A member of the Cranford Police Department has filed a complaint with the New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission alleging Police Chief Eric Mason attempted to intimidate a member of the force into recanting an email that Mason did not like.

Officer complains of Mason's intimidation

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

CRANFORD — Township Police Chief Eric Mason is in hot water with the local police union after allegedly attempting to intimidate a member of the force into recanting an email that Mason did not like.

The complaint, filed with the New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission, puts further credence to rumors that have circulated the last several years of a deep divide between the police force and Mason.

Mayor Tom Hannen said the complaint is being looked into by the township's legal advisors, declining to comment one way or another on the issue because it involved a personnel matter. However, he did say the township is hoping to resolve the matter locally.

Until the NJPERC makes its decision on whether the issue meets the law, the complaint cannot move forward. Once it does, the commission will hold a hearing where both parties can plead their case. But the PBA believes their case does have merit and meets the law.

In fact, on Jan. 11 the Police Benevolent Association Local 52 was upset enough over the incident that occurred Nov. 20 to file the unfair labor practice complaint against Mason, charging the township's top cop with trying to intimidate a police sergeant, deprive him of his First Amendment free speech rights and illegally interfering in protected union activity.

According to the complaint, which LocalSource obtained, Police Sgt. Anthony Dobbins was confronted by Mason about an email he wrote to PBA members Nov. 16 involving the morale of the department.

Springfield brings back board of health

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD — Tuesday the governing body was expected to change the status of the board of health. Again.

"I feel that it's in the best interest of the residents of Springfield for the Board of Health to be made up of public health professionals," said Deputy Mayor Rich Huber in a statement published on the Springfield Democrat website.

'This being.'

"This change will ensure that politics don't get in the way of the public's well being," he added.

But that was not the way it went last year.

After a contentious battle that resulted in the township's autonomous board of health being dissolved, a simple change in political power brought it all full circle once again.

The previous board of health, comprised of appointed residents, was replaced by a committee of all five members of the township's governing body, in addition to two residents with expertise in public health.

The change, first proposed by former Republican Mayor Ziad Shehady, angered and surprised board of health members and residents alike.

Shehady, who said the change "would provide greater and much needed oversight of public health matters," as well as streamline costs, went head to head with board members and Westfield Health Officer Megan Avalone to see the board dissolved.

Amidst feud with mayor, police chief opts to retire

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

HILLSIDE — Saying he was "sick of allegations by Mayor Joseph Menza that are entirely false," the township's top cop decided to retire after ten years leading the force and more than 30 years with the department.

"I've had quite enough," Police Chief Robert Quinlan said in an interview Friday with LocalSource, two days after he handed in a resignation letter to clerk Diane Rowe, effective Feb. 1.

Despite the circumstances, the police chief has no regrets.

"I leave Hillside with with my head held high and proud of my achievements as a member of the Hillside Police Department and chief of police for 10 years," Quinlan said quietly, adding that during his tenure he did his "level best to protect the people of Hillside."

Quinlan and Menza have been battling for more than a year, ever since the police chief filed a multi-count lawsuit against the mayor.

The police chief said the case is about the mayor withholding his contractual benefits, but he preferred to not get into what that involved. He was, however, adamant about not dropping the ball on this legal matter.

"I don't care how long it takes but I will have my day in court with Mayor Menza," the police chief said, adding he was "looking forward to it."

The lawsuit is now in the discovery phase.

At city hall in Linden, Mayor Rich Gerbounka recently delivered his state of the city address to kick off his 7th year as the city's mayor.

Gerbounka looks ahead in state of the city address

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

LINDEN - In his state of the city address, Mayor Rich Gerbounka had only one hope - that mother nature did not have another surprise up her sleeve for Linden in 2013.

"Think about it. In 2010 we had a record 32 inches of snowfall. In 2011 we had Hurricane Irene plus the Halloween storm," said the mayor, adding that Superstorm Sandy was a lot to handle for the city.

Gerbounka said Sandy "punished Linden, devastated the shore and Staten Island."

Through it all we survived and persevered. Our police, fire, public works and Office of Emergency Management removed the hazards, protected property, putting themselves in harms way many times," the mayor said, adding that the calls the city received during and after the storm were not always pleasant.

"Central dispatch and the police desk fielded volumes of calls, many from irate and demanding residents who did not realize the gravity of the situation," he said, but pointed out that all city office workers served the residents the best they could even though they were also without power at their home.

Although the mayor initially focused on how the city handled Superstorm Sandy, he quickly turned to what lay ahead for Linden in 2013, including welcoming aboard new 9th Ward council member Armando Medina.

Gerbounka graciously acknowledged that Medina worked hard to get elected, but pointed out, "I'm sure you will work just as hard for the people of the 9th

It was a bittersweet moment for the mayor as he watched Medina sworn in to a seat that once belonged to Bob Frazier, who decided not to seek re-election.

"Both Bob and I have gone through the political arena together. I don't think the city will ever find a better representative. He is a diplomat, a gentleman and an individual I always turn to for advice," the "Bob, I want you to know I'm going to miss you, but enjoy your family and retirement, you earned it and can rest assured that you left the 9th Ward in great shape and its future in good hands," Gerbounka told his old friend who was in the audience.

The new year marked the start of Gerbounka's seventh year as mayor, one that found him feeling more optimistic about Linden's future than ever before.

"Time and time again you have heard me state there are only two ways to stabilize taxes. One way is to reduce spending and the other is to increase revenue by increasing our industrial base," the mayor said, adding that only then will the tax burden shift from homeowner to business.

Moody's has 'negative outlook' for Kean

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

UNION — Citing a steep decline in fall enrollment, very high debt, negative headlines involving management and governance over the last two years and weakening state aid, Moody's Investor Services gave Kean University an A2 rating.

"Despite the positive credit impact of Kean's reaffirmed accreditation, we maintain a negative outlook reflecting recent enrollment volatility, resulting pressure on net tuition revenue and an expectation of thinner operating performance in 2013," Moody's said Jan. 18.

Moody's is a bond credit rating business that provides an opinion of a city, state or university's ability to meet its financial obligations.

Moody's uses its own method of measuring credit worthiness, but utilizes a specific scale to publish its ratings. The scale ranges from AAA, an extremely strong capacity to meet financial commitments to CCC, or vulnerable and dependent on favorable business.

According to Moody's rating, released late last week, the A2 rating reflects the university's high burden of debt and "very thin cushion for debt and operations."

A2, according to Standard & Poor's Rating Services, means the university is subject to adverse economic conditions, but able to meet its financial commitments.

At the end of fiscal year 2012, there were only expendable resources of $98 million compared to the $379 million in debt the university has incurred.

"The likelihood of continuing future declines in operating support from the state of New Jersey will require Kean to raise tuition and implement more cost efficiencies to offset state cuts and higher debt service," Moody's said.

Moody's noted that a 23 percent decline of 427 students in freshman enrollment over 2011 and a decline of 5 percent in freshman to sophomore retention. Both, the investment firm indicated, contributed to the 5 percent decline in total full-time enrollment from 2011 to 2012.

"Despite the positive credit impact of Kean's reaffirmed accreditation, we maintain a negative outlook reflecting recent enrollment volatility, resulting pressure on net tuition revenue and expectation of thinner operating performance in 2013."

Specifically, Moody's mentioned negative publicity over the accreditation probation, NCAA violations and the Kean Federation Teachers allegations related to President Dawood Farahi's misrepresentations of past resumes.

According to Moody's, improved student demand and increases in tuition, a substantial increase in financial resources relative to debt and operations, as well as maintaining strong operating cash flow to support escalating debt service would help raise their credit rating.

Kean's rating could go down if enrollment continues to decline, tuition revenue declines and if the university continues to borrow money without significant growth of other financial resources.

Shehady stands alone against reinstated BOH in Springfield

The matter was fiercely debated at meetings, in the press and social media. Shehady devoted considerable space to the issue, even criticizing the previous board of health and board president Samir Shah. The issue came to a boiling point when Shehady, while at a June board meeting, put up a Facebook message accusing the board of "unnecessarily giving Sofia's Restaurant a hard time."

Throughout the township residents put up lawn signs calling for residents to let the township know the autonomous board should be retained for the health of the community.

Eventually, though, Shehady got his way.

But the former mayor stood all alone in his convictions when political power shifted to the Democrats on election day. It was even more obvious that the Democrats were in control of things when an ordinance to reinstate the autonomous board of health was introduced and approved by a 4 to 1 vote. Shehady was the only dissenting vote.

On Tuesday, after LocalSource went to press, the Springfield Township Committee was expected to have the final reading and public hearing on the ordinance reinstating the board of health. According to several members of the committee, the issue would not present a problem.

The rise and fall — mostly rise — of property taxes in UC

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

The average homeowner statewide paid $7,870.28 in property taxes last year, up 1.7 percent over 2011. Eight municipalities in Union County, however, saw their taxes increase by more than 3 percent, while five actually saw taxes drop.

This was the lowest increase statewide in two decades for one of the highest taxed states in the nation, according to information obtained from the New Jersey Department of Treasury, division of Taxation.

New Jersey property taxes, which specifically go toward supporting the counties, towns and schools, actually stayed below the 2 percent mandated state cap, on average. In 2011, the average increase was 2.4 percent.

Despite the statewide average, only nine towns in Union County were at or below the 1.7 percent state average.

With a 0.8 percent drop in taxes, Winfield had the greatest decrease of all 21 municipalities in the county. Plainfield had a 0.4 percent decrease. Elizabeth had a decline of 0.5 percent, the closest to the statewide average.

Roselle homeowners paid an average of $9,056 in property taxes, or a 0.6 percent decline over 2011. However, this town pays one of the highest municipal portion of their taxes at $4,416, surpassed only by Elizabeth which sees $4,743 on average go to the city, per homeowner.

Berkeley Heights property owners, on the opposite end of the spectrum, were among towns paying some of the highest taxes at $11,105, an increase of 0.7 percent.

Rahway had a modest increase of 1.1 percent, with property owners paying an average of $7,826. Roselle Park property owners saw a 1.5 percent increase, but property owners in this borough paid a hefty $8,605 in taxes for 2012, which includes an average school bill over $4,400.

Linden saw a 1.7 percent increase and Hillside a 1.8 percent increase. The average taxpayer in Hillside pays $8,670, while in Linden the average property owner pays $7,873.

Springfield had an increase of 2.5 percent in property taxes, with the average resident paying a total of $10,007, while Union property owners saw a 3.3 percent increase overall, but the average homeowner only paid $7,861, slightly over the statewide average.

Kenilworth came in with a 4.4 percent increase, with the average property owner in the borough paying $7,337. Paying the highest taxes overall were Summit at $16,050. This city saw a 3.4 percent increase in taxes overall, with the majority of this money, $8,274, going toward the schools, $4,132 to the county and $3,643 for municipal costs.

Recently, Summit officials have voiced objections over the high amount of taxes property owners must pay to the county. According to the state division of taxation, they may have a point.

Out of all 21 municipalities, the average homeowner in Summit hands over the most money to the county at $4,132, while in Westfield, where the average property owner pays the next highest average tax bill of $14,329, only $3,204 of that amount goes to the county.

The average property owner in Winfield paid the least amount of taxes in the county at $3,109, handing over just $82 to the county, $1,436 for municipal costs and $1,591 for schools.

Cranford also figured significantly, with a 3.6 percent increase in taxes over 2011. The average property owner in the township pays $9,903 in overall taxes, with the majority, $5,369, going to the schools and the remainder evenly divided between the town and county.

Quinlan retires as police chief effective Feb. 1

(Continued from Page 1) their battles during the three year period since Menza was elected mayor, things heated up in December when the two disagreed about excessive overtime and promotions made by Quinlan.

Menza said he was forced to file a complaint with the Union County Prosecutors Office for what he claimed was "Quinlan's unnecessary and deliberate overspending on overtime and promotions."

The mayor claimed the police chief overspent on the $7.7 million departmental budget by $250,000 and despite repeated warnings, failed to do anything about the problem.

Quinlan said the mayor has his facts mixed up.

"He left me no choice," the police chief said Friday, pointing out that since Menza was elected mayor three years ago, the number of police officers went from 77 to 67, leaving him little choice but to resort to using overtime to supplement shifts.

"When he refused to hire replacements for retiring officers, that left me no other recourse," the chief said.

Quinlan said police departments cannot deny police officers vacation or sick time because he is bound by union contracts.

"What am I supposed to do for police officers then? I have no other choice but to call in off duty police officers on overtime. It's either that or not have any police on the streets," the police chief added.

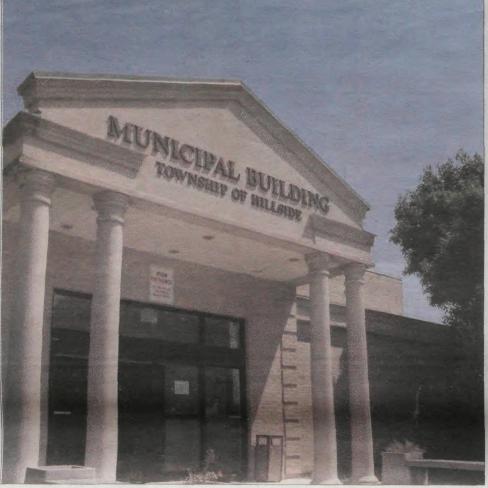

Menza, however, has continued to point out that the police department had too much staff in the past. In fact, in March 2011 the mayor planned on laying off 49 employees, five of which were police officers, but the council ended up suing the mayor in order to stop that move. A Superior Court Judge agreed with the governing body, saying Menza was not empowered to initiate layoffs.

While that legal siege was going on, township firefighters, department of public works employees and clerical workers agreed to give back a 4 percent raise and contribute 1.5 percent of their salaries towards their health benefits.

The township still had to lay off seven employees, slashing $900,000 from the budget, but that was just the beginning of problems that continued to fester.

In June 2011, Menza planned on laying off police officers but that never happened because of an 11th hour concession with the union. As a result, the township kept five officers and two K9's.

Quinlan said it has been like this since

File Photo

Saying he has had enough of Mayor Joseph Menza as being among the reasons, Police Chief Robert Quinlan has turned in his resignation, effective Feb. 1.

Menza was elected mayor and he "just got sick of it."

"This township requires a highly visible police presence and a strong police department," Quinlan said, adding that with Hillside bordering high crime areas of Newark, Elizabeth and Irvington, the township has to have enough police officers on the force and streets.

"Even though the department was reduced by ten officers we still have to protect the township. We still have a job to do," he added, noting he has to comply with civil service rules and collective bargaining agreements.

Menza, on the other hand, went public with his gripes, telling the press Quinlan promoted six officers in the fall, which cost the township an additional $75,000. The mayor also said Hillside had enough police officers on the force to do the job that is needed to be done, insisting if more officers were not behind desks and on the street, there would not be a need for overtime.

Quinlan, though, disagreed, maintaining that every promotion he made was "vitally necessary to the operation and supervision of the police department."

Quinlan's attorney Damian Shammas maintained that Menza has a "continued pattern of bullying, intimidation and retaliation" against the police chief, but Menza believes he is justified in what he has done and will inform the attorney general of his concerns.

The police chief, on the other hand, made it clear he was not shying away from any investigation by the prosecutor's office, attorney general, FBI or anyone else.

"I welcome an honest, objective investigation and I always have," Quinlan said, adding that the last thing he wanted to do was retire.

"It wasn't an easy decision, but I'm at peace with my decision," the police chief added.

Looking back at the ten years he spent as police chief, Quinlan modestly pointed to several achievements he was especially proud to see come to fruition. One was the creation of the canine unit, manned by two police officers and two specially trained dogs.

"I'm very proud of this accomplishment," the police chief said, bringing up another move that has continued to reap financial rewards for the township.

Several years ago Quinlan assigned a Hillside detective to the IRS to be part of a anti-money laundering task force.

"We were fortunate to be able to do this and it has paid off because any forfeiture funds are spilt among the members of the unit and we get a portion of that money," the police chief said.

So far, Quinlan said, not only have taxpayers saved hundreds of thousands of dollars, but Hillside received over $1 million as a result of this one detective working with the IRS Task Force.

The police chief said he used the money to buy police cars, equipment and also send officers for additional training. He is also proud of the fact that he appointed the first female detective in the history of the township, Lashonda Borgess.

Quinlan grew up on Williamson Avenue, went through the Hillside school system and graduated in 1976. He went on to graduate from Union College in 1978 and took on a job in the Union County Sheriff's office.

"I realized my lifelong dream in 1979 when I was appointed to the Hillside Police Department by former Chief George Shelbourne," Quinlan said, mentioning that he graduated number one in his class at the Union County Police Training Academy.

Thinking back over his 39-year career, Quinlan recalled graduating from the police academy in 1979, just a few days after Hillside police Officer Anthony Lordi was shot and killed in Gino's Restaurant.

"I am the last member of the Hillside police department to have served with Officer Lordi," Quinlan said, adding quietly that the force dedicated a memorial to this officer outside headquarters in 2009.

In parting, the police chief wished residents of Hillside "years of health and happiness."

"I'm at peace with my decision," Quinlan added

Livingston Ave. School adopts Manasquan elementary in wake of Sandy

Livingston Avenue School in Cranford has adopted Manasquan Elementary School, where 50 families are displaced from their homes due to Hurricane Sandy. These families have rented apartments in the surrounding area or secured rooms at a hotel while they wait for FEMA aid. These Manasquan residents left their homes with only a small duffel bag of personal items and expected to return in a few days to resume their lives.

For the months of November and December the Livingston School's goal was to create holiday baskets with gift cards, food and cleaning items.

The PTA thanks the families at Livingston Avenue School for the support shown to Manasquan.

KEEPING AN EYE ON MOLES

Everyone should occasionally take the opportunity to look in a full-length mirror of cancer, with several thousand new cases and check for warning signs of melanoma, diagnosed annually. If you notice any a potentially deadly form of skin cancer. When doing so, it helps to know that normal moles are round or oval, generally less in diameter than a pencil eraser, and either dark or light (but almost always uniform in color). They also do not normally itch or hurt. However moles that might be malignant are irregularly shaped and varied in color, and they may itch or may be sore. In addition, while normal moles rarely change very much, malignant moles usually change over a period of weeks or months. Any of these symptoms should prompt an appointment with dermatologist.

Skin cancer is the fastest growing type changes in you skin, such as dark spots or abnormal looking moles, speak to your dermatologist immediately. To schedule an appointment for skin care, call 908-925-8877. Evening and Saturday appointments are available. Our office is conveniently located at 822 North Wood Ave., Linden. OPINION

Bad apples, good orchard

Of all the troubles caused by Superstorm Sandy, price gouging is a low priority. People lost their homes, their businesses, their lives in some cases, and compared to those tragedies, a few merchants raising their prices seems like a minor transgression.

But in terms of public anger, price gouging is near the top of the list. It's difficult to get mad at hurricanes, or water in your basement. You just gear up and deal with those problems as best you can. But it's another situation when you need gasoline for your car to get to work, or your generator has shut down and you need a few gallons of gas to keep your food from spoiling and your family warm. Then, when somebody raises their prices to capitalize on your misery and misfortune, you get plenty mad.

And the state agrees with you. Price gouging is a violation of state law. The statute kicks into effect after the governor declares a state of emergency. For Superstorm Sandy, that was Oct. 27. After that, merchants cannot raise prices more than 10 percent above the level they were on the day the emergency was declared. The law does make an exception when the merchant incurs added costs; if that happens, prices cannot be raised more than 10 percent above the old price plus the added costs. Penalties? Up to $10,000 for the first sale, and up to $20,000 for each subsequent sale. These restrictions remain in effect for 30 days after the emergency has been lifted.

These fines can add up. The state Division of Consumer Affairs, the office that investigates price-gouging complaints, claims that during the state of emergency for Sandy, the Ramada Inn in East Orange, on 208 separate occasions, rented rooms at prices more than 10 percent above its old prices; in 90 instances, those prices were increased more than 30 percent above the old prices. That's more than $4 million in fines if the judge throws the book at the owners.

And the wheels of justice continue to turn. The acting director of the Division of Consumer Affairs, Eric T. Kanefsky, stated that his office received more than 2,000 complaints involving price gouging during the aftermath of Sandy. The director said his office will not rest "until all allegations of price gouging have been investigated." Good for him. And it should be noted that while many violators were identified by a swarm of consumer complaints, some investigations were sparked by just a handful. That Delta station in Bloomfield, which is charged with raising prices by 25 percent, was investigated and charged after the division received only about six complaints to its hot line, 800-242-5840.

As a rule, we are against the government imposing pricing restrictions on business. But when a state of emergency is in effect and merchants try to profiteer on essential goods, such as fuel and lodging, that crosses a line. Similarly, we were glad to see the police monitor gas stations during the long lines and shortages to prevent bullies from cutting in the front of the line.

We're glad the Division of Consumer Affairs is taking a "we never sleep" attitude toward investigating allegations of price gouging.

We've heard so many wonderful stories of neighbors helping neighbors, both during and after Sandy, and of how whole communities came together to help and comfort those in need.

That's the Union County we know and will always remember when, in the years to come, the talk turns toward the worst storm to ever hit our towns.

Unfailingly polite

The past few weeks have found me dealing with Craig the insurance adjuster assigned to friends trying to regroup from the ravages of Superstorm Sandy.

In a nutshell, my friends live near a body of water and never had any damage until the fierce storm winds blew water into their home wiping out a chunk of their first floor. After filing a claim, the couple quickly learned about the intricacies of insurance polices and how policy exclusions leave them on the water without a paddle.

The couple filed their claim arguing the unique situation of Sandy with high, persistent winds as the direct cause of the water swirling inside their home. Enter Craig, the unfailingly polite adjuster, who always ends up saying no, calling it water damage.

Craig and his fellow workers are described as providing "the highest quality of service to the claims industry with integrity and efficiently which exceed the expectation of tomorrow, today."

That sounds pretty impressive, but merely boils down to rejecting the claims whenever possible of the overmatched homeowner. Craig's mode of operation includes being ever so polite. He is reminiscent of the traffic cop who pulls you over, refers to the infraction committed and while writing the ticket calls you "Sir or Ma'am." The real wise guys even tell you to have a nice day as they hand you the ticket.

BY FRANK CAPECE

Back to Craig. His company tries to woo insurance carriers to do the adjuster work saying they are "on the front lines, delivering the integrity and access."

It turns out that Craig and friends are there to take your phone calls giving "24/7 365 days access to claims service." Heck, while he has rejected my friend's claims, I now even have access to Craig's cell phone. It is interesting to know that Craig's boys boast about their skill bringing "higher claim accuracy" and despite it all they give the insurance carrier they work for the goal of "retention of policy holder." That's quite a skill by Craig and friends to reject the claim but keep the policyholders coming back

Enter State Sen. Nicholas Scutari from Linden. As Chairman of the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee, he is a person who matters in Trenton. He has had enough of the all too often policy of rejecting wind damage claims and instead asserting the water damage exclusion.

Scutari has introduced The Consumer Protection Act of 2012. A key portion of the legislation is the provision permitting insurance policy holders to go after the carrier and their agents, like Craig, for "unfair practices in the settlement or attempted settlement of insurance claims arising out of property and casualty insurance policies."

Scutari included a statement at the time of introduction of the bill saying "residents across the state are trying to rebuild their lives after the devastation caused by Sandy.

OPINION

Especially for those who are attempting to recoup their losses from the storms, even a simple act of bad faith by an insurance company is one too many.

The bill provides a method of recourse for those who are treated unfairly by their insurer, whether or not the company has made these tactics a long standing practice, it will better protect our residents, and help hold insurance companies accountable."

A unique aspect of the bill is to do away with the protection insurance companies like to assert of not "enough frequency as to indicate a general practice."

Scutari's effort will level the playing field for the insurance carrier or adjuster who acts in bad faith. There will be penalties including prejudgment interest, reasonable attorney fees and punitive damage when the "insurer's acts or omissions demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence, actual malice or willful disregard of any person who might be hurt by the insurance act or omission."

If Scutari's bill gets to be law I can see it now. The next time Craig wrongfully rejects a claim, we can say we will see you in court, ever so politely.

Mayor turns to future in state of the city address

Gerbounka explained that since he was elected he has worked to achieve that goal, but it has not been an easy task. Especially given the economy, he said, but the mayor was not discouraged by any means.

"The city council and I have made great strides in stabilizing our taxes which will reap major benefits in Linden's future, especially when the national economy picks up," he said.

Gerbounka also reported that the city workforce had been reduced by 86 full-time and 15 part-time positions since he became mayor. This saved the city $7.9 million in salary, benefits and pensions, he added.

The mayor said the city recently purchased seven Ford Focus vehicles to replace vehicles in various departments. Although each of these vehicle will cost the city $13,500 each, the mayor said it was a good investment overall.

"Since they get 35 miles per gallon and come with three-year warranties, it didn't make sense to re-assign old police cars to other departments, as was our tradition," the mayor said.

"Besides, these police cars were eight-cylinder gas guzzlers that had at least 250,000 miles on them or more and were constantly breaking down because of the rough mileage put on them by 24/7 police work," Gerbounka said.

Recently the city converted an old water truck into a "brine spreader," something the mayor felt could save money because this piece of equipment can go out on the road during normal working hours and spread a liquid salt solution on roadways before icing or snowfall begins, saving overtime costs.

On the forefront, the mayor said, is a new sanitation collection system pilot program that will take place in the 9th and 10th wards.

"We are waiting on the delivery of this new sanitation truck that mechanically lifts a city supplied garbage container into the hopper," Gerbounka explained, adding that this will reduce a three-man sanitation team to just a driver.

"Our public works department studied other municipalities that collected their garbage in this manner and are convinced it will be a successful cost saver to taxpayers," he added.

On another front, the mayor said that previously the city had a hybrid ambulance service composed of the Linden Volunteer Ambulance Service, Linden Emergency Medical Services and Linden Fire Department, and although the mayor said it was an extremely hard decision terminating the Linden Volunteer Ambulance Corps and Linden Emergency Medical Services that have provided excellent ambulance service to residents, he said it was the right decision for Linden.

"Having three agencies providing the same service is not a cost effective way to provide life saving services to a community," Gerbounka said, adding that although a simple "thank you" is not enough for everything these organizations did for the community, but "it is all I am able to offer."

Gerbounka also filled residents in on a seven-day economic journey he took this year to Tong Chaum China that was completely paid for by the Chinese government.

"My objective was to introduce Linden to this city of 750,000 residents and show them what we have to offer to Chinese businesses," the mayor explained.

"I'm confident a strong relationship developed between myself and these Chinese leaders that will be built upon for future development between both cities," he said.

Gerbounka also reported the city has continued to work toward breaking ground at the old General Motors property on Route 1, but the road has not been easy.

"This could have been accomplished two years ago except ShopRite of Aviation Plaza continues to file nuisance lawsuit after nuisance lawsuit to stall this development because a Super Walmart will provide them with competition," he said, adding that this has been extremely frustrating for everyone involved.

"Why? Because our city can't reap the real estate taxes that would be significant when the two anchor stores and approximately ten smaller stores become operational," the mayor explained.

Meanwhile, he said, efforts to enhance the train station are in the works. The city received a $100,000 grant from the Department of Transportation and has applied for another $250,000 grant.

"So as you can see we have a lot of positive developments coming to fruition in the near future," the mayor said, pointing out that there is one that is "in our pocket."

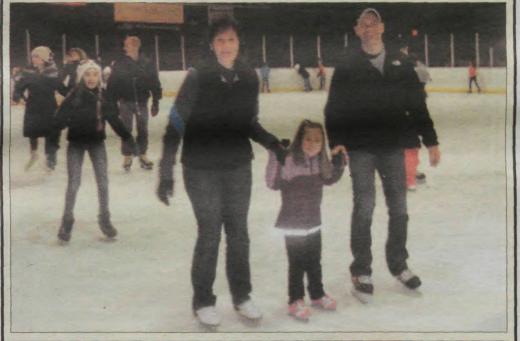

The city recently negotiated a host community benefit agreement with Spectra Energy, a major energy transmission corporation that is burying a 42-inch natural gas line down Lower Road, under the New Jersey Turnpike and Arthur Kill to Manhattan.

"This is a major east coast energy pro-ject that is a tax ratable homerun for Linden" Gerbounka said, explaining that by 2014 Spectra Energy will start paying the city $2.5 million a year in lieu of taxes.

"That will go a long way in helping us reach our goal of tax stabilization," the mayor said.

Complaint alleges threatening, intimidation

McCormick, Estabrook & Cooper, Dobbins sent the email to fellow PBA members because he was concerned about the direction in which the union was heading.

The email, sent to all PBA members, including Mason, who is also a member of the PBA, was merely an effort "to motivate members and its leadership to change direction and become more involved in traditions."

"With morale at an all time low in our department I think we need to work especially hard in the union to acknowledge great works and share in social times as the holiday seasons are upon us," Dobbins said in the email to PBA members.

Ross said Mason's reaction to hearing about the email and subsequent confrontation with Dobbins on Nov. 20 constituted "a direct and undeniable violation" of Dobbins rights as a PBA member under state statute.

According to the complaint, on Nov. 20 Dobbins was told by Capt. Joseph Van Bergen that after a staff meeting Mason wanted to see him. At the staff meeting, Dobbins reported that the police chief was "confrontational in tone at this meeting and his demeanor included yelling repeatedly to another officer to shut up despite lack of provocation."

Following the meeting, the complaint noted, Dobbins was escorted to the police chief's office where Mason informed him that he knew about the email. He fired questions at Dobbins' about morale in the department but refused to allow the sergeant to answer.

"Within just a few moments Mr. Dobbins felt threatened and backed into a corner," the attorney for the PBA explained in the complaint, adding that Mason accused Dobbins of "talking out of both sides of his mouth."

The complaint also alleged the police chief tried to force the police sergeant to write another email recanting his original email.

The attorney for the PBA maintained in the complaint that Dobbins and the PBA believe the chief's actions were motivated by "anti-union animus and intended to have a chilling effect of Mr. Dobbins' union rights and first amendment rights."

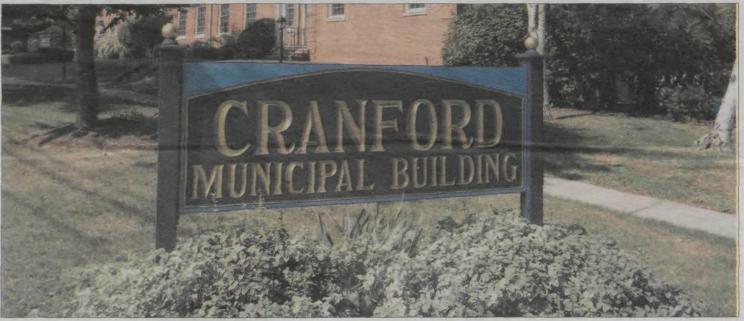

The PBA and Dobbins also charged Mason with "interfering illegally in protected union activity."

Ross said Dobbins felt threatened and intimidated as a union member, especially when the police chief asked in "an agitated state" if he was starting a weekly column.

Dobbins, the attorney said, explained that he was not planning any further emails but had every right to freely express his thoughts in a private PBA email.

"The actions of Chief Mason were will-fully and deliberately designed to deprive Mr. Dobbins of his rights guaranteed under the act," the complaint said.

The PBA asked the commission to find

CFile Photo

Cranford Police Chief Eric Mason has been accused of intimidation, among other things, in an official complaint from within the police department.

that Mason violated the law and issue a requirement that the police chief "cease and desist from further violations."

This is not the first time the issue of morale problems within the police department under Mason's charge surfaced.

Although rumors of continued unrest have been posted on the Cranford Talk website since last year, in the fall the matter came out into the open when Dobbins' father, Gerald Dobbins, a well respected member of the community for his voluntarism, raised the issue at a public meeting.

Dobbins questioned the governing body about the police chief taking on the administrator position while he was also the police chief, pointing out there were morale problems in the department.

Mason held the duel role of police chief and interim administrator since September 2011 when former township administrator Marlena Schmid was put on administrative leave by the Township Committee and eventually let go the end of the year.

Although he announced that he would be retiring as police chief May 31 and step into the administrator position full-time, that was put on hold pending a decision from the state department of treasury on pension guidelines.

The delay had to do with a new law that took effect in March 2012, which put into question whether Mason could retire as chief and immediately assume the administrator position.

The governing body and Mason expected the New Jersey State Treasury Department to interpret this new law, which said employees of a municipality had to wait 180 days before assuming another position in the same municipality.

At issue was whether the law even applied to Mason's case because the governing body officially voted to hire him Feb. 28 and the new law did not become effective until March 9.

Mason decided to hold back until he received a waver from the treasury department, despite a clear indication this would not be forthcoming.

In fact, in June, when LocalSource spoke with Treasury Department spokesperson Bill Quinn, he made it very clear where the state stood on this particular issue.

"Regulations are up for interpretation," Quinn said, adding the state would provide Mason and the township with an interpretation of a regulation, "but we would never issue a waiver on something like that."

At one point it appeared Mason might just accept the interpretation the township attorney provided, which was that the law did not apply to him, but that failed to materialize. Meanwhile the governing body continued to interview police chief candidates, concentrating on four from within the Cranford police department, selecting Lt. James Wozniak, a 25 year-veteran officer with a stellar record on the police force.

Mason threw in another hook when he told township elected officials he wanted an employee contract before he would officially put his papers in to the state to retire as police chief. That did not set well with some members of the committee.

According to several governing body members the township was not about to start giving contracts out when that had never been the policy before.

In late November Mason abruptly tendered his resignation as interim administrator, saying he would continue to do the job until the end of the year but would be returning to his position as police chief full-time.

This left the township without an administrator. It also left Wozniak out in the cold.

According to governing body and police department sources, Mason was not at all pleased that the township committee did not go along with his choice of Capt. Joseph Van Bergen as police chief, selecting Wozniak instead.

Adding fuel to the fire among the police force and governing body members alike was Mason's promotion of Van Bergen to head of administrative operations, along with moving Lt. Edward Davenport to another administrative position. Both advancements were done without notifying or consulting the Township Committee in any way.

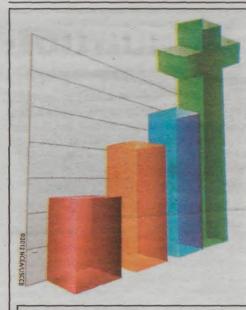

According to one member of the governing body, this came as a complete surprise, especially since the police chief is a department head and expected to keep the governing body informed of changes within the department.

Adding yet another dimension to the lack of support for Mason was Hannen's decision not to appoint the police chief as Cranford's Emergency Management Coordinator, a position he has held every year since being named police chief ten years ago.

Last week Hannen confirmed that he appointed Mason and Fire Chief Lenny Dolan as Deputy Emergency Management Coordinators, but did not name anyone to the Emergency Management Coordinator position yet. Not being reappointed to the deputy coordinator position was Van Bergen.

When asked why he did not appoint Mason to this top emergency leadership spot again, Hannen said state police quidelines require the coordinator live in town and Mason lives in Scotch Plains.

"Just following the rules," the mayor said last week, noting he will be appointing someone to this critical position in the next few weeks. And despite rumors circulating, he would not confirm that his choice for the coordinator position could be Wozniak.

Springfield man convicted of murder of Orange man

Acting Essex County Carolyn A. Murray announced earlier this week that an Essex County jury convicted Keevin David, 20, of Springfield of murdering Tyrell Coleman, 18, of

Following a four-day trial before the Honorable Peter J. Vazquez, J.S.C., the jury deliberated for more than a day before returning a guilty verdict.

David had previously been convicted of weapon charges in another trial in September 2012 but that jury was unable to reach a verdict on the murder charge.

According to Assistant Prosecutor Portia Downing, who tried the case, Coleman was walking home from high school on Jan. 25, 2011 when he was shot multiples times by David around noon time. The shooting occurred in the 200 block of South Center Street, where the victim lived. Coleman was transported to University Hospital but died a short time

The motive for the shooting was unclear, although David knew Coleman, said Assistant Prosecutor Downing.

"There were no eyewitnesses. The case was circumstantial but because of the extraordinary police work done by Essex County Prosecutor's Office Detective Phillip Gregory and Orange Detective Sgt. Michael Tingolie we were able to convince the jury of the defendant's guilt. We are very pleased. More importantly, the family that had to live through this nightmare is pleased," said Downing.

Sentencing is scheduled for March 1. David faces 30 years to life.

Police: Officers assaulted by rowdy nightclub group

On Jan. 19, at 2:10 a.m., Linden police were sent to Dragonfly, 661 W. Edgar Road in Aviation Plaza on a report of a fight.

Officers arriving on scene were informed by bouncers that the crowd was unruly and wanted the club cleared of all patrons. According to police, officers began moving the crowd, estimated to be about 200 patrons, into the parking lot.

As the officers attempted to disperse the crowd, several fistfights broke out among the patrons, according to officials, and officers called for mutual aid. During the ensuing melee, two Linden officers were allegedly assaulted, including one male, 37, who was taken to Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital at Rahway for a knee injury.

The crowd was eventually broken up, police said, with the additional officers who had to resort to using pepper spray to disperse the patrons. During the melee, seven individuals were arrested. They are: Chad S. Hill, 22, of Linden; Jerome Calhoun, 26, of Matawan; Tyron Diejuste, 21, of Roselle; and Mark A. Myers, 24, of Elizabeth.

The above listed individuals were charged with riot, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest. Myers also had contempt warrants out of Linden and Cranford.

In addition, Joshua M. Williams, 22, of Roselle was arrested and charged with aggravated assault on an officer, resisting arrest, and a contempt warrant out of Roselle, according to police.

Ryan S. Lapierre, a 26-year-old female, of Elizabeth, was also arrested and charged with riot, disorderly conduct, and contempt warrants out of Elizabeth and Clark.

Melissa C. Coy, 25, of Elizabeth was also arrested and charged with riot, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, and aggravated assault on an officer.

All defendants were held on bail pending a court date of Jan. 28. The Dragonfly is an Asian Fusion restaurant which becomes a nightclub in the evening hours.

All parties are presumed innocent until proven guilty.

• Jan. 11: At 8:17 p.m., after a monthlong investigation, members of the police department's Narcotics Squad raided an apartment at 10 W. 15th St. in response to numerous, citizen complaints of drug dealing. Officers arrested Jermaine A. Simon, 30, of Linden and charged him with possession and distribution of marijuana; distribution within a school zone and park zone; and possession of narcotics paraphernalia. Officers allegedly confiscated six bags of marijuana, valued at $120; empty zip-close bags used to package controlled dangerous substances, and $870 in U.S. currency.

According to detectives, while they were conducting their investigation, three customers arrived at the apartment in order to purchase marijuana. The three were arrested and charged with loitering to commit a controlled dangerous substance offense, and released on summonses. Their names are not being released. Police said Lanier then attempted to run from the scene, pursued on foot by several officers. During the foot chase, Lanier was seen discarding a plastic bag, later found to contain suspected marijuana. Police said Lanier then confronted the officers in an aggressive stance and received a burst of pepper spray before he was subdued and placed under arrest.

Lanier was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, possession of a controlled dangerous substance, possession of controlled dangerous substance paraphernalia, and contempt warrants out of Elizabeth and Irvington. Third graders learn about Yoga

Third-grades at Frank K. Hehnly School in Clark were invited to come in before school for the Breakfast Bunch to learn about yoga with Kristi Reeves, a parent in the school and a yoga instructor. Breakfast Bunch students were then invited to learn and practice yoga positions. Reeves demonstrated each position for the students and described what each pose meant and how it helps the body. One position the third-graders enjoyed was the tree pose. In this position they stood on one foot, swaying their arms over their heads like a tree waving

By the end of the Breakfast Bunch, students seemed more relaxed and were ready to face the day and the start to their week.

Oak Knoll principal to resign June 30

Oak Knoll's upper school principal Mary Sciarrillo has accepted an appointment as the founding head of a new, all-girls, Catholic school in Monmouth County and will be resigning her post June 30.

"Starting an all-girls school like Oak Knoll has been a personal and professional dream of mine," Sciarrillo said.

She will head Trinity Hall, the newly established all-girls high school starting in Middletown's Croydon Hall campus, which is slated to open in September.

"Trinity Hall made an outstanding decision in Mary's selection," said Head of School Timothy J. Saburn. "She is ready for this challenge. Not many of us have the opportunity in life to live our dream."

Lions Clubs are always there to help

Across the globe, Lions Clubs are comprised of more than 1.35 million members who share the core belief that community is what we make it, even if that community is 1,700 miles away. 'Following Hurricane Sandy, the Summit Lions Club received numerous emails and phone calls from other member clubs around the country offering assistance in the wake of the storm. One such call came from the Downtown Founder Lions Club in Austin, Texas. After hearing about the hardships in New York and New Jersey, their club raised more than $1,000 to send to Summit to help those affected by the storm. The Summit Lions matched the $1,000 gift, and the clubs agreed to contribute the combined amount, more than $2,000, to SAGE Eldercare for its Meals On Wheels pro-

"We heard about all the difficulties after the storm, particularly the need to help restock food supplies; so we contacted the Summit club and volunteered to help," said Tommy Cowan, an Austin Lion whose daughter lives in the Summit area. "We are big supporters of the Meals On Wheels program locally, so we know how much good this organization can do with a few extra dollars — particularly when times are tough." On behalf of both member clubs, the Summit Lions presented the combined gift to SAGE Executive Director Jessica Rosenzweig Gruber at its December meeting. The power outages and cold temperatures in the weeks following the hurricane were particularly hard on elderly residents and those with limited mobility. SAGE Eldercare's Meals On Wheels program delivered 550 meals to area seniors in the two days immediately following the storm, and volunteers continued to check on residents throughout the week to make sure they were safe. To learn more about Lions or to get involved as a volunteer, visit www.summitlionsclub.org. For more information on SAGE Eldercare, call 908-273-5550 or visit www.sageeldercare.org.

Police arrest 18 for drunk driving during campaign

The Linden Police Department took part in the year-end "Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over" drunk driving crackdown, and arrested 18 drivers for driving while intoxicated.

"Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over" is a nationwide campaign operated by the Division of Highway Traffic Safety. The campaign focuses on increased police patrols during the busiest travel and holiday seasons. This year the campaign ran from Dec. 7 until Jan. 2.

During the almost month long crackdown, the Linden Police Department increased roving patrols to focus on impaired driving. In addition to the 18 arrests for driving while intoxicated, the Linden Police also made 12 felony arrests, 26 drug arrests, and issued over 450 motor vehicle summonses. In 2012, members of the Linden Police Department arrested 151 motorists for driving while intoxicated, a 32 percent increase from 2011.

'Drunk driving continues to be a problem," said Linden Traffic Bureau Commander Sergeant Michael Babulski. "Our DWI arrests are up because our officers are increasing their awareness and enforcement while on patrol, not because more people are driving drunk. Motorist safety is important here in Linden. We have zero tolerance for any type of impaired driving or distracted driving."

Sage and Ricotta Frittata

I love preparing eggs for dinner. They are so versatile and are packed with protein. What's more, they can also be custom made for each member of the family. Try this easy and delicious frittata for "meatless Monday" or any other day of the week. Experiment by making it like a pizza — at the end, add different topping ingredients for the various sections. Enjoy!

ingredients

1 tsp. butter

8 eggs, beaten in a medium-sized bowl

1 Tbs. chopped, fresh sage

1/3 to 1/2 cup ricotta cheese

1 tsp. salt

freshly ground black pepper - just a pinch or two

Method

Place a rack on the top rung of the oven and preheat oven to 400 degrees. In an oven-proof, skillet, such as cast iron, melt the butter over a low flame. When the butter is melted, add the sage and saute for a minute.

Add salt and pepper to the beaten eggs and then pour in the pan. Let sit a minute before you start lifting the sides so the raw egg seeps to the edges

Keep lifting the cooked edges until the only raw parts of the eggs are mostly in the middle. It's OK if there are still some raw eggs all over the pan, as this is not an exact science.

Put some dollops of ricotta cheese all over the partially raw top and place the skillet on the top rack of the oven.

Bake for about 3 to 5 minutes, or until the eggs are cooked through. Serve immediately.

SAGE asking for prom dresses, tuxedos

SAGE Eldercare's Resale Shop, located at 31B Chatham Road in Summit, is looking for donations of prom dresses and tuxedos during the month of February and March. Items can be dropped off during normal business hours, Monday to Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The sale for the dresses and tuxedos will begin on Monday, April 1.

"We are putting together a special prom event and would love to receive donations of current or recently used prom dresses and tuxedos. A good indication of the styles of dresses and tuxedos we are looking for are those worn by celebrities, models and pageant contestants," said Rose Rittweger, Manager of SAGE Eldercare Resale Shop. "Our main goal is to obtain current fashion that will be desired by our shoppers."

The event will give high school students an option for their prom attire so that those students who might not be able to afford full-priced clothing might be able to select a dress or tux at SAGE's Resale Shop at a discounted price.

In addition to clothing, SAGE's Resale Shop offers a variety of goods, including furniture, housewares, china, linens, jewelry, bric-a-brac, collectibles and books. There is a continual turnover of merchandise and at the beginning of the year after the holidays, people tend to clean out their closets and donate older items to thrift stores.

The Resale Shop's unusual variety and exceptional quality of goods, along with reasonable prices, have attracted shoppers and collectors from Summit and the surrounding areas since it opened its doors in 1959. Shoppers at the Resale Shop have the added benefit of knowing they are supporting the valuable services SAGE provides to older adults in the region.

For more information on the event, call 908-273-5564 or visit www.sageeldercare.org.

SAGE Eldercare supports the independence, well-being and quality of life of older adults, their families and caregivers, through the provision of client-centered health, social and support services.

Founded in 1954, SAGE is one of the few non-profit eldercare agencies in the United States, and the oldest in New Jersey, that offers a broad and comprehensive array of services under one roof that assist elderly, often frail, adults to remain independent in their own homes.

A lovely English garden, in pics and text

Alan Titchmarsh is quintessentially English, from his last name to his loves — gardening, dogs, country life and the Queen. Best known to Americans from the imported gardening makeover series, "Ground Force," Titchmarsh is a celebrity in Britain. He hosts the BBC's round the clock coverage of the Chelsea Flower Show every year, has written numerous garden books, hosted several garden TV series and undertaken various commercial projects, including designing and endorsing a line of garden tools for a retail chain. He is, in a word, ubiquitous.

The newest Titchmarsh book is "My Secret Garden," BBC Books, 2012. I don't have all of his books, but this one, which portrays his personal plot in words and gorgeous photographs by Jonathan Buckley, sounded interesting.

From 1996-2002, Titchmarsh was the host of "Gardener's World," a venerable BBC gardening show. In a genteel form of reality television, the program was filmed in his own two-acre garden, Barleywood, with new weekly episodes airing from February through November each year. This meant that his wife, Alison, had to put up with camera crews on the doorstep for six years. It is not surprising that when the couple moved to their current Georgian house and grounds 10 years ago, Titchmarsh promised Alison that the garden would be private. Not only would the beds and borders never show up on the BBC, but they would not even open for the British National Garden Scheme's Garden Open Days.

But Alan Titchmarsh is Alan Titchmarsh and he eventually succumbed to the urge to publicize the new plot. The result is "My Secret Garden," which is a great midwinter read for gardeners.

Like many gardening books, "My Secret Garden" is broken out by seasons, starting with spring. There are plenty of luscious close-ups of flowers, including one of hellebores that look better than any hellebores I will ever grow. They are, of course, underplanted with spring-blooming cyclamens, also more numerous and lovely than any I will nurture with my paltry American green thumbs. Still, the inspiration inspired by the pictures and eminently readable text overwhelms my sense of inherent horticultural inferiority.

Titchmarsh began his professional gardening life at 15, as an apprentice gardener for the local municipality. He admits that this background gave him a passion for order and neatness in the landscape. He makes great use of clipped shrubbery to provide structure, defining garden areas with all kinds of boxwood and yew trimmed into cones, balls, lollipops and even topiary birds. To counterbalance all that formality and discipline, the planting schemes enclosed and defined by that wealth of shrubbery are much more loose and open. Drifts of all kinds of plants predominate, as Titchmarsh cleaves to the old garden wisdom of planting in odd number groups — three, five or seven — of a particular species or variety.

He confesses to a fondness for well-loved, tried-and-true plants. The pictures bear this out, with lots of roses, alliums, agapanthus and delphiniums. Titchmarsh admits that he goes to great lengths to keep slugs from devouring the latter, but persists in growing them anyway. Useful tips are frequent, such as underplanting the delphiniums with hardy geraniums to camouflage the ugly "legs" of the delphiniums.

As you might expect, the Titchmarsh establishment has outbuildings, including a summerhouse and a greenhouse/conservatory. It also has sculpture sprinkled throughout the planting scheme, but the art is not pretentiously described or displayed and many of the pieces are reproductions of famous originals. Titchmarsh is, after all, a well-paid British star, not a fabulously wealthy American one.

What appeals about "My Secret Garden" is Titchmarsh's love of the creativity of gardening. He is clearly fond of color, open spaces, reliable plants and an artful mixture of order and chaos. He is an organic gardener and stresses that he is a plantsman who designs rather than the other way around. In the introduction he freely admits that he has help in maintaining his lovely garden spread, thanking his gardener, handyman, tree surgeon and lawn mowing helper.

Photographer Jonathan Buckley is an artist with a camera and even if you don't read a word of the text, the pictures alone are worth the price of the book. Unlike other books of this type, there are no "before and after" pictures, only "after." Titchmarsh frequently describes the process by which he transformed his garden over the past decade, but its beginnings are left to the readers' imaginations.

I am sure that Titchmarsh's agent and publisher encouraged him to create a book about his "new" garden and he admits to missing the audience element that he had while hosting "Gardener's World." In the end though, I believe him when he sums up his ultimate motivation — "the experience is meant to be shared; so are the gardens."

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sucoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already proviced in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

NOTICE TO RESIDENTIAL TENANTS

OF RIGHTS DURING FORECLOSURE

A foreclosure action has been filed concerning 1025 Fairview Place, Hillside, NJ, and the ownership of the property may change as a result.

Until ownership of the property changes or you are otherwise informed by the court of the mortgage holder, you should continue to pay rent to the landlord or to a rent receiver, if one is appointed by the court. You should keep receipts or canceled checks of your rent payments. If you are not sure how or where to pay rent, save your rent money so that you will have it when the owner demands it. Nonpayment of rent is grounds for eviction.

Foreclosure alone is generally not grounds to remove a bona fide residential tenant. Tenants who want to stay in their homes can be removed only through a court process. With limited exceptions, the New Jersey "Anti-Eviction Act" protects residential tenants' rights to remain in their home. This law includes protection for tenants who do not have written leases.

It is unlawful for anyone to try to force you to leave your home outside the court process, including by shutting off utilities or failing to maintain the premises.

Roselle Park grapplers grab first UCT crown since 2003

Matthews, Hilburn, Parraga capture titles

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

UNION - Brian Matthews came to Roselle Park from South Jersey and immediately rushed for over 1,000 yards to help lead the Panthers to their first state championship football game in 19 years.

The talented junior grappler is also off to a pretty good start on the wrestling mat.

Matthews conquered the weight class of 152 pounds in capturing his first county championship last Saturday at the 38th annual Wrestling Union County Tournament at the Louis J. Rettino better wrestler," Matthews said. Gymnasium.

Roselle Park won the team championship for the first time since 2003, garnering its record 12th crown with 172.5 points.

The Panthers prevented Brearley - which finished second with 149.5 points - from winning a record eighth title in a row. Brearley won the last seven championships - which is all seven of its titles - while Roselle Park also won seven in a row from 1997-2003.

Roselle Park, Brearley and Governor Livingston had the most champions with three, while Johnson had two and Westfield, Scotch Plains and Summit grabbed one each.

Matthews won two matches by pin, one by major decision and one by decision - two of his wins were also by shutout - to garner the 152 title as the fourth seed.

Matthews pinned third-seeded Jonniel Bazan of Elizabeth in 3:55 in the final after he blanked topseeded Derrick Washington of Plainfield 5-0 in the semifinals.

Matthews, who didn't start wrestling until Dec. 24 because of the concussion he sustained in Roselle Park's championship football game against Hoboken on Dec. 7, was the only grappler to defeat a top-seeded chemistry," Ranieri said. wrestler before the finals.

"Brian hit the ground running hard," Roselle Park head coach John Ranieri said.

It was Matthews' first time wrestling Washington.

"I wasn't intimidated at all," said Matthews, a transfer from Brick Township. "I came out hard and once I got my first two points I was on my way."

"Brian was very smart and got out of the bottom . against a kid who is very good on top," Ranieri said. "It was a difficult match.'

Matthews also faced Bazan for the first time.

"I came out physical again and knew I was the Matthews' record went from 10-0 to 14-0.

His first two wins were against 13th-seeded Brayden Provan of New Providence, by pin in 3:41 in the first round, and over fifth-seeded Dominick Pigna of Scotch Plains by the score of 9-0 in the quarterfinals.

Wrestling for a program rich in history like Roselle Park is not lost on Matthews. He was one of four Panthers to reach the finals and the second to win a title, right behind 145-pounder Pete Hilburn a junior who was also a top seed and who is also a transfer student, coming in from St. Peter's Prep. Hilburn wrestled at the Jersey City parochial school his freshman and sophomore seasons.

'Coming into this program is an incredible honor," Matthews said. "I'm going to try to go as far as I can take it this year."

Also for Roselle Park in the finals, junior Hugo Parraga won at 106 as the top seed, while Phil Woods finished second at 170 as the third seed.

Parraga held off second-seeded Tyler Gazaway of New Providence 7-6 in the 106 final, which was one of the more competitive title matches.

Union senior heavyweight Kris Lewis was the first Farmer grappler to reach the finals in several years, falling to top-seeded and defending champion Anthony Tufaro, a Scotch Plains senior, 12-4 in the final.

We're very proud of what Kris did today," said Union head coach Dino DeBellonia.

Lewis, the sixth seed, first pinned 11th-seeded Max Burgos of Linden in 3:45 in the first round. Lewis won his quarterfinal round match by default over thirdseeded Stephen Bremer of New Providence and then he pinned second-seeded Stephan Davis of Rahway in 1:05 in the semifinals.

"His match against the kid from Rahway in the semifinals was a big win," DeBellonia said. "He executed a move we drill daily called a 'far roll.'

"We're happy for him and this is one of the little things we've accomplished that we hope to build on for a great deal more success in the future.'

Governor Livingston senior Jon Mele captured his third county crown by blanking second-seeded Nick Tekula of Linden 12-0 in the 120 final. Mele, the top seed, earned last year's UCT award for the most pins in the least time - three in 8:08.

Dayton boys' basketball begins week 11-0

The Dayton boys' basketball team began the week as the only Union County team that was still undefeated.

As of Monday, Dayton was 11-0 overall and led the Union County Conference's Valley Division with a 9-0 mark.

Dayton - according to its schedule on www.highschoolsports.net - was scheduled to host Lincoln of Jersey City Tuesday night.

The Bulldogs next have three very challenging Valley Division games, starting with tomorrow's 7 p.m. home clash vs. Brearley.

Dayton won at Brearley 60-36 on Dec. 18.

However, the Bears began the week on a four-game winning streak, which evened their record at 6-6.

Dayton is scheduled to play at Summit Tuesday night at 7 and then host Roselle next Thursday night at 7.

Dayton edged Summit 49-48 at home on Jan. 10 in a battle of 7-0 teams.

Summit began the week 11-1 overall and 8-1 in the Valley Division.

Brearley girls' basketball sparked by Grispart efforts

Zielinski, O'Boyle also provide Bears with lift

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

KENILWORTH – When junior center Christine Grispart is fed the ball inside, there's practically no stopping the Brearley Bears.

However, with basketball being the team sport that it is, teams need more than just one player to step up their games if they are to be successful.

A combination of Grispart scoring in the paint and teammates Danielle Zielinski and Erin O'Boyle filling the hoop in the second half allowed Brearley to hold off a valiant comeback effort by Rahway last Thursday en route to a convincing 51-38 Union County Conference-Valley Division home victory.

Brearley won its third straight to improve to 7-2 overall and 5-1 in the Union County Conference's Valley Division. Rahway lost for the fifth time in six games and dropped to 3-6 overall and 3-4 in the Valley.

Brearley also defeated Roselle Park 58-25 at home last Friday night to enter Tuesday afternoon's home game against division rival Kent Place with an overall record of 8-2 and Valley Division mark of 6-1.

UPCOMING

Jan. 25 Hillside, 5:30 p.m. - Valley

Brearley is scheduled to host Hillside Friday at 5:30 p.m. in another Valley Division clash. Brearley's only division loss as of Tuesday was at Hillside 57-31 on Jan. 8

Grispart led all scorers with 19 points – netting 13 of them in the first half – while Zielinski, a sophomore, scored 13 of her 16 and O'Boyle, a freshman, poured in nine of her 12 in the final 16 minutes.

Of Grispart's 13 first half points, 12 came inside and one from the free throw line after she completed a conventional 3-point play.

"After we were getting the ball to our big girl (Grispart), Rahway started to double team her," said Brearley first-year head coach Vin Gulbin. "We then had to reverse the ball.

"We still wanted to get it to No. 42 (Grispart) and then kick it out, that was our emphasis. Christine's low post moves have improved. She's developing a successful inside game."

Zielinski, who is Brearley's leading scorer with a 16-point average, played much of the second half with four fouls.

"Danielle is one of our great ball-handlers and when she was in foul trouble, Erin really came through," said Grispart, who averages 12-14—points and 15 rebounds and against Rahway Thursday grabbed 15 boards and blocked one shot.

"Our younger players really stepped up and kept their composure," Grispart said.

So did Brearley's seniors. Although they did not score, Brearley received solid rebounding from starter Jessica Levy and Jessica Pace, both upperclassmen.

A 12-0 run bridging the first and second quarters gave Brearley its biggest lead of 12 at 18-6. Sparked by an 8-0 run of its own, Rahway battled back to tie the game for the third and final time at 26-26 late in the third quarter.

"In the second half, Rahway was fronting me and using a double team on me," Grispart said. "That left some of my teammates open."

A basket by sophomore Leanne Bastos with 30 seconds left in the third quarter gave Brearley its third lead and the advantage for good at 30-28. The Bears then began the fourth quarter quickly, with Grispart, Zielinski and then O'Boyle netting baskets in just over a minute to give Brearley an 8-0 run and a 34-26 lead.

"We were getting rebounds and getting back on defense," Grispart said. "We wanted it badly."

Rahway - guided by head coach Danielle Brown - got as close as 38-36 with over three minutes to play after junior reserve Megan Michel hit a shot in the lane. Michel, off the bench, paced Rahway with a solid 18-point performance.

"She scored 14 points against us the first time we played Rahway," said Gulbin, with Brearley opening with a 54-36 division win at Rahway back on Dec. 14. "That's why we went to a 3-2 zone, to get out on their shooters."

Brearley answered when Zielinski grabbed an offensive rebound and scored. That basket began a game-ending 13-2 Brearley run, which included Zielinski scoring the game's final six points, all from the free throw line.

Although Brearley made 18 free throws to none for Rahway, it was the Bears that missed eight of their first nine shots from the foul line at the start of the third quarter.

O'Boyle halted that streak by making four consecutive free throws. She finished with six points from the foul line.

"From the 2-spot Erin came in and provided a great role," Gulbin said.

Rahway also received eight points from sophomore Ashley Sparks.

Brearley began the season with six consecutive road games and is now in a stretch of six straight home contests.

NOTES: In Brearley's first division game against Rahway, Zielinski scored a game-high 23 points and Grispart added 18 and 10 rebounds.

The Patrick School in Elizabeth does not have a team this year, so the other seven teams in the Valley Division will play 12 division games instead of 14.
