Dear Middle States, Kean has no standards

Twelve-page letter from Federation of Teachers president to commission details problems

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

An 11th hour letter from the commission that holds Kean University's accreditation in their hands recently raised red flags about three additional standards that have never been called into question before. One of them specifically deals with political intervention in education.

This all came to the forefront after Kean Federation of Teachers President James Castiglione submitted a 12-page letter June 30 to the Middle States Commission on Higher Education that laid out all the problems, concerns and violations related to Kean's compliance with Standard 6, Integrity.

Kean was put on probation July 2 by Middle States because there was evidence lacking that the university was currently in compliance with four of the 14 standards required to maintain accreditation. Those standards included 6, relating to integrity, 7, institutional assessment, 12, general education and 14, assessment of student learning.

But now, just weeks before the university's compliance report is due in Middle States' hands, the commission sent a letter to university president Dawood Farahi questioning issues involving standards 4, 10 and 13 and asking for further documentation, copies and evidence to explain these allegations.

Also, language used by Middle States on its own website updating Kean's accreditation status hinted that standards 4 and 5, which have to do with institutional governance and management, as well as "equitable and consistent treatment" of faculty, could be in question. This particular issue

Legal bills mounting as Cranford endures Birchwood saga

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

CRANFORD — Although the township has been fighting the Birchwood Development for years, in the end taxpayers end up footing the legal bill that grows day by day. However, the township stands strongly behind this effort and does not intend to back down. Regardless of the cost.

According to legal bills dating back to 2008, obtained by LocalSource using the Open Public Records Act, the township has spent $578,989.76 to fight the Birchwood development. And the tab is still running.

The bills include charges from four separate legal firms that either represented the township regarding Birchwood, or continue to handle legal issues involving this proposed development.

Included was charges the township paid to former township attorney Carl Woodward's firm for costs dating from January 2009 until the present; legal services by Stuart R. Koenig, the attorney hired by the township in connection with the Mt. Laurel litigation from July 2009 to January 2011; charges from January 2012 to present from township attorney Philip Morin's law firm of Florio, Perrucci, Steinhardt and Fader; and invoices for services rendered by court appointed Special Master Elizabeth C. McKenzie.

The township is currently deeply involved in an ongoing court appointed site plan review with Cranford Development Associates, a subsidiary of the S. Hekemian Group, which began efforts more than five years ago to develop a 16-acre parcel of land on Birchwood Avenue. The township, already fighting another developer who wanted to construct affordable senior housing on a narrow parcel of land on South Avenue adjacent to the railroad, took an immediate stance against the project.

Since then the township has had two builder's remedy lawsuits brought against them by these developers, including multiple appeals and counter lawsuits requiring the expertise of seasoned environmental and land use attorneys. Expertise of this type, though, is costly. Especially in light of the fact the township was on the losing end of these lawsuits and appeals.

The majority of these legal costs, though, occurred prior to trial when attorneys are doing discovery work on the case. This includes taking depositions from witnesses, researching information about site suitability and how environmental and land use law can be applied to a particular legal case.

For example, when Woodward's firm, Carella Byrne, Carl Woodward and Brian Fenlon, took on CDA's builder's remedy lawsuit, by the time the trial was over the legal bills escalated to $430,193. But, according to Morin, that is what it costs to defend a builder's remedy case.

"There was intensive discovery involved with that trial and a significant amount of time had to be spent preparing for trial," the township attorney explained, adding that this particular trial lasted 14 days, which is considered quite long.

Morin should know. He recently spent months preparing for the site plan review hearing now being held in the Elizabeth courthouse.

County gets surveillance platform through multi-county grant

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

Thanks to seven counties working together, local towns have the protection and response required if and when threatened by terrorists.

In 2003 when the Urban Area Security Initiative was formed, it paved the way for the counties of Union, Essex, Bergen, Passaic, Morris, Hudson and Middlesex, along with the core cities of Newark and Jersey City, to enhance their homeland security efforts in in brand new ways.

Although the UASI region only represents 15 percent of New Jersey's total area, it contains more than 44 percent of the states total population.

UASI is a partnership among state, county and local government agencies, with the lead state agency being the New Jersey Attorney General's Office.

UASI was specifically designed to set a strategic direction for the enhancement of regional response capability and capacity for the offices of emergency management, including police, fire, EMS and health departments.

Through federal grant funding, mainly through the U.S. Department of Homeland Security funding, UASI is charged with reducing area vulnerability by strengthening the cycle of response and ensuring potential targets are identified, assessed and protected. In addition, UASI counties are actively developing and maintaining a network of intelligence so threats in this portion of the state are discovered and eliminated.

In fact, just recently, thanks to a 2011 grant submitted by Union County Bureau

Union County received a portable surveillance platform as part of grant submitted by the Urban Area Security Initiative, a multi-county safety program which applies for grants and shares the rewards with various counties and cities of Domestic Preparedness Chief Salena Carroll in 2010, each of the seven UASI counties, along with Jersey City and Newark, have portable surveillance platforms.

The platforms, which would have cost $1.2 million without the grant, or $123,000 each, were part of a larger grant initiative totaling $4.1 million, Carroll said.

"It is well known that the Jersey City-Newark UASI region is one of the most densely populated areas in the entire country," Carroll said in the grant that netted UASI the millions, noting, for example that "some of the country's most critical infrastructure sites and key resources are located within this important region, with several sites having been confirmed targets of international terrorists."

Carroll said she explained in the grant application that if the seven counties, in addition to the core communities of Newark and Jersey City, received the $4.1 million grant, it would go a long way to reducing the vulnerability and risk of a terrorist attack in any of the UASI counties by providing security equipment to "deter, delay and detect potential terrorist activity."

Union County Public Safety director Andrew Moran explained Monday that Union County acted merely as the "purchasing agent" for the other UASI members in this particular case, but other UASI counties take turns submitting grants that will benefit all.

"We applied for the grant and then each county, along with Newark and Jersey City, received skywatch platforms in addition to other homeland security components purchased as a part of this grant initiative," the director explained.

But while Union County received the equipment, eight of the platforms were dispersed to the six other UASI members, in addition to Newark and Jersey city.

Union County, though, only received one platform, not nine as reported on the Union County Watchdog website Aug. 12. The UCW is an activist group that reports heavily on Union County activities.

More importantly, Moran said, residents should be aware the platform the See COUNTY, Page 7

After brief foot chase, police arrest two for burglary to automobiles

By Paul Greulich Staff Writer

HILLSIDE — Local law enforcement is reporting a spike in burglaries to vehicles, particularly along the Newark border, as typified by an incident last week that resulted in three arrests.

On Aug. 15, at approximately 2 a.m., Hillside Police Officers Joseph Vetter and Daniel Wanat were on a routine patrol when they observed three suspicious individuals approach and peer into the window of a vehicle parked on Williamson Avenue, near the corner of Maple Avenue.

The officers observed one of the suspects enter the vehicle through an unlocked door and begin to rummage through the vehicle. As the officers approached, all three suspects fled the area on foot. After a brief foot chase, two of the three suspects were apprehended. One suspect covered about two blocks, being arrested on Conklin Avenue. Both of those apprehended were later identified as juvenile residents of Newark. A third suspect, known to the officers, escaped on foot. Through further investigation, it was discovered that an additional car on the same block had been entered. In that case, the vehicle's door lock had been damaged and personal property was taken from the vehicle. The stolen property was later recovered by police.

It was later determined that one of the juvenile suspects had outstanding warrants from the Union County Sheriff's Office. Both juveniles were charged with theft, criminal mischief, and resisting arrest.

The third suspect eventually turned himself in at police headquarters. He was identified as Barnabas Dorcely, 19, of Hillside. He was arrested by Detective Brian Wilson in connection with the burglaries on Williamson Avenue. Dorcely was also charged with theft, criminal mischief, and resisting arrest. He is being held in Union County Jail on $60,000 bail.

Police Chief Robert Quinlan said police are working hard to reign in crime along the Newark border.

"The members of the Hillside Police Department patrol this area heavily and do an outstanding job, given the substantial reductions in the Police Department during the current administration," Quinlan said.

Remembering former mayor's love of Linden after his passing

By Paul Greulich Staff Writer

LINDEN — This week residents bid farewell to former Mayor Paul Werkmeister, who passed away recently. Local officials who worked with Werkmeister remember him as a man who loved the city and worked to bring out the best in others.

Werkmeister, a Democrat, first served the city of Linden as a councilman of the 9th Ward as well as a labor investigator before winning the office of mayor and serving from 1987 to 1990. He lost the seat to John Gregorio.

Werkmeister served in the U.S. Army during World War II and was taken prisoner by German forces during the Battle of the Bulge in 1944. After the war he returned to Linden, married and worked at the Exxon USA Bayway Refinery and Exxon marketing for 37 years. Werkmeister had three daughters, six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Werkmeister died at his home on Aug. 16 and was buried on Tuesday at Rosedale Memorial Park, in Linden.

Mayor Richard Gerbounka said he will

Paul Werkmeister miss Werkmeister "immensely," not only as someone who gave him good advice and guidance but also as a mentor and personal friend.

"In fact he was the one who got me interested in politics after he lost his election to John Gregorio in 1990," Gerbounka recalled.

The one-stop 'Center' for antiques in Summit

The Summit Antique Center has a touch of history, and not just for sale on its shelves

By Paul Greulich Staff Writer

SUMMIT - Shoppers with a taste for history may eventually find themselves at the bountiful Summit Antiques Center.

Store Manager Peter Cummings said the center could be considered to be at a disadvantage, compared with other antique shops, because it is not located in the city's downtown.

"That's more of a destination," Cummings said.

However, the store has gained a faithful following thanks to its size and variety. This spacious store both buys and sells antiques. Loyal dealers fill the labyrinthine maze of china, jewelry, furniture and books, that features the merchandise of more than 60 antiques dealers.

"There's so many different personalities and so many different people, we have a really wide array of stuff," said Kathy Ruck, president of the corporation that owns and runs the store.

But perhaps most unique about this establishment is the building itself, which is just as historic as its contents. The structure was built in the late 19th century as a residence. It later became a school, then a gym, then a flower shop.

The antiques center opened in 1990. A group of antique dealers doing business there formed a corporation and eventually purchased the building. They shared the building with Thompson's Sporting Good, which eventually moved across the street.

Ruck said much renovation and decorating has been done over the years, and the building remains structurally sound.

Ruck is a 32-year resident of Summit whose passion for antiques started early in life. Her father owned a small antique and 1980s. Her husband, Brian, is also an antique collector and a dealer at the shop.

Ruck said that although the economic recession and the advent of online shopping has changed the antiques business and put some other shops out of business, the Summit Antiques Center plans to survive.

"We're still holding strong and we have a good customer base," Ruck said. "We're there for the duration."

Staff members said their business attracts a variety of customers with different needs and budgets. Some people who pass through their doors are looking for bargains; some are collectors; and some are wealthy and just like shopping there.

Antiques enthusiast John DiMeglio has been visiting the Summit Antiques Center for "at least 10 years," and said he prefers it to many other shops in the area.

"It's definitely superior because it has a big variety and a lot to see," DiMeglio said. "It's sort of one-stop shopping."

DiMeglio, a Morristown resident, prefers midcentury modern antiques. He added that, in addition to the variety at the Summit Antiques Center, he also appreciates the friendly staff.

Customers also include local decorators and designers who need special materials. The Center also serves as a source for props for television productions and plays, and counts the Paper Mill Playhouse as one of its regular customers.

Ruck said none of the Center's competitors can compare with its size.

"You could fit all those stores inside of our building," she said. "We're definitely the biggest and oldest around."

Letter details Kean's continuing controversy

Standards 4, 10 and 13 now being questioned by Middle States relate directly to board of trustee policies involving the hiring of the university president; policies regarding faculty and staff, including proof that impartial practices are followed in such areas as hiring, promotion, granting of tenure, promotion and disciplinary actions; board policies on integrity in relation to employees, students and board members; and evidence the university is in compliance with the commission's policy on "Political Intervention in Education."

Middle States also brought up the new Kean campus in China, requesting Farahi to submit information on the university's "plans to comply" with the commission's policy and procedures on any substantial changes made to the university, as required in standard 13.

According to the letter sent to Farahi by Middle States, of which LocalSource obtained a copy, the commission is required by federal regulations to review third party comments it received regarding an institution under review for re-accreditation

Castiglione's letter goes into detail about the history of what has transpired involving Farahi's multiple misrepresentation of his academic credentials in at least eight different resumes over the course of three decades. The letter was obtained by LocalSource through a Kean faculty member. The KFT president also notes that the board of trustee investigation into this was "highly questionable, as it appears to manipulate the process to arrive at a preordained outcome."

He further informed Middle States that documentation provided by KFT, in addition to initial allegations, were not included in the investigation, despite a request from the investigating attorney that this information would be considered.

Castiglione also referred directly to the fact that the law firm conducting this investigation, McElroy, Deutsch, Mulvaney and Carpenter, had previously been hired by Farahi for the "unusually large retainer of $150,000 in 2009."

The retainer was again renewed for another $150,000 in September 2011. Castiglione supported this claim with resolutions approved by the board of trustees.

The KFT president also explained in his missive to Middle States that Farahi "misrepresented Kean's academic integrity policy by noting it "applies solely to students," even though the policy does, in fact, state academic integrity extends to the faculty and administration.

Also cited in the letter was the fact the board endorsed the vote of one of their members who voted to retain Farahi as the university president even though this board member had been regularly employed by the university as an adjunct professor for the previous seven years.

In addition, Castiglione pointed out in his letter to the commission that fallout from the board's action in support of Farahi has extended to administrators, students and the board itself.

For example, the KFT president noted the Dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences was fired for insubordination shortly after the March 5 board of trustee's meeting when Farahi received the blessing of the board to continue as president. Castiglione said it was "purportedly for refusing to sign a letter supporting President Farahi."

In addition, the KFT president told Middle States that students participating in protest actions were threatened they would be fired from campus employment or lose financial support. In some cases, students were actually terminated and then re-hired after challenging their supervisors.

Castiglione mentioned in his 12-page letter that a person with ties to powerful Democrat Sen. Ray Lesniak was brought into Farahi's office and then moved to fill the position of associate director in the university Office of Accreditation and Assessment.

"The individual does not have a background in assessment and was not on the first list of recommended candidates from the search committee for the position," he said.

Further supporting this political connection was that an individual who worked for several years as an attorney for Weiner-Lesniak, Lesniak's law firm, was hired by Farahi in the spring for the newly created position of special counsel in the office of the president. This position paid $130,000 at a time, Castiglione said, when the university was under severe budget constraints.

Additional examples of potential political interference, conflicts of interest and questionable political concerns were also pointed out, including references to Anne

An exercise in political influence at Kean Univ.

Middle States affiliate named Kean Trustee

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

This week Gov. Chris Christie nominated Union County educator and affiliate of the Middle States Commission of Higher Education Thomas J. Bistocchi to the Kean Board of Trustees. His nomination was confirmed later the same day by both the judiciary committee and legislature.

The nomination and subsequent confirmation of the new board member was confirmed by sources in the governors office late Tuesday.

Bistocchi, Superintendent of the Union County Vocational-Technical School district since 1994, received the nomination after the governor pulled back the re-nomination early Monday morning of Kean Board of Trustee member Donald Soriero, who served six years on the board.

Soriero was re-nominated by Christie in January, but Judiciary Committee Chairman Democrat Sen. Nicholas Scutari, District 22 representative and a resident of Linden, never brought his name up before the committee, according to sources in the governors office.

Democrat powerhouse Sen. Ray Lesniak, heavily linked to Kean University through his association with University President Dawood Farahi and various jobs he secured for relatives and former associates, also serves on the Judiciary Committee.

Bistocchi is widely known for establishing the Union County Adult Vocational-Tech-

See BISTOCCHI, Page 10

Evans Estabrook, Farahi's girlfriend.

Estabrook, widow of former board of trustee chair Ken Estabrook, was appointed by Gov. Chris Christie a year ago as one of the five members of the governor's Higher Education Council. Her biography on the Kean website notes that she is "currently a member of the Kean University President's Council and the China Council."

Castiglione pointed out that transparency and integrity requires that documentation about that role should be available to students and faculty yet neither were aware of the existence of either of these councils and no mention has been made to them in reports to Middle States. And there was more references about Estabrook.

"Ms. Estabrook also accompanied President Farahi on his trip to China for the groundbreaking of the Wenzhou-Kean University campus in March," he added.

Damaging is a resolution passed by the board of trustees in March, Castiglione said in his letter to Middle States, confirming the board signed a $90,000 contract for the law firm DowLohnes PLLC along with a second resolution for $150,000 in June.

The KFT president said this contract is significant because the administration recommended the retention of the firm specifically because "it is staffed by former members of Middle States and that the firm has ongoing connections to the commission."

Probably the most significant recent example of integrity violations cited by Castiglione, though, involved threatening comments made by Farahi to faculty about a Middle States visit in the spring. Following is an excerpt from those comments forwarded to Middle States by the KFT president

"That requires that you understand that those who do not follow these rules and those who do not update their skills and their syllabi and what needs to be done for students, to create a structure that does the best for students would be taken out of the classroom, they will be put into a different location, they will be sent for retraining, they will be subject to insubordination if they fail to do that," the university president told faculty members.

Castiglione also told Middle States that searches to fill faculty and administration positions have been "dogged by multiple violations of cronvism."

Also cited was the lack of integrity in budgeting matters, including a $17 million deficit for the 2011-2012 fiscal year. A deficit that disappeared shortly thereafter.

"Twenty-six employees were laid off including 12 professional staff members of the KFT," Castiglione said in his letter, adding that later a university audit showed that instead of a $17 million deficit, the university actually had a $17 million sur-

County receives mobile surveillance platform

Although it was reported that the Union County Prosecutors office received the platform, Moran said this particular piece of equipment can be used by any of the 21 towns in the county.

"The platform will be available to any town that is having a large event, such as a festival," the public safety director said, adding that the raised platform is a deterrent in a high surveillance area.

Each of the counties also received response, communication, and decontamination equipment from this grant, as well as training so first responders are prepared in the event an act of terrorism occurs in any of the seven counties or Newark and Jersey City.

Moran said past grants, completed by other UASI members counties, recently provided 700 radiation detectors at a cost of $800 each, for first responders in the UASI region. There also have been other equipment windfalls that were needed.

"Just recently a grant submitted by Morris County provided all members with emergency generators," Moran said, adding that not only is this equipment desperately needed, but it also provided an added benefit that was missing previously.

"UASI enables all the counties involved to standardize equipment, so if there is an act of terrorism or a widespread emergency that affects multiple counties or even one county, we can receive mutual aid without fear that their equipment is different from ours," Moran said.

Moran explained that this also holds true for first responder training, which should be uniform so all parties are one cohesive unit.

"The ability to send all firefighters from the UASI towns to training because of this grant funding is something we could not have done financially on our own," the director said, adding that the seven counties are "one of the only areas that have this

Homeland Security funding has been around since the 1980s, although prior to Sept. 11, 2001 it was called Domestic Preparedness funding, Carroll said.

The fact that the seven counties came together to form UASI proved to be more than advantageous because over the past several years there has been a reduction in federal grants available to counties throughout the country.

Legal bills continue to mount in Birchwood case

Although Morin, an experienced land use and environmental attorney who is a partner with the firm of Florio, Perrucci, Steinhardt and Fader, just came aboard as township attorney, his expertise was exactly what was needed. Not to mention that he only charged the township $140 an hour, a significant break for his experience.

Still, since Feb. 7 when Morin's firm began billing the township for his services, through Aug. 7, the tab already was up to $53,344.52. The majority of that amount, however, was in preparation for the site plan hearing when Morin's legal bills to the township tallied $14,901.50 for 123.20 hours of work in June and $11,032 for 78.80 hours in July.

Regardless, Morin as well as other former township governing body members, including former mayor Dan Aschenbach who spent 18 years serving on the governing body, stands solidly behind the effort to stop the development project that abuts a flood plain area.

Morin said when the township made the decision to fight the project and CDA subsequently filed the builders remedy lawsuit as a result, "the township made a commitment to fight it and they have stood behind that commitment.'

"When you think about the flooding impact from a safety standpoint along with the level of flooding that occurs along the Casino Brook, the township had no choice but to protect residents living in this area,' Morin said, pointing out that "the governing body is 100 percent committed to fighting this development."

That commitment, however, resulted in some hefty legal bills, including $15, 783.48 from attorney Stuart R. Koenig who took on "Mt. Laurel litigation" from 2009 through January 2011.

Koenig was brought on to research Cranford's affordable housing obligation, which specifically had to do with a legal decision involving the town of Mt. Laurel in the 1980s. This decision, among others, established that municipalities, had to provide low and moderate income housing, whether they liked it or not.

Later, the Mt. Laurel doctrine, a controversial judicial interpretation of the New Jersey State constitution, laid out exactly what towns could and could not do when it came to fulfilling their affordable housing obligation. This doctrine required that municipalities, like Cranford, use their zoning powers in an affirmative manner to provide realistic opportunities for the production, or development, of housing for low and moderate income people.

Unfortunately, although the township discussed and even planned multiple times to satisfy their affordable housing obligation, they failed to solidify those plans and follow through. This led to the builders remedy lawsuits and more than a half million in legal costs as a result.

Complicating the issue, because of the complexity of the Mt. Laurel rulings, in 2009 the township realized they needed more than the expertise of a township attorney, who not only had other township issues to handle but private practice obligations to juggle. Shortly after, the township hired Koenig.

Already racking up bills was McKenzie, assigned by the court as a "special master" at $250 an hour to oversee and provide impartiality so the township and CDA could come to a meeting of the minds. Despite this, in 2010 the township became embroiled in a trial which McKenzie, of course, was required to attend and provide input throughout.

From conference calls with the judge hearing the case that came to $375 for an hour and a half conversation, to charging $7,624 to attend a two-day trial and to "review trial notes," McKenzie's tab began to mount.

As of the end of May, McKenzie had sent the township $78,940.94 in bills since 2009. It should be noted that this amount reflects Cranford's portion of the special master's charges, in addition to other legal charges levied against the township.

CDA and the township were required to divide many of the bills with the township, as ordered by the court. Which means McKenzie, according to the legal bills reviewed, also charged CDA in excess of $70,000 for her services involving this case.

Many of McKenzie's bills involve conference calls to other attorneys who handled the township's legal issues involving CDA and the builder's remedy lawsuits and appeals, while others involved the time to write reports, review correspondence, pick up copies from the printer, as well as attend case management conferences relating to the litigation. Plus, the township still has to contend with bills for the courtappointed site plan review now taking place.

But McKenzie and Morin's bills are not the only legal bills the township is juggling.

Invoices for services involving CDA rendered by the Cranford firm Rogut McCarthy from Oct. 19, 2011 to Jan. 23 of this year tallied $17,227.82.

However, it is impossible to tell what this litigation is about because the majority of information on three bills was redacted because it involved attorney-client privilege. This particular information is exempt from disclosure as a government record under OPRA law. Nevertheless, this firm charged the township $145 an hour for legal services they provided.

Springfield still searching for Board of Health volunteer

By Paul Greulich Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD — Almost two months after the township's autonomous Board of Health was disbanded by the Township Committee, the new board that will take its place is almost complete.

In June, the committee voted to disband the seven-member volunteer board and assume its duties, augmented by two volunteer residents and two alternates, all with health experience. The Board of Health is tasked with developing and implementing public-health planning and policy; in Springfield these duties can be fulfilled either by an autonomous board or the governing body.

Despite heavy resistance from the public, Springfield Mayor Ziad Shehady touted the merits of reconfiguring the board around the Township Committee, saying it would "improve oversight and efficiency."

However, the new Board of Health is not quite off the drawing board yet as the township works to amass the requisite number of volunteers.

Township Administrator Anthony Cancro said three of the four volunteers needed have been procured. According to the township clerk's office, these volunteers are: Shane Ronan, Dr. Alexander Doctoroff and Dr. Arthur F. Haliczer.

Cancro said the Board of Health is functional and fully capable of calling a meeting, even if the required complement of volunteers has not been met.

"The health officer can call a special meeting with the newly comprised Board of Health." Cancro said.

Cancro said the reason no meetings have been held is that the Board of Health scheduled no meetings for July or August. He anticipated a fourth volunteer will be found in the coming weeks.

"I suspect the new body will meet in September just like the previous board planned to do," Cancro said, "But that's just a guess."

Cancro said state law requires that a

Board of Health meet at least once per year.

Democrat Committee member David Amlen voted against all three appointments to the new board, saying the volunteers were never discussed among the committee members, nor were their names even printed in meeting agendas.

"There was no discussion with regard to those appointments," Amlen said.

Amlen said he is not aware of any scheduled meetings of the new board, and expressed some uncertainty as to exactly how the board will operate as compared with in the past. Amlen, who also voted against dissolving the autonomous board, remains convinced the change was not in the best interest of the township.

"I think it was done for the wrong reasons," he said.

Shehady could not be reached for comment.

Cancro said township health Officer Megan Avallone is continuing to perform her duties as before, reporting to him on matters impacting public health.

Avallone was not available for comment.

None of the seven volunteers who served on the prior Board of Health have come forward to join the new board.

Samir Shah, the former board president, said conflict between the governing body and the prior Board of Health has made health-care professionals unwilling to volunteer to work with the township government.

"I think people are afraid they'll be pressured to act in unethical ways, and they don't want to be associated with that," Shah said.

Shah said licensed professionals in any field tend to take their work very seriously and are wary of potentially compromising ethics or the law.

"You're licensed because the public has to have trust in you," Shah said.

Anyone interested in serving on the new Board of Health can contact Cancro at anthony.cancro@springfield-nj.us.

The KFT president also wrote that there has not been a single performance based promotion for professional staff since Farahi came aboard nine years ago. There a has also only been one promotion for librarians in the past 20 years and none in the last six years. Tenure also is at question.

"Arbitrary and capricious decision making by university leadership in the appointment, reappointment and tenure procedures of faculty has drained these procedures of any credibility and left academic departments adrift and unable to properly plan for the future needs and or growth," Castiglione noted.

For example, Dr. Eric Boehm received unanimously positive votes from department colleagues for five years, including last year, his tenuring year," said the KFT president, adding that even though he was the only untenured faculty member in the department, he was denied reappointment with tenure.

Another faculty member, Dr. Jeffrey Fasick was denied reappointment with tenure this year despite having nine papers published in peer-reviewed journals during his five years at Kean.

However, other faculty members with lesser publication records were given tenure, Castiglione said.

Most disturbing, the KFT president said, because it represents a direct challenge to the Middle States accreditation process itself, was the termination of former associate and Vice President for Academic Affairs, Ken Sanders.

This faculty member, who was the cochair of the self-study steering committee that wrote the 2011 self-study report for Middle States, believed his termination was a direct consequence of the warning that resulted after the re-accreditation process began last year.

Third party comments will be forwarded by Middle States to the team that will be visiting Kean Sept. 12 and 13, along with the university's response to these allegations.

Farahi has until Sept. 1 to respond to the latest questions posed by Middle States, in addition to those regarding standards 6, 7, 12 and 14, prior to an on-site visit from the accrediting commission Sept. 12 and 13.

In November, Middle States could ask Kean to "show cause" why they should not lose the accreditation they have held since 1960.

However, the university remains accredited until Middle States announces their status has changed.

Interestingly, while Middle States requires ample time be provided by the university for student and faculty input involving the status of re-accreditation, which should be included in the report due to the commission Sept. 1, no effort by Farahi was made to schedule this public meeting prior to summer break.

A meeting for this purpose, though, has been scheduled for Aug. 30, the day before Kean's report on accreditation responses has to be handed in to Middle States.

nical High School in 1995 for young, at-risk high school dropouts, as well as the Union County Magnet High School for Science, Mathematics and Technology in 1997. Also in 2002, under his leadership, the district opened two additional high schools, both technical in nature.

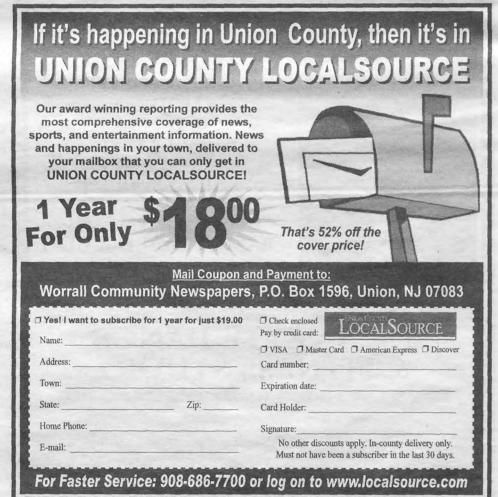

In 2005, Bistocchi was instrumental in seeing that a fourth full-time high school, the Academy for Allied Health Services, was opened, along with the Union County Academy of the Performing Arts in 2008.

More importantly, Bistocchi has been a Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools board of trustees member since 2011, serving as board secretary. Middle States Commission is "the unit" of the Middle States Association, according to the comission's website.

Given the fact Kean University was put on probation by Middle States in early July and is facing the possibility of losing the accreditation they have held since 1960, this nomination could be seen as a critical 11th hour move that could save the university in the end.

Of interest is the fact that an investigation by LocalSource in November revealed Lesniak got his sister Marge Devanney a no-show job at Kean University for $86,800 a year. Ironically, Devanney also is the vice-president of the Union County Board of Education, the same board that oversees Bistocchi as superintendent.

Former Linden mayor, Paul WerkMeister, passes away

Gerbounka said Werkmeister nursed him through his first election in 1994, when Gerbounka ran for council.

"I learned a lot from him and from time to time I would bounce issues off him to see what he thought," Gerbounka said. "From time to time we had a few spirited debates on specific issues."

Gerbounka said he spoke to Werkmeister on the phone just a few weeks

Former Police Chief John Miliano said he last spoke to Werkmeister about a month ago. Miliano, who served as chief while Werkmeister was mayor, remembers him as "a man of character."

"He was a good man to work for," Miliano said. "He wanted nothing but a well-educated, well-trained police force, and he believed that should start at the top."

Miliano said Werkmeister never let politics into police matters, which he respected him for.

Miliano recalled one instance when he approached Werkmeister for authorization to send officers to the FBI national academy. Werkmeister surprised him by immediately asking if he'd ever attended the academy himself. At the mayor's urging, Miliano attended.

"He basically got me to go to the FBI national academy and I'll never forget him for that," Miliano said.

Miliano said Werkmeister sometimes confided in him about his wartime experiences, characterizing war as being "hideous." He remembers the six foot tall Werkmeister describing how he went from 180 pounds to 135 pounds during the four to five months he was a prisoner of the Germans.

"He was proud of his service, but he saw war for what it was," Miliano said.

Most of all, Miliano remembers his former mayor's love for the city he grew up in.

"He was a man who wanted the best for the city," Miliano said. "He had a deep abiding love for Linden."

Cranford must remember the Alamo!

There is something romantic about last stands. The urge to fiercely defend your home against countless oppressors like the Battle of the Alamo. But an important question for Cranford officials to ask is if Cranford's last stand against the Council on Affordable Housing and the Birchwood Developers will make any difference?

Anyone interested in learning more about the phenomenon of a last ditch effort or a final stand does not need to go all the way to Texas and see the scarred remains of that mythic fort. They can just hop on the Parkway and get off in Cranford, a beautiful riverside community where local officials are locked in a costly legal struggle against developers.

According to legal bills dating back to 2008, obtained by LocalSource using the Open Public Records Act, the township has spent $578,989.76 to fight the Birchwood development. And the tab is still running. And by all accounts, they are losing.

The bills include charges from four separate legal firms that either represented the township regarding Birchwood, or continue to handle legal issues involving this proposed development.

And while Cranford has a moral obligation to defend itself in this builders remedy lawsuit gone off the rails, could it all be for naught? Many residents are very concerned that if the Birchwood apartment buildings are built, the quaint streets of the neighborhood could potentially be overrun by torrential flooding faster than the North wall of the Alamo was overrun by the Mexican army. And the still fresh memory of Tropical Storm Irene has stoked the flames.

But in the end, when Cranford gets its final tally in legal bills for fighting a losing battle, will any of it matter? Will any of it make a difference? We would like to hope so.

EDITORIAL

Gov. Chris Christie knows what is right. He has made strong statements about reforming or dissolving COAH, even trying to abolish it at one point, but he does not quite have the political clout to pull it off. The politicians in Trenton, like those in Texas in 1836, cannot seem to get organized and come to the aid of their brave statesmen who are on the verge of fiscal and moral annihilation.

Like Santa Anna, developers in New Jersey have the power, and in this case, the law on their side. Unfortunately, many towns and many tax dollars may need to be sacrificed before the powers that be realize making something law does not make it right. Hopefully Cranford's disastrous stand may capture the imagination of the people of New Jersey just as the siege of the Alamo did for the people of Texas.

For those lucky enough to see their struggles inspire change, it could be the dawn of a new age for COAH. But local officials would do well to remember that for Davie Crockett and 186 other men, it was just the end. They never heard the songs, never got to enjoy the freedom their sacrifice bought. "Victory or death!" Mayor David Robinson's actions seem to shout in the style of Colonel William Travis defending the Alamo. But local officials in Cranford should have no romantic illusions about the fate they are courting. These defenders may surprise us with how long they can hold out, but if events continue on their present course they will be taxed, overrun with builders remedy condos, potentially flooded streets, and otherwise morally massacred.

It is time for Cranford officials to draw a line in the sand and have a serious conversation with each other and their residents about the situation they are getting themselves into. Is it worth it?

Cranford's rapidly ending mystery

The bus trips from Cranford's Orange Avenue pool to the County Courthouse in Elizabeth will soon be ending. Residents who are attending court sessions, and are justifiably concerned over a 360-unit apartment building proposal in the Birchwood area of town, are getting some painful lessons in the affordable-housing saga. At this point, it's reminiscent of the line by Basil Rathbone in a 1943 Sherlock Holmes flick, "be patient, this mystery is rapidly coming to an end."

With the conclusion of the public hearings on the project's site plan this month, and despite an expected appeal by the township, the clues as to the outcome do not require a super sleuth.

The players in this mystery deserve the notoriety of a post-drama profile, just like in some movies of the 40s. Take the star of the show: court-appointed Special Master Elizabeth McKenzie. McKenzie has taken her Hunterdon County operation statewide into quite a growth business.

The concept of the special master has been around for a while. In the late 80s a special master was appointed to help Berkeley Heights sort out their affordable-housing woes. Assignment Judge Edward Beglin Jr. appointed a special master for Clark's battle with the oppressive Rahway Valley Sewage Authority over hook-up issues. As an offshoot of the Berkeley Heights battle, the state Appellate Court wrote on the role of the special master: "Mt. Laurel cases are matters of great public sensitivity. Consequently courts must strive to pursue the appearance of complete impartiality in the decision making process."

As to McKenzie, a northern-county attorney said, "she's never seen a builder's remedy solution she didn't like."

Closer to home, during the Avalon Bay development controversy in Roselle Park—also involving McKenzie— an elected official at the time said, "We referred to her as 'her majesty." He quickly added, "it was not a term of endearment."

The reality is that McKenzie has a constituency of one: Judge Lisa Chrystal, the judge in the case who appointed her. At the $250 per hour rate paid by Cranford, as revealed by the LocalSource, it is nice work if you can find it.

Also called to the show by Judge Chrystal is Special Hearing Officer Douglas Woflson. Wolfson, a private Essex County attorney, is paid at the rate of $500 an hour, split equally between the township and the developer. Wolfson, a former judge, denied requests to have the hearings take place in Cranford. In 2010, Wolfson represented a developer in a hardfought battle including Hazlet on Mt. Laurel issues. The special master at the time was the very same Elizabeth McKenzie. The decision went against the township.

Enter Judge Lisa Chrystal.

The judge may be the most notorious person in the Birchwood area. In all fairness, she is only reflecting the significance the Supreme Court gives to the affordable-housing controversy. The terrible flooding and overcrowding issues are seemingly of far less importance in the judicial makeup. It's a good bet Chrystal, in her tenured judgeship position, will have long moved on to other challenges as the township is left facing the problems of development.

Paul Fader, a prominent attorney, wrote last weekend about the Mt. Laurel problems.

"There aren't many people on either side of the political spectrum who don't agree that New Jersey's affordable-housing requirements need to be reformed," he accurately stated.

"However, the extent to this type of reform and the manner in which the state goes about implementing this reform remain in dispute.'

Then there are the local Cranford officials. There is a certain irony that township officials who played a game of legal roulette on affordable-housing issues left the "leaky bag" of Birchwood Avenue, and are no longer in office. An interesting exception is former official, and current candidate, Scott Mease. He saw the problem and tried unsuccessfully to motivate his fellow commissioners to take more effective action to avoid the builder's remedy lawsuit.

The sitting local officials have all set forth their opposition. At times, it can even get a little amusing as they outdo themselves trying to impress the Birchwood area. The poster boy for silliness may be Commissioner Kevin Campbell. He, along with others, urged a useless letter-writing campaign to Chrystal. Later, he incorrectly argued that environmental concerns would trump Mt. Laurel. Recently, he boldly announced he was boycotting the Elizabeth hearing. Now, we can all imagine the impact that had on McKenzie and Wolfson.

Finally, we are left with real victims of the drama. After the appeals, the local residents will be left with some hefty legal bills and a worse-off neighborhood. Chrystal, tenured, will keep giving decisions, and the traveling duo of McKenzie and Wolfson will move on to a new gig. For the local officials, the costs of flooding, new schools and congestion will be challenging. Sadly for the residents, they will discover that at the end of their mystery is a group of elected and appointed officials who let them down.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Use Irene's memory to inspire necessary action

To the Editor:

Cranford citizens need to now step up and become more active in their community's most significant concern.

A year ago, Tropical Storm Irene brought significant damage to the communities in our area. More than 2,000 homes were impacted. The first floors of several hundred homes were ruined. Over $75 million of property damage was sustained in the Rahway River Watershed. Some families are now just moving back into their homes in Cranford.

Extreme weather patterns, overdevelopment, and poor planning - as it relates to management of stormwater - has created a worsening situation. In Cranford, the senseless 360-unit Birchwood housing-development litigation continues to occupy the township's focus, with the court's failure to consider the ravages of past storms. Real estate values, already impacted by the lingering economic slowdown, are pressured by Irene's memory.

This is not only affecting the north side of the community. This has to end. But residents can't just hope it does. When it rains now, all watch and worry; but more voices need to be heard in order to turn this around.

Last October at Union County College, an effort was started with the mayors of numerous communities in the region to find flood-control solutions. The Mayors Council on Rahway River Flood Control has been working with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the state Department of Environmental Protection to evaluate what can and should be done.

Several positive solutions have come to the front. A significant, renewed focus on stronger stormwater management is being put forward. The development of a detention dam in the South Mountain Reservation is also one promising solution. The hydrology studies have determined close to 3 feet of water could be stored behind the dam during peak storm conditions, reducing water elevations in Millburn, Union and Springfield with still a significant 1 1/2-foot lower elevation in Cranford, and also bringing lower elevations to Rahway.

This benefit would also provide Cranford potential room to implement other improvements. Legal discussions are in place with seven communities agreeing to funding an interlocal agreement. Discussions with Essex County and Orange are taking place. The next major project being evaluated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is the improvement of Lenape Park and river capacity downstream.

Numerous alternatives are being evaluated including well respected local engineer Greg Sgroi's proposal on the spillway. Results of the U.S. Army Corps' evaluation should be available soon for nextstep actions.

The most important next step now is securing funding from state and federal legislators for environmental assessments and construction. This letter urges residents to contact their legislators to urge support to move the flood-mitigation projects forward.

Some suggest not much can be done, but such an attitude harms our collective need to be positive and constructive. That goes for the proposed Birchwood development. Residents need to restate - to the state DEP and the court - the facts about Cranford and the flood-control challenges. Don't let the anniversary of Tropical Storm Irene go by without taking action.

SUMMIT NEWS

Star-Ledger columnist to speak at library, Sept. 11

On Sept. 11 at 7 p.m., the Summit Free Public Library will host Star-Ledger columnist Mark Di Ionno, who will speak about his first novel, "The Last Newspaperman." The novel centers on the Lindbergh baby kidnapping case in New Jersey in the 1930s.

"The Last Newspaperman" is a story about tabloid journalism in the 1920s and 1930s, and how it created the crime and celebrity media we have today.

"While much of the action is set in New Jersey in the 1930s, 'The Last Newspaperman' is not strictly a historical novel," Di Ionno said. "My goal was to connect the past with the contemporary, sensationalist media that dominates the airwayes, newsstands, and internet."

The novel's fictional protagonist is Frederick Haines, a one-time star tabloid reporter for the New York Daily Mirror, now nearing the end of his life. By his own admission, Haines is reckless with the facts, with little regard for the truth or the feelings of the people directly impacted by the stories he covers. "Victims are merely characters in a newspaper story," he tells his interviewer.

Di Ionno is a four-time winner of the New Jersey Press Association's first-place award for column writing. In addition to his twice-weekly column in The Star-Ledger, his "Mark in the Morning" column appears daily on www.NJ.com. Di Ionno is the author of three award-winning nonfiction books: "New Jersey's Coastal Heritage," "A Guide to New Jersey's Revolutionary War Trail," and "Backroads, New Jersey." He has six children, who reside with him in Mountain Lakes.

The program will be held in the Ernest S. Hickok Meeting Room at the library. It is free to the public. Doors open 30 minutes before the beginning of the program. The library is located at 75 Maple St. For more information, visit www.summitlibrary.org.

NYC comes alive at library, through Sept. 29

Summit Free Public Library and the Visual Arts Center of New Jersey announce "New York City Alive!!!", an exhibition of paintings by Janis McCracken in The Gallery at the Summit Free Public Library, through Sept. 29.

McCracken began her art career in the late 1970s when she took courses in hand-built pottery at Summit Art Center. In the early 1980s, she returned to college to complete her degree. She received a bachelor of arts degree in interior design from Kean University, Union, where she graduated Summa Cum Laude. From 1984 until 2002 she was president of Interplan Design Group, specializing in corporate and professional interior design. During this period, she developed her artistic pursuits in diverse areas including jewelry making, fabric arts, photography and flower arranging. In the early 1990s, McCracken and her husband lived in Paris where she was influenced by the great masters, especially the Impressionists. She also traveled extensively with her husband including several trips to Asia to appreciate Asian art and culture.

Since retiring from the business world in 2002, McCracken has been pursuing the creation of fine arts. She has studied in various mediums including pastel, collage and painting with acrylics and watercolor, including East Asian brush painting. In 2009, she attended a workshop with Wolfe Kahn, and she has studied privately with Jean Carbonetti, Anne Kullaf and Pat Butynski. She lives in Warren.

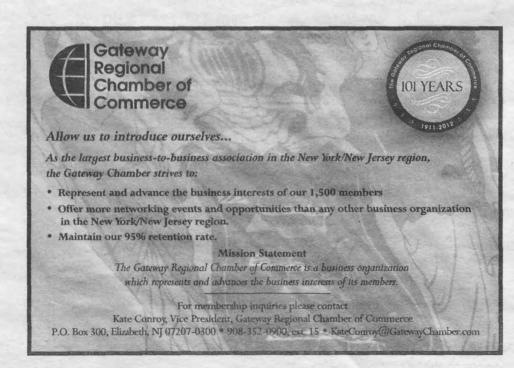

McCracken says of her work: "The theme of this exhibition is New York City. With these images I've tried to capture the movement, the spirit, the moods, and the excitement of 'the city that never sleeps.' These images were inspired by photographs that I take each time I visit New York. I hope they express my love of the urban landscape—and especially New York City, where I reside part time. Some of the smaller works are studies done prior to producing a larger work of the same image. I'm sharing these pieces with you to show the 'process' I use when creating my work."

The exhibit is open to the public during regular library hours. The Gallery is a public-private partnership. The library is located at 75 Maple St., Summit and is open Monday to Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Thursday to Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and closed on Sundays. For more information, visit www.summitlibrary.org.

Union County Sheriff Ralph Froehlich speaks to members of this summer's Union County Sheriff's Youth Academy at the John H. Stamler Police Academy in Scotch Plains.

Union teens graduate from Sheriff's Youth Academy

More than 80 teens from across Union County recently graduated from the Union County Sheriff's Youth Academy, a program designed to familiarize young people with the role of a police officer. The program operates like an actual police academy for teens interested in law enforcement.

"The Youth Academy aims to teach our kids about law enforcement and it is a great first step for those interested in the field," Sheriff Ralph Froehlich said during the graduation ceremony. "And from what I heard from these fine young women and men, we succeeded in all of our goals in this program."

Froehlich also thanked the officers from the various law-enforcement agencies that participated in the program, including: the New Jersey State Police, the FBI, the Union County Police Department and the Union County Corrections.

Participants in the Youth Academy received hands-on experience in a wide variety of emergency services and law-enforcement functions and training. In addition, youths have the opportunity to learn respect for law enforcement through positive interaction during their time in the program.

"Showing them the human element of law enforcement helps our young people connect with officers in a way they never thought they could," the Sheriff added.

In order to enroll in the the Sheriff's Youth Academy, students must have a minimum grade-point average of 2.70, letters of reference, and must write an essay explaining why they would like to attend the program.

During the first week of the program, the teens engaged in a physical training regime twice a day while attending lectures on subjects such as crime scene investigations, K-9, and motor-vehicle stops. They also received visits from representatives from several branches of the military, New Jersey State Police and the Secret Service.

The second week of the Youth Academy involved class trips to the Union County SWAT Range, the Union County Jail and the State Police Museum in Trenton.

For more information on any Union County press release, contact Sebastian D'Elia, communications director for the County of Union, or visit www.ucnj.org.

Six adults, six youths enjoy Transylvania as part of Unitarian Church trip

Anna Damato, who wrote this article and was one of the participants, is a recent graduate of Governor Livingston High School in Berkeley Heights, and will be attending the College of Wooster in Ohio.

Six adults and six youth from The Unitarian Church in Summit traveled to Transylvania in July to celebrate 20 years of partnership with the Unitarian Church of Barot.

This partnership, made possible by the Unitarian Universalist Partner Church Council has served to offer financial support to the church in Barot and also to build friendships between members of the two congregations.

The Unitarians of Barot welcomed the visitors from Summit into their homes, their lives, and their church. Host families were matched with Summit visitors based on age, interests, and space available. Adults stayed with their host families all week, taking short trips to the local market and to wood carvers.

Youth minister Rev. Emilie Boggis led the trip. Other adults included: Jean Crichton and Bob Gunhouse of Summit, Andy Damato of Berkeley Heights, Daniel Cymbala of Westfield and Carol Ulmer of Chatham. Youth were: Benjamin Cymbala and Jaime Lara, both of Westfield; Anna Damato of Berkeley Heights, Jesse Klein of Madison, Hayley Lugg of Millington and Mac Russell of Murray Hill.

On July 1, Boggis preached about the meaning of partnership and how it differs across cultures. She spoke of how partnership through thick and thin has the potential to change your life, to draw out more love than you knew you had within you. Summit members gave the Barot congregation a chalice, the symbol of the American UU movement, and friendship bracelets were given out, providing a physical reminder of the long-distance partnership.

Travelers spent the week in Barot visiting local churches, hiking through caves in the Vargyas Gorge Natural Reservation, walking through nearby towns and cities, and visiting the museum, city hall, and orphanage of Barot. All these activities were further enriched by the beautiful scenery of the Carpathian Mountains, with sunsets at 10 p.m., castles, stork nests on rooftops, horsedrawn wagons, and cows munching grass in hilly pastures.

After the first few days in Barot, the six Summit youth headed off with 11 youth from Barot to a retreat house in the forest about 40 minutes from town. In the three days spent there, language barriers were broken down as Summit youth learned Hungarian and Barot youth learned English. Games, food, music, and a bonfire on the final night united the youth, bridging cultural gaps and creating friendships that continue to exist with the help of social-networking websites like Facebook and Skype.

The last night in Barot was spent at a long dinner table with youth and adults from Summit and Barot. We thanked host families for their generosity and hospitality, and the youth passed around white T-shirts for everyone to sign.

"All of us were excited to come to Barot, but we weren't expecting how close we would become in spite of language and cultural barriers," said Boggis. "We weren't expecting to fall in love with the beauty of the land and the people we met. We have formed lasting friendships. We can't wait to go back."

In September, the Summit Unitarians will welcome Barot's minister, Reverend Alpar Kiss, and board President Laszlo Fazakas for a New Jersey celebration of the two churches' 20 years of partnership. Kiss will preach at the 9:30 and 11:15 a.m. services on Sept. 16. Next summer, the church hopes to organize a larger group visit from Barot, including youth.

The Unitarian Church in Summit is located at 4 Waldron Ave. For more information, call 908-273-3245 or visit www.ucsummit.org.

"Dancing in the Key of Life," an exhibit by Mansa K. Mussa, a dance photographer and artist, will be shown through Sept. 26 at the Les Malamut Gallery, Union Public Library, 1980 Morris Ave., Union.

The solo exhibit will include a collection of color digital photographs produced in the past five years, collages, and shadow boxes that represent the artist's 35 years of documenting dance photography. His collection includes photographs of more than 100 dance companies from around the world. "Dancing in the Key of Life" celebrates the spirit of dance, captured on film and digital, and transformed into graphics and collages

Included in the exhibit is "Evidence of Evolution," a series of shadow boxes, 9-by-9 inches, which contain photographs, objects of art, fabric, and found objects.

As a visual artist Mussa had become intrigued by the prospect of removing photographs from the flat, one dimensional surface of the photographic paper by creating frozen tableaus with dancers in challenging and unlikely environments. The series has been the focus of his work for the

The gallery, located on the lower level of the Union Public Library, is wheelchair accessible and open during regular library hours. For more information visit lesmalamutartgallery.web.officelive.com, or call 908-851-5450.

Book Club holds anniversary party

All past, present and future members of the Kenilworth Public Library book discussion group are invited to attend the 10th anniversary of the book group's founding with a celebration that is scheduled to begin at 6:15 p.m. on Aug. 21 in the library's activity room. All attendees are requested to bring a food or beverage item to be shared with others for a pot luck dinner on the evening of the celebration. Rather than discussing a particular book, attendees at this event will be encouraged to share their memories of the group, including answers to such questions as favorite and least favorite book group books and favorite book group memory.

According to Library Director Dale Spindel, the library's book group met for the first time on Aug. 5, 2002 with six people in attendance to discuss "Tell Me a Riddle," by Tillie Olsen. When the group met for a second time on Oct. 22 to discuss "Tulip Fever," by Deborah Moggach, 24 people showed up. Since then, the group has averaged between 12 and 15 attendees for each meeting, but with larger crowds coming for such special events as the visit from Jonathan Safran Foer, the author of "Everything Is Illuminated and Extremely Loud and Incredibly Close," in November 2006. Spindel anticipates another milestone celebration when the group meets to discuss its 100th book in December of 2013. Also according to Spindel, at least three people who attended the group's first meeting are still participating on a regular basis although she stressed that she also is delighted to see new faces.

Because space is limited, preregistration is required for this event, either in person at the library or by calling 908-276-2451 during regular library hours. The Kenilworth library is located at 548 Boulevard. More information about the library can be found at www.kenilworthlibrary.org and www.facebook.com/kenilworth.public.lib

Pets up for adoption have a website

New Life Boxer Rescue, Kenilworth, recently joined other animal welfare organizations in the area that list their homeless pets on Petfinder.com, the oldest and largest database of adoptable animals on the Internet.

The site currently has more than 359,700 homeless pets listed. Rescue pets may be viewed at petfinder.com/shelters/NJ664.html. A potential adopter enters search criteria for the kind of pet he or she wants, and a list is returned that ranks the pets in proximity to the zip code unlocked door and begin to rummage through the vehicle. As the officers approached, all three suspects fled the area on foot.

Adoptions are handled by the animal placement group where the pet is housed, and each group has its own policies.

After a brief chase, the officers apprehended two of the suspects, both of whom were later identified as juvenile residents of Newark. A third suspect, known to the officers, escaped on foot. Through further investigation, it was discovered that an additional car on the same block had been entered. In that case, the vehicle's door lock had been damaged, and personal property was taken from the vehicle, said police. The stolen property was later recovered by police.

It was later determined that one of the juvenile suspects had outstanding warrants from the Union County Sheriff's Office. Both juveniles were charged with theft, criminal mischief and resisting arrest. Detective Brian Wilson later arrested Barnabas Dorcely, 19, of 223 Conklin Ave., Hillside, in connection with the burglaries. Dorcely also was charged with theft, criminal mischief and resisting arrest. He is being held in Union County Jail on $60,000 bail, according to reports.

Roselle Park

- · Aug. 3: At 10:55 p.m., Roselle Park police responded to an anonymous report of narcotics being used at a residence on the 500 block of Ashwood Avenue. After several minutes of attempting to locate the occupant, Patrolman Richard Gaylord was approached by Robert Suskie, 50, who quickly exited the basement doors. Patrolman Gaylord explained the nature of the complaint to Suskie, who then tried to run back into the basement. A subsequent search of the basement revealed a glass pipe commonly used to ingest a narcotic. Suskie also was found to be in possession of a similar pipe, said police. He was arrested and charged with possession of drug paraphernalia and released pending an appearance in Roselle Park Municipal Court.
- Aug. 4: At 12:30 p.m., Patrolman Gregory Polakoski stopped a 1996 Mercury for traffic violations on the 300 block of West Westfield Avenue. The driver identified himself as Andrew J. Brooks of Elizabeth, with a birth date of June 12, 1986. A further investigation revealed Brooks' true name to be Anthony R. Brooks of Atlantic City, with a birth date of Jan. 1, 1985. Brooks was arrested and charged with hindering apprehension and driving with a suspended license. He was released pending an appearance in Roselle Park Municipal Court, according to reports.
- Aug. 5: Patrolman Gaylord responded at 10:30 p.m. to a report of a disorderly person near the 7-Eleven store on Locust Street. Upon arriving at the store, he noticed a man standing in the roadway waving his arms and yelling loudly. Gaylord recognized the man to be Luis Galindo, 19, of Roselle Park. Galindo was exhibiting signs of intoxication, said police. When Gaylord asked him to move from the roadway, Galindo took a fighting stance, raised his fists and cursed at the police, according to reports. Gaylord arrested Galindo without incident. Inside the patrol car, Galindo repeatedly banged his head on the protective metal bars inside the window, and was warned to stop. He then tried kicking the rear window, refusing the officer's commands. Galindo was then sprayed with pepper spray and immediately stopped his disorderly behavior, said police. Once at the Roselle Park Police Department, Galindo was decontaminated, and resumed his disorderly behavior. He was released to a family member, pending an appearance in Roselle Park Municipal Court, according to reports.

- Aug. 6: At 3:30 p.m., a 15-year-old female was approached by a Hispanic male motorist near Chestnut Street at Colfax Avenue, who asked her to look at photographs on his cell phone. He also asked her if she wanted a modeling job. The girl walked away without incident. The male was described as 20 to 25 years old, wearing a black t-shirt and jeans. He did not attempt to touch the girl, and drove away in a white older vehicle, according to reports.
- Aug. 11: At 10:45 p.m., Patrolman Gaylord stopped a 2001 Volvo near the 300 block of East Westfield Avenue for traffic violations. He found the driver, Geraldo Vera, 30, of East Orange exhibiting signs of intoxication. While speaking to Vera, Gaylord also observed that Vera had urinated upon himself, according to police reports. Vera was arrested for driving while intoxicated and related traffic charges. Curing the arrest, Vera was found to be in possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. He was released pending an appearance in Roselle Park Municipal Court.
- Aug. 12: Patrolmen Kevin Florczak and John Fitzgerald responded at 9:11 a.m. to Bender Avenue at East Clay Avenue for a report of an individual acting suspiciously near several parked cars. At the scene, Brandon Leath, 25, of Roselle Park, was located. Leath initially refused the officer's request for identification. He was found to have a no-bail warrant issued by the Essex County Sheriff's Department. Leath was arrested and later transported to the Essex County Jail, according to police reports.
- · Aug. 13: Police responded to Butler Avenue at 12:06 a.m. for a report of a fight in the street. At the scene, police found a female suffering from minor injuries. She identified her attacker as Brian Aranguren, 19, of Rutherford. Aranguren, formerly of Roselle Park, had fled the scene prior to the arrival of the police. Patrolmen Alexander Lanza and Gregory Polakoski located Aranguren in an apartment on Jerome Street later in the morning. According to reports, Aranguren became combative, resisted arrest and was sprayed with pepper spray. Aranguren was then taken into custody and transported to the Roselle Park Police Department. While in custody, he spit on the floor and walls of the processing area. Aranguren was charged with simple assault and resisting arrest, then transported to the Union County Jail in lieu of $3,500 bail, said police.

• Aug. 13: Brian Ward, 20, of Plainfield was arrested at 10:53 a.m. at the North Plainfield Police Department by Patrolman John Fitzgerald on a warrant issued by the Roselle Park Municipal Court in the amount of $500. Ward was processed at the Roselle Park Police Department, then was transferred to the Union County Jail, said police.

Linden

· Aug. 17: Linden police responded at 4:04 p.m. to Walmart, 1601 W. Edgar Road, on a report of a shoplifting. Officers were told by loss prevention personnel that they saw a man and woman enter the store and go to the electronics department, where each placed a 46-inch, flat-screen Samsung television into separate shopping carts. The man then went to the checkout counter, where he paid for the television set. The woman went to another section of the store. The man then re-entered the store where he was observed handing the woman his receipt for the television. When the woman attempted to leave the store with the television set and the man's receipt, she was stopped and detained until police arrived. The man, Joseph Loglisci, 54, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was arrested after it was discovered he stole an air freshener and a pair of jeans when he paid for the television set. He was issued a summons and released. The woman, Wilhelmina R. Yanas, 47, also of Brooklyn, was charged with shoplifting the television set, valued at $798. Yanas also had contempt warrants out of North Bergen and the Hudson County Sheriff's Office. She was transported to the Union County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail. Both have a court date set for Sept. 4 in Linden Municipal Court, according to police reports.

• Aug. 20: Police officers on patrol at 12:09 a.m. stopped an SUV with tinted windows on the 200 block of W. George Avenue. While speaking to the driver, they smelled marijuana and asked the driver to step out of the vehicle. When the driver opened the door, the officers observed a handgun on the passenger floorboard of the vehicle. Two passengers were then ordered out of the vehicle. The officers seized a .40-caliber, Sig Sauer semi-automatic gun and a .38-caliber Smith and Wesson revolver, both of which were loaded, said police.

ARTS & LEISURE

A celebrated NY garden worthy of a long detour

Revisiting a celebrated garden after a long absence is like rereading a classic book. The second — or third or fourth — time around, you build on existing impressions, incorporate your own increased knowledge and perspective and come away with a deeper appreciation of the work.

I had that experience recently when I went back to Sonnenberg Gardens, a public garden in Canandaigua, N.Y. I have visited four or five times over the past 20 years. During that time it has changed ownership, struggled financially and undergone substantial restoration. That process continues.

The main house at Sonnenberg was built between 1885 and 1887 as a palatial summer home for a wealthy New York City-based banker and his wife. The Queen Anne-style house is surrounded by parklike grounds; outbuildings, including an aviary and an icehouse; and 11 garden "rooms" created between 1903 and 1920. The property opened to the public in 1973 and became a New York State Historic Park in 2005.

The house, complete with original or period furnishings, is open for tours. On this visit, I was especially impressed by the relationship between the house and the garden. The interior boasts beautiful woodwork but, in keeping with the style of its time, the overall look and feel is dark and heavy. Hunting trophies, like the giant set of antlers that dominates the drawing room, abound. Modern visitors are saved from suffocation by the fact that nearly every room overlooks — or leads in some way — to the gardens.

Downstairs, the main spaces open onto the generous front porch. Upstairs, the bedrooms have large windows or balconies that bring the outside in. The master bedroom looks out over the "Italian Garden," a sunken, European-style parterre, laid out so that its central axis is aligned with the downstairs library doors. Each of its four flower beds is cut in the shape of a fleur de lys, and planted in multicolored annuals, a "carpet bedding scheme" like those beloved by late Victorians. The marriage of carpet bedding with a traditional parterre is, and was, unusual, but makes a wonderful picture for those in the rooms above it.

My favorite garden was also the favorite of the estate's owner, Mrs. Mary Thompson. The "Blue and White Garden" is one of several small layouts close to the northeast corner of the house. It is accessible from one of the porches and features only blue, blue-purple and white flowers. When we visited, the little garden was fragrant with the scents of sweet alyssum, white oriental lilies and tall perennial phlox. Less fragrant, but no less beautiful, were tall blue delphiniums, which made me wish that the species was happier in the warmer and more humid environs of my home garden in New Jersey.

Perhaps because of the current, weak economy, I was struck on this visit by the financial realities of restoring and operating a place like Sonnenberg. Labor was relatively cheap when the property was in its glory days, and now the trustees are faced with an estate full of high-maintenance layouts that were originally maintained by scores of gardeners. These days, even rich institutions have to figure out ways to simplify plantings, organize volunteer gardeners to supplement skeleton staffs of paid employees, and make efficient use of modern motorized garden tools and equipment.

When Sonnenberg became a public institution, its gardens needed substantial restoration, including stabilization of structures, clearing of overgrown vegetation, enhancement of paths and access roads, and replanting of the gardens. Some structures, like the round, cast-concrete temple of Diana were in such bad shape they had to be dismantled until funding could be found for restoration. Diana's temple is still in pieces, but Sonnenberg has just received a major grant to restore another ruined feature: a swimming pool christened the "Roman Bath." Long missing its original turquoise tiles, the bath has been empty and exposed to the elements for decades. I hope the next time I see the Roman Bath it will be back in its original condition.

Sonnenberg Gardens is worth a detour if you are in Central New York. The best parts of it — the Old Fashioned Garden, the Rose Garden and the Japanese Garden — are landscape jewels. The house and outbuildings are prisms through which visitors can view a time and way of life that has vanished. The aspirations of the 21st-century New Yorkers who love the place are inspiring. As I left, I found myself wishing them luck and looking forward to my next visit.

Sonnenberg Gardens is located in the Finger Lakes Region of New York State at 151 Charlotte Street, Canandaigua, New York. To learn more about the institution and see photos of the house and grounds, go to www.sonnenberg.org.

Watchung Stable instructor Kathleen Sheehan lends a hand to 9-year-old Grace Brennan of Scotch Plains while she takes a break during summer camp. Grace is among hundreds of children who will participate in Watchung Stable's Fall Troop Program of classes which begin the week of Sept. 4.

Watchung Stables offering fall horseback-riding class

While most residents are preoccupied with end-of-summer plans, the staff at Union County's Watchung Stable in Mountainside has been busy preparing for the start of next season's horseback-riding lessons. Now is the time for beginners and returning riders to register for fall classes at Watchung Stable.

"Our lesson program at Watchung Stable is a great way to learn how to ride," said Free-holder Chairman Alexander Mirabella. "I'm proud to say that more than 45,000 girls and boys have participated in this terrific program in the Watchung Reservation since it began in 1935."

All applicants for riding lessons must be 9 years of age or older. Fall Troop will last for 10 weeks, beginning Sept. 4, and will culminate with the Fall Troop Horse Show. The cost to participate begins at $231 for 10 classes, and varies with Union County residency status and troop assignment. Classes are held Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Class and troop assignments are based upon riding ability as determined by the stable management. Applicants with previous experience may be asked to demonstrate their riding ability in order to be placed in the appropriate class. Uniforms and helmets are required and must be provided at the rider's expense.

Watchung Stable also features adult lessons, for people 18 years of age and older, beginning the week of Sept. 4. Classes for adults are available Sundays at 12:45 p.m. and Tuesdays at 10 a.m. Adult lessons are an eight-week program on either Sunday afternoons or Tuesday mornings. Beginner through advanced lessons are available on both days.

Registration forms and fees must be submitted in person at Watchung Stable. Office hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. daily.

Watchung Stable is a facility of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders and is located at 1160 Summit Lane in Mountainside. For more information, and to obtain registration materials, call 908-789-3665 or email stablequestions@ucnj.org.

Premiere Stages will present 'Farragut North' at Kean campus

Premiere Stages will present the New Jersey premiere of "Farragut North" from Sept. 6 through Sept. 23 in the Zella Fry Theatre at Kean University, Union.

Produced in collaboration with the Kean University Center for History, Politics and Policy and supported by the League of Women Voters, the production of playwright Beau Willimon's tale of hubris is set against a contemporary political landscape, where no price is too high to attain power.

The inspiration for the film "The Ides of March," "Farragut North" is a behind-the-scenes foray into the world of politics that provides a perspective on the lives of the participants of the modern, political spin game. Serving as a precursor to the upcoming United States presidential election, the Premiere Stages production promotes a theme of "get out the vote!" The League of Women Voters will be on hand at all performances to register voters, and guest speakers will conduct topical talk-backs with audiences at select performances.

"The upcoming presidential campaign promises to be one of the most fascinating in history" said John Wooten, Premiere Stages' producing artistic director. "Regardless of party affiliation, this collaborative premiere will provide audiences with a great deal of insight into the process before they enter the voting booth. Only at Premiere Stages can you see an excellent production and register to vote at the same time."

The play, loosely based on Howard Dean's 2004 presidential run, tracks a young press secretary named Stephen Bellamy as he gets tied up in the murky world of politics while working for the Dean-esque Governor Mike Morris. "Farragut North" unfolds in just two days, adding significantly to the tension already building in a political campaign fraying around the edges.

"Farragut North" will run Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 3 and 8 p.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m. For reservations call Kean Box Office at 908-737-7469 or visit www.kean.edu/premierestages.

Tickets to a special opening-night party on Sept. 7 can be purchased by calling 908-737-4092. The event will feature a pre-show party with wine and hors d'oeuvres at Ursino restaurant, a ticket to the play and a post-show champagne toast and dessert reception with the cast.

All performances take place on the Kean University campus, 1000 Morris Ave., in the Zella Fry Theater of the Vaughn Eames Fine Arts Building.

Premiere Stages offers free or discounted tickets to patrons with disabilities. Call for a list of sign-interpreted, audio-described or open-captioned performances.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sucoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already proviced in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPE

ARIES, March 21 to April 20.

Aries, balance and harmony will reign supreme this week. If there is something you have been meaning to change, now is the time to get it done.

TAURUS, April 21 to May 21.

Intentions can be lost when communication is not effective, Taurus. So don't expect someone to understand simply by your actions alone. Explain yourself along the way.

GEMINI, May 22 to June 21.

Gemini, sometimes you give off the impression that everything is going well, even when it is not. Hiding your emotions works sometimes, but this week find another strategy.

CANCER, June 22 to July 22.

Cancer, most of the time you seem slow and steady. But every once in a while you show some passion that others may not expect from you. These sudden bursts are human.

LEO, July 23 to Aug. 23.

Leo, you can't change the path the stars have set in your place even if you want to. It's best to simply accept the cards and make the most of them.

VIRGO, Aug. 24 to Sept. 22.

Virgo, speak up if you are not satisfied with your relationship. Now is the time to set things straight and make your voice heard. The other person will be receptive.

LIBRA, Sept. 23 to Oct. 23.

Libra, you are ready to change careers or travel for a change of pace. This could be the ideal time to make your move because there isn't anything pressing going on.

SCORPIO, Oct. 24 to Nov. 22.

Scorpio, your surroundings may try your patience this week. Rise above any potential confrontations, and you will come out looking and feeling better because of it.

SAGITTARIUS, Nov. 23 to Dec. 21.

You may be misunderstood all day, but that won't put a damper on your good mood, Sagittarius. Let others think what they want to think and simply carry on.

CAPRICORN, Dec. 22 to Jan. 20.

Capricorn, a new person in your life will become a close friend for a long time. This person will have the qualities you need the most right now, and friendship will be easy.

AQUARIUS, Jan. 21 to Feb. 18.

You're feeling like it's time to take matters into your own hands, Aquarius. Don't put off your happiness any longer. It's too important to push aside.

PISCES, Feb. 19 to March 20.

This is the perfect time to address the questions that have been on your mind, Pisces. If you've been fretting over something, work it out.

Summit football, guided by sixth-year head coach John Liberato, is now back in North 2, Group 3. The Hilltoppers will play at defending N2, G3 champion Cranford on Sept. 21.

Summit football moves back up to North 2, Group 3 status

Union in first-ever North 2, Group 5 section

The last time Cranford won the section was last program-best 10-1, capturing its first state title. year - for the first time in its first-ever championship game appearance.

Both teams are sparked by outstanding returning senior players - for starters, Summit with running back A.J. Iarussi (Colgate) and placekicker Mike Badgely and Cranford with quarterback Reggie Green and lineman Chris Folinusz.

And now for something completely different. Both teams are situated in North 2, Group 3 for the first time.

Cranford had jumped around from North 2, Group 2 to Central Jersey, Group 2 to North 2, Group 3.

Summit has been consistently situated in North 2, Group 2 since its days way back in North 2, Group 3. The Hilltoppers captured N2, G3 for the first time in 1976 and last won it in 1980 after beating fellow Union County team Rahway 10-7 in the final at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford.

Summit, which finished 11-1 a year ago, was the only team to defeat Cranford last season, beating the reaching the championship game again in 2011. "We Cougars soundly by the score of 52-21 at Cranford's can only control what we do on the field. Memorial Field.

The teams will meet again at Memorial Field on Sept. 21, the third game for both.

It will be Summit's first road game and Cranford's second home contest.

"There's a lot of teams in this section that I have never seen before," Summit sixth-year head coach John Liberato said.

Whether we're in Group 3, Group 2 or Group 4, we can't control that stuff," said Liberato, who guided the Hilltoppers to the North 2, Group 2 playoffs the last four years, including winning the section in 2009 and

The Governor Livingston baseball team captured the Group 2 state championship in 1999 after winning North 2, Group 2 and in 2011 after capturing Central Jersey, Group 2 for the second time. The Highlanders are situated in North 2, Group 3 for the 2013 season.

G. Livingston moves up to N2, G3 for 2012-2013 year

In the same section now as Cranford is

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

Chris Roof, a 1992 Governor Livingston graduate, has guided the GL baseball team to two sectional championships since he took over as head coach in Both of those came in Central Jersey, Group 2 - in 2006 and 2011 - with last year's team also going on to win the program's second Group 2 state crown.

Now the Highlanders are situated in North 2, Group 3 for the first time. Roof has experience in that section as the head coach at Millburn for three seasons from 2001-2003.

The team that won North 2, Group 3 this year was Group 3 state champion Cranford. GL split with the Cougars in Union County Conference-Watchung Division play this past season, with Cranford having returning seniors Ryan Williamson (LHP) and Chris Folinusz (slugging catcher) ready to lead its 2013 squad as one of the top batteries in New Jersey.

GL, which has won 20 games each of the last four seasons, will have its share of talented players back

In addition to challenging Cranford for conference and county supremacy, the Highlanders might have out there and compete and continue to work to get past the Cougars now to win their next extremely hard. sectional title.

"No matter who you play, you have to play well,"

Roof's Highlanders lost to Cranford in the 2007 and 2011 Union County Tournament championship games and have also finished just below the Cougars in the Union County Conference's Watchung Division standings.

Coming out of North 2, Group 3 and moving up to North 2, Group 4 were Millburn and Scotch Plains.

Scotch Plains won the UCT in 2009 and reached the semifinals in 2010, 2011 and 2012 and Millburn reached the Greater Newark Tournament championship game and captured North 2, Group 3 in 2011.

Roof also led GL to the 2009 and 2010 CJ, G2 championship games.

"I really liked Central 2," Roof said. "This is the first time that I remember GL being a 3.'

The enrollment range for North 2, Group 3 this year is 806-1082. The lowest enrollment school is Newark West Side, with GL at 810 the second lowest. The highest enrollment school is Roxbury.

"I don't like the fact that some schools in our section have 200 more students," Roof said. "It is what it is.

"The only thing I'm sure of is that our kids will go

Cranford softball squads enjoy successful summer

All teams gain very valuable experience

Cranford softball celebrated its 30th anniversary in style this summer with its most competitive travel teams posting an unprecedented number of wins.

Manager Kristen Mallon's 10-and-under A-squad again led the way, posting a 7-3 regular season record in the extremely competitive American Division of the Parkway Invitational Softball League (PISL).

Its impressive record earned it a regular season finish of second place and a berth in the PISL championship game in Long Hill. Although defeated in that game, Mallon's squad brought home no shortage of hardware for the summer.

Cranford captured the Woodbridge Tournament, beating host Woodbridge in the final after surviving a nailbiter in the semifinals when it came from behind to tie the game in the sixth inning and then won it with a walkoff hit in the seventh.

The squad also placed second in the Long Hill Tournament and boasted a final record of 16-9 against the very best all-star teams the area had to offer.

No 10-and-under team in the program's 30-year existence has come close to posting that many wins in a summer.

Players included Jenna Besnecker, Jamie Hendrzak, Hanna Capone, Sarah Harvan, Kayla Haywood, Nicole Gargiles, Oliva Speer, Jayna Mallon, Michelle Kiamie, Lauren Williamson, Tina Kortbaoui and Ellie Rokicki. Coaches included Greg Kiamie, Mike Rokicki, Anthony Capoine and John Mallon.

The 12-and-under squad, managed by Keith Hoffman, posted a regular season record of 6-4 in the American Division of the PISL, which is widely considered to be the league's most competitive division.

That record earned Cranford a berth in the playoffs, making it the first Cranford team to participate in the 12-and-under playoffs in nearly a decade.

Although the squad was defeated by an extremely strong Chatham squad in that playoff game, it couldn't dampen the spirits of the girls, who just the previous day had won what was almost certainly the most exciting and significant game in the program's recent history.

Having reeled off five straight victories in the Woodbridge Tournament, Cranford found itself matched up with well-respected Woodbridge in the final. Down two runs going into the seventh against a talented and disciplined Woodbridge squad, the girls rallied for three runs to take the lead and then held on the in the bottom of the seventh for the tourney title.

It was the first tournament title captured by this Cranford group, which earned the respect of the stunned, but appreciative home crowd.

Overall, Cranford finished with a fine 17-9 record, competing against the toughest teams it could find.

Players included Jillian Skalski, Taylor Reitzel, Elizabeth Casazza, Tessa Ferentinos, Juliana Lefano, Alexandra Pachkowski, Casey Wischusen, Catherine Hoffman, Emily Wilson, Shayna Hollander, Christina Ilkow and Kathryn Robinson.

Springfield team wins 11th crown

Comes back to win in finals

Springfield's Temple Sha'arey Shalom men's softball team needed all three games in its best-of-three championship series to defeat Edison JCC in the finals for the second straight season.

After losing the first game 11-7 in extra innings, Sha'arey fell behind Edison 16-5 heading into the fifth inning of the second game.

Sha'arey didn't give up.

Instead, the determined softball team turned things around and came up big.

Facing elimination, Sha'arey scored 21 runs in the next two innings to come away with a 26-18 come-from-behind victory to tie the series and force a deciding game.

In Game 3, Sha'arey opened with five runs in the first inning and then held on for a 20-16 triumph to capture its 11th League crown since 1998.

Sha'arey earned the No. 1 seed heading into the playoffs by winning the regular season with a 9-3 record. Sha'arey beat Edison JCC twice with and lost to them once.

After receiving a first round bye in the playoffs, Sha'arey faced crosstown rival Beth Ahm in the semifinals, winning 14-4 and 20-2.

Brandon Gincel pitched all the playoff games and finished the year with a 6-1 mound mark for Sha'arey.

Teammate Stu Rothenberg pitched the team into the playoffs with a 7-3 record and also led the team in batting with a .714 average.

Sha'arey brought up three rookies who all contributed to the team's success, including David Steinman, Matt Schachtel and Seth Nadel.

Cory Berger led the team with 11 home runs and 51 RBI, which was a franchise record.

Berger and David Sklar led the team during the playoffs with a .765 batting average.

Longtime veteran Doug Gincel played his last game for Sha'arey, retiring after a stellar 12-year career.

The only remaining members of the first championship team of 1998 are Steve "Munch" Jamnik and captain Neal Berger.

Sha'arey also received substantial contributions from these following players: Steven Cohen, Sammy Dushkin, Jake Floyd, Danny Jamnik and cleanup hitter Mike Weckstein, who excelled offensively and defensively.

Hilltoppers going to test Cranford

"We still have an opportunity to win a sectional championship. The only thing that has changed is who we would be playing.

GL, which reached the 2008 North 2, Group 2 championship game, is also situated in N2, G3 for the first time. The Highlanders are guided by first-year head coach Gary Lubisco, a former assistant at Dunellen under Dave DeNapoli.

Two Union County newcomers to North 2, Group 4 are Scotch Plains and Rahway, while Plainfield is back in the section after being in N2, G3 the past couple of years. Linden remains in the section.

Scotch Plains has been in North 2, Group 3 for more than 20 years, while Rahway has bounced around from North 2, Group 3 to Central Jersey, Group 2 after spending some time in North 2, Group 2.

Rahway last won a sectional title in 1984 when the Indians last captured N2, G3. The Indians also reached the 2008 North 2, Group 3 final, falling to Phillipsburg.

Union County teams in the new North 2, Group 5 section include Elizabeth, Union and Westfield. Elizabeth won North 2, Group 4 seven times, Union a record 10 and Westfield twice. All four Union County Group 1 schools are situated in North 2. New Providence and Dayton remained, while Brearley and Roselle Park moved over from Central Jersey. Brearley won North 2, Group 1 in 2006 for the first time since 1991 and New Providence captured the section in 2010 for the first time since 1989. Roselle, Johnson and Hillside are in Central Jersey, Group 2.

team enjoyed another strong season, this time competing with the top-tier teams in the PISAL's American Division.

A 6-4 regular season earned Cranford a trip to the A Division Tournament. That marked the first time in the nearly 20-year history of the league that the three Cranford A squads (10-and-under, 12and-under and 14-and-under) all earned berths in the league's premier division playoffs.

Earlier in the season, Wetherell's team worked its way to the final of the inaugural Cranford Summer Tournament. Although it was defeated by Maplewood-South Orange in the final, its second place finish was more than respectable.

As things worked out, Cranford would get another shot at Maplewood-South Orange. In the league playoffs, Cranford again squared off with the very strong Essex County squad. This time the girls pulled off a miracle rally to tie the game and send it to extra innings.

Cranford then scored in its for the win, advancing to the championship game as a result.

Cranford was defeated by a very powerful Rahway squad and finished 12-6.

As a group, the Cranford A squads posted a remarkable overall summer record of 45-24.

The B-level squads also gained some important experience. The 12-and-under team of Tom Dineen rallied to a 4-6 National Division record after surviving a very rough start.

Under Dineen's tutelage, the girls remained positive and concluded their season a muchimproved club.

They were very competitive in the same Woodbridge Tournament won by Cranford's A

Perhaps most impressive was Cranford - before the tournament giving that same, strong 12-andunder Woodbridge team a scare before losing to them in extra

Eric Kiamie's 10-and-under players were getting their first taste of competitive summer softball.

This summer at the Adams Avenue complex was not just about the present. The Cranford Baseball and Softball League honored its past and also provided for its future.

Cranford had the honor of hosting the league's 10-and-under and 12-and-under All-Star Games.

In mid-July, girls came to Cranford from five counties and the 80 teams that take part in the league to participate in the PISL's premier annual event.

During the festivities CBSL officials honored three of the people whose dedication to Cranford and its softball program helped put the town on the softball map.

Those honored were Bob and Joanne St. Amand and Jim Donnelly. They were presented with plagues from the league in recognition of their years of service to softball in Cranford and for building the program's strong foundation.

Bob St. Amand was also among ed a final record of 4-6. Many of his who first proposed and organized the Parkway League in 1994.

This summer also marked the inaugural editions of the 12-andunder and 14-and-under Cranford Summer Softball Tournaments. The events were a success and will form a basis for an even more aggressive summer tournament schedule to be hosted at the Adams Avenue complex in the future.

Speaking of the future, the town's two 8-and-under entries had their own remarkable summer. Jim Litterio's 7- and 8-year-olds on the 8-and-under Gold squad played a stunning 25 games this summer. They finished second in the Long Hill Tournament and made it to the semifinal round of the Woodbridge Tournament.

Cranford dominated regular season play, going undefeated in the Sayreville League. The girls concluded their summer season in style by winning the regular season championship with their final victory.

As if that weren't enough to Scot-Wetherell's 14-and-under half of the eighth and held on team also finished strong and post- the group of Cranford residents assure future success for the Cranford softball program, the team it played its final game against was the other Cranford entry in the league - Cranford Blue - which is managed by Bill Demcher and Frank Padovano.

> In addition to its finish of second place in the Sayreville League, the Blue squad was also competitive in tournaments that took place in Verona and Woodbridge. The team finished with a winning record of 7-5.

> The program also entered a team in the high school division of the PISL, which was managed by former Cranford High School standout shortstop Deanna Russomanno. That team also posted a winning record of 6-4.

Although the number of wins was substantial, the most important number for the softball program this summer was the number of girls who had fun playing competitive softball. Cranford fielded eight teams with a total of 120 girls. That is the most.

Paying for college an education in itself

By Rod Hirsch

Ricardo Johnson is proud of his gridiron feats. But after just a few years the accolades and cheers faded and the press clippings became tattered – even the trophies lost some of their luster.

Named an All-County running back, the 2009 Westfield High School graduate thought that would be his ticket to a top-flight Division I college. There was plenty of interest from high-profile programs – Rutgers, Temple, the University of Delaware, even Notre Dame.

But Johnson's academics were not good enough to earn a scholarship from the schools he expected. His family could not afford to pay tuition so he applied for loans and trundled off to Lackawanna Community College in Pennsylvania, where he learned to balance academics and athletics.

A package of Pell grants, a Stafford loan and financial aid from the school got him through two years with an associate degree – and an education in paying for college.

"I just focused more. I realized how important my brain is," Johnson said. "In high school I was a jock, school was second and then when I didn't get into a university where I wanted to play football, I realized I didn't work to my full potential. At Lackawanna, I was a true student athlete – student first, football second. I didn't work less on football, but I worked on my grades more."

Johnson also continued to work on financing his education by researching and applying for various support. Now 22, he is taking a few courses at Union County College, working full time at the Hilton Hotel in Woodbridge and plans to enroll at Montclair State University in the fall of 2013 to pursue his bachelor degree in hotel management. He expects to graduate with very little debt.

Johnson's experience mirrors the findings contained in "How America Pays for College 2012," an annual report compiled by Sallie Mae, a private corporation that originates, services and collects student loans. Sallie Mae manages more than $180 billion in debt for more than 10 million borrowers.

According to the report:

- Drawing from savings, income and loans, students paid 30 percent of the total bill for college, up from 24 percent four years ago, while parents covered 37 percent of the bill, down from 45 percent four years ago;
- 35 percent of students borrowed education loans to pay for college 25 percent federal loans only, 9 percent a mix of federal and private loans and 1 percent private loans only;
- Families continued the shift toward lower-cost community college, with 29 percent enrolled compared to 23 percent two years ago. In fact, overall, families paid 5 percent less for college compared to one year ago;
- The percentage of families who eliminated college choices because of cost rose to the highest level, 69 percent, in the five years since the study began. Virtually all families exercised cost-saving measures, including living at home 51 percent; adding a roommate 55 percent; and reducing spending by parents and students, 50 percent and 66 percent, respectively.

"As tuition has gone up and with the things going on in the economy, assets that families were counting on are not as available now so we do have a lot of students considering the option of starting at a county college and transferring to minimize the amount needed to borrow," said Eric Weems, financial aid director at Union County College.

"You're seeing students being more willing to make that consideration when doing their college search. They're not considering community college as the last fallback. It's now a viable consideration along with the four-year schools. You see better retention, more students staying to finish their associate degree. Typically we'll see that surge when the economy is tight."

Weems advises students and families to follow Johnson's game plan.

"Complete the federal aid form, look for scholarships and apply for federal aid," he said. "That's

Elizabeth schools setting new standards

By Michael Daigle

In a state such as New Jersey where many residents believe urban schools mean high costs and low student achievement, the Elizabeth School District presents a picture of steady improvement, strong results and increasing pride.

This stellar performance stems from bold steps, according to district officials, such as creating six distinct high schools from the once-central, 5,000-student high school; creating clear goals; and gaining the cooperation of administrators, board of education members and the teaching staff.

The results have been increased student performance that got the attention of the Washington Post and U.S. News & World Report, which offer national school rankings.

"We felt our ability to meet the challenges of a 21st century economy would expand with smaller high schools," said Pablo Munoz, Elizabeth School District superintendent. "Each of the high schools has its own identity and academic and course themes."

Yet each school is subject to the district's overall academic goals of increasing student achievement, Munoz said. The program, Advancement Via Individual Determination, is based on raising the expectations of the students, he said. It is a program introduced

Importance of filling the sales pipeline - Darwin's comments about eggs

By Andy Gole

"A large number of eggs is of some importance to those species which depend on a rapidly fluctuating amount of food, for it allows them rapidly to increase in number. But the real importance of a large number of eggs or seeds is to make up for much destruction at some period of life; and this period in the great majority of cases is an early one."

Darwin's Origin of the Species, Chapter 3 – Struggle for Existence

A robust opportunity pipeline is essential to business health, as it is a critical indicator of future business success. Darwin's comment provides a new way to understand the impact of the opportunity pipeline.

We often wonder, is this a "real opportunity"? Is it safe - you will never get a stick of business; you are a pricing exercise - or serious - the prospect has a compelling need and is willing to discuss it?

Darwin's comment suggests the eggs are "good eggs" and, by implication, the opportunities are "good opportunities." This means the prospect has an urgent, compelling need and our offering is a good fit.

So why aren't we closing the deal? And why do we need a large number of eggs?

Darwin points to the answer. A large number of eggs (a large number of opportunities) is of importance to a species which depend on a rapidly fluctuating amount of food because it allows them to rapidly increase in number. In addition, a large number of eggs or seeds is needed to make up for much destruction at some period of life.

The environmental conditions drive Darwin's assessment. What does this mean in business terms?

On the simplest level it explains why we need a rainy day savings account. A business needs to retain profits for unpredictable adverse circumstances, which can include new competition, more vigorous competition, a decline or substantial change in demand, other priorities that must precede our project and government interference in business.

How does the environment impact our selling strategies and opportunity pipeline needs? We need a robust opportunity pipeline for two reasons:

- To overcome and succeed despite the short-term adverse environmental conditions (and uncertainties)
- 2. To maximize sales and profit growth when the conditions shift in our favor

The adverse environmental conditions and "do or die"

Best efforts would result in extinction in the natural world. A species that makes its best effort to survive will die.

The same is true for businesses – best efforts are a losing proposition. Businesses need to operate on a do-ordie basis – either we hit the objective or we don't.

When a business allows its sales team to work on a best effort basis, it pushes itself toward extinction. In such a case the eggs are not good eggs and the opportunities are not good opportunities.

We need a robust pipeline with great opportunities to survive short-term adverse market conditions. This takes a non-stop do-or-die effort to fill the pipeline.

The need to be ready - to take advantage of opportunity

A large number of eggs allows a species to take advantage of optimal environmental conditions.

If we:

- a) Have a strong offering
- b) Have a powerful selling system a standard sales call
- c) Boldly use the system we are business sellers not social sellers...

Then when market conditions shift in our favor we can enjoy exponential profitable short-term growth. This provides our rainy day fund, to help survive dryer periods.

This explains why we need to unceasingly turn over stones, to boldly reach out and fill our pipeline with great opportunity. This is why strong business development is so critical. So when the market conditions shifts in our favor, we are ready to act.

Elizabeth schools setting new standards

at lower grade levels so that as students advance the work ethic, study habits and higher expectations are as important as the subject matter.

The idea, Munoz said, is to build the expectations for success year by year so the challenges at the high schools are not a surprise but a matter of growing student expectations.

The U.S. News & World Report Best High Schools report recently ranked Elizabeth High School the number six high school in New Jersey and the 139th top school nationwide, awarding a gold medal designation. The magazine also ranked Elizabeth's Hamilton Preparatory Academy 46th in the state and awarded the school a silver medal designation.

The Washington Post, in its 2012 Challenge Index, rated Elizabeth High School the number two high school in New Jersey and number 79 nationally.

In addition, the Terence C. Reilly School No. 7 recently was named the district's third national Blue Ribbon School.

U.S. News based its ranking on student performance on state standardized exams given at the end of a student's high school career and internationally available tests on college-level coursework, such as the Advanced Placement tests. The magazine noted that in 2009-10 100 percent of Elizabeth high school students took AP exams, with 56 percent passing, and that 96 percent of Elizabeth high school students were proficient in math and 99 percent were proficient in English on the New Jersey High School Proficiency Assessment, given to 11th graders.

The math scores were above the state average and the English scores were at the state average.

Twenty-eight New Jersey high schools achieved a gold medal ranking in the U.S. News list, 23 achieved silver medals and 31 achieved bronze medals.

The Washington Post 2012 Challenge Index score was based on the number of college-level tests given at a school in 2011, divided by the number of graduates that year. Also noted were the percentage of students who come from families that qualify for lunch subsidies and the percentage of graduates who passed at least one college-level test during their high school career, called equity and excellence.

"The Challenge Index is designed to identify schools that have done the best job in persuading average students to take college-level courses and tests," wrote Jay Mathews, the editor for the project.

"Educators... have concluded that despite low passing rates on the three-hour AP exams, many students still benefit from courses and tests that will build academic muscles for college."

Elizabeth scored 53 percent in the equity and excellence ranking.

This success comes even though Elizabeth is one of New Jersey's "special needs" school districts. Both ranking programs took into account the number of Elizabeth students who qualified for federal free or reduced meal programs, roughly 76 percent.

While the special needs designation has helped with some construction projects, the district has funded its academic changes through its annual operating budget, according to Munoz.

"There is a high level of support of the success of the students," he said.

Fernando Nazco, school board president and a local business owner with three school-aged children, said the changes have come with the cooperation of the administration, school board and district unions.

"We have created systemic improvements, a fantastic paradigm shift in seven or eight years," Nazco said.

Jim Coyle, president of the Gateway Regional Chamber of Commerce, said the positive results of the Elizabeth School District are important to chamber members who rely on local schools to educate their future workforce.

the number one trick."

Seton Hall University, a four-year private Catholic University, has a long tradition of enrolling transfer students.

"We have a strong transfer population at the university," said Alyssa McCloud, vice president of enrollment management. "They're important to us. We've started a new Center for Academic Transfer Success to give those students better guidance and advising on transferring credits. It's a population we care about, one that is definitely increasing. A lot of families start there because they're looking for more affordable options, which makes it easier for them to transition to a fouryear school.'

Seton Hall also launched a program for qualified students that reduces tuition costs dramatically, matching the tuition paid by students attending state-supported Rutgers University. Seton Hall tuition for the fall 2012 semester is set at $31,440 but for those students who qualify tuition will be $10,104, which is what Rutgers students will pay.

"This program rewards the efforts of high-achieving students, allowing them to attend one of the nation's leading Catholic universities without the added burden or worry about financing their education," said McCloud "This program eliminates the worry for parents and allows them to know the bottom line cost up front. The program assures parents that their son or daughter will receive a quality private education from a prestigious university in a smaller, more nurturing environment where they can thrive and build a foundation for a successful future without an extensive loan burden.'

According to McCloud, 96 percent of the students at Seton Hall receive some form of financial aid. The average package totals $16,000

"We try to help every student," she said. "90 percent of those that receive aid get a grant or scholarship directly from Seton Hall. We try very hard to help our students and spread it around as much as we can."

Financial aid is based on need and merit, according to McCloud, with Seton Hall providing $64 million last year.

Seton Hall is able to spread the wealth because of a $200 million endowment but that pales in comparison to the billions in endowments on hand at schools such as Harvard and Princeton universities, according to Ian Welham of Complete College Planning Solutions in Springfield and author of the book, "Cash for College."

Citing statistics from the U.S. Department of Education, Welham noted the average tuition at a four-year public university increased by 15 percent in just two years between 2008 and 2010. Last year college loan debt exceeded $1 trillion for the first time.

Students also are taking a longer time to graduate, according to Welham, spending 5.6 years in the classroom to attain their four-year degree.

"More and more people are coming to us for help, whether they can afford to write the check or not," he said. "They realize the smart way to do it is to seek help, to guide them to the right colleges that make sound financial sense. Nine out of 10 families are overpaying for college.

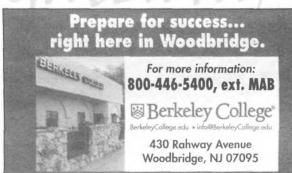

Welham emphasizes the importance of a suitable match to minimize costs. Matching a student to a school where they likely will be in the top 15 percent academically will give them an excellent chance of a generous aid package, he said.

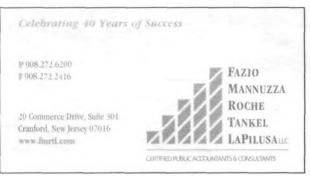

He urges parents and students to consider the best fit, things that distinguish the student in the applicant pool besides a high SAT score.

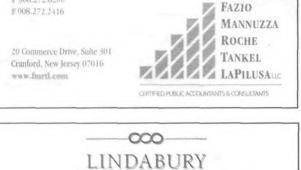

"If the school is looking for a flute player in the marching band, for instance, that's a magnet for money," he said. "The student body is what is important. They want a well-rounded patchwork quilt of excellence in various areas.

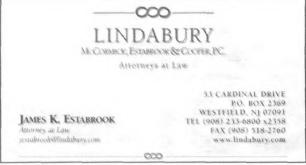

A patchwork approach to financing college often proves most economical.

Politics have never been stranger

I've been taking a lot of grief for last month's column where I wrote in favor of the individual mandate contained within the Affordable Health Care Act. Most of the comments center on whether I'm really a conservative. Some of them are about whether I believe in freedom. And some question my intelligence.

Actually, I've never considered myself a conservative, and of course I'm not a liberal. I like to think of myself as a rationalist, something far too few people are in these days of ideological certainty.

Jim Coyle

It used to be that the Republican Party was the party of realists, the smart people, while the Democratic Party was the party of idealists, the do-gooders. Now we have only strident ideologues who can't see a good idea even when it is in front of them.

Let me explain why Republicans of all people should support a personal healthcare mandate and why Democrats, if they hold to their core principles, should oppose it.

Health is not like a car or a house. If someone's house burns down and they don't have insurance because they had other things to spend their money on, we may feel bad for them but society does not usually come to their aid. If they were willing to risk living without insurance, it was their decision and they pay for it, literally.

However, someone's health is different. If an individual decides not to purchase insurance because they have other priorities or needs, but then get sick or hurt, as fellow human beings we are going to do all we can to help them. In fact, pretty much everywhere medical professionals are required to render aid regardless of ability to pay. Society bears the cost of health care for the uninsured.

An economist would look at this situation this way: an individual's health is similar to pollution. One's health, like pollution, is a thing for which the individual is responsible but for which we all pay. The individual makes the decision to stay healthy, to exercise and eat right or not, but the uninsured individual does not pay for the consequences of those decisions. In economics lingo, it is called an externality.

As any good economist (and they're mostly Republican) would tell you, the solution to an externality is a tax. Make the person responsible for the problem, poor health in this case, bear the cost of the problem. Voila – the individual mandate!

Stuart Butler of the Heritage Foundation first proposed the individual mandate back in the late 1980s. It was thought of as a way to keep health care in private hands at a time when there was tremendous pressure to move to a national health care system. By bringing more people into the system and thus widening the risk pool, not only will you achieve more efficient care, but it is hoped at a lower cost.

I'm not sure I agree with this last part, but getting people without insurance out of the emergency room would certainly help efficiency.

Chief Justice Roberts was correct; the individual mandate is a tax. In fact, it is a very regressive tax because it is applied to those least able to pay, the so-called working poor or lower middle class. These are the folks whose mortgages are underwater and who can't afford to send their kids to college. Now we are going to make them pay for health care? What is the world coming to?

The individual mandate taxes the poor to give to the rich. Democrats of the world should be outraged!

But they're not. They're not because they don't understand that the individual mandate is a regressive tax. The Republicans are outraged because they don't understand this, either.

One wishes for some intellect in these debates. Alas, it is not going to happen anytime soon.

Price higher education according to reward

In the mid-1980s VCRs became widely popular – and profitable for manufacturers and retailers. In time, of course, the VCR gave way to DVDs and manufactures adjusted. Try finding a VCR today. In 1982, the first year of mass production of Cabbage Patch Kids, more than 2.5 million dolls were sold. By 1988 the fad was over and manufacturer Coleco declared bankruptcy.

In a capitalist society when someone builds a better mousetrap the world beats a path to their door – and the builder makes a beeline for the bank, which is happy to extend credit. When interest wanes, businesses stop offering the product.

This is the age-old principle of supply and demand that shapes every market. The time has come to apply this model to higher education or, more accurately, to the financing of higher education.

Currently college loans are extended at the same rates to students who choose majors in fields that offer lower promise of employment and/or pay – and therefore carry a higher risk of default by the borrower – as to students majoring in fields with a higher upside. Students majoring in architecture or economics, with unemployment rates of 13.9 and 9.4 percent, respectively, receive college loans at the same rate as those majoring in medical technology and industrial production technology, where unemployment is 1.4 and 3.1 percent, respectively.

Lenders would not extend credit to a business that had an unsound business plan – such as selling VCRs or Cabbage Patch Kids. Yet they lend to college students seeking degrees in unrewarding majors who are practicing unsound business planning.

Consider these facts:

The most popular college majors today include psychology, which has a starting salary of $36,000; communications, when journalism is expected to see a 6 percent decline in employment in the next eight years; and commercial arts, with 11.8 percent unemployment and a starting salary of $32,000.

Among the fastest growing fields 2010-2020, those with the lowest unemployment rate or those with the highest annual median incomes, home health aides (#3 growth), agricultural production and management (3.0 percent unemployment) and petroleum engineering ($120,000 annual media income) are nowhere to be found among popular majors.

The time has come for banks and the federal government to stop making loans to young people opting to major in fields that offer lower hope of employment and/or pay at the same rates they offer loans to students pursuing employable and financially rewarding skills.

First, lenders are doing these young people a disservice by setting them up to leave school with considerable debt. Second, they are doing the business community – and therefore the nation's economy – a disservice by financing the education of workers who do not have the skills businesses need. Recent employer surveys report that 49 percent of respondents listed finding and retaining qualified employees as a top business challenge while 52 percent are experiencing difficulty filling mission-critical positions.

ManpowerGroup reports that the top hardest jobs to fill are skilled trades, sales representatives, engineers, drivers and accounting and finance staff. The U.S. Bureau of Labor and Statistics reports the five occupations with the largest growth job growth 2010-2020 are registered nurses, retail salespersons, home health aides, personal care aides and office clerks.

Time magazine reports the five college majors with the highest median annual earnings are petroleum engineer, pharmacy and pharmaceutical sciences administration, mathematics and computer sciences, aerospace engineer and chemical engineer. CBS News reports the majors with the lowest unemployment rates are nursing, treatment therapy professionals, medical assisting services, agricultural production and management and pharmacy.

Simply put, today's college student must do his or her homework and build a business plan that offers the best potential reward and lenders must price their loans according to the risk of the borrower's plan.

For example, nursing offers low unemployment (2.2 percent), high growth (14.3 percent) and a fair starting salary ($52,700). Conversely, psychology, the 18th most popular major, offers low pay ($29,000) and economics, the fifth most popular major, offers high unemployment (9.4 percent). However, while architecture today has an unemployment rate of 13.9 percent due to the housing bust, the field is expected to see 24 percent job growth 2010-2020.

If a student wants to major in nursing, he or she should receive a lower rate. If the goal is a psychology degree, then the rate should be higher. An architecture major should come down somewhere in the middle, although for now at the higher end.

Higher education is a commodity that is essential to the nation's economy and future. It is time to start pricing it accordingly.

Proper school funding can bring property tax relief

Property taxes in New Jersey are as intrinsically tied to school funding as the tides are to the moon.

To ignore this fact means ignoring New Jersey's most pressing fiscal issue, as it has been for decades. But for three years now, Gov. Chris Christie has proven himself a scofflaw when it comes to complying with the School Funding Reform Act the Legislature passed in 2008.

This repeated failure to meet the state's school aid obligation belies any serious commitment by the governor to reverse the 20 percent net increase in property taxes that the average homeowner has witnessed during his time in Trenton.

After years of court-dictated funding and stopgap measures at budget time, we crafted a predictable and fair school funding formula that took into account all aspects of a school district, from the individual needs of its students to the community's overall socioeconomic makeup. When I worked with my colleagues to draft this legislation, we carefully designed the formula so that school districts would be able to anticipate changes in state funding due to fluctuations in enrollment and student needs before a crisis arises.

The governor's unwillingness to fully fund this formula shows a complete indifference to the crushing burden posed by ever-increasing property taxes.

When he takes to the airwaves preening about enacting a balanced budget, he is ignoring the fact that it short-changes the school funding formula by almost $800 million this year, as a recent analysis by the Office of Legislative Services found.

More importantly, this report rejects the long-standing myth that this extra funding would flow predominantly to 31 of the state's poorest districts, formerly known as Abbott districts. In reality, the lion's share of it of it would be allocated to non-Abbott districts across the state.

Why is this important? Because for years the Abbott court decisions helped perpetuate an animosity between the "have" and "have-not" districts.

And the school funding methods that followed the Abbott decisions, while well-intentioned, did not take into account the districts just above the arbitrary "have-not" line. These districts span New Jersey, including Democratic and Republican areas alike and towns such as Hamilton Township, Toms River and Freehold.

The governor's education cuts from past years treated school districts unfairly and unevenly, leading to tremendous reductions in some of the highest-performing districts and threatening to undo progress made in narrowing the achievement gap in others.

The new school funding formula was supposed to set these inequities straight by distributing state aid in a more fair and equitable manner that includes historically underfunded school districts.

However, the governor's blatant disregard for this formula last year prompted yet another court challenge, which resurrected the false notion that this is about providing more funding solely for Abbott districts. That belief rekindles the misleading and destructive "urban vs. suburban" rhetoric that too often dominates the school funding debate.

This is no longer about "urban vs. suburban" or "Abbott vs. non-Abbott." If followed properly, the new school funding formula puts all districts on the same level playing field by meeting the individual needs of children regardless of where they reside and easing achievement disparities between school districts.

By recognizing that at-risk students are not solely concentrated in the 31 poorest districts, the school funding formula provides larger increases to middle class districts, which in the past were underfunded due to the lack of a fair and consistent aid formula.

The School Funding Reform Act of 2008 was meant to be the key in moving to a post-Abbott regime of school aid, where school funding depended on the individual needs of the district rather than a court mandate. But as long as we continue to dismantle and undermine the formula, there will remain a large number of school districts that don't get their full and fair share of state aid and whose property taxes will continue to be a crushing burden.

We must commit to fully funding the formula in future years so that all students receive the best education possible and local homeowners see much-needed property tax relief.

Senator Michael Doherty (R-23) – Education Committee Current school funding formula has failed

In the decades since the New Jersey Supreme Court's first ruling in Abbott v. Burke, the State of New Jersey, under court order, has funneled tens of billions of dollars of extra education funding into the state's poorest school districts.

The theory behind the ruling, advocated by groups including the Education Law Center, was that property taxpayers in economically disadvantaged districts could not afford to fund their own schools at levels that would produce properly educated children.

These groups asserted that money, exclusive of nearly any other consideration, was the primary factor in determining whether schools were "good" or "bad" and whether students would achieve or fail. These groups insisted that if they could only bridge the spending gap that existed between poorer and wealthier school districts, that the education achievement gap could be eliminated.

The Supreme Court swallowed these arguments hook, line and sinker, ordering state government to massively increase education aid to the so-called "Abbott Districts."

As a direct result of the ruling, approximately 60 percent of all education aid distributed annually by the state government goes to 20 percent of the students in the "Abbott Districts."

The remaining 80 percent of the students from the nearly 600 non-Abbott districts each receive a miniscule share of the remaining state aid, which in many cases amounts to less than 10 percent of their total budgets.

Of the $31.7 billion appropriated in the current state budget, nearly one-third, about $9 billion, is spent on education. Well over half of that amount is dedicated to funding K-12 and pre-school in the former Abbotts.

It cannot be forgotten that state education aid is funded largely through income taxes paid by state taxpayers. Middle-class taxpayers across the majority of the state shoulder nearly the entire burden of their own schools through their property taxes and of the Abbotts through their income taxes.

It's no surprise that Garden State residents bear the highest combined state and local tax burden in the nation, according to the non-partisan Tax Foundation.

This scheme might be tolerable if the "Abbott Districts" could point to some positive results or some signs of long-term improvement. Unfortunately and sadly, the court-ordered spending has not improved the education achievement gap.

In a recently released Education Funding Report, New Jersey Education Commissioner Christopher Cerf noted that decades of data show that the achievement gap that Abbott was meant to address has remained constant and in some instances has actually increased.

Despite decades of Supreme Court micromanagement and spending tens of billions at its direction, we have not improved the educational outcomes of students in perpetually failing school districts.

While few would argue that money is an important factor in education, the Supreme Court has repeatedly erred in making it the only factor.

If Asbury Park, for example, can spend $24,940 per student, 50 percent more than the state average, and still not have a single one of its SAT test-takers in 2009-2010 meet the College-Readiness Benchmark, perhaps funding is not the primary antidote. And if the massive funding levels long mandated by the court don't produce results, shouldn't we insist that the court step out of the way to let us try something new?

I believe so, which is why I've sponsored the Fair School Funding Act, a constitutional amendment that would place education funding decisions back in the hands of the people and their elected representatives.

The Fair School Funding Act treats all children equally and taxpayers fairly, while providing elected policymakers the flexibility they need to work on both monetary and non-monetary education reforms without court interference.

With innovative reforms, including the Fair School Funding Act, we can finally help turn failure to success for struggling students wherever they are located in New Jersey.

Sid Blanchard, executive director of Community Access Unlimited (CAU), has been named by Gov. Chris Christie to serve on the New Jersey Interagency Council on Homelessness. The council was created in April to develop a 10-year plan to reduce or end homeless in New Jersey. Blanchard is one of 15 non-government appointees to the 26-member council, which operates within the Department of Human Services.

Blanchard brings to his appointment more than three decades of creating affordable housing for people with disabilities, at-risk youth and those with affordable housing needs. Today CAU owns and operates more than 200 units of housing throughout Union County and since its founding has enabled more than 7,000 individuals to find housing.

Their renewable energy and roof garden are part of COX Printers' initiative to become one of the "greenest" printers in the New York Tri-State area.

Since 1996 COX has instituted a number of programs to promote sustainable products and workflows, such as recycled papers, vegetable-based inks and the installation of high-efficiency lighting.
