County refuses to fund special election

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

The Union County Freeholder Board put the kibosh on funding the special general election Oct. 16 until someone at the state level decides if taxpayers will have to foot the entire bill or the county will be getting back any of the $850,000 tab.

Although there has been considerable political controversy throughout the state regarding the need for a special election to fill the senate seat vacated when Frank Lautenberg died, there also has been rumblings about the financial impact this would have on taxpayers.

The winner of the special election will serve the remainder of Lautenberg's term with the next election for this seat being held at its normal time in November 2014.

At the June 13 board meeting, freeholder Mohammed Jalloh said the freeholders decided they needed more information before laying out the $850,000 for the special election, but agreed to fund the special primary Aug. 13.

"We don't even know if we are going to get back any of this $850,000," he said, in an interview with LocalSource late last week.

Despite this decision, Jalloh made it clear the special election was a political decision from the governor.

"I don't want to disenfranchise voters. We would never do that," the freeholder said, adding this was a lot of money to approve for an election that was not necessary.

Jalloh also said the board questioned the need for a special election when a general election loomed just three weeks later, but they did not completely rule out paying for it.

The county freeholder board is not the only one questioning the timing and cost of the October special election. Throughout the state, Democrats have objected to the date, citing the possibility of voter suppression, the cost, and strain on election officials to turnaround another election in three weeks as serious concerns.

Holding the special election in October also rules out Newark Mayor and Democratic Senate candidate Corey Booker from sharing the same ballot as Gov. Chris Christie in November. The governor is seeking a second term in the November election, but Republicans are also concerned about the fact that all 120 legislative seats are up. This means that control of the state legislature is up for grabs and that is critical to both parties if they want any of their initiatives approved.

Christie has maintained the issues facing the U.S. Senate are too critically important, the decisions too vital, not to have an elected representative in Washington making these decisions for New Jersey. The governor also did not care about the cost and said so at press conferences when the announcement was made.

"I don't know what the cost is and I quite frankly don't care," he said recently, adding that all people in the state would benefit from the special election. While Christie acknowledged that he could have scheduled the special election at the same time as the Nov. 5 general election, he insisted he was acting as quickly as possible so voter voices could be heard.

Linden comes to terms with cops, will not have layoffs

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

LINDEN — It's over. Monday night, city police voted 57 to 26 in favor of an agreement that will prevent 20 to 30 officers from being laid off Aug. 1.

The agreement between the two will go a long way to reducing the $1.2 million the city is over the cap, but not all.

Furloughs and a garbage tax was thought to be a given if the city was going to be able to slash all of the $1.2 million, but the latest word is these particular issues are "still being debated."

The agreement came after months of wrangling and misunderstandings by both the city and police as they struggled to strike some kind of a deal between the police and city. As the days dwindled and it became more apparent the city would have to move forward with laying off police, neither seemed willing to bend until this week. But both sides agreed they were happy the long siege was over.

"I'm just glad we were able to work out an agreement in the best interest of our officers and the city of Linden," said PBA Local 42 President Joe Birch, a detective in the Linden Police force. Mayor Rich Gerbounka was equally pleased, given the number of officers that would have lost their jobs as of Aug. 1.

"We appreciate the hard work of Joe Birch and hopefully now we can move forward and dig ourselves out of this mess," said the mayor, adding that the "dealmaker" was the PBA agreeing to an extra year on their contract until 2014.

"Without that extra year in their contract we would have seen massive layoffs in the police department," the mayor said. He also noted that four of the six recruits the city was paying to attend the police academy will

Springfield had a 'good year,' says mayor as budget is wrapped up

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD — The township managed to deliver a tight budget this year that minimized the tax burden on residents while still developing new revenue streams and staying very close to 2012 budget levels.

It was a good year for Springfield, according to Democrat Mayor David Amlen, whose party controls the township committee 4-to-1 this year. In part, he attributes this to taking a hard stance when it came to increases that were not critical to the township, while ensuring the municipality was prepared in case of another major emergency hits like superstorm Sandy.

The $29,713,758 budget, $21.5 million supported by local taxes, increased by only $384,662, compared to last year when the final number came to $29,329,096.

This reflected a .18 percent increase per average household for the year, or $5.85 for the average homeowner with a house assessed at $160,000.

The 2013 budget also left $2.9 million in surplus, which is important for the township bond rating should an emergency arise and the municipality needs money in excess of surplus funds.

The township received $1.7 million in state aid, the same as 2012, but grant money was down, going from $80,603 to $32,997. Overall, though, township revenues increased, going up from $6.9 million in 2012 to $7.3 million this year.

Included among these revenues was the $200,000 the township received from Red Light camera fines after the state and courts received their share.

Among the expenses impacting the 2013 budget included $3.8 million, or an 11 percent increase in medical insurance for employees, $2.2 million, or a 7.9 percent increase for Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority, and $1.3 million, or a 2.1 percent increase for police and fire retirements.

The township earmarked $2.6 million for capital improvements, including new road paving, flood prevention improvements, new police and fire equipment, downtown redevelopment efforts and storm preparedness.

Although there were $650,000 in expenses from superstorm Sandy, Amlen said he was pleased taxpayers were not impacted more.

The nearly .02 percent increase the average homeowner will see, though, only reflected the impact local municipal taxes will have, not the total tax impact when school and county taxes are included.

According to Township Administrator Anthony Cancro, overall, when these three portions were compiled, local taxes came to 32 percent, county taxes 19 percent and the schools 49 percent. Cancro felt that in the end everyone worked together to present taxpayers with the best possible budget for 2013.

"It's a tight budget, but a responsible one," Cancro said in an interview late last week, pointing out that no services were

According to township officials, Springfield managed to deliver a tight budget this year that minimized the tax burden on residents while still developing new revenue streams and staying very close to 2012 budget levels. The $29,713,758 budget increased by only $384,662.

disrupted to residents, and police, fire and emergency management also remained completely intact.

Making this an especially important year is the fact the township managed to include $2.6 million for infrastructure improvements, which are needed in the municipality. Included was new road and paving improvements, dike and flood prevention upgrades, sewer improvements, storm preparedness, recreation center restoration, pool filter replacement, new police and fire equipment and continued downtown redevelopment efforts.

After superstorm Sandy hit the area late last October, Canero said township officials and emergency management personnel focused on where the municipality needed to make improvements. This was done with an eye towards being better prepared in case a similar storm hits the area again.

Setting aside money for generators for the municipal building and other township buildings that could possibly be used for shelters is one thing the township decided was a priority.

"We found out during Sandy that the generators we had for the municipal building didn't power it enough, so we are cor-

City asks Trenton to deny Elizabeth school budget

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

ELIZABETH — The city council feels the school district budget is an excessive burden on taxpayers, but the school district did not agree at all.

To ensure their point got across, the council passed a nonbinding resolution requesting the school district take a closer look at cutting their budget. To ensure they do, the council reinforced that message by sending a letter to New Jersey Department of Education Commissioner Chris Cerf, saying the 7.5 percent school tax increase of $3.6 million was "unjustly imposed" on taxpayers.

"The city is responsible for the health, safety, and welfare of its residents and is outraged with subsidizing the Elizabeth Board of Education spending habits, especially outside classroom expenses including promotional self-serving pictorial banners and brochures."

Calling the move by the school district "unconscionable," City Council member Patricia Perkins Auguste admitted at a council meeting last week she was shocked at the increase.

"I can't believe they can go above the 2 percent cap," she said, adding this was "pilfering our residents."

The cap, which is imposed by the state, is a safety net to ensure municipalities and school districts do not increase taxes by more than a certain percentage.

When asked about the 7.6 percent increase in school taxes, Mayor Chris Bollwage did not hold back.

"In order to fund the lunch scandal they raised taxes," the mayor said, adding "the board of education has no conscience when it comes to protecting taxpayers."

"I'm hopeful the state does not approve their budget," Bollwage added.

Residents with a home assessed at $33,000 will see an increase of $200 in their school tax bill.

Elizabeth Chief Financial Officer Tony Zengaro told council members it was "disheartening" to see that kind of an increase from the school district when the city has worked hard to stay below the 2 percent state-imposed cap.

"My point is the $3.6 million increase is just one-half of a percent of their total budget," he said, adding "we simply can't afford it."

On the other hand, School District Board Secretary Don Goncalves pointed out the district had not raised taxes in several years. However, he did mention that increasing enrollment, longer school days and the cost of health benefits were to blame for the 7.5 percent increase in the 2013 school budget. Goncalves was correct about the school district tax levy increases remaining stable, but since the 2010-2011 school budget year the school budget increased by close to $90 million to $500.1 million for 2013-14. Of that amount, though, $417.1 million was funded by federal and state aid.

Goncalves also explained that over the last 16 years the city increased their tax levy by $85 million, compared to the school district levy which only increased by $10 million during the same period of time.

The board secretary also said the school district prepared its budget according to the guidelines put out by the New Jersey Department of Education Office of School finance.

"Our budget is also submitted for approval to the Union County Executive County Superintendent and Union County Business Administrator," Goncalves said, suggesting the city council may not understand what the school district is allowed to leave outside the 2 percent cap.

"It appears city hall might not be aware of the process incorporated into the Enrollment Adjustment and Health Care Costs Adjustment included in the 2013-2014 District tax levy cap calculation when they claim 'why the Elizabeth Board of Education is exempt from the cap imposed on all

On final day in office, generator mess put to rest

Outgoing prosecutor closes the book on 'generatorgate' as he hands over the reigns to his replacement

By Cheryl Hehl Staff Writer

The investigation into who took home generators following superstorm Sandy is completed and no criminal wrongdoing was found. However, neither the prosecutor's office nor the county will release the names of those involved.

Last week the prosecutor's office finished its inquiry into the matter that has dragged on for almost seven months, on the final day in office for former prosecutor Theodore Romankow, who has now been replaced by Grace Park.

And while it was expected the infamous "list" of names would be revealed, neither the prosecutor's office nor county officials would release the information because it involved "personnel." The entire matter has now been handed over to Union County Manager Al Faella for "administrative action."

County Communications Director Sebastian D'Elia said Tuesday that because the matter involved personnel, the names of those involved could not be released. Neither would information involving any possible disciplinary action levied on the employees in question be revealed.

According to a source working for the county who is knowledgeable about disciplinary action that could be taken, Faella could impose suspensions as a result of findings by the prosecutor's office.

Prior to leaving on June 16, former prosecutor Ted Romankow noted the report was completed and the results of the inquiry were sent to the New Jersey Attorney General's office, Division of Criminal Justice, for review.

The former prosecutor said the state agreed with the results of their inquiry into the matter and recommended the county deal with the problem administratively.

According to Romankow, Faella received the report last week, explaining it was highly unlikely the issue would be brought into the public domain again.

From the start, the prosecutor's office maintained they only had a list of four or five names, but that number increased as the months went by. At one point Romankow said there "could" be as many as 10 to 12 county employees involved.

Adding to the mystery was that a Cranford blogger and activist claimed on a local website that she had the names of 16 to 20 employees who took home generators. Romankow, despite issuing a subpoena to the blogger and going through a three day hearing, was unable to obtain the additional names.

The prosecutor would only say, just days before leaving, that his office found there was no criminal wrong doing since many of those involved had permission from their superiors to take the generators in question home. He also said he could not confirm nor deny the names of departments heads obtained by LocalSource from multiple sources.

According to a county source close to the inquiry, there were two types of generators taken home by county employees. One was the larger generator, which is used to keep traffic signals going during a power outage, but has to be hauled on a trailer, and a smaller version that is easily transported in a regular automobile.

Several months ago the county received an anonymous list of employees who allegedly took home generators after the storm. This list of names was forwarded to the prosecutors office, which Localsource confirmed.

Following this, multiple sources, all who are employed by the county but are unknown to one another, provided information about the names on the list.

After investigating the matter and having these names confirmed by multiple sources from the county and prosecutor's office, LocalSource was able to confirm four of the employees on the list.

Included was high ranking department heads from the Union County Department of Public Safety, Department of Engineering, Public Works and Facilities, a county jail employee who recently ran for sheriff in the primary, and a sheriff's department employee with 30 years tenure who retired shortly after it was discovered he took home a generator.

Included among these employees from the Division of Police was Chief Daniel Vaniska. Also on the list was Director of Facilities Management Neil Palmieri and county jail employee Rich Purchell, who recently challenged Sheriff Ralph Froehlich in the primary and lost.

Although Froehlich would not confirm that one of his employees at the time, Barry Miglore, a veteran captain with 30 years employment with the department, took home a smaller generator for personal use, another department employee verified that he did. This also was confirmed by multiple other sources at the county level.

According to one source, Miglore only had the generator for a matter of hours before it was returned. Shortly afterward, he retired from the department.

It is unknown how many names were on the final list the prosecutor's office investigated, or what was discovered about how the generators were used.

Electronics recycling event to be held in Scotch Plains at Vo-Tech school, June 22

Union County will sponsor a recycling event for electronic equipment on Saturday, June 22, so Union County residents can get rid of unwanted computers, televisions and other electronic equipment in an environmentally proper manner.

The special E-cycling event will take place from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Union County Vo-Tech Schools campus located at 1776 Raritan Road in Scotch Plains.

All residents of Union County are eligible to participate at no cost. There is a limit of six electronic items per car.

Electronic equipment that will be accepted on June 22 includes computer monitors, hard drives, modems, keyboards, CPU's, mice, printers, scanners, speakers, televisions, tablets and e-readers, VCR's, fax machines, telephones, circuit boards, CD's, DVD's and video cassettes.

All that residents need to do is drive to the site with their unwanted electronic equipment.

Workers at the site will unload the vehicles.

Pre-registration is not required for this special Saturday collection.

Refrigerators, washers and dryers, microwaves, and air conditioners will not be accepted, but they are accepted at Union County's Scrap Metal Recycling Program.

A complete list of the materials that will be accepted on June 22 is available at the Union County Bureau of Recycling and Planning website at www.ucnj.org/recycle

The electronics collection will be held rain or shine, for Union County residents only and not for businesses. Proof of Union County residency is required.

In addition to the special June 22 recycling event sponsored by the County of Union, there are local businesses as well as 16 municipalities that provide E-cycling opportunities for residents.

Visit the website www.ucnj.org/recycle or call your municipal recycling coordinator for more computer and electronics recycling options.

For more information about recycling events, call the Union County Recycling Hotline at 908-654-9889.

City officials in Linden have come to terms with PBA members as the two sides managed to avoid 20 to 30 layoffs in the police department.

be brought aboard as previously planned prior to the the $1.2 million shortage.

Two of the six were snapped up by Rahway after it became apparent last month that Linden would not be able to offer the recruits positions as promised.

Although the governing body had yet to approve the agreement with the police, Tuesday morning Gerbounka said all council members were in favor of the concessions made on both sides and were ready to put their stamp of approval on the measure that evening.

The extra year, though, does have limitations. Although all officers agreed to delay their raises, it works out that only senior officers, those with more than eight years experience, will see a 1.9 percent raise in July 2014. All other members of the force will see incremental raises according to the eight step increment departmental process in effect.

Another hitch is that even though the police added a year on to their contract, the city can only guarantee there will not be any layoffs until July 2014.

"We can't guarantee their jobs after that," Gerbounka said, explaining that part of the agreement with the PBA and superior officers union was that there would not be any layoffs until that time.

The mayor preferred to call the give and take on both sides "deferments" rather than concessions, and he did note that in the end "this comes out a wash for the city."

Coming into play in the one year contract extension as of Jan. 1 2014 is the fact every employee, including all those in the police department, superiors officers included, have to begin paying 1.5 percent of their salary towards their health benefits.

This was state mandated by Gov. Chris Christie and went into effect in 2012, but was not applicable initially for all public employees, especially if they were unionized.

Meanwhile the issue of furloughs for the remainder of city employees is up in the air. Tuesday, Gerbounka said several members of council were not convinced furloughing city employees one day a week was the answer to the fiscal problems the city is having.

"We are still debating that issue and hopefully we will iron it all out one way or another," Gerbounka said.

The mayor and council are also still "debating" whether to charge property owners a fee for garbage removal. Although last week it appeared this was a go, this week the matter still had not received the council's approval.

SUMMIT NEWS

Summit offers free gun safety locks

In an effort to decrease the risk of both accidental, and in some instances, intentional gun violence, the Summit Police Department will distribute free, gun-safety locks to Summit residents who request them.

These cable-style, gun-locking devices are easy to use and effective at rendering weapons safe, and are an inexpensive way to prevent unnecessary tragedies.

To receive a free, gun-safety lock, visit the Summit Police Dispatch Center located in City Hall. No information will be asked of the individual.

The Summit Police Department frequently receives calls from residents who wish to turn in unwanted firearms or ammunition. Anyone wishing to dispose of a firearm or ammunition should call 908-273-0051; an officer will respond to the residence to pick up items and submit them for destruction.

The Gallery offers new exhibit through July 31

Summit Free Public Library and the Visual Arts Center of New Jersey announce an exhibition of paintings by Lynn Starun through July 31 in The Gallery at the Summit Free Public Library, 75 Maple St., Summit. The exhibit is open to the public during regular library hours.

Starun, of Summit, is originally from North Carolina. She was awarded a commission to paint two large panels for the children's section of the renovated Summit library and participated in a painting trip to Italy through NJCVA. Starun's most recent book, "Neither Here Nor There," consists of scenes familiar to travelers and commuters on New Jersey highways and trains.

Mayor happy with results of budget work

The township also is obtaining larger generators for the library and buildings used as a shelter during emergencies. Another potential problem was also addressed by a proactive move.

We also bought several inflatable boats that were funded by a state police grant," Cancro said, adding that now the township will be able to safely remove residents in peril when floodwaters rise to alarming and dangerous levels.

Another proactive move was to set aside money for stream cleaning and tackling sections of the river that were blocked by fallen trees and other debris during the storm.

"I think we did a good job with the budget this year and figured out how to make improvements that will benefit taxpayers," Amlen said.

School budget increase angers city officials

Goncalves also took issue with the fact that the city claimed it has "always complied with the 2 percent tax levy cap.'

"The city was allowed to exclude increase in pensions, health care costs, ratable adjustments and debt service," Goncalves said. He also questioned whether the city actually was within the 2 percent state cap "as they claim," and if the school districts increase would, in reality, have any impact on city operations.

"This is perplexing, especially when you look at the last 16 years where the city of Elizabeth has increased their tax levy amount by $85 million compared to the Elizabeth board of Education which increased only $10 million over the same period," the school board secretary said.

Goncalves said the district will be opening two new schools in Elmora Hills section of the city in September, which is a plus for

"We have sufficient performance data to highlight that under the stewardship of the present superintendent and board of education, the children of the city of Elizabeth continue to compete successfully within their peer group rankings as well as across many suburban schools throughout the state of New Jersey," he added.

Finally, Goncalves addressed the accusations made by the city council in regard to how the school district spent taxpayers'

"Any charges made by the City of Elizabeth as to their own budget are decisions they will need to make on their own, hopefully in the best interest of the taxpavers for the City of Elizabeth," the board secretary

"Their spending over the last ten years, their increasing debt service, their dramatic increases in sewer charges and other spending that takes place in the city hall or in the budget at large is not as a result of the board of education's budget. It is the result of the city council and mayor's budget," Goncalves said.

In an interview with LocalSource late last week, Zengaro said the school district has "some spending issues." As a result he sent a letter to Cerf regarding the matter, copying Gov. Chris Christie, Mayor Chris Bollwage, Democrat State Senator Ray Lesniak and Assemblyman Joe Cryan and other officials.

In the letter Zengaro explained the socioeconomic profile of the city's population "is weak, as reflected in the high poverty rate, persistently high unemployment and family income significantly below the state and national level."

The chief financial officer cited, for example, that in 2012 the poverty rate was 17.8 percent and unemployment was at 12.9 per-

Explaining to Cerf the board of education spending habits included wasting money on "self-serving pictorial banners and brochures," while the city maintained excellent services and stayed below the 2 percent state imposed cap. But in the end, it was the city that suffered.

Zengaro also informed the commissioner that as a result of the school district budget increase the city will be forced to layoff 30 public safety employees in the police and fire departments.

In closing, Zengaro suggested that since the $3.6 million school district increase reflected only one-half percent of the entire budget, the school board could benefit by operational efficiencies or the use of surplus to reduce the large increase that are above the 2 percent cap.

Goncalves, however, disagreed com-

The city's whole charge revolves around how the Elizabeth Board of Education supposedly is doing something wrong by exceeding the 2 percent cap and they are incredulous about it," the school board secretary said, adding the city, along with other municipalities, exceed the cap all the time.

Two scholars awarded $1,000

The Arthur L. Johnson High School Alumni Association presented two $1000 scholarships to deserving seniors at the Senior Awards Night program held at the high school Wednesday evening, June 12. The two recipients, Jaclyn Calo and Joseph Bonaccurso, met the criteria of achieving high academic standards and displaying leadership qualities in the school and community. Calo is planning to attend Ouinnipiac University in Connecticut, while Bonaccurso will be off to The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Delores Toth paid tribute to Susan Carovillano, who was instrumental in the formation of the scholarship fund. Carovillano's husband, Jim, presented one of the scholarships in his wife's memory, to Calo. President Art Lundgren presented the second award to Bonaccurso.

Principal Rick Delmonaco presented a plaque to the association bearing the names of this year's winners as well of the names of Loretta Vill and John Florentino, last year's recipients. The plaque will remain on display in the front hallway of the school as a reminder of the association's commitment to the school and its students.

Funding for the scholarships was raised at the annual scholarship luncheon, which was held in May at Bistro 1051 in Clark. More than 50 members were able to attend and many donations came from alumni who lived out-of-state or could not attend. The association thanks all its members who participated in this endeavor and encourages other graduates from the high school to register on the website, aljalumni.org.

Cranford PD recently honored in NJ Challenge

The Cranford Police Department was recently honored for its second-place finish in the New Jersey Law Enforcement Challenge, a competition between similar sizes and types of law-enforcement agencies that recognizes and rewards the best overall traffic-safety programs in the United States.

The areas of concentration include efforts to enforce laws and educate the public about occupant protection, impaired driving, and speeding. The winning safety programs combine officer training, public information, and enforcement to reduce crashes and injuries within their jurisdiction. Cranford saw a 14-percent decrease in overall crashes in 2012.

The Cranford Police Department also finished the competition with the thirdhighest overall score for all department categories. For placing third overall, the department received a portable Drager Alcotest 6510 screener, which is valued at $450. In addition, the whole department will be trained on the use of the device at no

The Law Enforcement Challenge is financed through a grant awarded to the International Association of Chiefs of Police by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Both organizations believe an increase in traffic enforcement in a community results in a decrease in motor vehicle crashes, injuries, and fatalities.

Shakespeare theater present two shows in July

The Shakespeare Theatre of New Jersey's Next Stage Ensemble will present two, live performances in July: Ovid's "Metamorphoses" on Monday, July 8; and Shakespeare's "Henry V" on Wednesday, July 17. Both performances begin at 7:30 p.m., and are one-hour adaptations.

The plays will be staged at the Trinity Episcopal Church, 119 Forest Ave. in Cranford. Admission is free and all are welcome.

For more information about the performances, call Cranford Public Library at 908-709-7272 and ask for John Malar. For more information about the Shakespeare Theatre of New Jersey, visit www.shakespeareni.org.

'Historical' garage sale

The Cranford Historical Society hosts a fundraiser garage sale Saturday, June 22, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Crane-Phillips House Museum, 124 N. Union Ave. in

This fundraiser benefits the purchase of a miniature barn to be placed at the Crane-Phillips House Museum. The barn is in memory of Donald Widdows, a member and former trustee of the Historical Society.

For more information about the garage sale, call 908-447-6994. For information on the Cranford Historical Society, visit www.cranfordhistoricalsociety.com or call 908-276-0082.

Program will take a look at Spielberg, June 27

Chris Messineo, director of the New Jersey Film School, will present "Steven Spielberg: Through the Eyes of a Child" on Thursday, June 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Cranford Community Center, 224 Walnut Ave.

Messineo will present scenes from Close Encounters of the Third Kind, E.T., Empire of the Sun and Jurassic Park to illustrate how several Spielberg films tell their stories from a child's perspective.

Admission to the program is free and all are welcome. For more information about the program, call Cranford Public Library at 908-709-7281.

Friends seeking donations

The Friends of the Cranford Public Library are currently seeking donations of books, DVDs, CDs, and recorded books for the upcoming sale in the Friendly Book Cellar of the Cranford Public Library, 224 Walnut Ave. Hours are: Thursday and Friday, June 6 and 7, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; and Saturday, June 8, 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Donated items must be clean and in good condition. Donations can be brought to the library's main desk.

OPINION

Cell phone bill is a bad call

EDITORIAL

Legislation proposed by state Sen. James Holzapfel, R-Ocean, would allow police officers to automatically confiscate the cell phone of a driver involved in an accident if the officer suspects that driver had been texting or talking on the phone just prior to the accident. The officer could then review the phone's history to see if the phone had been in use at the time of the accident.

New Jersey already has laws in place — among the strictest in the nation — which prohibit texting or talking on a cell phone while driving. So this bill would simply allow police officers to enforce that law, right? Wrong, says the American Civil Liberties Union, which considers the proposed law an infringement upon the privacy of state residents. And rightly so.

The concern the ACLU has expressed is that personal information could be accessed by the police from the cell phones, information for which both the state and federal constitutions require probable cause before such a search is authorized by the courts. In fact, it was for this very reason a similar bill never made it past the Hawaiian Legislature or then-Gov. Linda Lingle.

There are other problems with this legislation as well. If more than one person were inside the vehicle when it had the accident, there is no way of knowing for certain who had been using the phone at the time. It could have been a passenger on the cell phone when the accident occurred. And given the current technology of some cell phones, a savvy driver might be able to delete the recent call history of the phone before handing it over to the officer

But let's look for a moment at the concerns of the ACLU, specifically, the infringement on the privacy of state residents. This is in reference to the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which states, "The rights of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized."

That's quite a mouthful, but what does it mean?

The Fourth Amendment was written in response to British officers in the 1760s who were using general warrants to conduct raids and searches. It grew so widespread and invasive that on Feb. 23, 1761, James Otis, representing 50 merchants, denounced British Colonial policies, including their sanction of general warrants and writs of assistance. John Adams himself viewed these events as "the spark which originated the American Revolution."

Since that time, and the subsequent passage of the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights, several precedents have been set that have further clarified our "rights." In Katz v. United States, 1967, the Supreme Court ruled that a search occurs when a person expects privacy in the thing searched, and society believes that expectation is reasonable. In United States v. Jones, 2012, the Supreme Court ruled that, in addition to the Katz standard, a search occurs when law enforcement trespasses on the property of the person being searched. Holzapfel's bill is an end run around the very protections our Constitution and courts have established.

While the intention of Holzapfel's bill may be a noble one — to judiciously assign fault in a traffic accident — it causes more problems than it solves. First, it runs counter to our Fourth Amendment rights. And second, the police should be able to secure all the information they need regarding the driver's cell-phone use by properly obtaining a search warrant, for either the phone itself or the records of the phone company. We're all concerned about the menace of distracted drivers, of course, but in our efforts to put an end to that practice, let's stick with the laws now on the books that not only work but are in conformance with our constitutional rights.

An action and a reaction

This Sunday the congregation members of the Summit Jewish Community Center will partake in a symbolic procession walk to the entrance of their newly dedicated sanctuary. Undoubtedly, the 300-plus members will marvel at the work of top flight architect Alex Gorlin.

The congregation was in desperate need of a new facility. The necessity to hold services at Summit High School and the overcrowding of the kids day care running into senior activities will now be just a memory.

For Richard Barron, who oversaw the construction, the walk will also give him pause to reflect on the history of a project which had its start back to 2002. It's become a fact of life, that in our densely populated area, zoning changes have an action and reaction in life.

Barron, an advertising executive, acknowledges he "learned a whole lot more about wetlands and zoning matters than I ever though would be necessary."

LEFT OUT

BY FRANK CAPECE

Barron, who served two terms as the leader of the congregation, took on the task of the new construction. He learned quickly about the challenges of replacing an unforeseen oil tank. There was the opposition of neighbors, parking calculations and the litigation that are part of the process.

There were actually two separate litigation matters in Union County Superior Court during the journey of the project to resolve zoning issues.

At the other end of the County, Linden officials got the word that the State Appellate Division had rejected the most recent challenge by ShopRite to thwart the proposed development of the former General Motors site on Route 1.

The site is a keystone of the economic redevelopment plan in the city. Officials envision the 45 acres will bring a Walmart, Lowes and 2.5 acres to allow multi-unit residential development. On the western portion of the property their will be new warehouse facilities.

Don't underestimate the warehouse aspect. Marc Petrella, a Senior Director at Cushman & Wakefield, speaks about the rapidly expanding need in the area for warehouse space. He calls the area between Port Elizabeth and Linden "ground zero" in terms of need. His company sees as much as a 30 percent increase in square foot

The ShopRite opposition to the project first surfaced at the very end of 2008. Challenges to procedural issues such as notice were ultimately dismissed by the State Appellate Division in 2011. A second law suit at the end of 2011, including issues of notification, was rejected by the Superior Court and ShopRite proceeded to the State Appellate Division where they lost last week.

In a sternly worded opinion, the three Court Appellate panel said, "ShopRite has not raised any new substantive issues that have already been considered and resolved by our opinion in ShopRite. We find its efforts to convince us that there are additional issues to be unconvincing."

Speaking last weekend, Richard Barron accentuated the positive aspect of the long legal battles. Diplomatically he said the completed center will end parking woes in the area and be an attractive addition to the community. Interestingly, he also referenced his personal increased passion for his faith during the legal journey.

Mayor Richard Gerbounka, a long time critic of the long delay in the Linden project, said he was "pleased with the decision of the appellate division" but added he fully expected ShopRite to cause more delays with appeals.

There was no discernable finding of any newfound faith process in Gerbounka's answers from the experience.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Where were all the flags? To the Editor:

I was pleased to read your editorial regarding flag day, June 14. Unfortunately, the TV stations did not provide much coverage and the lack of seeing the flag displayed on Friday was disappointing. The same can be said for Memorial Day. Your article by Cheryl Hehl remembering our service men and women should have encouraged the display of our flag in their honor. The absence of the flag on this day was also very upsetting.

As we approach July 4, I would hope that all news and TV media would remind citizens that flying our flag is a patriotic gesture recognizing our appreciation for living in the greatest country in the world.

July 4 is a great holiday with many patriotic festivities and I would ask all Union County residents to fly the American Flag and enjoy the reason why we celebrate our independence.

Become an advocate for the locally vulnerable

To the Editor:

Every day across the country and in our own community, vulnerable elderly people are being abused, neglected and financially exploited.

As New Jersey's Long Term Care Ombudsman, I oversee a state- and federally-funded program that advocates for elderly people living in long-term care facilities, like nursing homes and assisted living residences.

While the care and treatment of elderly individuals in long-term care facilities is strictly regulated and is mostly quite beneficial, these facilities are not exempt from incidents of abuse, neglect and exploitation.

Indeed, anywhere you have extremely vulnerable people, there is the potential for serious abuse. That is why I urge anyone who is truly concerned about elder abuse and exploitation to call my office at 609-826-5053 to find out how to become a Volunteer Advocate in a local nursing home.

Volunteer Advocates receive 32 hours of training and are asked to spend four hours a week at a local nursing home, listening to resident's concerns and advocating on their behalf

We have a critical need for volunteers in the northeastern part of the state, especially in Hudson, Essex and Union counties. In Hudson County, there are 17 nursing homes but we have just nine volunteers. In Essex County, we have 34 facilities with 15 volunteers and in Union county, 23 facilities but only 12 volunteers.

The need is clearly there. If you are interested in having a direct impact on the lives of elderly citizens in nursing homes, please consider becoming a Volunteer Advocate.

'Occupy Lenape' at the Casano Community Center

"Occupy Lenape" at the Casano Community Center Art Gallery is a solo photography exhibit by artist photographer Michele McGlynn LoManto which highlights the entomology and ornithology of Lenape Park. The exhibit can be seen June 17 through Aug. 23. The Art Gallery is located in the Casano Community Center, 314 Chestnut St., Roselle Park. There will be a reception to meet the artist on Wednesday, June 26, from 6 to 8 p.m. The Casano Community Center and the Art Gallery hours are Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Friday until 5 p.m.

LoManto spent the past year happily documenting the many species of birds, insects and mammals that inhabit and migrate through 450 acres of the Rahway River watershed. Lenape Park is one of three local Union County parks that consist of wetlands, meadows, forests, ponds, rivers and creeks.

LoManto's interest in photography began in 1967. She studied Fine Arts at Kean University and applies the aesthetic discipline to her craft.

She spent a year journaling her photography on a Scotland based world-wide community website called Blipfoto and has shown her work in the "Female Eye" exhibit at the William J. Brennan Court House Gallery in Jersey City and the "Go Figure" exhibit at the SMI Virginia S. Block Gallery in Montclair. LoManto's photography remix submissions to WNYC's Studio 360 received a staff pick favorite and an honorable mention from artists Jerry Uelsmann and Maggie Taylor.

LoManto frequently shares her photography and sightings with Butterflies and Moths of North America and the Cornell Lab of Ornithology. The National Audubon Society recently featured LoManto's photographs on their Facebook website and her comment about "Why Birds Matter" can be found in the April issue of Audubon Maga-

Holy Trinity church celebrates 120 years

Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Springfield celebrated its 120th anniversary Sunday, June 2 at the Galloping Hill Caterers in Union.

The church was organized June 3, 1893 by Slovak Lutherans who had immigrated to the Newark area. They were led by the Rev. Dr. Ludwig Novemesky, who became the church's first pastor. The congregation worshiped monthly in the homes of its members for the first nine years, and later did so in German churches.

Pastor Novemesky retired in 1928 and the Rev. John Gustav Chernansky, who had served as an assistant to Novemesky, was called as the second pastor of Holy Trinity.

As the congregation grew, a church was eventually erected in Newark on the corner of Avon Ayenue and South 14th Street in 1930. After Pastor Chernansky retired in 1959, the Rev. Paul Baranek was then called to serve as the third pastor of Holy Trinity.

After 40 years in the Newark location, the congregation moved to Tucker Avenue near the Five Points area in Union in 1970. Again, a new church and parsonage were constructed. Eventually the members paid off the mortgages on both buildings through member donations.

Pastor Baranek resigned in 1980 after serving for 21 years, and went to serve missionary projects for the Lutheran Church in America. The Rev. Dr. Milan Andrew Ontko was then called to serve as the fourth pastor of Holy Trinity. He retired after 13 years; only four pastors served the congregation of Holy Trinity during a whole century.

After Pastor Ontko retired, the congregation was served by Pastors Thomas Bagel and Leah Lavelle, and by interim pastors, until the church closed in July 2011. It was eventually sold by the Slovak Zion Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

The congregation has found another location in Springfield, where it now conducts worship services. Holy Trinity is now an independent Lutheran congregation that has straddled three centuries.

Book sale, Aug. 8

The Friends of the Springfield Public Library will hold the annual Book Sale from Aug. 8 to 11 at Springfield Free Public Library, 66 Mountain Ave., Springfield. A preview sale for members is Thursday, Aug. 8, from 10 a.m. to noon. Memberships will be accepted the day of the sale. The public sale begins Aug. 8 at noon. Sale hours are: Aug. 8, from noon to 4 p.m.; Aug. 9 and 10, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. A bag sale will be Sunday, Aug. 11, noon to 4 p.m.

The Friends Annual Jewelry Sale will be Oct. 18 to 20, with a preview sale for members Oct. 17.

Those interested in volunteering for the sale may contact Bill Holmes at 973-379-9637 or global3032@yahoo.com.

Lunchtime film series: 'Books into Films,' June 24

Springfield Free Public Library, 66 Mountain Ave., Springfield, will begin a new, lunchtime film series, "Books Into Films: John Grisham Novels," on Monday, June 24. This series will continue every other week through Monday, Sept. 16.

Admission is free. Patrons can bring a brown bag lunch to the program. For more information about the films, stop by the library or call 973-376-4930.

Cannon Ball House opens its doors, June 23

Springfield's historic Cannon Ball House, located at 126 Morris Ave., will hold an open house Sunday, June 23, from 2 to 4 p.m., commemorating the 233rd anniversary of the Battle of Springfield, the final, major battle of the Revolutionary War to be fought in the northern Colonies.

Artifacts from the battle are on display at the CBH, including the missile which gave the structure its name. With this open house, the CBH begins a series of exhibits centered around the founding families of Springfield, beginning with the Quinzel family. Most items will not have been previously exhibited to the public. Also on display at the house are the letters of Wellington Briant, depicting his Civil War adventures.

For more information, call 973-376 4784.

Library looking for green thumbs to tend to garden

Springfield Free Public Library, located at 66 Mountain Ave., is looking for volunteers with a love of gardening to tend the library's flower beds this summer.

Volunteers are being sought at this time to take over tasks that for many years have been performed by members of the Springfield Garden Club. In addition to finding a highly visible outlet for their horticultural creativity, volunteers have the satisfaction of doing their part to keep the library looking beautiful.

For more information about becoming a library garden volunteer, call Dale Spindel, the Library director, at 973-376-4930.

LANGUAGE BARRIER CROSSED — On Wednesday, May 29, two students from the Linden Public Schools were recognized by the New Jersey professional organization of ESL and Bilingual teachers. Valeshka Parraguez, a fourth-grade student in Amanda Cortinas' ESL classroom at School 8 was granted a $100 gift for her composition about the importance of being bilingual in the United States. Andrea Cano Sanchez, a 12th-grade student in William Simonitis' ESL course was awarded a $1,500 scholarship that she will use towards her tuition at NJIT, where she plans to study civil engineering beginning in July.

So you say it's your birthday?

John Roy Hayes, Sr., born June 17, 1913 has been a longtime resident of Union County: since 1920. And he recently celebrated his 100th birthday. Hayes was a devoted husband for over 50 years to Genevieve Hayes and continues to be a loving father to his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Over the years, he has been chairman of the Deacon Board at Macedonia Christian Church, a Union Township Auxiliary Police sergeant, and one of the oldest Harley Davidson Motorcycle Riders, among many other noteworthy accomplishments. Hayes' favorite saying is 'I'm Still Kicking' and his family and friends have been celebrating his life all week.

ROSELLE PARK NEWS

Cruisin' through Roselle Park, June 22. with block party, classic cars

This year the "Cruisin' Night" car show hosted by Mayor Joseph Accardi and the Roselle Park Borough Council returns Saturday, June 22, from 3 to 8 p.m. as part of SummerFest's "Downtown Cruisin' Block Party." The rain date is Saturday, June 29.

The "Block Party" starts at 3 p.m. on Chestnut Street and will feature a raffle, oldies music by disc jockey Hot Rod Mike, entertainment by Roselle Park's Park Karate and Kenilworth's Fusion Dance Centre. There will be a "kids pavilion" inside the Michael J. Mauri Gazebo with temporary tattoos, balloons, a clown and more. Business owners along Chestnut Street are welcome to have a sidewalk sale and other businesses in town may set up a table in the gazebo park to showcase their establishment during the car show. Food will also be available.

Step back in time and check out one-of-a-kind collector cars from across the region. The car show, starting at 5 p.m., will take place on Chestnut Street from Warren Avenue to Grant Avenue with the overflow going into the Michael J. Mauri Gazebo Park, on the corner of Chestnut Street and Grant Avenue. Registration of participating vehicles must be no later than a hour after the start of the show. Everyone is invited to bring old or new cars, trucks and motorcycles. Trophies will be awarded.

Anyone interested in sponsoring a trophy, being a vendor, or for more information on the events, call 908-245-0666.

The second Cruisin' Car show and "Downtown Cruisin' Block Party" will take place Sept. 14.

Stay updated on upcoming SummerFest events by visiting the website, www.summerfestrosellepark.word-press.com and sign up to be on the mailing list.

Police in Union County respond to many incidents

Linden

· June 12: At 11:15 p.m., officers responded to the 1100 block of Passaic Avenue on a report of shots being fired. Responding officers were told that there was a group of people on the street and three shots were heard. The group then scattered. Officers stopped a car leaving the area without headlights but soon determined that it had nothing to do with the incident. Minutes later, a woman who lives on the second floor of a residence on the 1100 block called police and told them she found a bullet in a bedroom of her house, police said. Officers later found two additional holes in the aluminum siding in the front of the house. Earlier, at 9:15 p.m., there was a report of shots fired at East Henry and McCandless Streets, however, officers could not locate anything. The investigation is continuing by the Police Department's Detective Bureau. Anyone who may have information on this incident is asked to call Detective Ken Mikolajczyk at 908-474-8542 or via email at crimetips@police.lindenes-nj.org.

Roselle Park

• June 6: Roxanne Williams, 51, of Vauxhall, was arrested by patrolman Vaughan at the Middlesex County Jail on a Roselle Park warrant. Williams was unable to post $750 bail and was placed in the Union County Jail.

· June 6: Joshua Rivera, 24, of Trenton, was arrested by patrolman Rapach during a suspicious person investigation. Police responded to the 100 block of Pershing Avenue for a report that an individual was sitting on someone's porch without permission. At the scene, Rivera was found with a $348 Trenton warrant and a $89 Hamilton warrant, police say. Rivera was arrested and later released after posting bail.

• June 6: Francisco Zamora, 25, of Elizabeth, was arrested by Sgt. Frino during a traffic stop on Linden Road. According to police, Zamora was found in possession of a metal smoking pipe and was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

• June 6: Michael Ann Catalano, 22, of Elizabeth, was arrested by Sgt. Wintermute at the Millburn Police Department. According to police, a $500 Roselle Park warrant was issued for her on June 3 for criminal mischief. Catalano is charged with damaging a motor vehicle with a golf club on the 400 block of Chestnut Street.

• June 7: Carnell Baskerville, 24, of Roselle, was arrested by patrolman Vaughan during a traffic stop for a $200 Secaucus warrant. Baskerville was released after posting bail.

Freeholders withhold funds for special election

"I will not permit the insiders and a few party elites to determine who the nominee of the Republican party and the Democratic party will be," he said at a recent news conference when the issue came up. Freeholder Christopher Hudak saw things differently.

"The governor has arbitrarily set an election date to benefit himself and his party. He has put that above the ability of the New Jersey voters to have a good and fair process," he said, explaining the board does not object to the August special primary because it will allow voter to designate party nominees. But when it came to the special election, that raised his ire.

"This has placed a burden on counties and municipalities for what really amounts to a temper tantrum of 'I want what I want when I want it,' and that is unfair," Hudak added.

However, the governor is within his legal right to hold the special election and a state superior court upheld that recently when they ruled he was within his power to set the date for the special election 20 days before the general election.

Jalloh, on the other hand, had a more serious concern.

"This is a financial hardship for us," he said, pointing out that while the county has to pay more than $850,000 for both the Oct, 16 election and special primary in August, the cost to taxpayers throughout the state is estimated at around $24 million.

"That is $1.7 million for our county alone for these two elections," the free-holder added, noting this was the reason the board held off on funding the Oct. 16 election. But he was not ruling out a change of heart later.

"At this point we don't know if we will or not, but we are hoping the governor will reconsider his decision," said Jalloh, mentioning that the last time the county had to pay for a special election was in 2008 when voters had to decide if they wanted Barack Obama or Hillary Clinton on the ballot for president.

"It took seven months for us to get reimbursed for that special election," he added, noting that without some assurance from the governor that the county would be getting back even half the cost, the board could not, in good faith, expend that amount of money.

Hudak, though, was not as optimistic about the county getting a fast turnaround on taxpayer dollars expended on the special election.

"I'm not holding my breath for a speedy reimbursement or an assurance we will even get one," the freeholder said.

"Yesterday just wasn't the day to do that," Jalloh said the day after the board decided not to approve the $850,000 for the Oct. 16 special election.

"Quite frankly the governor has not articulated why it has to be a special election when this senate seat could be put on the Nov. 5 ballot," Jalloh said.

Union County Freeholders recently voted to refuse to fund the special election created by Gov. Chris Christie following the death of Sen. Frank Lautenberg, saying the governor's decision is purely a political one and a waste of taxpayer money. The board has decided to fund the special primary in August.

"This is blindsiding us after catching us completely off guard," the freeholder added, bringing up how difficult it would be for the county board of election personnel to hold the election just three weeks after the special election.

No one is more aware of this than Dennis Kobitz, the Administrator for the Union County Board of Elections, who also is President of the New Jersey Association of Election Officers. Kobitz has been in touch with board of election officials in other counties throughout the state and he said they all are echoing his concerns.

"The problem is multi-faceted," Kobitz explained Friday in an interview, pointing to not only the difficulty of getting 427 election machines programmed in the three weeks between the two elections, but also the legal complexities involved with any election.

"The machines are automatically impounded for 15 days after an election in case there is a challenge," he said, adding that he would have to obtain a court order to release the machines so they can be recalibrated for the general election Nov. 5. That alone presents the possibility of a major problem for election officials in the state

"Because there is only three weeks between elections, it is a huge task getting these machines programmed for the general election," Kobitz said, adding that this is a monumental task for his staff of six.

"There are a lot of people on the ballot in November," he said, pointing out that not only is there a large number of candidates in many towns, but the fact board of education candidates are also on the ballot.

Kobitz said towns like Hillside have races for mayor, council, school board, freeholder, state legislative seats and the governor race.

"We have to upload all of these and check each button on all 427 machines to make sure they are all working prior to the election," he said, pointing out that in Elizabeth alone there are 14 people running in the school board election. And then there is the problem of ensuring he has enough staff aboard to get the job done.

"I have six people certified now, but some counties, like Somerset, have only two," Kobitz said, adding "this never, ever, has happened before."

"If the Oct. 16 senate race election is close and anyone asks for a recount, the machines would not be ready for the Nov. 5 election," he said, explaining the only solution if this should occur would be to go to paper ballots.

"The state is concerned, too," Kobitz said, mentioning that as the president of the NJAEO he was asked to gather the comments of election officials throughout the state together on this matter.

"I'm doing that now, but I don't understand why the governor is doing this," the election official added, but pointed out that regardless what happens, "we will get the job done, we always do."

According to National Journal.com, an online political news source, estimates for the cost of the special election for New Jersey taxpayers does not come cheap.

For example, it will cost $4 to $5 million just for poll worker salaries for each election throughout the state. This number is based on the 6,542 polling places for 2013, the minimum number of workers, four per polling place, and the $200 fee paid to each. Then there is another $6.5 million needed for ballot printing and postage, processing, legal advertising, polling place rental and voting machine delivery per each special election. When all tallied up, the final number is around $23.8 million statewide for the August primary and October special election.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sucoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already proviced in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Swiss Chard with Carrots and Pecans

As it gets really hot, sometimes it's just easier to make a quick stir fry for dinner. Swiss chard is plentiful during the warm weather; it's also healthy, versatile and delicious. Throw in some seasonings, nuts and carrots and you have a beautiful side dish. Add in some more protein with the nuts and it can be your main dish. Enjoy!

Ingredients

- 4 cups washed and chopped Swiss chard
- 1 large carrot, sliced and steamed until tender
- 2 tsp. honey
- 1 tsp. olive oil
- 1 tsp chili oil, or another tsp. olive oil and a few shakes of cayenne pepper
- 3 Tbs. chopped pecans
- Salt and pepper to taste

Method

In a medium-sized frying pan, heat the olive oil.

Add the prepared Swiss chard to the pan; stir for a few minutes until wilted. Add in the steamed, sliced carrots and stir

Add in the honey, chili oil, salt and pepper and stir.

Top with the pecans and serve immediately.

Wonders from a garden of the mid-1600s

One of the best plants in my garden is spiderwort-Tradescantia virginiana. The flowers are a vibrant shade of blue-purple and have three petals apiece. Perched at the tops of relatively stout stalks, the blooms appear in clusters. Their lives are short but beautiful - individual flowers last only one day apiece. The long slender leaves curl at the ends, springing out from around the flower clusters. Tradescantia is incandescent in any situation, but seems especially so because it blooms in part shade. Hybrids, like those in the Andersonia group, have broadened the available colors to blue; white, with blue or purple in the center; and pinkish purple. All form nice clumps when they are happy and those clumps can be divided and spread around to create little corners of happiness all around the garden.

At this time of year I can go down to my upper back garden and see spiderwort any time I want. When it is dark or rainy outside I can also see it leaping off the pages of "The Green Florilegium," a book originally created in the mid-17th century by a German artist, Hans Simon Holtzbecker. In Holtzbecker's day, spiderwort was a new plant, having arrived from its native America in 1629. Possession of spiderwort would have been the exclusive domain of wealthy plant lovers. At least one of them —the unknown individual who commissioned

THE GARDENER'S APPRENTICE

BY ELISABETH GINSBURG

"The Green Florilegium" — undoubtedly enjoyed seeing this hardy immigrant plant elegantly immortalized on parchment.

My copy of "The Green Florilegium" contains a facsimile of the original, plus a forward with details about florilegia in general and "The Green Florilegium" in particular. The only certainties that surround the book are the identity of the artist, the approximate time of its creation and the fact that it was bound in striking green velour with gilt edges. The name of the artist's patron has been lost, as has the exact publication date. Most recently it has been stored at the Statens Museum for Kunst in Copenhagen, Denmark, where it was restored in 2011 by conservator Christian Balleby Jensen.

The plant paintings were executed in gouache, similar to watercolor, but more opaque. Like all good botanical art, the flower illustrations are faithful to the botanical specimens, but also have a sense of life and movement. The vast majority of garden books are arranged seasonally, and The Green Florilegium is no exception. Its first pages portray crocuses, with subsequent illustrations depicting other spring flowers, such as snowdrops and dog-tooth violets. It pleases me to see the same "granny's bonnet" double columbine that I grow in corners of my back garden in full bloom on the pages of a work created well over 300 years ago..

As befits a book conceived not long after the 1638 apex of Dutch tulipomania, the "Florilegium" contains many portraits of flamed, striped and splashed "broken" tulips of the type that caused the infamous 17th century speculative bubble. One of the brown and yellow-flamed tulips looks a lot like Absalon, listed in the current Old House Gardens bulb catalog and said to be from 1780. Another resembles Golden Standard, from 1760. It is exciting and inspiring to find these connections.

Lilies, with their swirling, sometimes reflexed petals, come alive. I especially admire the scarlet Turk's cap lily-Lilium chalcedonicum-because a few of the extremely reflexed petals appear to hold the others in a tight embrace. The carnations stand out for the exquisite renderings of their intricate stripes, swirls and edgings. I love seeing carnations when they were regarded as miraculous instead of ubiquitous.

In her introduction, Danish botanical historian Hanne Kolind Poulson distinguishes between florilegia and herbals. Herbals often contained botanical illustrations or woodcuts, but their purpose was didactic and the text, describing how specific herbs could be used, was as important as the pictures. Florilegia, on the other hand, were all about the pictures, created to catalog specific plant collections and celebrate the patron/collector's taste, sophistication and wealth. As recently as 2008, England's Prince Charles published the limited edition "Highgrove Florilegium," filled with various artists' depictions of the plants grown on the prince's Highgrove Estate.

A book like "The Green Florilegium" is and was about inspiration. The plants on its pages sing of history, art and horticulture. They bear witness to the colorful exploits of plant hunters like the two John Tradescants — older and younger — for whom my lovely spiderworts were named. At times when I can't be out in the garden, listening to the distinctive voices of my plants, I can sit in the house in the company of violas and larkspurs that dropped their last petals more than three centuries ago. It is the closest I will ever come to time travel.

NOTICE TO ABSENT DEFENDANT

Superior Court of New Jersey Chancery Division Union County Docket No.F-019011-13

STATE OF NEW JERSEY TO: Melissa Hunter

YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED and required to serve upon the Attorneys for Plaintiff, Powers Kirn, LLC, 728 Marne Highway, Moorestown, NJ 08057, an Answer to the Complaint (or Amended Complaint, if any) filed in a Civil Action in which U.S. Bank National Association is plaintiff and Melissa Hunter, et al., are Defendants, pending in the Superior Court of New Jersey, within thirty-five (35) days after June 20, 2013, exclusive of such date. If you fail to do so, judgment by default may be rendered against you for the relief demanded in the Complaint. You shall file your Answer and Proof of Service in duplicate with the Clerk of the Superior Court at the Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex, CN 971, 6th Floor, North Wing, Trenton, New Jersey, 08625, in accordance with the rules governing the courts. A $135.00 filing fee payable to the Clerk of the Superior Court and a completed Case Information Statement must accompany your answer or motion.

The action has been instituted for the purpose of foreclosing a mortgage dated March 2, 2007, recorded on March 8, 2007, in Book 12078 at Page 444 made by Lazarus M. Edwards, Jr. to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as nominee for Bankers Mortgage Corporation and duly assigned to plaintiff, U.S. Bank National Association, and concerns real estate located at 963 East Front Street Unit F. Plainfield, NJ 07060, Block 329 Lot 16.168 C0168.

YOU, Melissa Hunter are made a defendant because you are a lien holder in the above matter and so have an interest in the property being foreclosed as your lien or encumbrance is subject to Plaintiff's mortgage.

You are further advised, an individual who is unable to obtain an attorney may communicate with the New Jersey State Bar Association by calling toll free 800-792-8315 (within New Jersey) or 609-

CITY OF SUMMIT ZONING BOARD OF ADJUSTMENT NOTICE OF HEARING

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, as provided in the Municipal Land Use Law, that the Zoning Board of Adjustment of the City of Summit, New Jersey, will hold a hearing on July 1, 2013 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers, 512 Springfield Avenue, Summit, New Jersey, to consider an application affecting the property with a street address known as 120 Morris Avenue / 7 Russell Place, Block 4209, Lot 1.

The conditions affecting this property and the reason for the application being heard are as follows:

The Applicant will require a use variance pursuant to N.J.S.A. 40:550-70d to allow two principal buildings on the Property, which is contrary to Section 35-4.2-7 of the Summit Zoning Ordinance.

The Applicant notes that the Residential Site Improvement Standards (RSIS) applicable to parking as set forth in N.J.A.C. 5:21-1 et seq., requires a greater number of parking spaces than the Summit Zoning Ordinance at Section 35-5.2-15, and therefore the Applicant will seek a deminimis exception from RSIS, if necessary.

Applicant requests any other waivers or variances as may be deemed necessary by the Board or its professionals at the time of the hearing.

its professionals at the time of the hearing.

The application forms and supporting documents are on file with Bambi Fiorito, Zoning Board Secretary, in the Department of Community Services, 512 Springfield Avenue, and may be inspected any workday between the hours of 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Any interested party may appear at the hearing and participate therein, subject to the rules of the Board.

North-South FB Monday at Kean

7 stars from Union County

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

The setting for the ultimate all-star football contest in New Jersey is the 35th annual North-South All-Star Football Game, which will kick off Monday night at 7 at Kean University's Alumni Stadium in Union.

The North came back in the second half to win last year's game

14-7 to pull to within 16-15-2 in the series.

Seven of Union County's finest seniors who will help lead the North squad onto the field at Kean University include - on offense -Elizabeth quarterback P.J. Walker (6-1, 210), Rahway guard Ruben Pierre (6-2, 265) and Johnson tackle Ryan Baron (6-5, 285) and - on defense - Roselle linebacker Derrick Taylor (5-10, 220), Cranford end Chris Folinusz (6-3, 235), Union tackle Darius Stapleton (6-3, 255) and Roselle Park linebacker Juan Carmona (6-0, 195).

room at a football reunion and you find out about such things as: "the missed tackle," "the play" and what player had the prettiest girlfriend, among other stories a bit less appropriate for publication.

However, the common thread last aturday night at Spring Lake Manor for over 50 former members of the Union High School football teams of 1977, 1978 and 1979 was honoring and remembering the legacy of their head coach, Lou Rettino, who passed away from cancer at the age of 54 on March 22, 1996.

Also in attendance were assistant coaches Fred Stengel and Jim Benedict and Rettino's son, Lou Jr.

After having previously coached at Marist, St. Peter's Prep, Somerville and Elizabeth, Rettino got to Union in 1977 as the SPRING LAKE - Get a bunch of guys together in a next Farmers head coach, succeeding Joe Bizzaro, who had been at the helm since 1970.

> "When Lou came in here you could see his determination," said reunion organizer and 1979 Union graduate Ed Galisewski, who was a key two-way player on Union's first of a record 10 North 2, Group 4 state championship teams his senior season of 1978.

This is the 35th anniversary of Union's first playoff championship team, with the 1978 squad - that finished 9-1-1 - led by senior running back Dave D'Addio, who went on to star at Maryland and then play one year in the NFL with the Detroit Lions.

the first time as a junior in 1977. He remembers, vividly, Rettino's first season at the helm 36 years ago.

'In the locker room before our first game he gave us a speech, challenging us as men," Galisewski recalled. "We would do whatever Lou asked us to. We would go through a wall for him."

The first game in 1977 was an 8-8 tie against J.P. Stevens of North Edison, which would go on to capture Central Jersey, Group 4 titles in 1977 and 1978. Losses to Westfield, the eventual 1977 repeat North 2, Group 4 champ and Montclair sandwiched Rettino's first win, which was a 14-0 triumph at Irvington on Oct. 8 - exactly 10 days before Reggie Jackson hit three home runs in Game 6.

'We started off slow and had a couple of setbacks," Galisewski said. "Westfield had players like Butch Woolfolk and they were great teams. We turned it around and started to build some momentum, which we took into our next season."

Union closed with a five-game winning streak, ending a successful 6-2-1 campaign with a 30-6 victory at Linden on Thanksgiving. That was Union's first winning season since 1972.

Although the Farmers did not make the playoffs in 1977, they were primed to qualify for the first time in 1978.

'What I remember about Lou is that he knew how to place players in the right positions," Galisewski said. "He didn't have everyone moving around like dominoes. He just put people where they needed to be. The faster linemen were the guards and the larger guys were the tackles.

"Then when you have that system with (assistant coach) Fred Stengel doing the line, with his drills about footwork, wow."

A guard on offense and an end on defense, Galisewski saw the potential the 1978 team had right away. It began with a huge 13-0 Opening Day triumph at J.P. Stevens, which was on an 11-game unbeaten streak at the time and was a defending sectional champion.

"That was a defining moment, going in there and realizing this was going to set the tone," Galisewski said.

With only a loss to Westfield again in Game 2, Union - which had to play all of its home games at Linden that year while Cooke Memorial Field was being drained - won five straight before playing at Plainfield the week before the playoffs.

Union and Plainfield battled to a o-o tie at Hub Stine Field, with both making the North 2, Group 4 playoffs, Plainfield for the second time. Ironically, both Union and Plainfield lost to Westfield, but Westfield did not make the playoffs after winning the section in 1976 and 1977.

"It was at their field in front of an intense crowd," Galisewski said of the o-o tie vs. Plainfield. "We played well and they played very well. They got down to our five-yard line and on fourth-and-goal we stopped them."

In the North 2, Group 4 playoffs, Union was the fourth seed and had to travel to Newark's Schools Stadium to face top-seeded Barringer, which was 7-0-1 and the winner of the section in 1975. Barringer also reached the final in 1977, led by future NFL Hall of Famer Andre Tippett.

They were a phenomenal team," Galisewski said, recalling standouts such as Norm Granger. "We had to come back and score late to win that game."

Union rallied for a thrilling 23-20 triumph.

"I remember Lou coming out to the middle of the field at one point and really looking at us and challenging us," Galisewski said.

Plainfield, the second seed, defeated Morris Knolls 49-20 in the other semifinal, setting up a second Union-Plainfield matchup.

This time the setting would be Giants Stadium in East Rutherford. Giants Stadium opened in 1976, with the first North 2, Group 4 final being played there the 1977 game that Westfield defeated Barringer 33-12 before a crowd of more than 30,000 fans.

Both Union and Plainfield were 8-1-1 going into the Dec. Galisewski, who resides in Littleton, Col., made varsity for 2 clash in Bergen County, each with only a loss to Westfield and a tie against each other.

The first half was tight," Galisewski said. "Near the end of the first half we were up only 7-0."

Quarterback Dom Lorusso, in attendance Saturday night, threw a touchdown pass right before halftime to give Union a two-touchdown lead.

Union managed to keep the Cardinals off the scoreboard for another two quarters en route to a decisive 27-0 triumph for its initial playoff championship.

D'Addio scored two touchdowns, carrying the ball 25 times for 150 yards.

We ran the ball over and over again with Dave leading the way," Galisewski said.

Galisewski remembered first practicing at Giants Stadium. "The adrenaline just at practice was something else, being out there on that field," Galisewski said. "For the game, I remember getting on the field and looking up. We had a pretty good crowd for that game."

Asked what he was thinking right before the final gun sounded and the game was over, with Union winning the championship for the first time, Galisewski said, "this is why we're here tonight, celebrating this championship 35 years

Union repeated as North 2, Group 4 champions in 1979, finishing 10-1 with only a loss at Westfield. The Farmers won both of their playoff games at Giants Stadium that season, first downing Belleville 15-12 in the semifinals.

In the championship game against Livingston, the contest was tied in the third quarter before a huge defensive play propelled Union to go on and score the game's final three Union's 35-14 triumph was sparked by a stop made early in the third quarter by senior linebacker Tommy Blazak. On fourth-and-goal from the Union three-yard line, Blazak - a team captain that year along with Mark Ignatowicz - knocked Livingston running back Fred Apicelli out of bounds before he could reach the end zone.

Livingston, coached by Al Jacobson, argued that Apicelli was in. The referee didn't see it that way, giving Union the ball at the Livingston one. The Farmers then went 99 yards for what turned out to be the winning touchdown. Union added two more TDs before celebrating a second straight state championship.

Here's how Blazak describes what the former Union players refer to as, "The Play," which ended Livingston's secondhalf opening drive: "With the score tied 14-14 at halftime, we really felt that momentum would go to the team that scored next. Stan Yagiello, their quarterback, was phenomenal. Things were happening so fast in the secondary that, with the goal line behind us, we really felt the game slipping.

"On fourth down they decided to go for a touchdown. It was a pitchout option to the right. I jumped off one blocker and had the goal line right at my feet.

Then at the last minute I just made one lunge at the flag and it was enough to knock him (Apicelli) out of bounds. The referee was right on the play and he watched the play in review. He (Apicelli) was out of bounds.

"We got the ball, went 99 yards and scored; final score 35-14. "It seems like it was yesterday."

Lou Rettino Jr. grew up in Westfield and played quarterback for the Blue Devils in the late 1980s under head coach Ed Tranchina before graduating in 1990. At age 5 he remembered one of his father's first wins in 1977.

"The first year they struggled the first couple of games, but I remember this vividly: he came home after beating Plainfield and kissed my mom saying that he knew he had something special," Rettino Jr. said.

As good as Westfield was in the 1970s, Union was even better in the 1980s, with the changing of the guard among legendary Union County coaches going from Westfield's Gary Kehler to Rettino.

While Rettino's Union teams won back-to-back North 2, Group 4 titles in 1978 and 1979 right after Kehler's Westfield squads did so in 1976 and 1977, it took Rettino some time before he finally beat Westfield. Rettino was 0-5 in the regular season vs. Westfield from 1977-1981 before his Farmers finally beat the Blue Devils in the 1981 N2, G4 semifinals. Rettino's first regular season win against Westfield didn't come until 1982. Union then posted a long winning streak against Westfield before falling to the Blue Devils again.

Westfield was the team of the decade in the 1970s and Union in the 1980s," Rettino Jr. said. "We lived a block-anda-half away from Gary (Kehler). Union played a ball-control, opportunistic offense.

As Lou Jr. was growing up, Union would go on to win North 2, Group 4 again in 1982 and then in 1984 began a stretch of four straight seasons where they would capture the section, beating Montclair and Roxbury both back-to-back.

However, Lou Jr. was not part of that success. He didn't get to play for his father. The lefty-throwing signal-caller ran the offense - in addition to starring in lacrosse - at rival Westfield.

"It was tough seeing my father on the other side," said Rettino Jr., who now resides in Rumson. "I was a football and lacrosse player and lacrosse wasn't offered at Union High School. Plus, all of my friends I grew up with were from Westfield.

One of Benedict's coaching stops after Union was as the head coach at Westfield. Now residing in Georgia, Benedict capped a 51-year playing-coaching career in 2010.

I really thank you for the opportunity to be able to coach you guys," Benedict said to the former players in attendance. "You're the best players I ever worked with, not because of my coaching, but because of all of your hard work.

Benedict, who also coached at Summit and Watchung Hills and in college at his alma mater Rutgers, had a very strong coaching relationship with Rettino.

"He helped Fred (Stengel) become one of the great coaches in the state of New Jersey and he helped me have a great experience as a coach at (college) my alma mater," Benedict said. "He helped us all."

Stengel is a 1967 UHS graduate who was an assistant coach at Union for 16 seasons from 1972-1987 before becoming a highly-successful head coach at Bergen Catholic begin-

A line coach with the Farmers, Stengel had a special relationship with the players that played their guts out in the

"I was determined that we were going to be the best football team that we could make ourselves," Stengel said to his former players. They all got a chuckle after he said this: 'there was a method to my madness.

Stengel continued: "I can't thank you enough for giving me the opportunity to coach you guys. I know there were times when you said, 'what is with this guy?'

Stengel, a Union kid born and raised, thought about what would have happened had Rettino "coached Larry Kubin (class of 1977, Penn State, Washington Redskins Super Bowl winner) and those guys" if he got there a bit sooner.

"I'm telling you Kubin was so good it was ridiculous. One play against Carteret - this is one of the great athletic feats I ever saw in my life - he runs 88 yards with an option play and three quarters of his way into the end zone a flag is thrown because somebody was off sides or it was holding or something stupid like that.

RC grads enjoy coaching sports teams at alma mater

Who says you can't go home?

Just the opposite is true when it comes to the Roselle Catholic High School spring sports teams coaching staff.

Graduates, John and Christina.

The junior varsity basebal Michael Skrec, RC Class of 20

More than 75 percent of the coaches at RC teams this spring knew exactly what it felt like to wear a Lions' uniform. The group of RC students-turned-coaches spanned five decades, from as long ago as 1968 and as recently as 2009.

"Coaching at your alma mater brings about a sense of enjoyment you can't get anywhere else," said assistant baseball coach Billy Murphy, RC Class of 2007, who also spent the 2012-13 school year in the building as an academic aide.

"It allows you to put yourself in your old coaches' shoes and influence the lives of young men and women," Murphy said. "Trying to bring a sense of pride to the school you attended is like no other feeling and cannot be replicated."

Murphy, who played college baseball at both Rutgers and Wagner, was one of three members of the varsity baseball staff with an RC diploma. Head coach John Schmitt, RC Class of 1968,, a teacher in the school's social studies department, and assistant coach Michael Patricco, RC Class of 2007.

Fellow assistant John Miccio is the father of two RC

The junior varsity baseball staff included alum Michael Skrec, RC Class of 2009,, who was also an assistant coach with the Tournament of Champions winning boys' basketball team last winter.

The alumni spirit continued to be alive and well with the track and field team in the just-completed spring season. Co-head coaches Carmine DeNicola and Paul Irwin – who have combined to coach RC's cross-country and track teams for more than a decade – and assistants Joe Cistaro and Mike Kennedy are all RC graduates.

"The main reason I originally came back to RC to coach was because I loved the sport of track and missed it, but once I came back I realized how much being at RC meant to me," said Irwin, RC Class of 2000.

"Once I began coaching at RC the sport really did take on a new meaning. I still love track, but I began to love working with our student-athletes and representing our school just as much," Irwin said. "I think that's been a huge part of my time here: Not just being a part of and representing the track team, but the school community as well.

UNION COUNTY BASEBALL ALL-STARS TOPPED BY ESSEX

Essex County and Seton Hall Prep baseball seem to go together.

For the third time in four years a player from Seton Hall Prep was chosen as the game's top player, with junior pitcher Tyler Brandon earning MVP honors in last Saturday's 4th annual Union-Essex Underclassmen All-Star Game at Kean University's Jim Hynes, Class of 1963 Field in Union.

Brandon tossed two shutout innings - in the ninth and 10th - to earn a save and help lead the Essex County past Union County 8-6.

Essex County took a 2-1-1 series lead, with Brandon the third SHP player to earn MVP honors. Rob Fonseca did so in 2010 and D.J. Link in 2011.

has given so much to me."

Assistant coach and throwing specialist Cistaro has enjoyed an opportunity to coach with those who coached him when he was a high school student.

"I remember my years on the track team as an athlete with fondness and felt the coaches taught me discipline, integrity and loyalty to my teammates," Cistaro said. "The experience of coaching with friends, whose vision I share has been extremely positive. I am grateful that my educational career began where I

"Attending Roselle Catholic was one of the greatest experiences of my life," said co-head track coach Carmine DeNicola. "Coaching at RC allows me to give back and contribute to giving the current students the same wonder experience I enjoyed."

Assistant coach Kennedy also returned to the RC classroom as a science teacher last September.

"Being a coach is an excellent opportunity to build relationships with young people and have a positive influence in their lives," Kennedy said. "Coaching at Roselle Catholic gives me a lot of pride ... To be able to see the growth in the athletes, especially the younger ones, is very fulfilling."

The softball diamond on Egan Field in front of the school on Raritan Road was filled with former Lions on both the varsity and JV level this spring.

"Coaching at RC is like coming home to family," said Dennis Quigley, RC Class of '76,, an assistant coach with the Lions' JV softball team and head coach of the RC JV Girls basketball team.

"I had such a great experience at the school both scholastically and athletically that I want to give back," said Quigley, who guided the JV girls' basketball team to the 2012 UCT title. "My coaches were my mentors. They were people I could look up to and to this day I identify with RC. I just hope I can make the same kind of impression."

Coach Quigley assisted JV coaches Erin Sisk, RC Class of '06, and Liz Lanigan, RC Class of '05. Lanigan is also an assistant to RC girls' soccer coach Gary Carvalho.

"The students at RC are the most caring, enthusiastic and supportive students I have come across and it just goes to show why so many people come back," said Erin Sisk, a religion teacher at the school. "It is no surprise that so many of our teachers and coaches are alumni.

"Roselle Catholic is a very special place that truly feels like a home to most."

Ed Sisk, RC Class of '75, completed his first season at the helm of the Lions' softball program. Sisk, who followed RC graduate Charlie Wischusen, RC Class of '70, in the dugout, guided the Lions to a 13-8 record, a second-place finish in the Union County Conference's Valley Division and a state tournament home game.

"I find it truly amazing at the number of alumni that "It feels good to be able to give back to a place that return to their Roselle Catholic roots to help foster an atmosphere conducive to positive teaching, learning and the meaning or working together towards common goals," said Ed Sisk, who also had two sons, Ed, RC Class of 2001, and Nick, RC Class of '03, play sports and graduate from RC."

Tim Hagan, RC Class of 2003, knew the Roselle Catholic tradition better than most rookie head coaches

Hagan's father, Pat Hagan, won more than 300 boys basketball games in more than a quarter century at the helm of the Lions.

"I coach at Roselle Catholic because I love the school and the tradition that makes RC what it is: a place where hard work is recognized and rewarded, where people from different locations and backgrounds come together to form a community and where people can have fun and enjoy each other's company.'

Pat Hagan, who's completing his 13th year as an Assistant Principal, has worked at RC since 1975. Tim Hagan just finished his second year teaching at his alma mater and his first season as a varsity head coach.

Pat Hagan, a 1971 Roselle Catholic graduate, presented the Most Valuable Player trophies at the spring sports convocation.

Tim Hagan guided the RC Boys volleyball team to a winning record and a berth in the NJSIAA's North Jersey Section 2 Tournament.

"Coaching at RC means contributing to the amazing legacy and tradition of those who came before," Tim Hagan said. "Pillars of RC (like Ed Chakey, Frank Gagliano, Rich Wood, Pat Hagan and Joe Skrec) have made and continue to make their mark at RC, and, although it was easy to assume that they were/are a different breed or that it is someone else's job to continue to group RC tradition I enjoy the challenge of trying to live up to the standards of those who led the way.

Tim Hagan played basketball and tennis during his scholastic career.

He's an assistant coach to Brendan Laverty with the RC freshman boys' basketball team.

As a student and a teacher, he's involved in a plethora of school activities, including Marist Youth and Campus Ministry.

"I enjoy making the tradition something that is alive for students today, and not just a rose-tinted image of the "good old days"," said Hagan, who reintroduced a JV team to the volleyball program this spring. RC graduate Dan Kennedy assisted Hagan with the JV volleyball squad.

"There are many students who have incredible talents to offer the RC community, and so many don't even realize what potential they have," Hagan said.

"The RC greats realized that you need to take what you have and make it into something great, and I love having the opportunity to do the same.'
