laugh and tell me that I had called the wrong place looking for Oprah Transparency in government has come a long, long way since 1989. No doubt about it. New reporters have it far easier than journalists had it several decades ago. But, that is not to say the law could not use an update.

For one thing, anyone who thinks we do not see governing body members or school board members texting one another during public meetings is fooling themselves. I can only imagine what goes down in those texts, let alone the decisions that are being discussed. That is just plain wrong when the discussion should be taking place in a public forum. But, if the proposed amendments to the OPRA law goes through, this will end.

Look, although I was slow to climb aboard the technology train, I discovered that there are many advantages. For one, it cuts through red tape and saves endless researching time. Frankly, without the Internet I never could do the investigative stories I did over the last two years. But, there is a downside to technology and it definitely hurts the public right to know.

While I understand local and county government objections to the proposed OPRA changes, including concerns it will take untold man hours to research the information these changes would require, I don't buy it.

Everyone has to adapt to change and municipal and county workers are not exempt. Besides, from my vantage point, workers in these venues do not appear overworked or even under pressure. Check it out. Pay a visit to your local municipal building. Employees walk at a leisurely pace, have time to converse with one another while seemingly not burdened by a hectic work environment. Ouite a difference from what the huddled masses go through everyday, I'm sure.

Which is not to say public employees don't work hard. I'm sure they think they do. But, let's be honest here, there is a big difference in how employees in the private sector are required to perform their jobs and that of public employees. We may have to pay the tab for these positions, but we are not blind to how the game is played.

So, I'm certain taxpayers will not be crying over how overworked certain employees might be because of any changes to the OPRA and OPMA law. These employees certainly make a lot more money than many of us folks out here. Trust me, this is easily substantiated by salary range comparisons between employees in the public and private sector.

The one thing that has bugged me during the last ten years is the fact those dispensing public records seem to think they are guarding the crown jewels. I never understood why anyone stood in the way of the public's right to know in the first place. What is the big secret and why are we being kept from it?

I can understand certain records being kept from the general public, but come on. Eventually reporters and activists will get what they want if they are entitled by law anyway, even if they have to bring a lawsuit in order to reach that end. That only costs county, state and municipalities untold taxpayer dollars, which, to me, is ridicu-

The question everyone should be asking themselves is, if records are so difficult to obtain, what are our elected officials trying to hide? That, my friends, remains the million dollar question.

One I continue to work on every single

Possible OPRA changes stir debate among Union County residents, officials

There is considerable support from other venues as well. Among them, The New Jersey Press Association, the American Civil Liberties Union, the League of Women Voters and the Sierra Club.

"Times have changed," Thomas Cafferty, general council to the NJPA, said, adding that "We believe these are terrific changes. And Weinberg fully intends to push changes to OPRA and OPMA, regardless of the backlash from county government or local municipalities."

"I think these two bills reach the right balance between the public's right to know and the ability to get the public's business done," Weinberg said in a recent press release about the bills, noting "in a democracy, the people deserve to know how their money is being spent. A just and fair government cannot exist in a vacuum."

Library will deliver to the home bound

Springfield Free Public Library is offering delivery services to the home bound. The library is in the process of collecting applications from potential delivery recipients as well as volunteer drivers. Eligible individuals include Springfield residents with a valid library card, who are temporarily or permanently disabled and unable to travel to the library. The application must be filled out and certified by a physician, visiting nurse or other health care professional. The individual will be matched with a delivery volunteer after the library receives one's application.

The library is seeking volunteers who find comfort in helping people and can afford to donate their time. They must be willing to use their own car for deliveries. Volunteers will need to spend some time getting to know delivery recipients and find out about their likes and dislikes so these can be communicated to the library staff for better selection. Volunteers need to sign a waiver and show proof of valid car insurance.

Union police quickly charge man for TD Bank robbery

Union patrol units responded to a hold up alarm at TD Bank at 2265 Morris Ave. at 2:18 p.m. on Monday. Officers on the scene discovered that the bank had been held up by a male who presented a note indicating he was armed. The male was given money and fled the scene.

Several hours later Detective David Pinto received a phone call from a citizen who asked him about the bank robbery. Pinto was off-duty, and discovered that the bank had been robbed. Pinto came into headquarters and met with the citizen who provided additional details.

Suspect information matched with the bank robber, who lives on Selfmaster Pkwy. Street Crimes Officers were sent to the area of the suspect's home, according to police. The citizen called the suspect and convinced him to surrender. He came out of his home and surrendered, police said.

Miguel Cirne, a 26-year-old male from the 600 block of Selfmaster Pkwy, was arrested, police said. The clothing he wore during the robbery was recovered, but the money is still missing. Cirne has told various versions of what happened and detectives are still investigating his claims as well as looking for the driver of the car that drove him to and from the bank, police said. Cirne was charged with armed robbery of TD Bank. Detectives also coordinated this arrest with the FBI.

Linden

· April 24: Linden Police detectives arrested Lawrence W. McLendon, 53, of North Brunswick on charges of robbery and terroristic threats in relation to a Jan. 31 bank robbery at Northfield Bank, 501 N. Wood Ave. On Jan. 31, at 11:40 a.m., a man walked into the Northfield Bank and displayed a note to a teller demanding cash and indicating he had a gun. The teller handed him a few thousand dollars, and he walked out of the bank. He was later observed on video surveillance footage from the Dunkin' Donuts, 531 N. Wood Ave., entering a white compact vehicle in the parking lot and leaving the area. Detectives analyzed the footage from the coffee shop and a nearby bank and determined the getaway vehicle appeared to be a late 1990 Ford Escort.

In early April, detectives received information naming McLendon as a possible suspect in the robbery. An investigation into his background discovered that in late January and early February, McLendon was driving a 1998 white Mercury Tracer, the Lincoln-Mercury version of a Ford Escort. Detectives also learned from Department of Corrections records that McLendon was released from prison on Jan. 4 after serving a sentence on a robbery conviction. When McLendon was identified by an eyewitness to the robbery, a warrant was issued for his arrest. On April 24, a team of detectives went to a motel on Route One in North Brunswick, where McLendon was believed to be staying, and after a brief surveillance operation, he was stopped and identified before being placed under arrest without incident. McLendon was booked and processed at Linden headquarters before being transported to the Union County Jail in lieu of $120,000 bail. His court date is set for May 2. The investigation is continuing by Det. Kevin Mikolajczyk. Anyone with information can contact him at 908-474-8530.

Bark! Dog walk set to raise funds for Autism

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders encourages families and their furry friends to enjoy a day outdoors in support of autism awareness by participating in the North/Central NJ Bark Now walk for Autism Speaks on June 2 at Oak Ridge Park in Clark.

"Statistics show that the number of children being diagnosed with Autism has grown to surpass the number of children affected by diabetes, AIDS, cancer, cerebral palsy, cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy or Down syndrome combined," said Freeholder Chairman Alexander Mirabella. "The Freeholder Board is proud to support the Bark Now walk, and we encourage County residents to get involved."

Bark Now is a unique fundraising event that offers a safe and fun day for families impacted by autism. Sponsored by the national organization Autism Speaks, the day includes a two to three-mile dog walk, light refreshments for both humans and their companions and Autism Speaks Family Services for families and participants affected by autism.

Those who desire to participate can get involved in the event in a number of ways. Family and friends can raise funds by forming teams to walk in the event or by sponsoring an individual walker. Volunteers are also needed to staff the event by checking in participants, providing encouragement at water stops and cleaning up after the event.

To register a team or individual, or to get involved in any aspect of the event visit barknow.autismspeaks.org/north/centralnj. The top five fundraisers will be awarded two tickets to the performance of their choice at Union County Performing Arts Center, an organization that has worked to develop a Sensory Friendly Theater series, making plays accessible to children and teenagers on the autism spectrum.

Autism is a general term used to describe a group of complex developmental brain disorders caused by a combination of genetic and environmental influences. These disorders are characterized, in varying degrees, by social and behavioral challenges, as well as repetitive behaviors.

An estimated 1 in 88 children in the U.S. is on the autism spectrum with New Jersey amassing the second highest prevalence rate in the nation at 1 in 49 children (1 in 29 boys and 1 in 172 girls).

SUMMARY OF THE ACTION PLAN

The Action Plan of the Consolidated Plan for the Township of Union has been prepared in response to a consolidated process developed by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for four of its formula grant programs: Community Development Block Grants (CDBG), HOME Investment Partnerships (HOME), Emergency Shelter Grants (ESG), and Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS (HOPWA). The new Consolidated Plan regulations replace all HUD planning and application requirements with a single submission that will satisfy the minimum statutory requirements for participation in the four programs.

The Township participates in the CDBG program and is a member of the Union County HOME Program Consortium. It is required to prepare and submit an action plan for HUD approval in order to receive Community Development Grant funds.

The Action Plan is intended to serve the following functions: 1) A planning document for the Township, which builds upon a citizen participation process; 2) An application for federal funds under HUD's formula grant programs; 3) A strategy to be followed in carrying out HUD programs; and, 4) An action plan that provides a basis for assessing performance.

In the Action Plan, Union Township has: 1) described its housing needs and market conditions; 2) prepared a housing and homeless needs assessment; 3) set out a non-community development plan that establishes priorities for meeting those needs; 4) established a one-year action plan that outlines the intended use of resources; and, 5) identified resources anticipated to be available.

Federal regulations require that this summary be published in one or more local, general circulation newspapers. This summary describes the purpose and priorities of the plan, type and location of activities and the location of the complete document. Citizens have 30 days to review the document and submit comments. Citizen comments on the plan should be submitted to the Office of Community Development, Municipal Building, 1976 Morris Avenue, Union, New Jersey 07083. All citizen comments will be considered in preparing the final Action Plan. A summary of these comments or views, and a summary of any comments or views not accepted and the reasons therefore, will be attached to the final Action Plan.

Copies of the draft Action Plan will be available for review on May 3, 2012 at the Office of Community Development in the Municipal Building.

SUMMARY OF PLAN DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

As part of the Plan development process, public hearings were held on December 15, 2011; January 19, 2012; February 16, 2012; March 15, 2012 and April 19, 2012. The purpose of the public meetings were to obtain the views of citizens, public officials and agencies and other interested parties regarding the housing and community development needs of the jurisdiction. A final public meeting on the Action Plan has been scheduled at 2:00 p.m. on May 17, 2012 in the Municipal Building.

The development of the Action Plan involved consultation with those agencies in delivering housing and housing services within the Township. Meetings and discussions were held between the staff of the Township Community Development Block Grant Program Office, the Township Division of Planning, the Township Board of Health and the Union County Division of Housing and Community Development. The Township Section 8 providers were also consulted regarding its Section 8 Rental Assistance Program.

In addition there were meetings conducted with appropriate housing and social service agencies regarding the housing needs of children, elderly persons, persons with disabilities, homeless persons.

ACTION PLAN

The Action Plan lists, by level of government and by private sources, all resources and programs expected to be available to the Township for use in carrying out its housing activities. Each entry includes a short description of the program or resources.

This section constitutes the 2012 Annual Plan of the Five-Year Consolidated Plan. It sets forth a description of activities for the use of funds that are expected to become available during the coming Federal fiscal year, determines goals for individuals and households to be served, and describes the implementation plan and geographic location of the activities to be undertaken. The estimated formula allocation for the Community Development Block Grant program is $457,986 with approximately $100,000 in anticipated program income available during the program year. The activities to be undertaken include housing rehabilitation, public facilities, infrastructure improvements and services.

The Cranford Police Department has announced that there is a Share the Keys New Jersey Parent/Teen Driving Orientation in Cranford.

Kean University, Union, in partnership with the New Jersey Division of Highway Traffic Safety, and New Jersey State Police, has developed Share the Keys, a research based, data - driven orientation has been designed to reduce teen driver crash risks by increasing parental involvement.

Graduated Driver License laws are recognized as the single most effective tool for reducing teen driver crashes, injuries and deaths. While New Jersey's GDL is considered one of the most progressive and stringent in the United States, it must be clearly understood and supported by parents to save lives.

To that end, ensuring that parents and teens fully understand the risks and responsibilities associated with driving is essential to teen driver safety. Police Chief Eric Mason has noted that "Keeping young drivers safe is a priority for the Cranford Police Department. Parents that take an active role in the development of new drivers go a long way in making that effort suc-

RAHWAY NEWS

Giving career day a whole new meaning

Recently, 29 students from Rahway High School were taken on a journey that linked education and career. In the spirit of establishing a 10-year plan, students in the World Class Students Program were given a tour of Kean University and Elizabethtown Gas.

The World Class Students Program is a joint venture, sponsored by the Rahway High School Guidance Department and Elizabethtown Gas Co.

This program utilizes the Learn More Now, Do More Now, Earn More Later Student Achievement System, www.Learn-DoEarn.org, a national initiative managed by the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce Foundation.

Kean University's trip included a presentation by the dean of students, a tour of the college grounds and lunch in the campus cafeteria. There was interaction with university student ambassadors.

This visit was followed by an exploration of Elizabethtown Gas Company's corporate operations. Timothy Williams, manager of Community Outreach for Elizabethtown Gas Mid-Atlantic Region, introduced the students to various personnel. Students were given a lesson from an engineer, listened in on customer service calls, learned how to find gas leaks, and discussed meter reading with employees from that department.

Malik Jeter, a junior at Rahway, said the trip "made me look at my future. Before this, I was not sure about whether to go to college or to imagine that I would work for a company like Elizabethtown Gas, but now I know I can do something significant with my future."

Another junior, Kelsey Williams, found that the visit to Kean "helped inform me more about the qualifications for getting into Kean and other colleges, which helps me to prioritize myself more to get into the college of my choice."

According to Zech, a Rahway High

School guidance counselor and club sponsor, "It is our intention to continue to instill in our students' minds the understanding that the link between education and career is vital to success. Future trips will be designed to establish and concretize our students' 10-year plan."

WPA art on display

Social Impact Studios will team with the Rahway NJ Arts District to present "Posters for the People: Art of the WPA" this spring.

The traveling exhibit, unveiled at the National Constitution Center in 2009, explores the social landscape of America during the Great Depression through posters created by the Works Progress Administration. Featuring hundreds of posters, including originals and reproductions, Posters for the People communicates the values, vision, and vitality of American democracy through art.

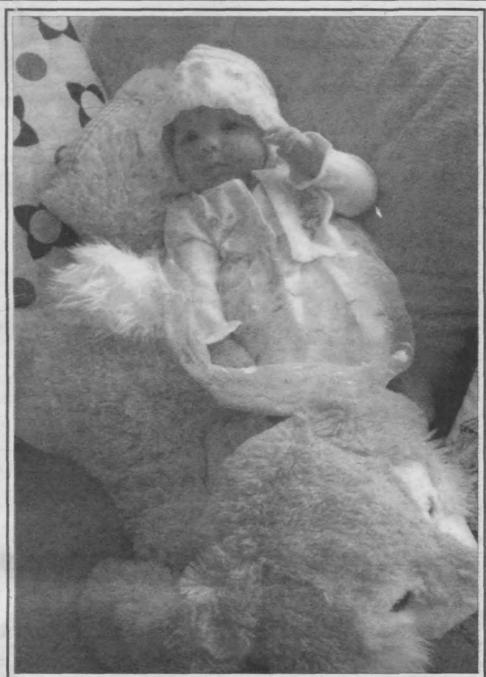

There will be opening reception and book signing, May 3; closing reception and community screenprinting workshop, June 7, and LightSoundSpace Gallery, 1591 Irving St., Rahway, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The public is invited to an opening celebration of the Rahway exhibit on May 3. One can see the poster-originals and reproductions and hear the stories of how this collection of rare American art is being rediscovered and brought back to the public through a new comprehensive online collection.

Two students honored with scholarships

Two Rahway High School students, Angel Diaz and Luis Fernandez, were recently honored by the Foreign Language Teachers of New Jersey. Fernandez won a scholarship for $1,000 after writing an essay and interviewing with a FLTNJ executive board member.

Both young men created a video that was the First Runner Up in the student podcast contest.

HAPPY BIRTH DAY! — Marina and Andrew Reilly are delighted to announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, Sophie Ida Reilly, on March 8, at 3:14 p.m. Sophie weighed 9 lbs. 2 ounces at birth. She was born at St. Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston. The happy family resides in Union.

Healthy Living

Breast cancer doesn't always follow the rules

As a full time gynecologist and mother of two children under the age of 4, I face the same struggles that so many working mothers do — juggling life, work, family and hoping to do it all well. From my unique perspective as a "Dr. Mom," I want to share my experiences and dispense pertinent medical information on a whole host of topics.

Recently I have felt as if breast disease is all around me, and as I get older it's making me nervous. Too often I hear about a friend, relative, patient, or even a celebrity diagnosed with breast cancer. It also disturbs me that many of the people I'm hearing about don't fit into the "typical" category for breast cancer diagnosis; they are too young, have no family history, and are healthy and fit.

For example, a former Ms. Venezuela recently passed away of breast cancer at the age of 28, and E news reporter Giuliana Rancic was just diagnosed with bilateral breast cancer at 36.

There are definitely risk factors that increase the risk of developing breast cancer, including a strong family history, being a carrier of the BRCA gene, early menarche, late menopause, dense breast tissue, obesity, hormone-replacement therapy, sedentary lifestyle, alcohol consumption and age. However, it also seems to be an equal-opportunity disease, as one in eight women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in their lifetime, many of whom will have no major risk factors.

The good news is that in the early 2000's the incidence, or rate of new cancer, actually dropped, likely due to a decrease in usage of post-menopausal hormones.

The incidence of breast cancer has remained stable since 2003; that may be due in part to improved mammography. So while the breast cancer numbers have not increased, more people are affected who don't have the typical risk factors.

The current American Cancer Society recommendation for screening is clinical and self breast exams starting in the 20s, yearly mammography after age 40, and MRIs for patients at increased risk of developing breast cancer.

Most mammography centers are now offering digital mammography, which has significantly improved the detection of small or early cancers. In medicine when a new screening test is developed it is a balancing act between sensitivity and specificity. This means that when a test becomes more sensitive, and better at picking up the disease, it's generally at the expense of specificity, meaning there are more instances of false positives.

In real life, this means that younger women and women with dense breast tissue may be recalled more often for additional mammogram views or breast sonograms. Dense breasts are more muscular and less fatty, sometimes causing areas on the mammogram to look abnormal. This can be nerve-wracking if you are the patient that gets that call, but is always better to be safe.

Three risk factors that can lower your risk of breast cancer are: diet, exercise, and body weight. Studies have shown that more than two drinks a day can significantly increase the risk of breast cancer; drink alcohol in moderation. Regular exercise has been shown to decrease risk significantly; so try to incorporate working out three to five times a week into your lifestyle. Maintaining a healthy weight has shown to significantly reduce risk of cancer; fatty tissue produces more estrogen, which has been shown to increase the risk of breast cancer.

Abstaining from hormone replacement therapy can also help decrease risk. It goes without saying that self-breast exams, annual clinical breast exams, and annual mammography are great assets for early diagnosis.

Most of my patients are diligent about going for their annual mammograms. There are some who aren't compliant, and I hear a lot of different reasons why they don't want to go. Some believe that the radiation exposure may actually cause breast cancer, but this is false. Others claim that it is too painful; yes it is uncomfortable, but quick.

Patients with a strong family history of breast cancer should speak to a doctor about whether they would be candidates for taking certain medications to help prevent breast cancer.

I tell my patients they have access to their bodies all the time, as opposed to seeing a doctor once a year; they'd should start doing self breast exams.

I have a 33-year-old patient who was recently diagnosed with stage II breast cancer. She is my age and I delivered her first child one week before I had my first. She has no family history of breast cancer, and only 9 percent body fat. She felt something that wasn't quite right and came in for an appointment.

I felt what she felt and sent her for appropriate testing and follow up, but I wasn't concerned. However, when she said that it wasn't there before, that was enough reason to order an ultrasound. Unfortunately I was wrong.

Sometimes the cancers don't follow the rules. It's so important not to be lulled into complacency. By being vigilant and proactive we can do our best to detect and intervene as early as possible in every case.

The Theater Project to present script-in-hand reading

The Friends of the Cranford Public Library will sponsor a script-in-hand performance of Mark Twain and the General, a one-act musical drama, on May 19, at 2 p.m. in the Cranford Community Center, 220 Walnut Ave.

The play will be performed by the Theater Project, an acclaimed theater group headquartered in Maplewood. Written by composer Robert W. Butts and playwright Jewel Seehaus-Fisher, Mark Twain and the General tells the story of Ulysses S. Grant's final battle: his struggle to complete his memoir of the Civil War while fighting cancer and impending financial disaster. Grant is plagued by writer's block brought on by his recollection of horrific wartime images.

Enter Mark Twain: humorist, publisher and friend. The play's music reflects the intense self-realization and playful optimism brought on by Twain's visit, as well as the deep bond between Grant and his wife.

Dr. Robert W. Butts is a conductor, lecturer, professor, critic, and composer. He has served as conductor and Artistic Director for the Baroque Orchestra of New Jersey, the Opera at Florham, and the New Jersey Concert Opera. He teaches at Montclair State University and the College of Saint Elizabeth. He has conducted opera and orchestras throughout Eastern Europe and America. His compositions have been performed by leading orchestras, opera companies, and chamber music ensembles, and include three chamber operas and three concertos.

Jewel Seehaus-Fisher is a two-time recipient of the New Jersey State Council on the Arts Individual Fellowship in Playwriting, a finalist in the Samuel French Festival, a two-time finalist in the Actors Theatre of Louisville ten-minute competition, and the author of full-length and short plays produced in New Jersey, New York, Florida and California.

The performance will be followed by a discussion among the director, the playwright, the composer, the performers, and members of the audience.

Admission is free and all are welcome. For more information about the Theater Project, visit them on the Web at http://thetheaterproject.org, or call 908-809-8865.

ARTS & LEISURE

Pain meds, power tools and a leap of faith are all part of garden-tour preparation

The four garden chores I dislike the most are pruning, hedging, edging and mulching. For the next 22 days until the garden tour, I will be spending hours on all three. Other gardeners might add weeding to that list, but I find it relaxing to pull weeds. We have lots of weeds, so under any other circumstances I would be very relaxed by tour day.

Our mature holly trees are a major challenge. I have always loved all the symbolism associated with holly. Sacred to ancient Druids, Romans, and Christians, it has all kinds of mystical meanings — good luck, fertility, evil-spirit deterrence and symbol of Christ's suffering. This does not make the trees easier to prune and shape.

Considering the elbow grease I will expend on the hollies during the next few weeks, it seems that our three large trees should bring better and more consistent luck. To be fair, if the hollies could speak they would probably describe the multitude of evils forestalled since we moved into this house 13 years ago.

What the hollies do bring is birds, lots of them. Each tree is a veritable bird condo, with several species in residence at any one time. Cardinals nest in them; sparrows use them as hiding places during storms and blue jays perch on the top branches and pontificate raucously to the world. We have both male and female trees, and their beeassisted hanky-panky results in lots of berried branches for holiday decorations.

Hollies tend to root wherever their branches touch down, so I try to keep mine limbed up, and "try" is the operative word. A few drooping branches have evaded my efforts, so now I will have to crawl through an accumulation of dried, but still prickly, leaves to get to those wayward limbs.

Since I will already be in considerable pain, I will also eliminate the thorny, wild blackberry canes that have already begun to wend their way up through the holly branches. I tolerate a few each year for the sake of the tasty berries, but this year there are far too many. If I can stand up straight after trimming and discarding the branches and canes beneath the hollies, I will shape them, with special emphasis on branches that droop over pathways and shade planting areas. There are plenty of those. Garden visitors tend to get testy when they are smacked in the face by rebellious holly branches. Once the holly is respectable and all prickle-related injuries have been treated, I will bring in the heavy artillery - the electric hedge clipper - to take care of the privet, which bounds the front of the property on three sides.

The big problem with our privet, aside

THE GARDENER'S APPRENTICE

BY ELISABETH GINSBURG

from its tendency to grow at an excessive rate, is access. On the south side of the property, the hedge abuts the neighbors' driveway. Clipping the driveway side means doing it from the driveway, preferably at a time when it is empty. Unfortunately, whenever I am ready to do the job, the neighbors are ready to settle in at home, with all three of their vehicles parked near the hedge.

I don't want flying privet clippings to scratch their cars, so I bide my time. However, the day is coming when I will simply have to ask them to park in the street for an hour or so. That piece of hedging is the hardest to clip because it is the tallest. It will be a great relief to get it done.

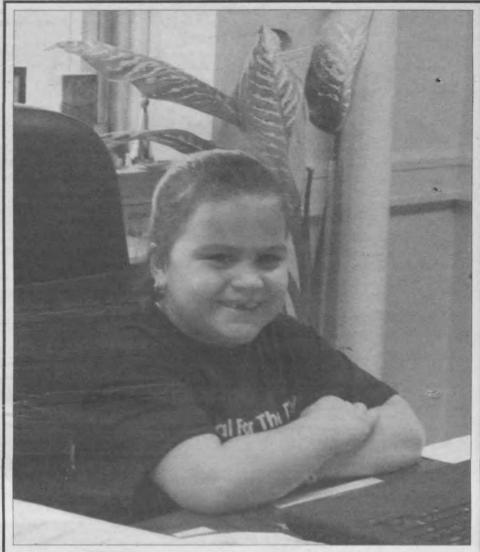

You may wonder why I just don't hire someone to do the pruning and trimming; a question that I ask myself often, especially when I am on my knees under the holly trees. The answer is simple-economics. My garden budget is finite and tour preparation is expensive.

Gardens get hungry before garden tours and they eat mulch at an astonishing rate. Slaking that hunger costs lots of money. Inevitably there will be gaps in the established plantings that will require filling with specimens purchased at the last minute from various vendors.

If I spend money on professional pruners and trimmers now, my garden, starved for lack of mulch, will retaliate by sprouting enormous weeds with 6-foot roots. If I ask my husband to do the trimming, he may well respond by pulling up his roots and moving out. Taking all this into consideration, I have decided that the most cost-effective way to get the garden ready is to do these hateful jobs myself. In the evenings I take Tylenol with a hot tea chaser, and read self-help books to elevate my attitude about the whole thing.

I imagine the day, just three weeks away now, when it will all look wonderful. The days in between will require a leap of faith, but as long as I have pain meds, power tools and a knee brace, I should be able to make it comfortably.

Puzzling questions in Union County lore can be easily answered in the 'Pages of History'

Will the real Abraham Clark stand up!

There is a reason that later day history books identify Abraham Clark as a signer of "The Declaration of Independence", or "poor man's lawyer'.' It's because there were two Abraham Clarks.

The Abraham Clark identified in that manner was named Abraham Clark Jr. at birth. Clark was named after his uncle. Upon his uncle's death, Clark dropped junior from his name necessitating the need to identify him to avoid confusing Clark with his uncle.

Who is Lieutenant Schaeffer?

He identified himself as Lieutenant Schaeffer of the Republican Army every time he called Daniel McLaughlin, Editor of the Elizabeth Daily Journal. The purpose of his calls was to boast about the lumber yard fires he started and warn of the revolution he planned.

Lieutenant Schaeffer turned out to be Robert Zarinsky who was arrested for setting lumber yards a fire in Hillside and Linden. He was also charged with desecrating tombstones in Linden cemeteries. Zarinsky later became infamous as a serial killer and died in prison.

Friendly nicknames

For some reason all famous athletes must have a nickname. See if you can figure these out: Frank "Blackie" O'Rourke played with the Detroit Tigers and Cincinnati Reds. In 1951 he ended up as a scout for the New York Yankees. Fred "Red" Cochrane, a former Welterweight Champion of the World, won his title by defeating "Fritzie" Zivie, July 29 1940.

We can't over look Phillip "Little Scooter" Rizzuto who played for the New York Yankees from 1941 to 1956. Rizzuto played in 52 World Series games and ended up as a sportscaster for the New York Yankees.

Then we have the two "Mickey's" — Michael "Mickey" Walker, a boxer who was Middleweight Champion in 1922 and Mickey Charles Mantle, nickname "Mick" was named "Most valuable Player" three times and hit the most home runs four times.

How did Traubles become Trembly?

A Huguenot named Jean Traubles was an early settler on land that ran to the Staten Island Sound.

He changed his name to John Trembley. Jean translates to John but Traubles does not translate to Trembley. No one knows how he came up with the name Trembley.

The land on the sound was known as "Ferry Point" but soon was referred to as "Trembley Point". Over the years the "B" was dropped and it is now known as Tremley Point.

Union head baseball coach Frank Napolitano, middle, talks to his Farmers after their first round UCT home win over Roselle Catholic last Saturday. Union, the eighth seed, was scheduled to play at top-seeded and two-time defending champion Cranford yesterday in the quarterfinals. Union last reached the semifinals in 2003, while Cranford last failed to reach the semis in 2005.

Union baseball tops Roselle Catholic to advance to this week's UCT quarterfinals RH Meola tosses one-hitter, strikes out 7

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

UNION - After the first two innings, Union junior right hander Michael Meola already had a pitch count past 50.

Then he retired the side in order for the first time in the top of the third.

Union followed by tying the game in the bottom of the inning.

Meanwhile, Meola was settling down. He would follow up a seven-pitch third inning with a seven-pitch fourth, a nine-pitch fifth and a six-pitch sixth, holding visiting Roselle Catholic scoreless in all of those frames.

Union then went ahead for good with two runs in the fifth on consecutive RBI-singles by designated hitter Jon Zimmerman and No. 3 batter Doug Carter (infield hit).

The eighth-seeded Farmers added four insurance runs in the sixth en route to ousting ninth-seeded Roselle Catholic 8-2 Saturday in a first round Union County Tournament baseball game at Gordon LeMatty Field.

Meola tossed a one-hitter, allowing only an infield single to the second batter he faced, while striking out seven, walking one and hitting two batters.

He yielded just one earned run in an exceptional 96-pitch performance that included him picking off one baserunner.

"Michael pitched well enough to win some other games for us," sixth-year Union head coach Frank Napolitano said. "When he beat Scotch Plains he became our Saturday (county tournament) pitcher.

"His fastball and his two-seamer worked well today. When he keeps his pitches under control he's at his best."

The 59th annual UCT was to continue yesterday with four quarterfinal round games at the higher seeds. Union was to play at top-seeded and two-time defending champion Cranford.

Cranford has reached the semifinals every year since 2006. Union last reached the semifinals in 2003, which was for the eighth consecutive season.

All top eight seeds advanced, including all seven Watchung Division teams and Mountain Division leader Dayton.

GL softball defeats Cranford for first place in Watchung Teams will play again May 8

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

BERKELEY HEIGHTS - Round one went to Governor Livingston.

It went to the Highlanders pretty decisively at that.

Leadoff batter Paige Murphy hit a ball past the center fielder for a home run on the first pitch a GL batter saw, the Highlanders then scored the go-ahead run on a double steal in the second and then they added three more runs in the third and two in the sixth for a 7-2 home win over Cranford last Saturday morning in Union County Conference-Watchung Division softball play.

The teams will play another Watchung Division game May 8 at Cranford, while they could meet for a third time in the Union County Tournament.

Defending Watchung Division champion GL improved to 14-1 overall and 8-0 in the Watchung Division, while Cranford slipped to 8-4 overall and 6-1 in the Watchung.

In addition to 11th-year GL head coach Rick Iacono earning his 200th win - his record since taking over in 2002 improved to 200-54 (.787) - the defending champion Highlanders clinched the top seed for the 37th annual

Farmers sought to reach UCT semifinals for the first time since 2003 campaign

In Union County Conference-Watchung Division play, Union lost at Cranford 16-5 in the season-opener for both on April 3 and was defeated at home by the Cougars 9-2 this past Tuesday.

However, Union did defeat Cranford at home in division play the past two seasons. Cranford improved to 11-2 Saturday with its first round home victory over 16th-seeded Oratory Prep by a score of 7-2. Including records of 25-5 in 2010 and 20-5 in 2011, Cranford is 56-12 the past three seasons. In that span against Union, Cranford is 4-2.

"We want to play Cranford, we're not scared of them," said Meola, who improved to 2-0, with his other win coming at Scotch Plains when Union won 16-4 in Watchung Division play April 20.

Union won its second straight to improve to 5-8, gaining its first non-division victory. Union's other wins came against Watchung Division foes Westfield, Linden, Scotch Plains and Elizabeth.

Roselle Catholic lost its third straight to slip to 6-6.

"In the first inning I was coming off the side to much," Meola said. "I had to settle down and throw straight toward the plate.

"Once I did that my stuff was a little harder and I was throwing a lot less."

Roselle Catholic junior lefty batter Ryan Sheekey reached safely on an infield hit to the left side in the top of the first and then scored Roselle Catholic's first run on an RBI-ground out off the bat of cleanup batter and Union resident Matt Marques, who was behind the plate for the Lions.

RC managed a second run as the result of a Union infield error.

After throwing 24 pitches in that inning, Meola threw 27 more in the second, but did not allow a run.

Union failed to score after loading the bases with no outs in the first and after getting runners on first and second with nobody out in the second.

The Farmers then tied the game in the third, took the lead in the fifth and added on in the sixth.

Union produced five hits in the sixth off Roselle Catholic starter James Colgan (4-1) and Sheekey in relief. Leadoff batter Denzell Boyd drove in a run on a fielder's choice and then Jon Zimmerman drove in another run with an RBI-single. Chris Dillon then drove in a run on an infield single before senior Devin Zimmerman went the other way to knock in a run with his second single, this one smashed to left field.

Colgan was charged with giving up six runs for his first defeat in six starts, including a nodecision. He struck out seven, walked one, hit two batters and picked off two runners.

RC committed four errors when he was pitching and five total. Two of the errors were made by Colgan in attempts to pick off baserunners.

Napolitano said that Zimmerman (1-2) will be on the mound when Union faces Cranford Wednesday. Zimmerman beat Cranford 2-1 at Union in 2010 and also lost to Cranford in the game at Cranford this season.

Zimmerman went the distance in beating Elizabeth 3-1 at home last Friday in Watchung Division play.

"As a sophomore Devin beat Cranford," Napolitano said. "However, in both games we've played them this year they did not strike out even once.

Boyd, a junior, had two of Union's 14 hits, using his speed to leg out infield singles in the first and fifth. He was 2-for-4 with two stolen bases, two runs and one RBI.

"Our defense brings us back to where we want to be," Boyd said.

Union committed just two errors vs. RC.

"If we play well on defense and get good efforts from our pitchers we know we have a good chance to win," Boyd said.

"We know that Cranford is a good team, but we know that if we give a good effort we have a good chance to beat them."

All nine Union batters reached safely, with eight of them banging out at least one hit.

Jon Zimmerman was 3-for-4, with two singles, a double, three runs and two RBI. He reached base all four times up, including when he was hit a by a pitch in the first.

Union was to play Westfield in Watchung Division play Sunday night at TD Bank Ballpark in Bridgewater - home of the Minor League Somerset Patriots.

"We worked it out with Westfield to play a game there this year," Napolitano said.

Westfield was the home team and won 12-4. When the teams played at Union in Watchung Division play on April 5, Union came back to win 11-6 after trailing 4-0.

Cougars will seek to beat GL when teams meet again in Watchung Division action

Union County Tournament, which was seeded Sunday.

Iacono reached and passed 300 wrestling wins during his 38th season as a head coach in that sport this past winter.

"I thought we were very competitive right from the get-go," Iacono said.

Cranford, because of its 12-4 division win at Westfield on April 19, should receive the second seed. Westfield, which defeated defending champion Cranford in last year's semifinals to reach the final for the first time since last winning the UCT in 1998, is the favorite to get the third seed. The Blue Devils were 10-5 overall going into Saturday.

Cranford pitcher Julie Siragusa led off the game by blasting a shot past GL center fielder Murphy for her ninth career home run - all this year - on the first pitch delivered by Highlander junior right hander Jordan Robbins.

"They (Cranford) come out and the first pitch is a home run, you don't expect that kind of an answer," Iacono said.

However, Cranford could manage only one more run off Robbins the rest of the way, which was an RBI-double by senior Stephanie Bagniewski that drove in junior courtesy runner Sara LoBue in the top of the fourth to pull the Cougars to within 5-2.

Robbins, who was the winning pitcher in last year's UCT final when GL - also as the top seed - defeated seventh-seeded Westfield 8-1 in the title game at Kean University, tossed a seven-hitter that included six strikeouts and no walks. She retired the side in order in the third and seventh.

"When our kids don't focus on winning and forget about winning and focus on task, we're pretty good," Iacono said.

Siragusa, who earned a save when Cranford defeated GL 4-3 in the 2010 UCT final at Kean, allowed 11 hits in six innings. She struck out seven, walked one and hit a batter.

"I pitched alright," Siragusa said. "It definitely wasn't one of my better days, but I usually have my defense. Usually my defense is really strong, but it had an off day."

Cranford played without sophomore shortstop Ali Verrilli, who was away on an academic commitment. Filling in for her and giving it her all was sophomore Maggie McKay.

Cranford sixth-year head coach Bob Bruno could tell, pretty much, right away that Siragusa was not having one of her best games on the mound

"I thought she was flat and I thought it was a very average performance from her," Bruno said. "I don't think her pitches were sharp today at all and she didn't appear to have too much pop on the ball.

"Sometimes that happens. When you're a power pitcher and you don't have that, it kills you."

After both teams hit home runs on the first pitch they saw - Siragusa for Cranford and Murphy for GL - the Highlanders took the lead for good in the bottom of the second. With runners on first and third and two outs, sophomore Carol Goldbeck broke for second and sophomore courtesy runner Colleen Frank for home, with both advancing to give GL a 2-1 advantage.

The Highlanders added three more runs in the third to take a four-run lead.

Up with the bases loaded and one out was senior Jenna Kulbach, who was hit in the helmet for an RBI.

Then 6-2 senior Kelly Goense - on a 2-2 count - delivered a perfectly-placed two-run bloop single to short right to make it 5-1. On a pitch that the infield was coming in on, Goense hit the ball to a spot in the field where the second baseman probably would have been had she not charged forward.

"With two strikes on her she was protecting the outside half (of the plate) and she kind of lunges," Iacono said. "People don't realize that she's very inexperienced. She doesn't play on a club team or play summer softball. She's trying to work to pay for her education. She's a great kid."

Two seniors drove in GL's final runs in the sixth. Emily Beisser produced an RBI on a ground out to second and then cleanup batter Steph Cataldo delivered an RBI-single.

Murphy was 3-for-4, with a home run, two infield singles, two runs and an RBI. She reached base all four times up, including on an infield error in the third.

"She was a little bit upset with herself coming into today," Iacono said. "She didn't like the way she batted the other day against Elizabeth. She struggled a little bit.

Siragusa was 2-for-3, with a solo home run and a triple to right field in the fifth on a play that she was thrown out at home on a 9-6-2 relay started by Goense. Going for another home run, Siragusa did not attempt to slide at home plate and was tagged out by GL senior catcher Kulbeck, who took a pretty good throw from sophomore shortstop Grace Sanzalone.

"I think we have to hit, we didn't hit well today at all," Siragusa said. "Against Westfield and Elizabeth we were hitting like crazy.

"Hopefully, next time we play them we'll be more relaxed and not as nervous. I guess we were nervous today."

Cranford senior catcher Melissa Moreno was 2-for-3, with two singles and she also picked off a runner at first base. Senior first baseman Izzy Acton belted a two-run triple with two outs in the second, but was left stranded at third.

GL did not commit an error, which is huge when going up against a team that it's trying to win the division against.

GL leadoff batter Paige Murphy hit a home run on the first pitch she saw in the bottom of the first against Cranford last Saturday, leading the home team Highlanders to a 7-2 UCC-Watchung Division softball victory.

GL softball is UCT top seed; will attempt to win 5th title

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

The Governor Livingston softball team, as expected Sunday night, was selected as the top seed for the 37th annual Union County Tournament.

The Highlanders earned that honor for the second straight season after fashioning a 14-1 record that includes a perfect 10-0 mark against Union County teams and a leading 8-0 record in the Watchung Division of the Union County Conference.

The defending Watchung Division and UCT champions seek to not only repeat as league champs, but capture back-to-back county titles for the first time.

This will be GL's fourth attempt to win the UCT for the second consecutive year. The Highlanders won the title in 1997, 1999 and 2001 under Jerry Britt and in 2011 under present head coach Rick Iacono, who took over in 2002.

"I'm a wrestling coach, so seeding means nothing to me," said Iacono, who in 11 seasons has a 200-54 (.787) record at the helm of the Highlanders. Iacono also reached and passed 300 wins as a wrestling coach this past season, his 39th as a head coach in that sport.

His 200th win came Saturday morning at home with GL defeating Cranford 7-2 in a battle of undefeated Watchung Division squads.

As a result, Cranford – the 2010 UCT champion – is the No. 2 seed.

"We have to continue to play good defense and continue to score runs," Iacono said. "If it's us and Cranford in the end or, whomever, we'll still have to continue to play good, sound softball."

GL defeated seventh-seeded Westfield 8-1 in last year's UCT final at Kean University. Cranford edged GL 4-3 in the 2010 championship game at Kean.

GL and Cranford will play their Watchung Division game at Cranford on May 8 at 4 p.m.

"We'll take the second seed," Cranford junior left handed pitcher and lefty leadoff batter Julie Siragusa said.

Siragusa earned a save in the 2010 final, halting GL in relief of winning pitcher Kelly Hardman. In Saturday's division game Siragusa slugged a home run on the game's first pitch and later belted a triple.

A three-year varsity starter, Siragusa has nine career home runs – all this year.

"If we play them two more times (division guaranteed and UCT possibly), hopefully we'll be on top of them the next two," Siragusa said.

The Cougars have captured the UCT championship three times under Bruno, including in 2007, 2008 and 2010. Cranford won the crown for the first time in 2002 under Terry Biunno and then again in 2006 under Shannon Wagner.

Westfield, which last year defeated third-seeded Cranford 4-2 in a semifinal at Linden to reach the championship game for the first time since it last won the UCT in 1998, earned the third seed this time. The Blue Devils begin the week at 10-5, including a 9-6 home division loss to GL on April 5 and a 12-4 home division setback to Cranford on April 19.

Johnson, the defending Mountain Division champion and last year's No. 2 seed, is the fourth seed. The Crusaders were 7-5 going into Saturday's scheduled game at Roselle Catholic.

Rounding out the top eight seeds are fifth-seeded Rahway, sixth-seeded New Providence, seventh-seeded Elizabeth and eighth-seeded Dayton.

Johnson stars Imbriaco, Meagher, Wilson, Wnorowski to continue on college level

Members of various Arthur L. Johnson Athletic teams participated in a signing day ceremony Friday at Johnson to honor their four years of service to Crusader Athletics and commemorate their signing of national letters of intent to play NCAA Collegiate Athletics.

Johnson senior student-athletes Nicole Imbriaco, Allison Meagher, Cyndi Wilson, and Amanda Wnorowski signed their letters of intent to continue their athletic and academic careers at the collegiate level, where they will continue playing field hockey and softball.

Nicole Imbriaco and Amanda Wnorowski will be playing field hockey in college at Rutgers and East Stroudsburg, respectively. Alison Meagher and Cyndi Wilson will be playing softball at Rider and St. Joseph's, respectively.

Gus Kalikas, Supervisor of Athletics, Health, and Physical Education at Johnson, had this to say about the event. "Nicole, Allison, Cyndi and Amanda have been an integral part of the success of our field hockey and softball teams, allowing us to win championships in both sports. More importantly, they have been model student-athletes that did things the right way, both on the fields, in the classroom and throughout our community. Although it will be sad to see them leave, the Crusaders' loss is their college's gain. We look forward to following their successful collegiate careers over the next four years."

We would like to wish the best of luck to Nicole, Amanda, Alison and Cyndi as they culminate a wonderful career for the Crusaders and continue their academic and athletic successes as collegiate student-athletes.

Repeated bomb threats at UCC drain important resources

By Paul Greulich Staff Writer

A series of bomb scares at Union County College in Cranford have disrupted education, and diverted law enforcement resources from the Cranford Police Department, the County Sheriff's Office and the county bombsquad.

The string of six incidents occurred between April 2 and April 27. Of these, five occurred at the Cranford campus on Springfield Avenue. The sixth involved the Plainfield Campus. All the threats were phoned in. Authorities stated the investigation is ongoing but no arrests have been made.

College President Margaret McMenamin said the college will remain vigilant and continue to work with law enforcement officials to investigate the threats.

"As evidenced by the recent spate of similar hoaxes at the Universities of Pittsburgh, Delaware, and Maine, this aberrant behavior has become an unfortunate sign of the times," McMenamin said.

Vice President Stephen D. Nacco said students and staff have worked hard to continue their academic pursuits despite these disturbances.

"It has disrupted things, but the faculty deserves credit for communicating with the students and making sure the students get through their finals," Nacco said.

The students and teachers were aided by the use of email communication as well as a website that helps students stay on task with their courses.

As the events unfolded, McMenamin communicated via "blast emails" to all students and employees as well as on student and employee portal homepages.

Nacco said it is important for colleges and universities to have contingencies ready in case of emergencies. Union County College enrolls almost 40,000 credit, non-credit, and continuing education students.

Some of the recent incidents effected the school more than others. On April 24 the school received a very non-specific threat. Nacco said the college assessed the nature of this threat, consulted with law enforcement and chose not to evacuate.

Nacco said the threat involved nothing pertaining to a bomb, a time, or a location.

"There was nothing specific - nothing you could really investigate," Nacco said.

Law enforcement instead conducted a "sweep" of the college's Cranford, Elizabeth and Plainfield campuses using K-9 units while classes and programs continued as scheduled. Nacco said this is similar to the way the University of Pittsburgh recently "tweaked its tactics" and will no longer automatically evacuate when a nonspecific call is received.

Union County Police Chief Dan Vaniska said four of the six threats were met with a "full response" by the bomb squad as well as Union County HAZMAT.

"Our bomb squad has responded to most of them," Vaniska said.

Vaniska said the volume of equipment and manpower that must be mobilized to meet these potential dangers are much greater than a simple false burglar alarm or 9-1-1 call.

Vaniska said each full-scare response costs his department $1,500 to $2,000, separate from costs incurred by the Union County Sheriff's Department and the Cranford Police. There is also a potentially much greater cost.

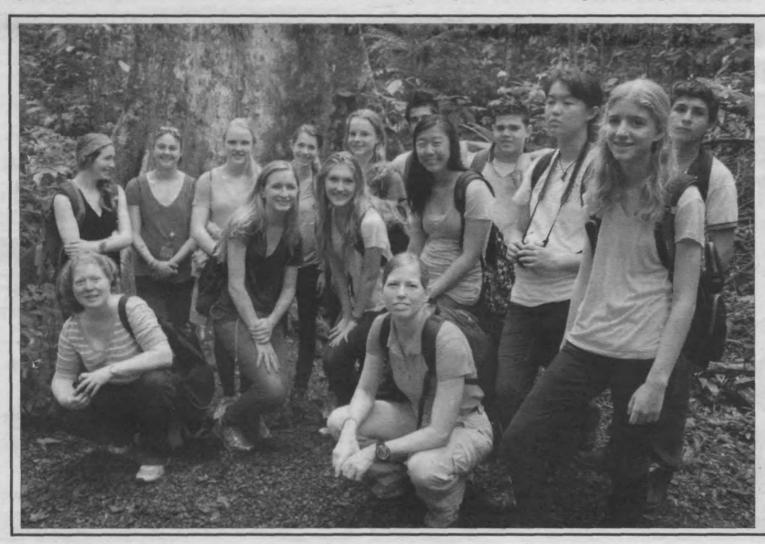

"It ties up critical public safety resources should a true alert come in," Vaniska said. "I take these things kind of seriously when people could potentially get hurt."

Nacco said this string of incidents is very unusual for the college.

"People who have been here in Union County College for 30 years tell me they have never seen anything like this," Nacco

Anyone with information about these incidents is urged to contact Cranford Police at 908-272-2222.

SERVICE PROJECT - Faculty and students from Kent Place in Summit spent their spring break in Costa Rica. Over 30 Kent Place Upper School students chose to spend their Spring Break this March entrenched in meaningful service projects both domestically and internationally. The Kent Place World Language Department offered a return service trip to Chilamate, Costa Rica to build upon the relationships formed, Spanish languageskills developed and the service work completed on their initial trip in June 2011. Kent Place partnered with the World Leadership School to work for five days on the initial phase of a very ambitious community center project, which involved the building of a multiuse room. Other destination offered this year were New Orleans and Guatemala. Kent Place faculty and staff served as chaperones.
