As transparent as it gets

Watchdog, prosecutor sling insults in pre-trial briefs; due in court today

Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

The war of words between blogger Tina Renna and the Union County Prosecutor's Office intensified last week as both took defensive stands prior to a court hearing today to determine if the blogger has to reveal information she knows to a grand jury.

In late November when Renna posted on the Union County Watchdogs blog that she had the names of 16 to 20 county employees who took home generators for personal use right after Superstorm Sandy, it opened a legal can of worms for both the prosecutor and blogger.

Renna, a strong advocate for transparency in county government, has been digging up a plethora of county misdeeds since 2005 and posting them on the UCW blog.

Renna's efforts have brought more transparency to county government, and although she has continued to advocate the importance of open government, when it came down to revealing the names of the county employees who made use of the generators at taxpayer's expense, Renna refused to talk.

The Prosecutor's Office then turned around and slapped Renna with a subpoena to appear before the grand jury to testify about everything she knows. From that point things became even more legally complex, time consuming and much further from being resolved.

In an interview with LocalSource Friday, Union County Prosecutor Theodore Romankow said he found Renna's behavior to be very telling.

Roselle mayor defends salary increase for town council

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

ROSELLE — The mayor and council unanimously approved a hefty salary increase for themselves last week, but it came after more than a decade of keeping the status quo.

Mayor Jamel Holley last week defended the 66 percent increase in salary council approved for themselves, saying it has been ten years since anyone saw a raise and the governing body has been working hard to ensure there was a zero percent property tax increase, something Roselle property owners have been waiting over a decade for themselves.

The increase raised the six council members salaries from $9,112 to $15,000, while the mayor's salary will increase from $12,000 to $20,000 annually. As for how this increase will affect town coffers, the mayor said it would not cost taxpayers anything.

The council plans on moving money from operating expenses to salary and wages, not tacking the added expense on to the budget.

However, Holley was not concerned about how the increase would be perceived by the general public. He felt a raise was long overdue and council members should be paid for all the hard work they do.

"We have been working very hard every day even though our positions are part-time," Holley explained, mentioning that regardless what anyone has to say, "this is a full-time job."

The mayor said he and council members discussed the possibility of a raise at length and after looking at what was accomplished the past year, they all agreed it was warranted.

"We looked at what other governing bodies were making and our increase was not out of line," Holley said, but agreed that some towns paid their governing body members considerably less than Roselle, which has a population of 21,000 residents.

For instance, Cranford has 23,500 residents and the four committee members receive just $2,557 annually for their service, while the mayor, which is not an elect-

Kean restaurant handed a $50K tax bill

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

UNION — Kean University may have paved the road for Ursino Restaurant to open without anyone having to jump through the usual legal hoops, but not paying taxes? The township was not about to let that happen.

Late last fall the township decided the campus gourmet restaurant that opened in 2011 in the Center for Science, Technology and Math Education, received a surprise in the mail — a tax bill for $50,000.

Although state universities and colleges are not required to pay local taxes, or for that matter even go before local municipal planning and zoning boards when erecting a new building, township officials felt a profit making restaurant should pay their fair share.

“There is a special provision in the law that allows a municipality to level a tax if a state run facility rents the property to a for profit business,” explained Union Township Administrator Ron Manzella.

But, while the operator of Ursino’s, Gourmet Dining Services did not object to receiving a tax bill, Manzella said they did have a problem with the amount.

“They have appealed their tax bill and it is going through the usual channels right now,” he added.

Ursino’s also avoided the usual problem most business owners face when trying to open a restaurant: obtaining a liquor license. However, because the restaurant is on state property, the operator went through the state to obtain a license to serve alcohol for $1,000.

Usually, if a proprietor wants to open a restaurant, the chance of getting a new liquor license is slim. Each municipality is only allowed a certain number of liquor licenses, depending on population. Once this number is reached, no additional licenses can be given out until a restaurant closes and the license is up for grabs.

File Photo

Union recently handed out a $50,000 tax bill to Ursino, the upscale restaurant owned by Kean University.

A restaurant can, however, sell their license along with an establishment or separately, but any agreement made is between buyer and seller. According to one restaurant owner, buying a liquor license can run as high as $100,000 or more, depending on how popular an establishment is, as well as the location. A municipality does not get involved except when it comes to issuing the license.

Gourmet Dining Services, owned and operated by Frungillo Brothers, received a ten-year, no bid contract extension for food services at Kean, according to a source with knowledge of this deal.

Kean President Dawood Farahi was reported as the driving force for the creation of Ursino. He reportedly wanted to use the latest state-of-the-art building at the university to showcase a first-rate restaurant.

The two-story space, designed by Glen Cobin, is named for Polish Count Julian Ursin Niemcewicz, who married into the Kean family in 1800.

The space features a wood-burning hearth, a bar made of quartz, a wine suite, a second floor bar and lounge and a rooftop area.

The green restaurant featuring farm-to-table fare that is overseen by Cranford farmer Henry Dryer of Cranford, filters its own water, cultivates bee hives and even in winter is busy producing food that will be turned into gourmet meals.

But while Ursino is supposed to be a culinary trend setter, it is bleeding money. Sources confirmed last year that while the facility is losing money, this loss will be made up by Kean’s food services contract. Enough, perhaps, to pay their tax bill, after it is appealed.

Mayor ‘gets his man’ as new chief quickly takes steps to retire

By Cheryl Hehl
Staff Writer

LINDEN — Although Sal Bivona formally received the police chief title last week, he will not have it for long.

The promotion came just three months before he retires, ending a 34-year career with the police department. But come April 1, a new police chief, James Schulhafer, 59, will take over the top cop position.

Interestingly, even though Bivona received the title he wanted and fought for, he is not around to enjoy it. As of Jan. 1, he began using accrued vacation and sick days, which will bring him up to his April 1 retirement date. Until then, Schulhafer, who also has served on the force for 34 years, is acting chief. The move ended many months of controversy over who was the best man for the police chief position, dividing the council and mayor on the issue.

Last August the mayor went to bat for Schulhafer, but lost the battle. Even though the decision of who is appointed police chief is a mayoral decision, the council still had to give their blessing on the choice and they made it clear Bivona was their man.

Mayor Rich Gerbounka, however, felt Schulhafer was the best man for the job because he scored highest on the civil service exam, while Bivona came in second. The entire matter came to a head in August when the mayor and council stood in opposite corners on the matter.

The mayor admitted Bivona had been a good interim police chief, and was well liked by the community, but he felt the department and city would fare better with Schulhafer at the helm. Schulhafer not only earned a master degree from Seton Hall, Gerbounka said, but also graduated from the prestigious FBI Academy in Quantico, Virginia. And he received the blessing of two former police chiefs, who both felt he was the best person for the job.

Former chiefs Michael Boyle, who spent 34 years on the force along with John Milianno, a 23-year veteran member, gave Schulhafer glowing recommendations in writing.

Gerbounka felt the same and backed that up with his belief that where you stand in civil service testing is important.

“My policy is to promote from the top of the civil service list,” the mayor said at the time.

Gerbounka, a former member of the city police force for many years, said last spring that although he had the greatest respect for Bivona, unless there was something on Schulhafer’s record that made him unfit to serve as police chief, he should be the city’s next police chief.

But while the testing component was important to Gerbounka, Bivona had something more important — the “popular” vote. And it steadily grew stronger.

In February 2011 when Boyle stepped down as police chief because he had a very good offer from United States Homeland Security, the mayor appointed Schulhafer as acting chief. At that time Bivona had already put in his papers to retire, but pulled them back when he heard Boyle was leaving. In the end, the mayor compromised and made Bivona acting chief, providing he would retire at the end of 2011. But the end of the year came and went, Gerbounka said, and Bivona failed to put in his retirement papers.

“When a man gives his word you believe him,” the mayor said, adding that he was disappointed that Bivona broke his.

Nevertheless, the council was adamant about Bivona being the right person for the job, pointing out that he was beloved by the community and known as a “cop’s cop.”

Eventually the council unanimously approved a resolution that allowed Bivona to continue serving as chief while receiving $155,340 salary until he retired.

Then a copy of a letter from the state was discovered alerting the city that no one could hold a provisional position for more than a year. Gerbounka agreed to make Bivona chief, but only until he retired.

Prosecutor flips script, attacks Renna in brief

"She doesn't have any names," the prosecutor said, adding "it is hypocritical for someone who advocates transparency in government not to cooperate."

Romankow said he never asked for Renna's sources, just the names of the county employees she admitted to having on her blog.

"How can you on one hand tell us we should be investigating this and then turn around and not give us the names?" the prosecutor asked, admitting all of this has been a diversion keeping prosecutors from working on actual criminal cases.

"I'm not after her sources. I just want the names of the employees and I will personally take those names to the state attorney general," Romankow said.

After receiving the subpoena, the blogger asked the court to grant her protection under the state Newspersons Shield Law so she cannot be forced to reveal what she knows to the Prosecutor's Office.

The New Jersey Shield Law requires claimants show a connection to news media, a purpose to gather, procure, transmit, edit or disseminate news and that the materials were obtained in the course of pursuing professional news gathering.

Whether Renna actually is covered under this law as a journalist hangs in the balance until Superior Court Judge Karen M. Cassidy hears the blogger's motion to "quash," or throw out, the prosecutor's subpoena today.

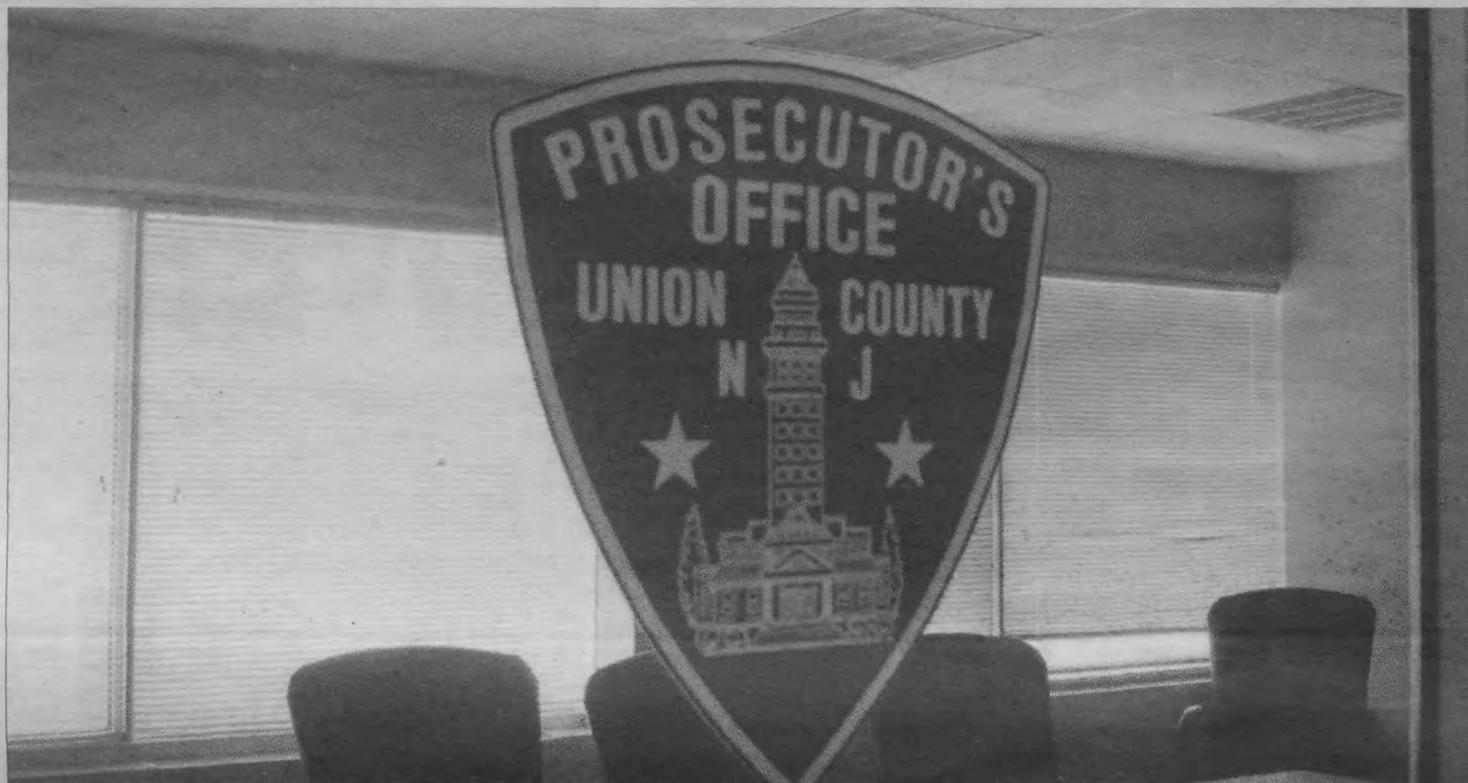

However, both Renna's legal counsel, Bruce Rosen, and the Prosecutor's Office are well prepared for the legal battle ahead. Neither have left a stone unturned when it came to ensuring a judgement in their favor.

With sizzling court motions and briefs flying back and forth last week, both not only used case law to bolster their case, but leveled strong accusations toward the opposition.

The prosecutor's 48-page court brief, filed Jan. 18 and obtained by LocalSource claimed the activist fell short of "anything approaching news media." Instead, prosecutors said Renna "is a political activist masquerading as a government watchdog."

They contended Renna failed to get comments from the other side of the issue, failed to identify sources when able, failed to correct mistakes and her blog is "riddled with profanities, slurs and personal attacks."

On the other hand, Renna's counsel accused the prosecutor's office of using "outrageously shrill whining" about the way the blogger went about getting news and keeping the county accountable.

The Union County Prosecutor's Office subpoenaed Tina Renna of the Union County Watchdog Association for names of individuals she claims to have that misused county generators in the aftermath of Superstorm Sandy. The pair, who are often at odds, are due in court today for Renna's motion to quash the subpoena under New Jersey's Shield Law. The prosecutor released briefs which allege Renna is not protected under the law. Renna's lawyer strongly disagrees.

Rosen pointed out it is the media's purpose to "report, investigate and even castigate government officials," and be a check on one-party government."

"This role — reporting and commentary on government — is at the heart of the First Amendment," Renna's attorney stressed in a rebuttal to the prosecutor's initial brief, adding this is the very reason the blogger has been successful at what she does.

But the prosecutor pointed out that Renna's "true motives become more transparent" when her husband's history with the county are revealed, as well as her own.

For example, prosecutor's brought out in their court brief that Renna's husband, Joseph, was once employed by the county and the blogger herself sold advertising space in county publications and newsletters during his tenure there, including selling ads for the Union County Alliance newsletter, Union County Directions. This is the same organization she later blasted on her blog for not being forthcoming about where taxpayer dollars were being spent.

Prosecutors also said it was ironic that while Renna profited financially from her husband's employment by the county, after he lost his job she turned around and berated his former employers for allowing rampant nepotism.

They also revealed that in 2005, a year after her husband was terminated from his employment with the county, Renna founded the watchdog organization "to monitor and demand accountability from the same Democrat controlled Union County government with whom she had no quarrel until her husband was terminated."

"Indeed her background is rife with conflicts of interest," they said, which is in direct violation of journalistic standards.

Rosen, however, strongly disagreed, saying that political figures go in and out of journalism, but "that does not make them any less qualified as journalists when they function as journalists."

To further support why Renna should not receive protection under the shield law, prosecutors accused the blogger of not being able to distinguish between advocacy and news reporting.

They said her repeated attacks on the freeholders and county manager during freeholder meetings were particularly revealing.

"Given the rancor of her posts and rants at freeholder meetings, it is clear Ms. Renna is a political activist with an axe to grind against the Democrat-controlled government of Union County," prosecutors said.

Rosen countered saying that this was "meaningless," because news people appear regularly at colleges and on television, in debates, taking strong positions.

He said what actually matters is that when the court looks at her writing, whether recent columns or articles at issue now "they will see real investigative reporting."

Prosecutors, however, disagreed.

"Though she does gather information, her purpose is not to disseminate that information but rather to marshal the information she obtains for use in her politically-motivated lawsuits," prosecutors said in their brief.

Prosecutor's also pointed out that Renna does not even see herself as a jour-

In court briefs, the prosecutor mentions Renna's work for the county publication 'Union County Directions,' produced by the Union County Alliance, the non-profit group Renna spent months attacking in her online blog.

nalist and this was supported in a blog post Renna made entitled "Union County Prosecutor's Office — I'm not an idiot."

In the post Renna specifically drew a distinction between her work and that of journalists, remarking "I am a government watchdog and we need to report things differently."

"Clearly," prosecutors pointed out, "Ms. Renna neither acts nor sees herself as a journalist." They said the blogger only seeks that designation now in order to avoid answering to a subpoena issued by an office she personally dislikes.

"It is clear that the legislature did not intend to bestow the reporter's shield on one who gathers information for the purposes of vanquishing political enemies and waging legal battles," they said, adding if this was true, "then every self-appointed newsperson and anyone with a Facebook account could do so."

Renna's attorney, however, felt the prosecutor's office was way off base when it came to determining who exactly was a journalist, calling the prosecutor's opposition "a red herring," or a distraction from the real issue at hand.

"The Shield law does not require that a publication be objective, or that it be nice to politicians, or that it self-promote," Rosen said in his rebuttal brief, noting, for instance, that every publication points out that they were the originators of an investigative story. As far as partisanship being an obstacle to Renna calling herself a journalist, Rosen said "the state is woefully misguided."

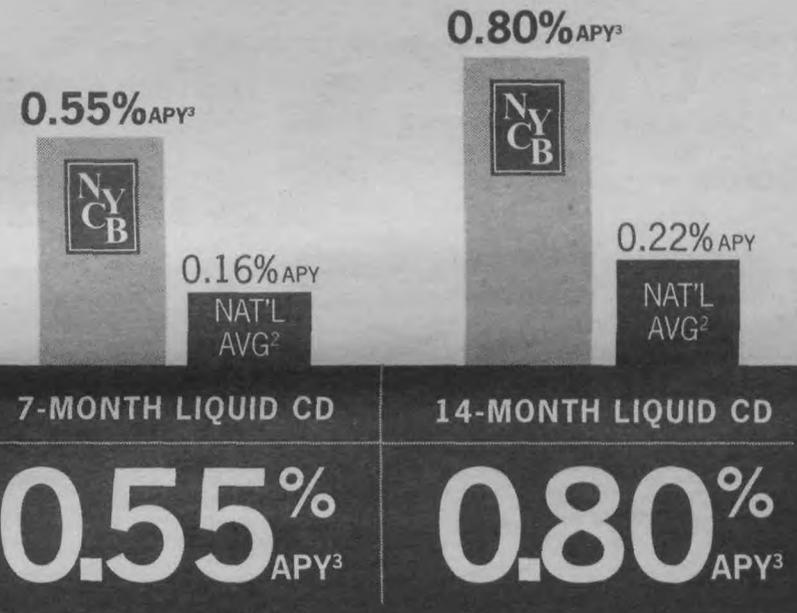

"Our press has a long history of partisanship, beginning with Federalist newspapers at the nation's founding, to pro-and anti-slavery newspapers, investigating Watergate, or opposing the Vietnam and Gulf wars," the attorney said,

"There is no rule in the first amendment or the shield law that a particular news media must be objective and there is plenty of case law setting forth that conflicts cannot decide what constitutes news as opposed to information that appears to entertain," Rosen added.

OPINION

Celebrating black history

EDITORIAL

Friday is the first day of February, in which we observe Black History Month. Begun as a weeklong observance in 1926 by Dr. Carter Woodson and held during the second week of February, the purpose was to focus people's attention on the contributions by African-Americans to American history. February was chosen because the month contains the birthdays of two individuals who helped change the social status and condition of blacks: former President Abraham Lincoln and abolitionist Frederick Douglass. Woodson himself was a black man who received his doctorate in philosophy from Harvard University and became an early voice for blacks who were mistreated or misrepresented, both in his time and in American history. Black History Week was first expanded and celebrated as Black History Month at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio, in 1970. Six years later, during the country's bicentennial, this expansion was officially recognized by the U.S. government.

This year, Black History Month comes shortly after President Barack Obama, our first black president, was sworn into office for a second term. His inauguration occurred on the day the nation celebrated Martin Luther King Jr. Day, which honors the slain civil-rights leader. This year is also 150th anniversary of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, an order issued Jan. 1, 1863, which proclaimed all those enslaved in America to be forever free.

Since its creation, Black History Month has been celebrated in various ways, generally much more low-key than the parades or festivities associated with Columbus Day or St. Patrick's Day. Schools often examine the cultural heritage of blacks in the United States, from their arrival, usually against their own will, as slaves in the 18th and 19th centuries, to their freedom, involvement in segregated units in World War I and II, and subsequent influence on American history and culture. This influence ranges from the Harlem Renaissance of the 1920s — a fortuitous burst of energy among black entertainers, writers, artists and musicians — to later political and cultural achievements of the 20th and 21st centuries. Among the former are individuals such as big-band leader and pioneer Duke Ellington, folklorist and anthropologist Zora Neale Hurston, jazz and gospel vocalist Ethel Waters and poet, novelist and playwright Langston Hughes. Among the latter are Condoleezza Rice, the first black, female national security advisor and secretary of state; Thurgood Marshall, the first black Supreme Court justice; Colin Powell, the first black secretary of state; and, of course, President Obama.

Some would question the need for a full month dedicated to the history of one race. Actor Morgan Freeman, himself a black man who grew up during many of the tumultuous events in black history in the 20th century, has been a vocal critic of Black History Month, saying, "I don't want a black history month. Black history is American history."

Perhaps, but black history in America is, in some ways, still emerging from the shadows. Disparity still exists. And Black History Month continues to serve a necessary function by bringing this important facet of our common heritage to light. But to accomplish that, we must take advantage of this month. Visit your libraries and museums. Check out cultural happenings as they are listed in your newspapers this month and every month. Make Black History Month a time of awareness, an awakening to the history our great nation has to share.

Teaching about the takedown

LEFT OUT

BY FRANK CAPECE

method for his soldiers. The Seton Hall University graduate, himself a college wrestler, started his coaching at Seton Hall Prep before moving to Union. There is a laser like focus on the kid in the arena. The coach is up, then on one knee and always ready, shouting cliché basics during the match.

To the wrestler narrowly behind in points with the clock winding down he barks, "Short time. Find a way." For the combatant up against a skilled opponent, the gym observers all hear, "face him, face him." For the wrestler ahead on points the direction is "belly down."

At the end of each match, it's difficult to tell from the interpersonal contact of coach and wrestler how the results turned out. Like a flipped light switch, the tough yelling, motivating coach has turned into instructor.

The eye contact, hand on shoulder and after the heart to heart talk, the slap on the backside came from the coach imparting lessons about wrestling and life.

This coach appreciates the details. A brief delay for an equipment malfunction by a Cranford wrestler sees the Union

Coach ready with a water bottle and new insight for his waiting wrestler. He clearly knows how to jawbone the referees to get the edge on close calls. After each match the team spirit is there with the clapping hands for the combatant, win or lose.

The downer of the evening numbers becomes clear when Cranford junior Jonathan El-Khoury pinned his senior opponent from Union. El-Khoury is what they refer to as a "blue chipper" armed with talent and having another year to refine his skills before the college recruiters come calling.

For the part-time wrestling coach and full-time teacher of U.S. History and introduction to law, he still has the responsibility of teacher and motivating the other weight class kids waiting their turn to wrestle even though this night his team will lose.

The coach believes his building blocks need experience.

He scrambles to get his squad into as many tournaments and matches as possible. Each match with rivals, including Rahway, Scotch Plains, Roselle Park, Summit and Mountainside, are another learning experience for the kids in learning about the takedown. It's all part of a plan as DeBellonia helps develop a winning program and successful kids.

Third graders learn about Yoga at Hehnlly School

Third-graders at Frank K. Hehnlly School in Clark were invited to come in before school for the Breakfast Bunch to learn about yoga with Kristi Reeves, a parent in the school and a yoga instructor.

Students began the meeting by eating a breakfast of apples and granola bars while Reeves defined yoga and discussed its origins.

Breakfast Bunch students were then invited to learn and practice yoga positions. Reeves demonstrated each position for the students and described what each pose meant and how it helps the body. One position the third-graders enjoyed was the tree pose. In this position they stood on one foot, swaying their arms over their heads like a tree waving in the wind.

By the end of the Breakfast Bunch, students seemed more relaxed and were ready to face the day and the start to their week.

Clark kindergartner Ella Chang has a captive audience as she explains the hot chocolate chart to Sen. Teresa Ruiz, Chair of the Senate Education Committee and a visitor to the school on the occasion of Martin Luther King, Jr. Day. With the recent frigid weather outside, students in Sue Mytrowitz's kindergarten class surveyed each member of the class to see who liked their hot chocolate with or without marshmallows. The class then created a display in the hallway outside the classroom showing the preference of marshmallows or no marshmallows via colored mugs of hot chocolate.

MLK Day at Kent Place reflects on King's legacy

On Monday, Jan. 21, the Kent Place Diversity and Equity Parent Group hosted a communitywide Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service to celebrate, reflect and serve in the name of Dr. King's legacy.

Family members, students, faculty and staff gathered in the upper school to participate in service projects in support of victims of Hurricane Sandy and the Newtown tragedy. They listened to students read excerpts from some of Dr. King's great speeches and engaged in discussions on applying the principles of peace and justice in their lives. An Interfaith Panel helped to guide the dialogue and experience by asking participants to consider what the creation of the beloved community that Dr. King spoke of would look like from their faith's perspective. Participants also enjoyed a sample of students' poetry, artwork and skits representing their dreams of a better world.

"It was powerful to see close to 200 members of our KPS community come together on a day when school was closed for no ulterior motive or hidden benefit beyond celebrating and demonstrating commitment to our beloved community's values," said Director of Diversity Henaz Bhatt. "The panelists brought such powerful and thought-provoking insights to the table; the students shared their voices and their dreams with us; each member of the community had a chance to engage across differences to honor the legacy of the civil rights movement and Dr. King. It was a beautiful reminder of what happens when individuals come together in the name of peace, friendship and equity."

Kent Place School is committed to its mission to educate its students for responsible participation in a global community. For more information about Kent Place's diversity initiatives visit www.kentplace.org/diversity.

Oak Knoll principal to resign June 30

Oak Knoll's upper school principal Mary Sciarrillo has accepted an appointment as the founding head of a new, all-girls, Catholic school in Monmouth County and will be resigning her post June 30.

"Starting an all-girls school like Oak Knoll has been a personal and professional dream of mine," Sciarrillo said.

She will head Trinity Hall, the newly established all-girls high school starting in Middletown's Croydon Hall campus, which is slated to open in September.

"Trinity Hall made an outstanding decision in Mary's selection," said Head of School Timothy J. Saburn. "She is ready for this challenge. Not many of us have the opportunity in life to live our dream."

While Oak Knoll School conducts a yearlong, nationwide search for Sciarrillo's successor, Saburn will take on the role of interim principal for the 2013-14 school year in addition to continuing to serve as head of school. For more information, visit www.oakknoll.org or call 908-522-8109.

CRANFORD NEWS

Library welcomes author for Feb. 20 event

Cranford Public Library presents an event with John Hartnett, author of "The Barber's Conundrum and Other Stories: Observations on Life From the Cheap Seats," on Wednesday, Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Cranford Community Center, 220 Walnut Ave. Copies of the book will available for purchase and for signing. Admission is free and all are welcome. The book is a collection of humor essays that address every day life, including parenting, relationships, religion, the media, animals, and the afterlife. Hartnett, a former joke writer and publishing executive, owns Early Bird Publishing and writes "The Monkey Bellhop," a humor blog. Commenting on his new book, Hartnett said, "There's a lot of stress and sadness these days, and at the risk of sounding grandiose, I wrote this book with the sole intention of giving readers a little bit of a break, stories and situations to identify with, feel good about and, most importantly, laugh at. Much of the humor is derived from real-life situations, actual personal or quirky news events, and is, for the most part, self-deprecating, gentle in nature, and not mean spirited, with the possible exception of my unwavering belief that the customer service industry has been taken over by people or things who formerly lived on other planets."

'Travel through time' with Cranford library, Feb. 6

The Friends of the Cranford Public Library invite the public to "Timeline New Jersey," presented by New Jersey photographer and author Walter Choroszewski at the Cranford Community Center, 220 Walnut Avenue, on Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. "Timeline New Jersey" travels from the primeval dawn of the Highlands, through the Ice Age, up to the present. Meet New Jersey's first people and explorers. Take pride in New Jersey's Colonial and Revolutionary history, and celebrate the numerous events that make New Jersey special. Admission to the program is free and all are welcome.

The play will be read by members of The Theater Project, a New Jersey-based professional theater group, and the recent winner of two New Jersey Tony Awards. The reading will be followed by a discussion the playwright, actors, director, and audience

Vitale, a member of the Dramatists Guild of America, is the author of 10 plays and the recipient of numerous awards. For more information about The Theater Project, visit thetheaterproject.org, or call 908-809-8865.

Learn about canning supplies, New Jersey's seasonal crops, and how they can be safely preserved at home. Attendees will receive how-to guides, recipes, and a list of books on canning and preserving. A Q-and-A session will conclude the presentation. Lichtenwalner was raised on a farm in Bergen County, graduated from Douglass College, and was a librarian for several years. Roselle council, mayor give themselves 66 percent raise ed position, receives slightly more at $2,818.

Although Mayor Tom Hannen was just elected in November, when reached to ask how much he earns for the job, the governing body member had to admit he just did not know.

"I suppose I should but the truth is I didn't get into this for how much it pays. I ran because I wanted to help my town and move us forward in a positive way," he explained.

The city of Linden, with 39,432 people, pays its council members $17,707 a year, with the council president receiving $20,659.

The mayor, an elected position, earns $69,675.

However, a city salary ordinance for 2013 suggests that although council members and the council president's stipend stay the same this year, the mayor's salary can go up to a maximum of $89,675.

Interestingly, when Mayor Rich Gerbounka was elected as mayor of Linden, he opted to take half the salary his predecessor earned.

In Rahway, which has a population of 27,396, regular council members are paid $8,043, and the president makes $9,676. The elected mayor is paid $20,300.

Over in Union, which has close to 50,000 residents, the four committee members earn $16,922, while the mayor, or chairman of the township committee, earns $20,372.

On the other hand, Clark, with 14,597 residents, pays its council members $6,000 and their elected mayor $15,000 a year.

Mayor Sal Bonaccorso agreed with Holley, explaining that although most people believe governing body members just attend council meetings, that is a far cry from what it really is like when you are an elected official.

"I am on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. It's more than a full-time job but when you are mayor, you have to be there to answer those calls," he said, adding that council members also are very busy serving as liaisons to countless committees, reviewing endless information for meetings and responding to resident issues, questions and complaints.

"You don't get into this to make money," the mayor added, pointing out that when a person decides to run for an elected seat, it has nothing to do with money.

Holley concurred, saying "this is never about money."

However, getting compensated fairly for the time is important, he said, adding that when council members attend functions, it is always out of pocket.

"It's a salary set for the work we put in," Holley explained, but noted the governing body has been very progressive in moving the borough forward.

"We put in more hours than many other governing bodies, and in the last year our hard work has paid off," Holley said, mentioning that he and council managed to get rolling on constructing and paving 38 roads, renovating parts of the downtown streetscape and working on a $10 million flood project that is under construction that will alleviate flooding for 200 homeowners.

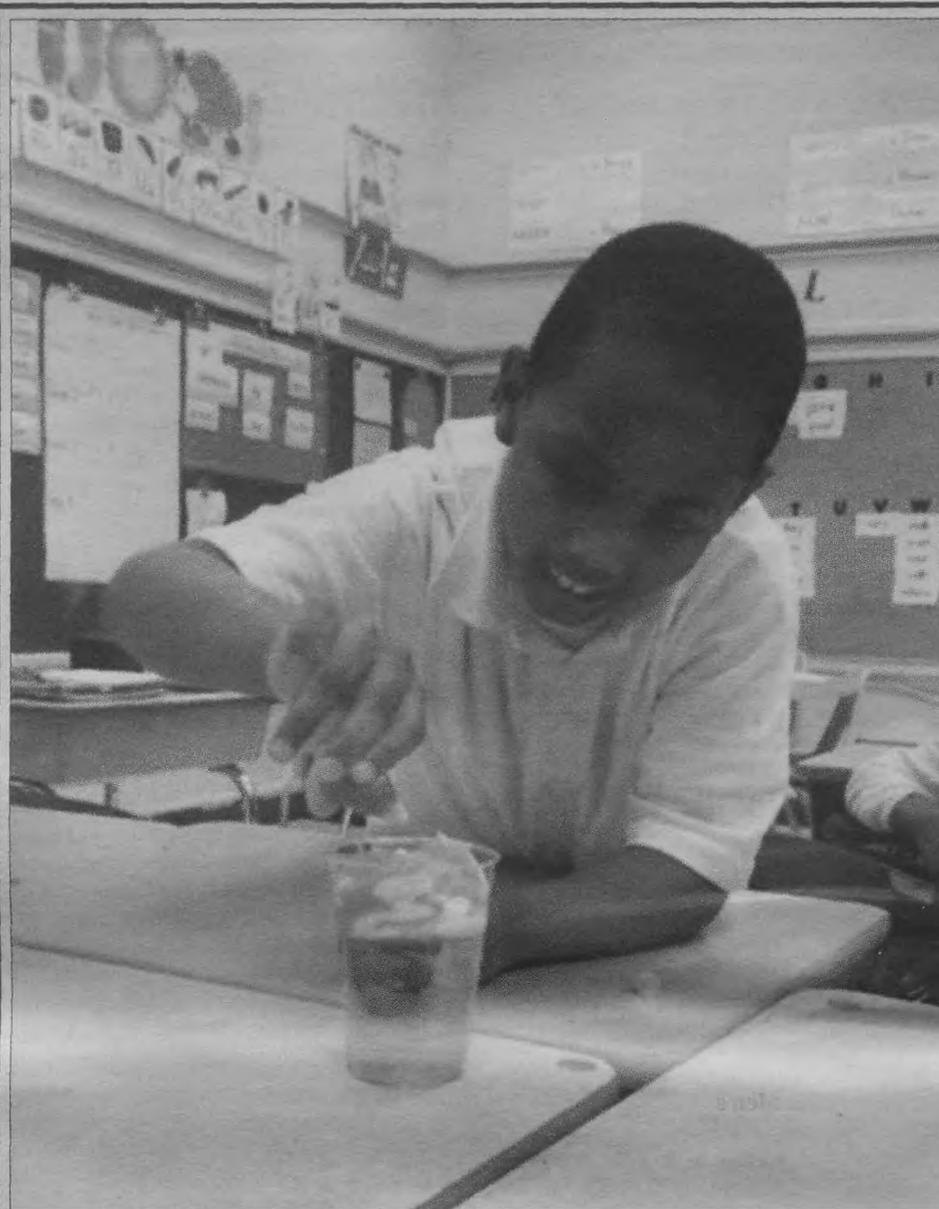

In addition, Holley said they launched a workforce employment office that has put people back to work, put more diverse police officers on streets to protect residents and visitors and overhauled the borough's recycling program.

"And we did it all without increasing taxes," the mayor added.

Holley felt that any controversy over the salary increase was stirred up by political adversaries, and that was something he really did not want to waste energy on.

"We have more work to accomplish and that just slows things down," the mayor added.

"That is something we have to deal with in our positions, but we can't do much about it."

Two new databases at Springfield library

Springfield Free Public Library has announced that it now offers two additional databases free for all library patrons. All that is required to access these highly useful databases from home is a library card.

Pronunciator is the world's largest language-learning service, with 60 of the most popular languages, and 3,000 available courses. Pronunciator also includes English as a Second Language for 50 non-English languages. For example, a Spanish speaker can learn Chinese in a Spanish context, without having to go through English.

Pronunciator is focused on quickly building conversational skills through a suite of interactive online drills, scored quizzes, and downloadable audio lessons and phrase books.

Pronunciator offers five possible levels of instruction for each language, covering vocabulary, verbs, simple sentences, and conversation.

One level, specifically for tourists and business travelers, teaches 1,500 essential phrases covering everyday situations. Each course also has up to 350 hours of audio lessons, which patrons can download to a portable device, or burn to a CD. Appropriate for children as well as adults, Pronunciator is designed to meet the language-learning needs of the entire community.

The second new database is ProQuest Historical newspapers: The New York Times (1851-2009) with Index (1851-1993.) This database provides genealogists, researchers and scholars with online, easily-searchable first-hand accounts and unparalleled coverage of the politics, society and events of the time. The Index (1851-1993) provides search capability using subject terms and topics for focused and targeted results in combination with searchable full text, full page, and article-level images from the Historical New York Times.

Stop by the library for an introduction to these databases, or access the programs via the library website at www.sfplnj.org. For more information, contact the Reference Department of the library at 973-376-4930 x228 or send an e-mail to questions@sfplnj.org.

Trinitas hosts dinner event in honor of heart health month

To celebrate American Heart Month, Trinitas Regional Medical Center will host a free dinner presentation and talk, "When Your Heart Speaks, Listen", on Feb. 7, 5:30 to 8 p.m. at The Westwood, 438 North Ave. in Garwood. Guests at the women-only event are encouraged to wear red to celebrate women's heart health.

The program will include remarks from Dr. Fayez E. Shamoon, newly-appointed Medical Director of Cardiovascular Services at Trinitas Regional Medical Center. Shamoon has co-authored many articles in the field of cardiology and has participated in a number of clinical trials and studies to advance the knowledge of cardiac care. In addition, the audience will hear personal experiences of women who have faced health problems associated with heart disease.

"It is so important for women to increase their awareness of the symptoms of heart disease," emphasizes Nancy DiLiegro, Vice President of Clinical and Physician Services at Trinitas Regional Medical Center and Chair of the American Heart Association Northern New Jersey Regional Board of Directors. "Too often, women ignore the signs of heart disease and unknowingly place themselves at risk. American Heart Month is observed each year to raise the level of awareness so that women begin to take their own heart health seriously, not only for themselves but for those who love and need them."

Since the event is free and seating is extremely limited, those interested in attending are urged to call 908-994-8939 to register.

Throughout February, the Williamson Street campus of Trinitas will be illuminated in red as a tribute to American Heart Month. In addition, the Trinitas website, www.trinitasrmmc.org, will feature information and tips about heart health.

Agyapong told officers he was just following instructions sent to him in an email by a friend from Ghana to pick up the computers. Walmart contacted the two cardholders, one in Pennsylvania and one in Maryland, neither of whom gave authority to anyone to use their debit cards for any online purchases. Roselle Park

• Jan 22: Roselle Park Police responded to a report of a burglary in progress in the Sunrise Village Apartment complex. Responding police officers found the victim struggling with the suspect in a driveway on the 100 block of Jerome Street. At approximately 4:30 p.m., the victim, an off-duty New Jersey Department of Corrections officer, had just returned from a trip to the grocery store, when he heard footsteps in his apartment. When he went to investigate the noise, he was rushed by the two suspects, who struck him before fleeing the residence.

The victim identified himself as a law-enforcement officer and gave chase. Once outside, one suspect, a black male of 40 to 45 years old, ran to a waiting, silver, Chrysler Town and Country minivan with New Jersey license plates, and fled the area. The other suspect ran through the parking lot, and was tackled by the victim. A struggle ensued before a good Samaritan intervened and assisted in apprehending the suspect.

When police officers arrived on scene, they took Antrell Allen, 40, of Passaic into custody. Allen was allegedly found to be in possession of jewelry belonging to another resident of Jerome Street. Officers investigating this burglary canvassed the building and located another apartment that had been forcibly entered.

Allen was charged with two counts of burglary, robbery, aggravated assault and resisting arrest, and was transported to the Union County Jail in lieu of $150,000 bail. Detectives are attempting to identify and locate two additional suspects. Anyone with information about the burglaries is urged to contact the Roselle Park Police Department.

Plainfield teacher charged with sexual assault

A Plainfield High School teacher was arrested on Jan. 24 and charged with 2nd Degree Sexual Assault and 4th Degree Child Abuse, announced Union County Prosecutor Theodore J. Romankow and Plainfield Police Division Director Martin Hellwig.

The teacher, Jennalin M. Garcia-Calle, of Piscataway charged on Jan. 22 following an investigation that revealed she engaged in a criminal sexual relationship with a student at the school, according to a release from the prosecutor's office.

The investigation revealed that the teacher began the relationship with the student in December 2012. Authorities were notified after the victim told a family member about the relationship, officials said.

Garcia-Calle was arrested in Davie, Florida by members of the US Marshal Service. She is being held in the Broward County Jail in Florida on $200,000 and she is expected to be extradited to New Jersey in the coming days.

Upon learning of the charges the Plainfield Board of Education placed Garcia-Calle on an administrative suspension pending the outcome of the criminal investigation. This remains an active investigation by the Prosecutor's Office and Plainfield Police Division. Anyone with information is urged to contact Det. Patricia Gusmano at 908-527-4589.

These criminal charges are mere accusations. The defendants are presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

OBITUARIES

John A. Manger

Former Accountant and Mountainside Resident.

John A. Manger died peacefully on January 20, 2013, at age 96. Born in Newark, NJ, and raised in Belleville, John and his late wife, Ruth Davis Manger, lived in Cranford and Mountainside, before retiring to Hilton Head, SC. John lived in Fort Myers, FL, since 2001.

The first in his family to attend college, John was a 1938 Phi Beta Kappa honors graduate of Rutgers University. He worked his way through college by playing the trumpet in dance bands. At Rutgers, John met Ruth Davis, a Douglass College chemistry major. They married in 1940, and their partnership lasted until Ruth's death in 1995. John and Ruth operated a public accounting practice in Cranford, NJ, from 1943 until their retirement in 1978.

John and Ruth loved to travel, visiting dozens of countries throughout Europe, Asia and South America. They were among the first American tourists to visit China, just days after travel was opened to Americans following President Nixon's historic visit.

John was an avid tennis player, both in high school and college and during his working years. In his retirement he was a ranked senior player in South Carolina.

John is survived by his two children, Nancy Manger Brail (and her husband, Richard), a retired teacher and family therapist, and J. Anthony Manger, a healthcare attorney. He is also survived by four loving grandchildren, Gregory Brail (and his wife, Linda Henigin), Samantha Brail, Jeremy Manger (and his wife, Amanda) and Jonathan Manger, and by three great-grandchildren, William Jonathan Henigin Brail, Jake Orlando Manger and Sydney Rose Manger. He also leaves behind his dear friend of the last thirteen years, Lila Williamson of Fort Myers.

A celebration of John's life is being planned for a later date.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that friends and family instead consider making a donation in John's memory to:

Since history has been made through song and dance at Apollo Theater, students experienced the highlight tour to develop an understanding of the theater's history from its opening show in 1934 to the present. As part of the visit, the students had an opportunity to present their memoirs on the Apollo Theater stage.

Police arrest 18 for drunk driving during campaign

The Linden Police Department took part in the year-end "Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over" drunk driving crackdown, and arrested 18 drivers for driving while intoxicated. "Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over" is a nationwide campaign operated by the Division of Highway Traffic Safety. The campaign focuses on increased police patrols during the busiest travel and holiday seasons. This year the campaign ran from Dec. 7 until Jan. 2. During the almost month long crackdown, the Linden Police Department increased roving patrols to focus on impaired driving. In addition to the 18 arrests for driving while intoxicated, the Linden Police also made 12 felony arrests, 26 drug arrests, and issued over 450 motor vehicle summonses. In 2012, members of the Linden Police Department arrested 151 motorists for driving while intoxicated, a 32 percent increase from 2011.

"Drunk driving continues to be a problem," said Linden Traffic Bureau Commander Sergeant Michael Babulski. "Our DWI arrests are up because our officers are increasing their awareness and enforcement while on patrol, not because more people are driving drunk. Motorist safety is important here in Linden. We have zero tolerance for any type of impaired driving or distracted driving."

Rahway sees progress in arts district

Hamilton Stage opens at UCPAC in September

RAHWAY — The city celebrated the expansion of the Union County Performing Arts Center in September as Hamilton Stage launched its inaugural season with a series of short performances and a benefit celebration.

The site is owned by the Rahway Redevelopment Agency and located on Hamilton Street, about a block and half away from the main UCPAC building in the Downtown Arts District.

“We’re really excited,” Council President Samson Steinman said back in September. “Basically the whole town is talking about it. We sold out tickets for the opening night.”

Hamilton Stage was designed by the architectural firm of Farewell Mills Gatsch of Princeton.

Construction took just more than a year and cost about $6 million, an expense bonded by the city about two years ago. Steinman said there is no timeline for paying back the bond, but the city will soon begin “chipping away” at it using proceeds earned from the stage.

Steinman said in September he is confident this is a good investment, as evidenced by the city recently receiving a National Endowment for the Arts grant to help get the stage’s first season underway. The “Our Town” grant was for $75,000.

Hamilton Stage will be home to six Artistic Affiliates this season. It features a 199-seat Proscenium Theater as well as a smaller 60-seat Front Room Theater.

This new building represents a significant expansion of Union County Performing Arts Center.

“This gives the Union County Performing Arts Center five different performance spaces at the Rahway facility,” said Richard Bryant in September, Managing Director of Hamilton Stage.

The inaugural performance was entitled “Hello Hamilton!” It was well-received, with all tickets sold out. The show took the form of a fast-paced variety show, featuring vignettes by its six Artistic Affiliates who offered previews of the performances scheduled during Hamilton Stage’s upcoming season.

Many more performances and events are scheduled for the Hamilton Stage. For more information about Hamilton Stage or upcoming performances, go to www.ucpac.org.

Report shows high demand for affordable artist housing

RAHWAY — A group planning to build affordable housing in Rahway for actors, artists and other creative professionals never expected the demand would be so great. Now it appears instead of 69 units, there is a need for up to 242.

The proposed plan for affordable artist housing is planned for the former Elizabethtown Gas building on Central Avenue.

The online marketing study drew interested artists from all over the metropolitan area and then some. One thing that was clearly evident from the response was 69 units of affordable one, two and three bedroom apartments will not be enough to satisfy the need out there.

“There is understandably strong demand for this housing in Rahway,” admitted Scott Weiner, president and CEO of the Actors Fund Housing Development Corporation, a subsidiary of the Actors Fund that works towards developing affordable, supportive and senior housing for the performing arts community.

Weiner presented a conceptual plan for the Rahway Residence for the Arts last week to the city redevelopment agency and was very optimistic about the results.

“We anticipated this kind of result which is why we presented this project and now we have the data behind it,” Weiner added, noting the demand went beyond affordable housing and toward actual market rate apartments.

The technical report submitted by AFHDC indicated the data they collected from the survey supported creation of up to 242 new, affordable housing units in Rahway for those in the visual and performing arts, as well as the entertainment and creative industries.

Saying this was a “very strong response,” the report mentioned that giving weight to the survey was the fact the respondents were familiar with the Actors Fund and it also helped that there was broad outreach among the arts for input.

The long-awaited project to build a turf field in Springfield began in September after the initial round of bids were rejected a month earlier for being too costly. The project saw soaring demands in Springfield with nearby residents clamoring for something to be done about the continued flooding at the site. Young residents even turned out at a meeting in February of 2012 with signs and banners asking the town council for the new field. They finally got their wish months later when construction began in September on the $3.4 million project.

Trinitas Leads the Nation in Creating Educational Environments That Support Nursing Excellence!

Trinitas Regional Medical Center is the first healthcare institution in the nation to receive not one but two Center of Excellence designations from the National League for Nursing, the pre-eminent organization in the country for promoting quality nursing standards and initiatives.

The Trinitas School of Nursing is a repeat recipient of the NLN's Center of Excellence designation in the category of "Creating Environments that Enhance Student Learning and Professional Development." This honor was followed just recently by another accolade, Center of Excellence recognition of Trinitas in the category of "Creating Workplace Environments that Promote Academic Progression of Nurses." Trinitas is one of three hospitals in the United States to attain this second honor, which recognizes our significant achievements in providing nursing staff with opportunities for academic advancement, enabling nurses to use their new knowledge to improve patient care and outcomes.

This dual honor means that Trinitas nurses – both those in basic nursing education as well as those established in their careers – can benefit from programs that have been recognized as the best in the field. And that is very good news for our patients!

Elizabeth sees plenty of progress in 2012

May 2012: Wakefern Food Corp breaks ground on warehouse, expects 150 news jobs

ELIZABETH — In May, Wakefern Food Corp. Chairman and CEO Joseph Colalillo, New Jersey Lieutenant Governor Kim Guadagno, Elizabeth Mayor J. Christian Bollwage, Union County Freeholder Daniel Sullivan and Elberon Development Co. LLC's Executives broke ground on Elberon's new warehouse and distribution center for Wakefern Food Corp at 600 York Street, Elizabeth.

"Wakefern and Elberon have been solid partners with the City of Elizabeth for more than fifty years," remarked Bollwage in a release in May. "This exciting expansion opens a new chapter in our relationship and demonstrates our commitment to job retention and creation for our residents, innovation, and Elizabeth's business community."

The County of Union assisted in passing through $44 million in Federal Stimulus bond financing to spark the project, which not only maintained Wakefern in Elizabeth but also helped the company to expand.

The 524,000 square-foot, temperature-controlled facility replaces the former Wakefern grocery warehouse built in the 1950s, and increases storage capabilities by more than fifty-eight percent.

"Once completed, this new warehouse is going to remind the entire region about the great advantages Union County has for doing business," Freeholder Sullivan said in a release in May. "It's all right here: our transportation infrastructure, with interstate highways, railways, airports, the seaport, and the easy access to markets in the New York metropolitan area. We have a great workforce, well trained and highly educated, with a great tradition of hard work and community spirit."

In addition to the expanded square footage, this new site was expected, according to the release in May, to feature thirty-six foot high ceilings increasing the storage space significantly compared to the industry-standard of twenty feet. Projected to bring more than 150 permanent jobs to the city, the facility is expected to distribute non-perishable food products to ShopRite stores across NJ, NY, PA, CT, DE and MD beginning in November 2013.

Since it was founded in 1946, Wakefern has become the largest retailer-owned cooperative group of supermarkets in the United States. Employing an innovative approach to wholesale business services, Wakefern focuses on helping independent retailers compete in a big business world. Providing the tools entrepreneurs need to stay a step ahead of the competition, Wakefern's wholesale client base benefits from the company's extensive portfolio of services, including innovative technology, private label development, and best in class procurement practices. Headquartered in Keasby, New Jersey, Wakefern operates more than 2.5 million square feet of grocery and non-food warehousing.

"Our family has built and managed industrial real estate in Elizabeth for over fifty years," said Anne Evans Estabrook, CEO of Elberon, in a release in May. "Wakefern was one of our first tenants. We continue the tradition started by our founder, David O. Evans, of providing quality warehouse facilities to companies who bring jobs and ratables to the City."

'Groundbreaking progress'

In May, Elizabeth Councilman Manny Grova, Greg Dozier of NJ Community Development Group, LLC, Reverend John Howard, Armando D'Errico of NJ Community Development Group, LLC, Elizabeth Mayor J. Christian Bollwage, Freeholder Mohamed Jalloh, Freeholder Vernell Wright, Councilwoman-At-Large Patricia Perkins-Auguste and Union County Manager Alfred Faella break ground on the new Spring Street Project in Elizabeth. It was reported in May the site would feature an African American Cultural and Learning Center, a boutique theater and 20 affordable rental housing units. Financing for the development was provided in part by the City of Elizabeth, the Elizabeth Development Company, the County of Union and North Jersey Community Bank.

Union County sees progress on clean energy programs

The Union County Renewable Energy Program announced that it had 90 percent, or 28 of 31 facilities, already installed with solar panels and generating renewable energy savings for 15 governmental agencies in September, 2012. The final installed systems size will total 3.37 megawatts, the county said in a release in September.

The last three facilities, scheduled to be opened in Roselle and Berkeley Heights, were expected to be operational by mid-October, it was reported.

"Our local governments and public entities who are participating are at the vanguard of the green energy revolution," said Charlotte DeFilippo, Executive Director of the Union County Improvement Authority, in a release in September. "This is a generational accomplishment for Union County."

Tioga Energy owns, operates, and maintains over 13,800 solar panel modules providing Union County facilities with renewable energy generated from their systems through a Power Purchase Agreement, or PPA. Through the use of PPA's, Union County facilities are able to reduce their cost of energy by approximately $5 million over 15 years. Tioga's installation partner, a joint venture between Pro-Tech Energy Solutions and Huen Electric, Inc., is engineered and constructed the systems.

The Renewable Energy Program was started in 2011 by the Union County Improvement Authority through PPA's, which are common throughout the solar industry. In power purchase agreements, the property owners do not own the solar equipment. They simply pay for the electricity generated by the photovoltaic panels, at a rate lower than the price of conventional electricity.

The participating governments and public entities are Morris-Union Jointure (Berkeley Heights), Berkeley Heights Board of Education, Cranford, Garwood Board of Education, Hillside Board of Education, Linden, New Providence Board of Education, Plainfield, Rahway, Roselle, Roselle Board of Education, Roselle Park Board of Education, Union County Vocational Technical Schools (Scotch Plains), Union County College (Cranford), and Winfield Board of Education.

LITTLE MISS SUNSHINE — In May, Union County Freeholders Angel G. Estrada and Bette Jane Kowalski unveiled a computer kiosk that tracks the progress of the newly installed solar panel arrays at Union County College in Cranford as College President Margaret McMenemy cuts a green ribbon officially marking the occasion. Union County College is now equipped with a complete set of solar panel arrays on the roof of each building on the Cranford Campus. The solar panel project is part of the Union County Improvement Authority's Renewable Energy Program.

County parks get an overhaul

The lake at Union County's Nomahegan Park, one of the most popular parks in the Union County Park System, will undergo a $1.5 million restoration, it was announced in September.

The restoration of the 7.5-acre lake follows the rehabilitation of Upper Echo Lake in Echo Lake Park last year and is part of a four-lake restoration project that also includes Rahway River Park in Rahway, Briant Park in Summit and Meisel Avenue Park in Springfield. While work was expected to get underway in Rahway by the end of 2012, the projects at Briant and Meisel were expected to get underway in 2013, according to County officials.

The Nomahegan project is expected to take upwards of nine months to complete. "We have a magnificent County Parks system," said Freeholder Bette Jane Kowalski in the September release. "But the years have taken a toll on our lakes, many of which are man-made. Silt has built up, along with a growing amount of organic matter. That all has to come out."

Nomahegan Park was part of the original park system designed by the Olmsted Brothers landscape architectural firm. An estimated 46,400 cubic yards of soil was excavated in 1930 to create the lake, which holds an estimated 9.8 million gallons of water. The restoration project is going to also involve extensive plantings along the lake shoreline. The plantings are designed to reduce silt infiltration into the lake and to make it more difficult for Canada Geese to have easy access to the water, which then encourages flocks to remain in the park.

Freeholders announced grants in 2012 for towns looking to upgrade fields

Freeholder Chairman Alexander Mirabella announced in October 2012 a total of more than $1.15 million in matching grants from the Kids' Recreation Trust Fund will be distributed to municipalities across Union County that are looking to upgrade or build playing fields, including hockey rinks, soccer fields, baseball fields, swimming pools, and other recreational facilities for children and families.

"Over the years, our County's residents have played on or enjoyed dozens of fields, and athletic facilities that have been rebuilt, refurbished, expanded, or built new under this program," Mirabella said in the October 2012 release. "The Kids Recreation Trust Fund has made an incredible difference in our quality of life."

The Kids' Recreation Trust Fund was established in 2004 to help municipalities upgrade their recreational facilities for children. It is a program of the Union County Open Space, Recreation and Historic Preservation Trust Fund, established in 2000 by popular referendum.

The Kids' Trust Fund consists of matching dollar-for-dollar grants that are based on proposals from Union County municipalities to upgrade their recreational offerings. Eligible projects can include the improvement of existing playing fields and other facilities, or the construction of new facilities.

“Old World Craftsmanship, New World Technology”

Eighty years ago in March of 1932, Chester and Walter Chapman, Cranford natives, opened a plumbing company on North Union Avenue, and called it Chapman Bros. A few years later as the company grew, they built the structure on North Avenue East still known as Chapman Bros. The company has served the plumbing and heating needs of the community and surrounding towns, and added central air conditioning installations and service when it became more common in homes in the early 1960's. Chester Chapman passed away, and Walter continued as sole owner until 1968 when he retired and moved to Florida, leaving the business in the hands of his two sons Walter Jr. (Buzz), and Wallace. The senior Chapman resided in Deerfield Beach until his death at age 93.

Buzz Chapman built the air conditioning portion of the business, while Wally continued to handle the plumbing as the business grew. Buzz died in 1988 after a long illness, and Wally sold the business in 2001 to the present owners, William Schinestuhl and Thomas Swick. The name of Chapman Bros. has been retained. Wally Chapman died later that year.

Bill and Tom have made improvements on the old landmark building, added personnel and trucks, generally bringing the business into the 21st century. But throughout its history, care and attention to the customer has been the primary concern, as it is today.

The motto “Old World Craftsmanship, New World Technology” is the standard by which Chapman Bros. abides.

Progress realized in natural gas savings with reverse auction

In February, Union County announced it was set to realize a savings of at least $330,000 in costs for natural gas over the next three years as the result of a newly introduced "reverse auction" bidding process. The new procedures were introduced for the first time earlier in 2012.

"I would like to thank all involved for making this inaugural process go smoothly and successfully for Union County and our partners," said then Union County Freeholder Chairman Alexander Mirabella in the February release. "This is a great demonstration of the savings potential when local governments pool their resources and their buying power."

In the new process, Union County served as the lead agency for the Mid Jersey Energy Cooperative Pricing System, a buying cooperative that also includes the counties of Ocean, Middlesex, Warren and Somerset, the City of Elizabeth, the Kenilworth Library and the Borough of Winfield Park.

Union County uses natural gas primarily for heating its facilities, including the Union County Courthouse and Administration Building in Elizabeth, the Ralph Froehlich Public Safety Building and the County Services Building in Westfield, and the Trailside Nature and Science Center in Mountainside, along with other recreation and maintenance facilities. Last year's usage totaled almost 151,000 dekatherms — one dekatherm equals ten therms or one million British thermal units.

The new contract saves money by pegging the price that the County pays to just $1.03 per dekatherm above the commodity price. Under the previous contract the difference was almost double, at $2.03. Union County and other members of the cooperative also have the option to lock into a commodity price for one to three years. That would provide a buffer from upward spikes in gas prices during that time, resulting in additional savings.

In a reverse auction, the bidder with the lowest price wins the contract. The auction was arranged by Birdsall Services Group as authorized by the State of New Jersey. The winning bid went to the Hess Corporation.

Mirabella noted that Union County's energy budget will also benefit over the long run from federally funded energy upgrades to its buildings. The federally funded upgrades include efficiency retrofits at various County buildings and the installation of solar panels at the Trailside Nature and Science Center in Mountainside, the Juvenile Detention Center in Linden, Runnells Specialized Hospital in Berkeley Heights and the Ruotolo Justice Center building in Elizabeth.

Tony Bennett captivates sold-out NJPAC audience

By David VanDeventer
Correspondent

“Ladies and gentlemen ... welcome to the Tony Bennett Show!” declared the announcer. To hear those words spoken live and aloud in 2013 is nothing short of a minor miracle and a major blessing.

Sinatra. Martin. Presley. Como. Williams. Crosby. All of these men were singular talents possessing incomparable voices who have long since departed from this world. So thank the heavens that we can still count Tony Bennett among us. From the opening notes of his first song at Sunday evening’s sold-out NJPAC show, the crowd was instantly transfixed by the legendary entertainer.

Unlike many of his contemporaries who would eventually find their vocal prowess diminish over time, Bennett is still in top form at the ripe, young age of 86. Hitting all the high notes in “Maybe This Time.” Seducing the audience with “The Shadow of Your Smile.” Inducing a clap-along to “I Got Rhythm.” Bennett was in total control and clearly enjoying himself.

Sunday night’s show inside Prudential Hall played out like a highlight reel of the 20th century’s finest compositions and a testament to the singer’s own shrewd choice of quality material. Upbeat numbers such as “Steppin’ Out With My Baby,” and the rousing “Sing, You Sinners,” had the crowd of all ages completely enthralled. The bouncy “The Best Is Yet to Come” lifted spirits to a higher level as the iconic performer continued to light up the Newark, N.J., stage.

It can be said that great men lead fascinating lives which tend to generate extraordinary yet true stories. And Bennett’s life is no exception. Early in the evening, the singer was almost coy in reminding the packed house of a truly jaw-dropping piece of his personal history. While performing as an opening act for Pearl Bailey in Greenwich Village in 1949, the young man was discovered and actually renamed “Tony Bennett” by no less a Hollywood titan than Bob Hope.

Born Anthony Dominick Benedetto on Aug. 3, 1926, in New York City, the youngster was fueled by twin passions for painting and singing. The constant childhood hardships of the Great Depression and a horrific tour of duty battling Nazi troops on German soil during World War II would undoubtedly serve to reinforce the entertainer’s strong humanitarian beliefs in the years to follow. Oftentimes referred to as “Tony Benefit” because of his tireless philanthropic pursuits, the singer’s colossal heart and warmth were on full display during the concert on Sunday.

Bennett’s huge heart is evidenced in his role as a proud and loving father whose grown children still factor into his everyday life. At a dark time in the 1970s, when the singer was struggling artistically, financially and personally, it was his oldest son,

THE GOOD LIFE — Legendary performer Tony Bennett treated a packed house at Newark NJPAC’s Prudential Hall to an evening of memorable music and classic showmanship on Sunday night.

Danny, who helped him get his life and career back on track. Still serving as Bennett’s manager after more than 30 years, it was Danny who helped reintroduce the entertainer and his incredible body of work to receptive younger generations.

But on Sunday night at NJPAC, the Bennett child in the spotlight was his youngest daughter, Antonia. Opening the evening with several songs backed by Bennett’s tight, four-piece band, the 38-year-old exhibited her father’s trademark poise while performing her more contemporary brand of popular tunes. A delightful moment occurred later in the evening during a duet with her father. Trading off lines on an upbeat Stephen Sondheim composition, the elder Bennett at one point broke out in dance, pirouetting alongside his beaming daughter.

To say that Tony Bennett’s music is merely romantic would be a gross understatement and an utter disregard for the man’s stunning vocal abilities. Exuding the same sophisticated charm and sly sex appeal that sent the bobbysoxer generation swooning more than a decade before Beatlemania, Bennett was in full command of his unique brand of magic on Sunday. During any slight pause between songs, smitten women of all kinds took the opportunity to shout out, “I love you, Tony!” as if it were 1953 and not 2013.

Old favorites such as “Just In Time” and “When You’re Smiling” sounded fresh and new again. The evening’s set list was so varied with timeless melodies that even his signature song, “I Left My Heart in San Francisco,” almost felt like an afterthought. Bennett has always abstained from straight-up rock ‘n’ roll, but there was no denying the flat-out rollicking feel of “One For My Baby (And One More For the Road).” He even transported us back to the earliest days of his recording career with a note-perfect rendition of “Boulevard of Broken Dreams” and his Bennettized version of Hank William’s country classic, “Cold, Cold Heart.”

In lesser hands, the simple act of slowing down a song’s temp can be the kiss of death, unintentionally creating something akin to a funeral dirge. Not so with Bennett. Nobody on this planet can slow down and own a song quite like Mr. Bennett can. During his stellar take on “The Way You Look Tonight,” you could actually see the mesmerized crowd melting into their seat cushions. Never maudlin, never overly sentimental, his timing and delivery remains impeccable after more than 60 years in the recording business. His wistful spin on Charlie Chaplin’s “Smile” left more than a few concertgoers’ eyes moist.

Bennett’s consummate professionalism and discipline to his craft are well-known and widely documented. But how he chose to conclude Sunday evening’s performance should be required viewing and a much-needed wake-up call for today’s sadly over-produced and classless pop stars and would-be idols.

After making several well-received references to just how exceptional the acoustics are inside NJPAC’s Prudential Hall, the singer put his microphone down and walked up to the edge of the stage. With only the accompaniment of his guitarist, Bennett then proceeded to crush — and I mean crush — the living daylight out of “Fly Me to the Moon” ... without the aid of a microphone! There was an audible gasp of communal astonishment as Bennett’s thundering and unenhanced voice filled the entire interior of the intimate concert hall.

If any flaw could be found concerning Sunday night, it might possibly rest with the expectations of the audience. When Bennett finally left the stage and the house-lights went up, the eager crowd stood there slightly stunned, waiting for more. We wanted more. I wanted more. There was a certain brevity to the evening and a bitter-sweet sense that the show had just ended before it even began.

At the age of 86, certainly no one is expecting a Springsteen-style marathon from Bennett, And maybe that’s for the best. There is an old show-biz adage that goes, “Always leave ‘em wanting more.” And from what I overheard from the delighted fans exiting the exhilarating, sold-out show, he sure did. For the record, we experienced twenty-one wonderful songs within seventy-four unforgettable minutes.

In a recent November 2012 interview, the entertainer summed up his motivation for performing well into his seventh decade: “I can’t wait to hit the stage because I love to make people feel good.” And he’s still delivering on that mission statement.

During one of the opening songs on Sunday’s concert, Bennett asks the adoring crowd, “Who’s Got the Last Laugh Now?”

And the answer is quite obvious. You do, Mr. Bennett. You do.

Baseball dinner features Yankees historian, Feb. 10

Marty Appel, the Yankees historian and a former director of public relations for the team, will be the guest speaker at the 77th annual Hot Stove League Baseball Dinner on Sunday, Feb. 10, at 1 p.m. at the L'Affaire Banquet Center, 1099 Route 22 East, Mountainside.

The awards dinner is sponsored by the Union County Baseball Association in cooperation with the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders and the Union County Department of Parks and Community Renewal. During the afternoon awards ceremonies, the UCBA will induct three new members into the Union County Baseball Hall of Fame: Bill Dolan of Rahway, Jim Riccitelli of Roselle Park, and George Virgilio of Elizabeth.

"We're delighted to welcome Marty Appel to this year's Hot Stove League Awards Dinner," said Freeholder Chairman Linda Carter. "We hope that family members and friends of the Hall of Fame inductees and the very deserving local, student honorees will enjoy the Sunday afternoon ceremonies and support youth baseball in Union County."

Among the students to be honored for their athletic achievements are: Chris Folinus, catcher for Cranford High School and 2012 Union County Player of the Year; Khaseem Greene of Elizabeth and Rutgers, Big East defensive player of the year for 2011 and 2012; Jenna Kulback, Class of 2012 catcher for Gov. Livingston High School in Berkeley Heights; James O'Rourke, Class of 2012 First Team, All-State centerfielder for Westfield High School; and Shannon Syciarz of Garwood, a First Team All-American and two time All-NJAC field hockey goaltender of the year.

The Hot Stove League Baseball Dinner also will honor local American Legion Baseball players and athletes from youth baseball leagues for their achievements in 2012.

Tickets for the dinner may be purchased online at www.ucba-nj.org or by downloading and mailing the table registration form to the Union County Baseball Association, Box 176, Fanwood, New Jersey 07023. For more information, call Jim Iozzi at 908-917-2523.

Take Back the Kitchen V-Egg Salad

This year I am trying extra hard to incorporate vegetables however I can. Here is a healthy and lower calorie/lower fat recipe for egg salad that adds an extra punch of nutrients by mixing in the leafy greens. Makes enough for two sandwiches. Enjoy!

Ingredients

2 eggs
1 tsp. mayonnaise
1 tsp. Dijon mustard
1 to 2 tsp. Greek yogurt with zero percent fat
1/2 cup Swiss chard or fresh spinach leaves salt and pepper to taste

Method

Hard boil the eggs by placing them in a pot covered with water until they come to a boil.

Turn off the flame and let them sit for 5 minutes.

Immerse in cold water, peel and chop in a bowl.

Add in mayo, mustard and yogurt. Stir until combined.

Wash and chop the greens and stir into the egg mixture.

Salt and pepper to taste and serve with multigrain bread or healthy crackers, such as Mary's Gone Whole Grain Crackers.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES, March 21 to April 20.

Aries, there are a few things you need to work out this week, but then you will be set for quite a while. Take the opportunity to recharge your batteries.

TAURUS, April 21 to May 21.

Taurus, sometimes the things that are the hardest to come by are the ones that are most worth the effort. Think about this as you face obstacles.

GEMINI, May 22 to June 21.

Gemini, contrary to what you believe, things at work will go on even if you take a few days off for a vacation. There may be some catching up afterward, but you can handle it.

CANCER, June 22 to July 22.

Cancer, your mind may be churning, but worrying excessively over something will not help the situation. Therefore, focus on something else for a while.

LEO, July 23 to Aug. 23.

Leo, just when you think the week will go on without any excitement, something pops up and it's just what you need to beat the doldrums. Expect time with friends.

VIRGO, Aug. 24 to Sept. 22.

Virgo, sometimes you need to be tough on yourself to get things done, but you will be satisfied with the results when you push yourself. Focus on goals this week.

LIBRA, Sept. 23 to Oct. 23.

Libra, a risk you take this week will pay off in a big way. You might be anxious to take a significant risk, but the eventual reward will be well worth it.

SCORPIO, Oct. 24 to Nov. 22.

Scorpio, it may be challenging to find some initial support for a new idea because you are essentially charting new territory. Just give it time and people will come around.

SAGITTARIUS, Nov. 23 to Dec. 21.

Slow down a little, Sagittarius. Moving faster will not get the job done to your satisfaction and then you only will have to do it all over again. Think through your options.

CAPRICORN, Dec. 22 to Jan. 20.

Capricorn, shift your focus to your family for the next few days because you have to make some decisions that will affect them all. Listen to your gut feeling when making these decisions.

PISCES, Feb. 19 to March 20.

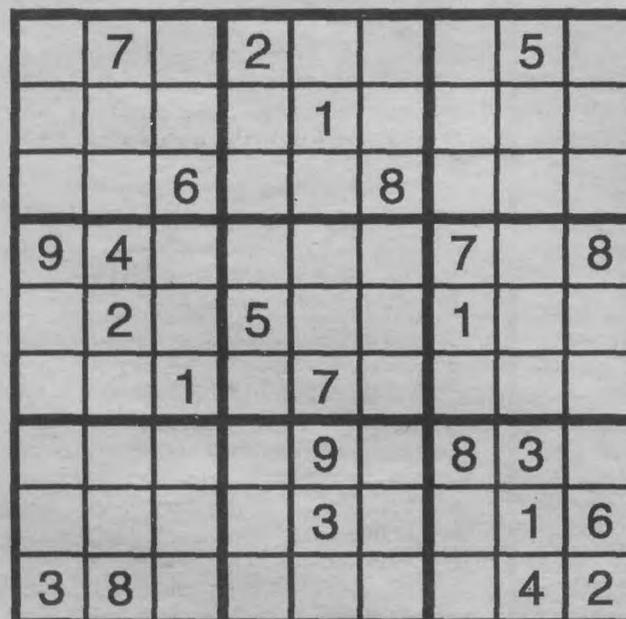

Pisces, when an opportunity comes your way, you may want to take a pass because something better is on the horizon.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

UCPAC presents sensory-friendly 'Seussical'

Will Horton pay attention to Gertrude? Will Maysie ever return for her egg? For the answers to these and many other questions, children can enjoy a live performance of "Seussical," a musical theater production based on the Dr. Seuss classic tale "Horton Hears a Who," hosted by none other than the Cat in the Hat.

Two performances are scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 3, at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., at historic Union County Performing Arts Center in the heart of the downtown Rahway Theater District.

The first performance is specially designed for children with autism and related disorders as part of the Sensory Friendly Theater series sponsored by the Freeholder Board.

"Sensory Friendly Theater is a wonderful way for children with special needs to partake in the experience of the performing arts, in a welcoming and supportive atmosphere," said Freeholder Chairman Linda Carter. "It's part of our efforts to ensure that healthy, enriching activities are available to Union County residents from all walks of life including children, teens and adults with disabilities."

For the first show, the Performing Arts Center will become a "judgment free zone" that accommodates children who wish to express their excitement during the performance, get up and move around, or spend some time out of the performance area. Specially trained staff will also be on hand if parents or caregivers need assistance with their children.

In both the first and second show, "Seussical" features the same unique characters who find themselves intertwined in an incredible crazy-quilt adventure, in which the power of imagination and the most miraculous "think" ever saves the day.

Sensory Friendly Theater was initiated last year. To design the series, the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation worked with Paper Mill Playhouse and Children's Specialized Hospital as well as Autism Friendly Spaces, an organization that helps people with autism and their families participate in their communities.

Union County Performing Arts Center is a non-profit 501(c) (3) corporation operating in historic Rahway Theatre. Located in downtown Rahway at 1601 Irving St., this historic landmark is the cornerstone of the Rahway Arts District. The theater is a beautifully restored 1920's era former vaudeville house and movie palace owned by the County of Union and managed by the nonprofit Union County Performing Arts Center.

For more information on both performances call the UCPAC box office, 732-499-8226 or visit ucpac.org.

For information on all Union County programs and services visit ucnj.org or call the Public Info Line toll free, 877-424-1234.

Two sensory friendly performances of 'Seussical' are scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 3, at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., at the historic Union County Performing Arts Center in the heart of the downtown Rahway Theater District.

Right now, the Christmas rose is ascendant

When I was growing up in western New York, we generally had the annual January thaw after a prolonged cold snap. In my part of the world this year, we had a prolonged thaw first, followed by a daunting cold snap. It hardly seems fair, and is, in fact, downright disheartening.

To avoid the blues, I bundled up and trundled out into the backyard. There are no snowdrops yet, though the English garden magazines are larded with fulsome prose about the ones opening up there. The tips of the daffodils are showing in the front beds, but I know they will not emerge for at least another six weeks.

I haven't yet acquired the witch hazel of my dreams to brighten up the dull winter days, but I do have hellebores. My spirits rose when I looked at the Christmas rose — Helleborus niger — and saw that it was full of buds. Two of them will open any day now, their white blooms braving the cold to announce that flowers have returned to the garden. Theirs is not the white flag of surrender, but the white banner of seasonal defiance.

Most gardeners are familiar with the Lenten rose, aka Helleborus x orientalis. As the common name suggests, it blooms later than Christmas rose and has a broader range of flower colors. My garden is full of them and, with luck, will be home to even more in the next year or so. However, right now, the Christmas rose is ascendant.

THE GARDENER'S APPRENTICE

BY ELISABETH GINSBURG

For those who haven't seen them, Christmas roses are low growers, rising only 8 to 12 inches in height. The stems emerge from the ground separately from the leaves, on thick stalks.

Each stalk bears one large buttercup-like flower, with either rounded or pointed petals, depending on the variety. As they age, the petals begin to blush, eventually turning dusty pink and persisting on the plants for well over a month. A mature plant can bear 20 or more flowers in the growing season. In my garden the palmate leaves are evergreen, though the oldest ones look quite ratty after a full season of growth. As the weather begins to warm up, I clip them off to neaten up the plant.

Spring is actually hellebore haircut time all over the garden, as the old, worn-out orientalis foliage gets lopped off as well.

Christmas rose is one of about 15 hellebore species and hails from parts of Europe. The Latin "niger" species name is intriguing, because of the absence of black in stems, leaves and flowers. The roots are another story, however, and the species was once known as "black-rooted hellebore." Other common genera, like Helleborus x orientalis and Helleborus foetidus, have white roots.

One of hellebore's great virtues is that it is not appealing to deer or other marauders. All hellebores are poisonous, and Christmas rose was once used for killing rats. Combined with other hellebore species, Christmas rose makes a nice groundcover for partly shaded areas where deer depredation has made gardening frustrating.

There are scores of varieties and colors of Lenten rose, but Christmas rose seems to be a little less amenable to the machinations of breeders. English, Japanese and German plant experts, especially those at the Heuger de Blomen Nursery, have produced a large number of flower forms, but so far they only come in one color — white. Still, you can pick and choose among the various forms available, including the beautiful Wilder, with very large, star-shaped flowers.

Winter Moonlight looks more like a single rose, with rounded petals and a prominent cluster of golden stamens. For lovers of double-flowered specimens, Japanese breeders have come up with Double Fantasy, featuring vigorous plants and fully double white flowers with somewhat pointed petals.

Christmas rose is very happy when grown in partly shaded garden areas or in pots. Its only important requirement is very good drainage. Those gardeners with heavy clay know the drill — improve heavy soil by digging in organic material, grit or sand prior to planting. If plants are already in, dig in soil conditioners around the plants as you can and use organic mulches, which break down and lighten the topsoil.

I am tempted to clip the fattest Helleborus niger bud and bring spring into my kitchen. However, I think that the flower will be happier outside, looking winsome and providing me with a reason to put on heavy clothes and leave the house to seek fresh air and fresh inspiration.

Pineknott Farms is one of many vendors of hellebores and carries a good selection of Helleborus niger. Find them at 681 Rockchurch Road, Clarksville, VA, 23927, 434-252-1990; www.pineknottfarms.com. No print catalog.

NOTICE TO RESIDENTIAL TENANTS OF RIGHTS DURING FORECLOSURE

A foreclosure action has been filed concerning 1025 Fairview Place, Hillside, NJ, and the ownership of the property may change as a result.

Until ownership of the property changes or you are otherwise informed by the court of the mortgage holder, you should continue to pay rent to the landlord or to a rent receiver, if one is appointed by the court. You should keep receipts or canceled checks of your rent payments. If you are not sure how or where to pay rent, save your rent money so that you will have it when the owner demands it. Nonpayment of rent is grounds for eviction.

Foreclosure alone is generally not grounds to remove a bona fide residential tenant. Tenants who want to stay in their homes can be removed only through a court process. With limited exceptions, the New Jersey "Anti-Eviction Act" protects residential tenants' rights to remain in their home. This law includes protection for tenants who do not have written leases.

It is unlawful for anyone to try to force you to leave your home outside the court process, including by shutting off utilities or failing to maintain the premises.

WHEREAS, the successful completion of construction contracts expands the Borough of Roselle's tax base and advances economic and budgetary stability of all its citizens; and

WHEREAS, Project Labor Agreements make legally enforceable guarantees that projects will be carried out in an orderly and timely manner, without strikes, lock-outs, slowdowns; and

WHEREAS, Project Labor Agreements also provide for peaceful, orderly, and mutually binding procedures for resolving labor disputes; and

WHEREAS, Project Labor Agreements provide the Borough of Roselle with a guarantee that contracts as described above are completed with a highly skilled and diverse workforce

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE BOROUGH OF ROSELLE, UNION COUNTY, NEW JERSEY, THAT:

Section 1. Definition
AFFORDABLE HOUSING shall mean housing that is restricted for occupancy and affordable to households with incomes no greater than 80 percent of Area Median Income by family size as established by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) including, but not limited to housing that is funded by HUD, Section 42 of the Internal Revenue Code or is covered and regulated by the Council of Affordable Housing.

APPRENTICE means a worker who participates in a federal or state apprenticeship program, or as an apprentice equivalent, participates in a DOL approved training program, takes a construction apprenticeship test, and receives benefits and pay not less than those received by an apprentice.

APPRENTICESHIP PROGRAM means an apprenticeship program operated by a labor organization and registered by the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training of the US Department of Labor or an apprenticeship equivalent program as that term is used by the State of New Jersey in the Abbot Project Labor Agreement either approved or funded by the New Jersey Department of Labor as of January 1, 2003.

BOROUGH OF ROSELLE means the Borough or the Borough Administrator or his designee.

DEVELOPER means the recipient of a tax exemption for a tax abated project or the awardee of a public construction contract for a public construction project.

LABOR ORGANIZATION means an organization which represents, for purposes of collective bargaining, employees involved in the performance of public construction projects or tax abated projects that have the present ability to refer, provide or represent sufficient numbers of qualified employees to perform the contracted work and has an apprenticeship program.

PROJECT COMPLETION means the determination by the Borough that the project, in whole or in part, is ready for the use intended, which ordinarily shall mean the date on which the project receives its final certificate of occupancy.

PROJECT LABOR AGREEMENT means a contract between a labor organization and a developer that contains at minimum the requirements set forth in this Chapter.

PUBLIC CONSTRUCTION PROJECT means any construction contract entered into by the Borough using public funds, the total cost of which is equal to or exceeds five million dollars ($5,000,000.00), exclusive of any land acquisition costs.

TAX ABATED PROJECT means a project that has a total construction cost that is equal to or exceeds twenty-five million dollars ($25,000,000.00), exclusive of any land acquisition costs, which receives either 1.) a long term tax exemption pursuant to the Long Term Tax Exemption Law N.J.S.A. 40A:20-1 et seq., or 2.) a five (5) year tax exemption that requires Municipal Council approval, pursuant to the Five Year Exemption and Abatement Law, N.J.S.A. 40A:21-1 et seq., and Section 106-2 et seq. of the Municipal Code.

However, any project that is being undertaken by a not for profit organization or which shall contain more than fifty percent (50%) affordable housing shall be excluded. In addition, any project that is being undertaken by developers of residential housing units with four (4) stories or less shall be excluded.

Section 2. Project Labor Agreements required for certain projects.

All tax abated projects and all requests for proposals, specifications and final contracts for public construction projects shall require the execution of a project labor agreement that complies with the requirements of this chapter, unless the Borough administrator determines, taking into consideration the nature, size and complexity of the project, such as the height of the buildings, the presence of elevators and the utilization of steel, that a project labor agreement is not appropriate. In all cases, the project labor agreement must advance the interests of the Borough of Roselle, including cost, efficiency, quality, time lines, and need for a skilled labor force and safety.

Section 3. General requirements.
The project labor agreement, one form of which is on file in the office of the Borough Clerk, shall contain the following terms:

1. A guarantee that there will be no strikes, lock-outs, or other similar actions.

2. Procedures to insure the effective, immediate, and mutually binding resolutions of jurisdictional and labor disputes arising before the completion of the work.

3. A provision to bind all contractors and subcontractors on the project in all relevant documents.

4. Evidence that each contractor and subcontractor working on the project has a local, federally registered apprenticeship program.

5. A requirement that twenty percent (20%) of the labor hours required shall be performed by apprentices and that all apprentices shall be Roselle residents. However, if it can be demonstrated that fulfilling this requirement is not possible because there are not enough apprentices available, the required percentage of apprentices will be decreased accordingly.

6. Conformity with all statutes, regulations and Borough ordinances regarding the implementation of our goals for women and minority owned businesses.

7. A requirement that Developers and Labor Organizations complete the following "Pre-Construction Actions":

A. Pre-Construction Meeting: Not less than 90 days prior to the commencement of construction, the developer will meet with the Borough administrator and the labor organization to present workforce needs, which will include the job description of the positions to be filled and the duration of the project. The labor organization will present the developer and the Borough with the names, addresses and trades of eligible apprentices who are available to work on the project.

B. The advertisement will solicit apprenticeship applications for the labor organization's apprenticeship program, describe the basic requirements for admission, describe the job training and set forth the range of salaries.

C. Job Fairs: Developer and the labor organization will jointly participate in at least two (2) job fairs to be held at a location to be provided by the Borough in order to explain the apprenticeship programs and solicit applications from attendees. Each participating developer shall pay a pro rata share of the costs of each job fair.

7. Site access. Representatives of the Borough shall be permitted to have appropriate access to all work sites in order to monitor compliance.

Section 5 - Remedies

RC girls' basketball garners key road victory at Cranford

Is candidate for next week's UCT top seed

By JR Parachini

CRANFORD — Niavanni Grant saw the slightest of openings and made her move to the basket.

That was all the Roselle Catholic senior guard needed to produce her first points, which came at a time when the visiting Lions really needed them.

Down by eight to start the fourth quarter in hostile enemy territory, Roselle Catholic also needed to step up defensively in order to have a chance at knocking off division rival Cranford.

Grant's oncoming fourth quarter performance both offensively and defensively was the added spark Roselle Catholic needed as the Lions came back last Thursday night to thwart the host Cougars 32-26 in a Union County Conference-Watchung Division clash at Martin Gymnasium.

"We had to keep our composure and stick together as a team," Grant said.

Roselle Catholic, which did not run and wreak havoc with its trademark, game-opening, full court press, captured its eighth straight victory to improve to 15-2 overall and 10-1 in the Watchung Division. The Lions are now in the lead to repeat as Watchung champions — as of Tuesday they had three division games left — and to garner the top seed for next month's Union County Tournament, which will be seeded next week.

Roselle Catholic, which held its fifth opponent and second straight to under 30 points this season, ended up sweeping Cranford in Watchung Division play. The Lions previously topped the Cougars 51-41 at home Jan. 4.

Cranford, which was held to its lowest output of the season two days after Roselle Catholic — in a 32-21 division home win — held Scotch Plains to its lowest output, had its second six-game winning streak snapped, falling to 12-4 overall and 8-3 in the Watchung. RC snapped both Cranford six-game winning streaks.

Grant scored the first five points of the fourth quarter and produced half of her team's output in the period, netting all eight of her points in the fourth.

Grant hit a jumper and was fouled at the onset of the fourth, making the ensuing free throw for a conventional 3-point play. She then drove aggressively through the lane and put the ball up and in for her second field goal shortly after.

"There was an opening in the middle, just enough room to get through," Grant said.

In what turned out to be one of its best quarters this year, Roselle Catholic outscored Cranford 16-2 in the fourth, starting the period on a 9-0 run and finishing the game on a 7-0 surge, all seven of those points coming from the foul line.

Lions a favorite to garner next week's top UCT seed

Cranford last scored just two points in the fourth quarter on Opening Day at Governor Livingston, holding on for a 37-36 triumph.

"For us, it all starts with defense," said Grant, with RC starting in man and then moving to a zone. "Defense is always our strong point."

In between Roselle Catholic's two fourth quarter runs, Cranford senior Jess McCoy made two free throws with just under five minutes to play to give the Cougars their second and final lead of 26-25.

McCoy ended the third quarter by making a wild, 3-point basket from the top of the key. The shot, from about 35 feet away, hit the rim, with the ball bouncing off of it twice before coming down and landing through the hoop.

That put Cranford up 24-16 and gave the Cougars tremendous momentum and their biggest lead of eight points.

At that moment in the game, it appeared that Cranford was on its way to gaining a division split with Roselle Catholic.

In order to get that lead, Cranford had to overcome McCoy and fellow senior forward Kaitlin McGovern both getting their first two fouls just 1:14 into the game, the Cougars missing their first 11 shots, McCoy missing her first seven and the team getting shut out in a quarter for the first time after not producing a single point in the first period.

Roselle Catholic won the first quarter 8-0, with Cranford - despite getting several good looks - shooting 0-for-10 and McCoy 0-for-5.

The Lions went ahead 10-0 before Cranford finally scored. In their first division meeting 20 days ago, Roselle Catholic also began that game with a 10-0 lead before the Cougars scored.

Roselle Catholic senior forward Renee Oliver scored the game's first six points and finished with a team-high 10. She also paced the Lions on the boards with 12 rebounds.

Cranford finally got on the scoreboard with 6:36 left in the first half when senior guard Jenna Goeller was fouled going to the basket and then made both free throws.

Goeller then drained a 3-pointer from the right side for Cranford's first field goal in 12 attempts. Quickly, Cranford cut RC's lead in half at 10-5.

Once Goeller made Cranford's first field goal, other Cougar shots started to fall. Goeller nailed another 3-pointer, this one from the left side, to get it to 10-8 and then junior guard Mairead McKeary hit a jumper to tie the game for the first time at 10-10.

McCoy followed with a conventional 3-point play that got the crowd going as they roared to show their support of Cranford's 13-point run that gave it a 13-10 lead.

After McCoy - who along with Goeller led the Cougars with 12 points - gave her team its final lead, McGovern ended up fouling out with 2:58 to go. McGovern, who missed the first RC game with an ankle injury, grabbed four rebounds, dished out two assists, blocked one shot and came up with two steals despite not scoring.

Grant tied the game for the third time at 26-26 by making her second free throw of the game and then with 1:30 remaining gave Roselle Catholic the lead for good with two more free throws, making the score 28-26.

Roselle Catholic junior guard Katie Tobie scored her only points when she made two big free throws with 41.6 seconds remaining.

Tobie also produced three rebounds, three blocks and one steal.

"Our fourth quarter defense of Niavanni Grant and Kate Tobie helped spark the comeback," Roselle Catholic head coach Joe Skrec said.

Oliver scored the game's final points with 22 seconds left, making two free throws after getting fouled inside. In the final 11 seconds, Cranford missed three 3-point attempts.

NOTES: Roselle Catholic did not make a 3-point basket against Cranford in both division games against the Cougars.

This was a rare game in which Roselle Catholic junior forward Tori Pozsonyi did not produce a field goal. Pozsonyi finished with seven points - all from the free throw line - and eight rebounds.

Roselle Catholic made 10-of-14 free throw attempts in the fourth quarter, with Grant netting four and Pozsonyi, Tobie and Oliver two each. The Lions made 20 free throws and the Cougars six.

So on its way to improving to 15-2, Roselle Catholic won the last eight minutes 16-2.

"In the beginning of games we struggle here and there," Grant said. "However, we never put our heads down."

Cranford's previous low output was 35 points in its 35-33 home division win over Governor Livingston Jan. 17.

On Tuesday, RC was to host GL in the evening, while Cranford was to host Linden in the afternoon - both were key Watchung Division clashes.

RC lost at GL and Cranford fell at Linden in their first division meetings.

Electric atmosphere was in store for Dayton-Summit Boys' basketball teams enjoying fine seasons

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

SPRINGFIELD — Was Dayton able to continue to take the ball to the hoop as Union County's only undefeated basketball team or was Summit able to bounce back from just its second loss — both by one point — to hand the visiting Bulldogs their first setback?

Another electric atmosphere was anticipated earlier this week when two of the top public school teams in Union County were scheduled to clash for the second time.

A marquee matchup was on tap for Tuesday night in Summit as the Hilltoppers were to host the Dayton Bulldogs in their second Valley Division contest.

The first one was worth the price of admission as Dayton came back in the second half and then held off Summit 49-48 on Jan. 10 in a battle of 7-0 squads.

Since that contest, fans anxiously awaiting Tuesday night's rematch in Summit.

Also since that clash, Dayton remained undefeated while Summit almost did.

While Dayton survived its game at Hillside, winning 42-41 back on Dec. 20, Summit didn't.

The Hilltoppers lost at Hillside 66-65 last Friday night, in another division battle that went down to the very last second.

That's how close those three teams can be.

That put Dayton — Union County's only undefeated basketball team as of Tuesday at 13-0 — in the driver's seat in its attempt to capture the Union County Conference's Valley Division championship outright.

The Bulldogs, who led the Valley Division at 10-0, would have moved closer to clinching the title should they have won at Summit Tuesday night.

Summit, which was in second place in the Valley Division at 8-2, needed to beat Dayton to pull back to within a game of the Bulldogs.

While Dayton was winning its 13th straight to start the season with a more-than-convincing 62-27 division home win over Brearley last Friday night, Summit was edged at Hillside to fall to 11-2 overall.

Summit's loss at Hillside — the Hilltoppers first defeated the Comets 66-53 at home in division play on Jan. 15 — still didn't take the juice out of Tuesday night's Dayton-at-Summit clash.

However, it did make it more difficult for Summit to win the Valley Division. Dayton will be heavily favored to beat Roselle Park, Oratory Prep and New Providence again, so even if Summit did beat Dayton, there's a good chance the Bulldogs will remain one game ahead of the Hilltoppers en route to the title.

Tuesday's game was to be another measuring stick for both teams, with Dayton seeking to get back to the North 2, Group 1 final and win it this time, while Summit will take on a very challenging North 2, Group 3 field.

On Tuesday night, Summit was attempting to rebound from a loss that snapped a four-game winning streak following its division setback to the Bulldogs, while Dayton was seeking a rare 14-0 start.

Summit, sparked by a game-high 26-point performance from senior Ba'Shawn Mickens, led Dayton by six at the half on Jan. 10 before the Bulldogs rallied — behind a team-high 21 points from senior Elijah Brown — in the final two quarters.

"We played a little bit better defense in the second half," said Dayton head coach Bob Martin, who two years ago guided Dayton to the North 2, Group 1 title en route to the Group 1 state championship game at Rutgers. "We mixed it up a little bit with our man and our zone, but we made some shots in the fourth quarter and we got big some stops and that's how you win close games."

"We played as a team, for sure, and we worked together and everybody had energy," said Brown, who led all players with 10 field goals.

Summit also received 11 points and seven rebounds from junior Ryan Sweeney and three points and a team-leading 10 boards from junior Matt Fischetti.

"Our big guys (Mac Wiesner, Robbie Walsh, Matt Fischetti and Ethan Chivers) were in early foul trouble," first-year Summit head coach David White said. "That changes the way you're able to attack."

"We also didn't shoot the ball well. The Dayton gym is a tough gym to play in, it's small and well-attended."

After Dayton made one of two free throws to take a three-point lead with 10 seconds to go, Summit attempted a 3-pointer that missed, with the Hilltoppers putting in the rebound to fall one point short.

"We have to defend better than we did the last time and Friday night," White said. "There was a lot of stuff that we didn't do right which is a credit to both Dayton and Hillside."

Last Friday night's game was the only one Summit had last week. This week the Hilltoppers have three division games.

"Last week was a strange week in that we played only once, with the kids taking exams," White said. "We would have liked to have played Tuesday to have built up some intensity going into Friday's game."

Summit almost came back from a six-point, fourth-quarter deficit in the first Dayton game, while conversely leading Hillside by six in the fourth. After Summit missed a 1-and-1 free throw with a one-point lead against Hillside, the Comets came back to score a layup with two seconds left.

Mickens, who again led all scorers with 26 points, attempted a 3-pointer at the buzzer that did not fall.

"Mickens is our top scorer and that's no secret," White said. "If our front line guys are in the lane, finishing and playing well, that's key."

"Wiesner had another double-double (11 points and 14 rebounds) Friday night. Walsh, at 6-8, has the potential to dominate a game. The only two games Walsh was in foul trouble were the two that we lost."

Walsh had six points and three rebounds Friday night vs. Hillside and in the first Dayton game — after going to the bench in the first quarter with two fouls — finished with two points and six boards.

"Against Dayton and Hillside we had plenty of opportunities," White said. "Hillside came out very hot and played a great game."

Tuesday night's Dayton-Summit game also had county and state tournament ramifications as both seek to garner the highest possible seeds in both.

"It will have a tremendous bearing on the county tournament seedings," White said.

RP wrestlers top Brearley again For the 2nd straight season

By JR Parachini
Sports Editor

The Roselle Park wrestling team followed up its first Union County Tournament championship in 10 years — finishing ahead of second-place Brearley — by defeating Brearley for the second year in a row.

The two Union County powers clashed in Kenilworth Jan. 22, with the Panthers prevailing 39-22. Roselle Park won seven of the 12 bouts that were contested, with Phil Woods defeating Jeff Velez 8-6 at 182. Roselle Park won by forfeit at 106. Brearley senior Anthony Rice, who missed the UCT again with an injury, came back to the lineup and blanked Joe Fulinello 1-0 at 138. Brearley won by forfeit at 170.

Rice won UCT titles as a freshman and sophomore, but — because of injury — could not compete in the UCT last year or this season.

Roselle Park improved to 14-1, while Brearley slipped to 1-8. Roselle Park defeated Brearley last year for the first time since 2005.

LOOKING BACK AT THE UCT: Union had its first wrestler reach the finals, senior heavyweight Kris Lewis, since Christian Alvarez lost in the 125 final in 2009. Union's last county champion is Pete Jacangelo, who won at 145 in 2005, defeating Marc Neuworth of New Providence 15-2 in the final. Tom Duffy was also a UCT champion for Union in 2005, pinning Brian Swick of Roselle Park in 5:57 in the 130 final.

Johnson — guided by 2013 Union County Coach of the Year Rick Ortega — had two county champs this year in sophomore Charlie Hudak at 126 and junior John Coler at 138. They were Johnson's first county champs since Anthony Priore won the 130 title in 2007 when he defeated Wade Baldwin of New Providence 9-1 in the final.

Linden wrestlers excel in their UCTs

Linden wrestlers excelled at their Union County Tournaments two weekends ago, with junior Nick Tekula placing second at 120 for his second straight runner-up finish. The varsity competition took place at Union High School's Louis J. Rettino Gymnasium Jan. 19, while the junior varsity UCT was contested the next day.

Tekula, as the second seed, lost in the 120 final to top-seeded Jon Mele of Governor Livingston 12-0. After receiving a first round bye, Tekula won a 13-4 major decision over 10th-seeded Dave Busch of Cranford in the quarterfinals. Tekula then defeated third-seeded Devin Jefferson of Rahway 5-1 in the semifinals. Last year, Tekula reached the 106 final, falling to Nick DeMarco of Brearley 5-3.

Linden sophomore Kahlil Burns, the sixth seed, did well to place third at 182. Burns first pinned 11th-seeded Michael Basso of Johnson in 39 seconds in the first round and then pinned third-seeded Luke Sammarone of New Providence in 3:59 in the quarterfinals.

Burns was pinned by second-seeded Jeff Velez in 58 seconds in the semifinals. Burns then wrestled back to beat fourth-seeded Allen Nunez of Roselle Park 4-3 for third place.

Placing fourth at 126 was senior captain Daniel Tibere. The fifth seed, Tibere won a 5-1 decision over 12th-seeded Austin Senkarik of Governor Livingston in the first round and then pinned 13th-seeded Dmitry St. John of Union in 4:57 in the quarterfinals.

Tibere was pinned by top-seeded and eventual first-time champion Charlie Hudak, a Johnson sophomore, in 56 seconds in the semifinals.

Tibere was then pinned by sixth-seeded Tim Murphy of Brearley in 4:50 in the bout for third place.

JV Tigers capture their 2nd Union County Tournament championship: Linden's junior varsity team won its second UCT championship, with grapplers Edwin Rodriguez, Antwon Pugh and Aster Dwah, a junior with a record of 20-1, leading the way.

Nine Linden wrestlers reached the finals, with Ramiro Lopez-Crespo, Tomas Clemente, Masolin Piere, Tymir Hinton, Jay Hernandez and Robert Peak placing second. Javier Arrendondo finished third.

Bulldogs sought to remain only county undefeated team

The UCT will be seeded Wednesday, while the cut-off date for games that count toward state tournament seeding - which this year went to a power points system - is Saturday.

"We're 11-2 and both of our losses are by one point," White said Saturday. "We, obviously, would prefer to be 13-0. I think, though, that if you went up to a coach during the summer and said that his team would be 11-2 after 13 games, most would sign up for that.

"Our job right now is to build on what we're doing well and also what we're not."

Dayton did not have many tough challenges on the road, which was one of the reasons why Tuesday night was to be so big for the Bulldogs.

"We're playing the right way," Martin said last Friday night. "We're sharing the ball, we're playing hard on defense and we've got some experience (Dayton returned starters Brown, Cioffi, and seniors Jared Clayton and Isaiah Rogers).

Summit has won 10 or more games for the first time since head coach Eugene Maxwell's 2008-2009 squad finished 13-11.

The Hilltoppers also began the week 6-0 at home, including four Valley Division wins and two holiday tournament triumphs.

"It will be very tough to beat Summit at their place, we know that," Martin said Friday night. "We know what's on the line.

"It's not going to be much different than the first game. We're going to have to make some shots down the stretch and we're going to have to play great defense."

There's a good chance that Dayton and Summit could meet for a third time in a preliminary round Union County Tournament contest.

Dayton finished second in the Valley Division behind champion Roselle last year and the year before gained a share of the division title with Roselle and New Providence.

"I tell our players all the time, everything starts with the conference," Martin said. "It's been a while since we've been in this position and we're looking forward to the challenge."

"To beat them (Summit) on Tuesday we're going to have to have our way in the paint and try to play tough," Brown said.

Dayton senior guard Anthony Cioffi, who on Wednesday at school will sign his letter-of-intent to play football on scholarship at Rutgers, covered Mickens the first time.

"We played as a team and we weren't as selfish as we usually are," Cioffi said.

"Everybody got around with the ball and we just cut through the defense."

Both teams are scheduled to play today.
