

Kean seeks reasons for college 'brain drain'

Statistics.

Maeliosa Barstow didn't have a New Jersey school on her radar when it came time to apply to colleges. She had heart set on an out-of-state school with a good architecture program.

"Because of my academic standing at the time, I knew I just really wanted to apply to more competitive schools," Barstow said on Dec. 15. "At the time I was also really looking to get out of New Jersey, just because I grew up in a really small suburb and I wanted to see what else was out there."

Barstow, 23, didn't returned to her hometown of Glen Ridge once she graduated from the University of California, Berkeley. She found a full-time job in California at an architecture studio using the connections she had made in university, she said.

Barstow is just one of the tens of thousands of New Jersey high school graduates who have opted for out-of-state schools. About 32,000 high school graduates left the Garden State for colleges elsewhere in

The auditor will have about a year to complete the study, which will review the academic characteristics of students who stay in the state compared to those who leave. The study will also examine the quality of out-of-state schools compared to New Jersey's colleges.

Under Kean's bill, the state Secretary of Higher Education, in consultation with the Commissioner of Education, would factor in the socioeconomic characteristics of the families of students who chose an in-state versus an out-of-state school.

Lesley Krien, 22, graduated from the University of Maryland in College Park in May with a degree in biology. She applied to The College of New Jersey in Ewing, but chose to go to Maryland because members of her family had studied there.

"My family went there and I knew that they loved it a lot," Krien said in a phone interview. "So that was already instilled in me. It was just a good distance. It's far away from home, but you can make that trip (back home) in a day. So it's not too much."

Krien moved back to her hometown of Glen Ridge after graduating, in part, because of its proximity to New York City, she said. But she is still looking for a job in her field, she said.

Kean recognized the state's job market and and tax structure could also play a factor in drawing back New Jersey natives who went to school out of state.

Newark man admits to 2005 Plainfield killing

A Newark man accused of strangling to death a Plainfield woman in 2005 has admitted to the crime, saying it was the end result of an argument that had turned violent.

Dorian Gillon, 52, pleaded guilty Dec. 22 to a single count of aggravated manslaughter in connection with the death of 39-year-old Williametta Moore.

Moore's body was found just inside the front door of her home on the 700 block of West Third Street in Plainfield on Dec. 15, 2005, according to Union County Assistant Prosecutor Jillian Reves, who prosecuted the case.

Members of the Union County Prosecutor's Office Homicide Task Force and Plainfield police continued to jointly pursue leads until September 2013, when Gillon was identified as a suspect and charged, Reyes said.

He was arrested in Elizabeth without incident, held in Union County Jail on $1 million bail and indicted by a grand jury in May 2014.

Sentencing in the case has been scheduled for Feb. 23, at which time prosecutors will recommend a sentence of 18 years in state prison, with at least 85 percent of the term to be served before the possibility of parole under the provisions of New Jersey's No Early Release Act.

Union County deer hunt starts Jan. 8

Union County's annual deer hunt will be held from Monday, Jan. 8 through Monday, Feb. 5, in six county parks and one municipal park, officials announced Dec. 26.

Forty hunters authorized by the county's Department of Parks and Recreation will shoot from elevated positions, at least 20 feet high in the trees, over baited sites in the Watchung Reservation, the Summit portion of Passaic River Park, Ash Brook Reservation, Lenape Park, Nomahegan Park, Oak Ridge Park and the Hawk Rise Sanctuary.

The hunters have been chosen from among experienced, licensed hunters, the county said in a release; 85 percent of the volunteer hunters have previously participated in the county's program. They will be wearing orange hats or vests.

The hunters may keep the carcasses of any deer killed. Many will be processed at a stateapproved butcher and the venison donated to those in through the Community FoodBank of New Jersey in Hillside.

The deer-management program will be supervised by the Union County Police and the New Jersey Division of Fish and Wildlife and be held on Mondays; the program will move to Wednesday the week of Jan. 15. In the event of inclement weather on any other Monday, the hunting will be held the Wednesday of that week. If Wednesday brings inclement weather, the hunting will be moved to Friday. Hunters will be in the parks from 5:30 a.m. until after dark, but shooting may occur only during daylight hours.

In its release, the county said browsing for food by large numbers of deer has caused a loss of forest understory in park areas throughout the northeastern United States. The overpopulation of deer threatens the survival of the plant and animal communities important to the park ecology.

Forest ecologists recommend a density of 20 per square mile in a healthy hardwood forest and as low as five per square mile in a forest that has been heavily damaged by browsing. Spotlight counts conducted by Union County in April 2017 suggested 2017-2018 winter densities of about 58 deer per square mile in the Watchung Reservation; 84 per square mile in and around Ash Brook Reservation and Oak Ridge Park; 87 deer per square mile in the Hawk Rise Sanctuary, and 150 per square mile in and around Lenape and Nomahegan Parks.

An analysis completed by the county in 2011 showed that roads bordering Lenape and Nomahegan Parks had some of the highest numbers of deer-car collisions in the county. And in Hawk Rise Sanctuary in Linden, deer are threatening the survival of hundreds of native plants that were planted in conjunction with the construction of a boardwalk.

Since 1995, hunters in the county's state-regulated deer management program have reduced the population of the white-tailed species in the Watchung Reservation substantially. In 2006, hunting was initiated in Ash Brook Reservation and in 2002 in portions of Passaic River Park in Summit. Five years ago, hunters harvested deer from Lenape Park for the first time. Three years ago, the county expanded the hunt to Nomahegan Park and Linden's Hawk Rise Sanctuary. And Oak Ridge Park was added to the list of sites in 2016.

The Watchung Reservation spans more than 2,000 acres in Springfield, Mountainside, Scotch Plains, Summit, Berkeley Heights and Watchung. Passaic River Park spans 287 acres in Berkeley Heights, New Providence and Summit. Lenape Park covers 403 acres in Cranford, Kenilworth, Union, Springfield and Westfield. The Ash Brook Reservation encompasses 667 acres in Scotch Plains and Clark. The Hawk Rise Sanctuary includes about 45 acres of forest in Linden. And Oak Ridge Park consists of 90 acres in Clark and Edison.

Oak Ridge Park bordering Clark and Scotch Plains is one of five county parks where Union County will conduct its annual deer hunt on Mondays from Jan. 8 through Feb. 5.

The county warns that the parks will not be closed during the deer hunt, however, portions of some roadways inside the park may be closed for short periods. Park patrons are urged to stay on the marked hiking, walking and bridle trails. Park users also are urged to adhere to the county ordinance that requires that pets be restrained on a leash.

More information can be obtained from the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation at 908-527-4900. Hunters interested in joining this program in a future year can place their name on a mailing list for an application through county's website, http://ucnj.org/parks-recreation/wildlife-management/deer/.

Info on 2013 homicide sought

Officials have issued a plea for the public's help in solving a Christmas Day homicide four years after a Somerset County man was shot and killed in Plainfield. No charges have been filed in connection with the death of 25year-old Rashad Daye of Green Brook.

At approximately 5:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 25, 2013, a Plainfield police officer heard multiple shots fired in the area of Park Avenue and East Ninth Street in Plainfield, the Union County Prosecutor's Office said in a Dec. 22 release.

Arriving patrol units found Daye suffering from a gunshot wound; he was rushed to Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital in New Brunswick, where he was pronounced dead.

An joint investigation into Day's death was launched by the Union County Homicide Task Force and Plainfield police. That investigation is continuing, according to the county prosecutor's office.

Anyone with information about this matter is being urged to contact Homicide Task Force Sgt. Sofia Santos at 908-577-4256 or Sgt. Johnny Ho at 908-403-8271.

A reward of up to $5,000 for information leading to an arrest and indictment in connection with Daye's death is being offered by the Union County Crime Stoppers.

PIANJ offers winter driving advice

Union County already has been hit with its first snows and first arctic blast, but it's not too late for drivers to prepare for winter weather, according the Professional Insurance Agents of New Jersey. The industry trade group had several recommendations in a Dec. 18 release, not the least of which was checking insurance coverage.

"Make sure you have adequate coverage, including personal injury protection immediately - before heading out in the snow this season," PIANJ President Kacy Campion Renna said.

Additionally, the PIANJ also recommends several car maintenance and driving tips.

· Stay alert, slow down, and stay in control-three key elements of safe winter driving.

· Drive according to highway and weather conditions.

· Keep a safe distance behind the vehicle ahead.

· Make sure vehicles are mechanically ready for the rigors of winter with a maintenance check.

CALL

· Have tires checked. Remember to check tire air pressure frequently, as it decreases in cold weather.

Keep the fuel tank at least half full.

 Make sure to have sufficient windshieldwasher fluid in the reservoir that is rated a minimum of -40 degrees centigrade temperature range. Keep an extra jug inside the vehicle.

· Clear snow and ice from all windows, lights, mirrors and the car roof before getting on the road.

If involved in an accident, remember that safety comes first. If anyone in the vehicle is injured, do not get out of the car unless there is immediate danger. Call the police or 9-1-1. If everyone is OK and cars are in traffic, move them off the street and into a safe area. It can be tempting to leave the police out of it if the damage appears to be minor. However, insurance companies might need an accident report from the police to file a claim, an insurance claim might be delayed without this report. PIANJ is a trade association representing professional, independent insurance agencies, brokerages and their employees throughout the state.

County finishes in middle of school breakfast rankings

By Rebecca Panico Staff Writer

Union County ranked 11th among the state's 21 counties for the percentage of eligible students receiving breakfast through the federally subsidized school meal program for 2017, securing its position for a second year in a row.

The seventh annual NJ School Breakfast Report from Advocates for Children of New Jersey, a child advocacy nonprofit organization based in Newark, examined data for all districts that have at least 20 percent or more eligible students in the federal Universal Free Breakfast Program.

In Union County, the Plainfield School District and the Cresthaven Academy Charter, also located in Plainfield, had the highest percentage of eligible students receiving breakfast, according to the study. Sixty-four percent of eligible students received breakfast in this district, while the charter school had a 94-percent dispersion rate.

The Elizabeth School District ranked third in the county, with about 50 percent — about 11,100 eligible students — receiving breakfast, the study showed. Overall, 22,115 Elizabeth students were eligible for a free or discounted breakfast, accounting for 83 percent of the entire student population.

"No student who wishes to eat breakfast at the Elizabeth schools is ever turned away, regardless of ability to pay," Elizabeth School District spokesman Pat Politano said in a Dec. 22 email. "Studies show there is an increase in test scores, attendance and dietary health for those who participate and a decrease in tardiness. It's simply the right thing."

More than 60 percent of eligible students in pre-K through eighth grade, and about 25 percent of students in grades nine through 12, participate in the program, Politano said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reimburses schools for each breakfast they serve, and the study showed how much federal funding districts did not receive by not providing breakfast to eligible students for all 180 days of the school year.

Elizabeth, for example, did not receive $3,982,565 in federal funds that would have gone into the district's Division of Food and Nutrition Fund.

In contrast, the Kenilworth School District had about 4 percent, or about 15 eligible students, who received breakfast, according to the study. Overall, 355 students — or 25 percent of the student population — were eligible for the program so Kenilworth schools missed out on $99,117 in federal funds due to a lack of participation in the program.

School officials in Kenilworth are being proactive about making sure the subsidized breakfasts get to students who need them, Kenilworth Superintendent Thomas Tramaglini said in a Dec. 22 phone interview.

"We've tried to address this issue," Tramaglini, who has been superintendent for about two years, said. "It's a good thing to talk about because this is something we're trying to expand."

The authors of the annual study noted that districts that serve breakfast before the start of school have a lower participation rate in the program. Tramaglini has identified this as a deterrent in his own district, and it's an issue that's currently being addressed, he said.

School officials are considering scheduling the first class to start later so that students would have about 30 minutes as opposed to 10 minutes — to eat breakfast. The proposal has not been finalized by the school board yet, Tramaglini said.

So, for example, students may get to school at around 7:30 a.m., but the first bell won't ring until 8 a.m., Tramaglini said.

The later start times would particularly help students who are bused in from other districts, Tramaglini said. About 165 students go through a lottery process to attend Kenilworth schools and some have a long commute, giving them less time for breakfast.

"It's not something we don't take seriously," Tramaglini said of the breakfast program. "If you don't build the structure around the priority, then kids aren't going to come."

Some students may eat breakfast on the bus or before they come to school, he added. School officials in Kenilworth are also trying to get eligible students in the middle and high schools to return application forms for the program.

Last year, Elizabeth had 51 percent of its 22,169 eligible students participating in the program, the 2016 study said. Kenilworth, meanwhile, had only 7 percent of 340 eligible fully participating in the program.

The study was released Dec. 12, and used data from state Departments of Education and Agriculture to compile the rankings.

From first to last, the top 10 counties with the highest participation rates were: Cumberland, Essex, Passaic, Hudson, Cape May, Somerset, Middlesex, Atlantic, Camden and Salem.

Home bakers sue state to be able to sell creations

By Jenny Goldberg Staff Writer

Martha Rabello used to run her own bakery. Not anymore. The Cranford mother of two was trained as a pastry chef in Brooklyn and specialized in Brazilian-inspired cookies that pair well with coffee.

She rented a commercial-grade kitchen, required by New Jersey state law, but the cost was so burdensome, she stopped, halting her business. Now, she and other members of the New Jersey Home Bakers Association are looking to overturn the state regulation that prohibits would-be Betty Crockers from selling their confections.

The organization — in conjunction with the Arlington, Va.-based libertarian law firm Institute for Justice — sued the state Department of Health on Dec. 6, claiming the law is unconstitutional and unnecessary. With every other state allowing the sale of homebaked goods, they can't understand why New Jersey is the only one that doesn't allow it.

"Home-baked goods are perfectly safe and are already legally sold in 49 states," lead attorney Erica Smith told LocalSource in a Dec. 12 email. "No one anywhere has ever gotten sick from an improperly baked good, and New Jersey has no problem allowing their sale to support charities."

"If a person can sell their cookies to support their favorite charitable cause, they should be able to sell the same cookies to support their family."

When reached for comment, New Jersey Department of Health Director of Communications Donna Leusner told Local Source on Dec. 18 that the department does not comment on pending litigation.

The case will make Union County ground zero for the issue, with the matter assigned to Superior Court Judge Camille Kenny in Elizabeth. A hearing has not yet been scheduled.

For years, the Home Bakers Association has advocated for the "Cottage Foods Law," legislation that allows the sale of homebaked goods, which is essentially in effect in every other state.

Despite a relatively intense lobbying campaign — including email blasts from members of the association — only baked items sold to benefit organizations such as local churches, Boy or Girl Scouts or sports teams are permitted.

The Home Bakers Association blames state Sen. Joe Vitale of the 19th Legislative District in Middlesex County. He is the chairman of the Senate's Health, Human Services and Senior Citizens Committee.

"The Cottage Foods Law has passed unanimously through the Assembly three times, but has failed every time at the hands of the Sen. Joe Vitale," Institute for Justice spokeswoman Shira Rawlinson told Local-Source in a Dec. 12 phone interview.

Vitale has continued to refuse to give the bill a hearing in his committee, claiming he wants to protect commercial bakers from competition, Rawlinson added.

LocalSource contacted Vitale's office for comment, but he did not respond prior to publication.

According to the lawsuit, the association wants bakers to earn income by selling their foods to friends, neighbors and the public.

For Rabello and others, complying with the Department of Health's regulations is costly.

"Even renting a shared commercial kitchen typically costs about $25 to $35 an hour, in addition to storage fees and other expenses," the lawsuit states.

Military spouses, people with disabilities and stay-at-home moms would all be able to supplement their incomes, Rabello said

This state ban extends to baked goods that the state does not consider "potentially hazardous," such as cookies, muffins, breads and cakes that do not require refrigeration, are shelf stable, and safe, according to the lawsuit.

Violators of the ban face up to $1,000 in fines for a first offense.

The lawsuit contends the ban hurts hundreds of New Jerseyans across the state who just want to sell their baked goods to support themselves and their families.

"We just released a study on home bakers and other cottage food producers, and the study concluded that allowing the sale of homemade foods primarily helps lowincome women in rural areas," Smith said. "If New Jersey was to catch up with the rest of the country and allow the sale of home baked goods, it would create much-needed income and jobs for people who really need it."

The issue harkens back to the early 1990s, when New Jersey became the butt of jokes particularly by late-night comedians — about what became known as the state's ban on "runny eggs." For a brief period, the state prohibited restaurants from serving what it considered undercooked eggs to prevent the spread of salmonella poisoning.

Smith told LocalSource that the bakers are pretty confident they will win the case.

"We recently sued Wisconsin, who also had a ban on selling home-baked goods, and the Wisconsin judge struck the ban down as unreasonable and unconstitutional," Smith said. "We are confident that the New Jersey court will come to the same conclusion."

Linden police bid Parham farewell Elevate 30-year veteran Hart as replacement in Dec. 15 ceremony

By Rebecca Panico Staff Writer

Former Linden Police Chief Jonathan Parham hoped his one-year tenure as the city's first African-American commanding officer would set an example for other minorities who work hard toward their own goals.

"I don't think even I can fully understand the impact that it has, not just on African Americans, but on anyone who thinks they can't do it because of a perceived setback they may have," Parham told LocalSource on Dec. 15, his last day before retiring." Maybe it's my race, maybe it's my education, maybe it's my gender, sexual orientation.' Whatever it is, there really shouldn't be anything to hold you back."

Parham, who retired after 25 years, spent his final year as chief. His tenure as Linden's top cop was marked by the department's 2016 apprehension of Ahmad Khan Rahami, who was convicted of planting bombs in Manhattan. Rahami faces federal charges related to bombs found in Seaside Park and Elizabeth.

Parham's last official shift on the force was Dec. 15, when colleagues gathered for a small ceremony inside the John T. Gregorio Recreation Center to commemorate his last sign-off over the police radio.

Mayor Derek Armstead appointed Capt. David Hart as the department's next chief. Hart has been with the department for 30 years and currently serves as an administrative captain. He previously served as head of the Investigative and Uniform Services Division and the city's Office of Emergency Management. He has worked locally as a certified paramedic for 30 years, and has been a member of the Union County Pipes & Drums since its 2001 inception.

The mayor praised Parham for setting "the tone for what has to happen" in the police department and was confident Hart will build upon Parham's work.

"I think that some of the policies and procedures implemented are going to be able to be carried forth with (Parham's) command standing that he has in place now, that are going to be taking over once he leaves," Armstead said during the ceremony. "I think he's done a great job preparing them to move this department in the direction it needs to go in. I can't thank him enough for all he's done."

Spending just one year as chief was all Parham felt he needed to accomplish the goals he set out to achieve, such as better communication within the department and with the public.

"We believe in telling good news fast and bad news faster," Parham said.

Officers from neighboring towns, including Clark Police Chief Pedro Matos, attended the departure ceremony for Parham and two other Linden Police Department retirees: Capt. William Turbett, who served for about 21 years, and Lt. William Mack, who retired after 20 years.

Former Linden Police Chief Jonathan Parham walks from the Linden Municipal Building on Friday, Dec. 15, during a final sign-off ceremony.

Parham was appointed chief in 2016 after a tumultuous period in the department's history, which included former officer Pedro Abad being charged and later convicted with aggravated vehicular homicide. While driving drunk in 2015 on Staten Island, Abad killed a fellow officer and a civilian.

Although the mayor wanted to hire a police director to turn the department around at that time, NJ Advance Media reported, the city's police unions wanted to be led by someone from within their own ranks.

The Union County Prosecutor's Office took over the Linden Police Department's Internal Affairs Division after an investigation found that the department had not properly disciplined Abad for two prior drunken-driving crashes. The prosecutor's office stopped overseeing the Internal Newly appointed Linden Police Chief David Hart has served in the LPD for 30 years.

Angel Padilla, one of the officers hailed as a hero in Rahimi's apprehension during a shootout, was charged with DWI in Linden in August 2017. His case was transferred to Elizabeth and he retired from the department shortly thereafter.

Linden Superior Officers Association President Sgt. Joseph Birch said he supported Hart's promotion to chief in a phone interview. Hart received the highest score on the promotional exam, Birch said.

Hart and Parham have worked together over the years, and Hard praised his predecessor, saying, "I want to thank Chief Parham for his leadership over the past year. I am very proud of this department and all that we have accomplished, and I am humbled at the opportunity to lead these men and women serving our community."

NJ Transit modifies mobile app

NJ Transit's MyTix mobile app has been modified to allow rail customers to purchase 10-trip tickets and enable others to view bus and light rail schedules while providing more specific travel alerts and advisories, the transportation agency announced in a Dec. 22 press release.

"Our goal is to make the NJ Transit mobile app the single source for all of the travel information our customers need, from purchasing tickets to viewing schedules and receiving alerts," NJ Transit Executive Director Steven H. Santoro said in the release. "As technology evolves, we will continue to add additional features to provide customers a streamlined experience right from their cell phones."

Travel alerts and advisories will now be customizable to selected rail lines and bus routes. After users select the rail line or bus route they travel, they will receive service advisories specific to their selections directly through the app.

Upgrades also include the addition of bus and light rail schedules. By entering the origin and destination of a trip and their travel date, customers can view the corresponding bus and light rail schedules.

The use of mobile ticketing through the MyTix app has grown steadily since its introduction in 2013, and there are now more than 1.5 million customer accounts.

Applications for business-college collaboration tax credits available

Businesses can now apply for increased tax credits for being engaged in qualified collaborative research agreements with local nearby N.J. colleges or universities, the state Economic Development Authority has announced.

Grow NJ is a state program that permits as much as $5,000 per job per year in tax credits if a business is located in the newly established Garden State Create Zone. The zone is defined as a business in a targeted industry whose facility is located at or within 3 miles of one of New Jersey's eight doctoral universities, and the facility is used to conduct a qualified collaborative research relationship with that university.

The eight doctoral universities include: Montclair State University, New Jersey Institute of Technology, Princeton University, Rowan University, Rutgers University – New Brunswick, Rutgers University-Newark, Seton Hall University and Stevens Institute of Technology.

Separate from the Garden State Create Zone, a bonus tax credit of $1,000 per job per year is now available for businesses in a targeted industry whose facility is located at or within 3 miles of a New Jersey college or university other than the eight doctoral universities, and the facility is used to conduct a qualified collaborative research relationship with that university. The full list of 40 institutions that meet this definition can be found at the EDA website: www.njeda.com/GrowNJ.

"These enhancements to the Grow New Jersey Program will establish a wider pathway to discovery by facilitating research relationships between the brightest minds in industry and academia," EDA President and Chief Operating Officer Timothy Lizura said. "By cultivating an environment where this joint research can operate and thrive, we will ensure that New Jersey stays at the forefront of innovation."

In consultation with the state secretary of higher education and informed by the 2010 Building Bridges report issued by the New Jersey Policy Research Organization, the EDA will evaluate prospective relationships based on the ability to meet one of four categories.

The relationship must have a direct university collaboration or joint initiative or participation in which the college or university partners with the business. This may include other business in a similar field of science, to advance an area of science.

Another category is sponsored research in which the eligible business directly funds a college or university and pays for research to solve a specific problem.

The remaining two categories are grants or fellowships in which funding is provided directly by a business to a professor or graduate student to advance a specific area of science, and corporate-sponsored awards for entrepreneurship in which a business sponsors an award to be given to a student-developed technology start-up or innovation.

Since Grow New Jersey is a program designed to encourage prospective economic development that would not have occurred if not for the incentive, the tax credits will only be available for new prospective agreements and will not consider existing agreements already in place prior to application, a Dec. 21 EDA release said. However, once a project application is approved by EDA, the prospective agreement must be executed and research demonstrating advancement before the business can ultimately claim the tax credits.

Cranford adds officers, promotes detective in police revamp

By Jenny Goldberg Staff Writer

Three new probationary police officers were welcomed and a detective was promoted to sergeant in the police department at the Dec. 19 Cranford Township Committee meeting, continuing a revamp of the department, which hired its 11th police chief in October.

"It is a great day for the Cranford Police Department," Chief Ryan Greco told Local-Source on Dec. 19.

The three new hires, all Cranford residents, are Ryan McSharry, Christopher Gross and Nicholas Cook, and all will start Dec. 31.

"It is always nice to add youth to any organization as it brings energy, excitement and new fresh ideas," Greco told Local-Source in a Dec. 20 email. "In this case all three new hires are town residents, which immediately gives them a sense of ownership and involvement in the community."

In addition to the new hires, the promotion of Thomas Stiansen drew a crowd to the meeting.

"As a lifelong resident of Cranford, I am grateful for this opportunity to serve the Cranford residents from my newly appointed position as sergeant," Stiansen said. "I take great pride in working alongside such dedicated members of the Cranford Police Department who ensure the continued safety of the community."

Stainsen joined the CPD in 2005, making him a 12- year veteran. He is also a certified firearms instructor and active shooter instructor.

"This includes instructing officers in active shooter scenarios and the use of a ballistic shield," Stiansen told LocalSource in a Dec. 22 email.

Westfield Food Pantry receives DOT holiday gift

The Westfield Food Pantry at Holy Trinity Church was one of four charities statewide that received a delivery of truckloads of food and supplies Tuesday, Dec. 19, from the N.J. Department of Transportation. The items were donated by agency employees as part of its fourth annual holiday drive.

More than 3,700 items, such as canned goods and personal care products, were donated to help those in need, the DOT said in a Dec. 19 release. The effort was part of Gov. Chris Christie's seventh annual "Season of Service" initiative in which he, along his wife Mary Pat Christie and leaders of state government departments take part in community service projects around the state.

The state DOT effort collected food and non-perishable items to benefit a food bank in each of the department's three regions. In addition to Holy Trinity, employees donated to Fulfill — formerly the Food Bank of Monmouth and Ocean counties — in Neptune and to the Food Bank of South Jersey in Pennsauken.

In addition, NJDOT staff collected more than 1,900 pounds of goods and $615 for Arm in Arm, which has been a yearly beneficiary of the department's food drive.

The Season of Service campaign was spearheaded by NJDOT's operations and maintenance staff. It provided employees who work at any of the 66 maintenance facilities, as well as those employees at headquarters in Trenton, an opportunity to participate.

For the past 30 years, the Westfield Food Pantry has been located in the Holy Trinity Interparochial School at 336 First St. The pantry and its services have grown tremendously from its early days. It now provide food to approximately 125 families a month, all of whom are referred by social service agencies throughout Union County.

Prior to becoming a police officer, Stiansen served a volunteer firefighter in Cranford.

"As for Sergeant Stiansen, I was his baseball coach when he was 13 years old," Greco told LocalSource. "I've watched Tom grown from a young teenager into a leadership position in the Cranford Police Department. I could not be more proud of the person he has become today."

A 2002 graduate of Cranford High School, Stiansen studied criminal justice and liberal arts at Union County College. After he graduated from the John H. Stamler Police Academy in Scotch Plains in 2005, he was assigned to the CPD's patrol division.

Stiansen has received numerous awards during his law enforcement career, including recognition by the state Assembly for the arrest of a serial burglar who had committed dozens of burglaries in northern New Jersey. He also received the New Jersey State Police Valor Award in November for his actions in saving the lives of two people at a fire at a local nursing home.

Stiansen and fellow officer Gregory Federici entered a room that was on fire and removed the residents through a window.

Greco told the crowd at the Dec. 19 committee meeting that Stiansen will be assigned as patrol supervisor on the night shift starting in 2018.

"He is respected by his peers and displays leadership qualities that will benefit the department filled with youthful officers," Greco said of Stiansen at the meeting.

LENDING A HELPING HAND — Twenty-four volunteers from the QuickChek headquarters and various stores sorted and packed 868 pounds of frozen meat and entrees at the Community Food Bank of New Jersey in Hillside on Thursday, Dec. 14, for distribution to area residents.

2017: A year in review

A new year has arrived. The holidays are long gone. Let's talk politics.

EDITORIAL

The biggest news in 2017 for New Jersey was the election of a new governor. Democratic Phil Murphy spent some of the millions he had acquired from decades at Goldman Sachs to beat Republican candidate and sitting Lt. Gov. Kim Guadagno by 14 points. Murphy will be sworn in on Tuesday, Jan. 16. While campaigning he made a few big promises, such as raising taxes on the wealthy, boosting funding for education and public worker pensions, legalizing and taxing marijuana, instituting a $15 minimum wage, and moving toward universal access to preschool education and tuition-free community college, all initiatives that outgoing Gov. Chris Christie vetoed during his tenure. And Murphy will be doing all this with our state's fiscal challenges. We wish him luck. The trial of Sen. Bob Menendez, who was facing 18 counts of bribery and fraud, has ended in a hung jury. The charges included that he had accepted gifts, bribes and large campaign contributions, took flights on private jets and stayed in lavish hotels. This nondecision by the jury has been a kind of political rebirth for Menendez, almost assuring he'll be nominated for another term in 2018. Isn't it great to see politics in action?

while serving in his first elected position and dealing

For Sheila Oliver, the Assembly speaker from 2010 to 2014, this was a good year. Although Democrats feared she was not a team player, especially after cutting deals with Republican Christie, her selection as Murphy's running mate provided her with an essential clean slate. Oliver has served a myriad of roles in government; from a member of her local school board in East Orange to Essex County freeholder, state lawmaker and Assembly speaker. As lieutenant governor, she will bring her agenda of speaking for women and minorities to the forefront, as she did while battling Christie in her attempts to raise the millionaires' tax, fund Planned Parenthood and toughen gun-control laws. She will also be overseeing the state takeover of Atlantic City, now that she will be the Department of Community Affairs commissioner, and we will be watching closely.

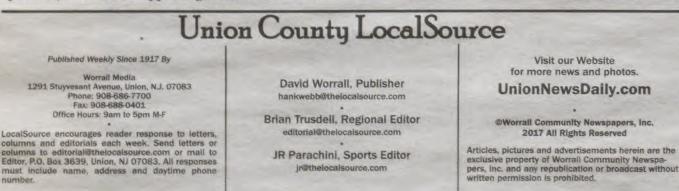

Senate President Steve Sweeney proved he had staying power when the New Jersey Education Association came after him when he backed out of a promise to guarantee pension funding. The union spent $4.8 million supporting GOP Senate challenger Fran Grenier, a supporter of President Donald Trump, only to see their efforts fail as Sweeney He has stated his ter animitation won by 18 points. He has stated his top priority is to pump hundreds of millions of dollars into public schools, so he's not exactly punishing NJEA, but from where he will get this money is not clear, so the path Sweeney has chosen may prove too difficult for him to walk.

Sen. Cory Booker is also at the forefront of New Jersey politics, whether he is criticizing U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions or supporting Alabama Senate candidate Doug Jones, who in December became the first Democrat to win that seat in 25 years. He has also made waves by pushing to legalize marijuana on a national level, while calling for the president to resign because of allegations of sexual assault and misconduct in his past. In September, Booker joined with high profile Democrats to sign on to a singlepayer health care bill, backed by Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders. Although he has claimed no interest in the next presidential election, he has a lot of people talking about his future.

Finally, there is Christie himself. For a governor whose approval ratings were once sky-high, leading many to talk about him having a future in the White House, he ended the year on a sour note, with ratings at 15 percent, the lowest of any NJ governor, ever. Although he was never indicted for the lane closures of the George Washington Bridge that became known as "Bridgegate," it became the albatross around his neck that ultimately sank his presidential run in 2016. When his final budget was not passed by deadline, forcing the closure of the state parks and beaches during the July 4 weekend, his legacy was further tarnished when a photographer in a helicopter snapped a picture of him and his family enjoying themselves on an otherwise completely empty Island Beach State Park. And while his attempts to help those addicted to and dying from opioids is admirable, his plan to fund a drug-treatment program by allocating $300 million from the reserves of Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield was contemptible. Not surprisingly, legislators balked at that idea. And also not surprisingly, eight years as Christie's lieutenant governor proved a stigma Guadagno just couldn't shake.

Yes, an awful lot happened in New Jersey in 2017. Politicians have stirred the pot quite a bit and madea Continued on Page 17

The changing language culture

LEFT OUT

BY FRANK CAPECE

It all started with the unannounced cancellation of my credit card. It wasn't for any payment issue, but rather because somebody in the Philippines questioned my charge at the local Westfield Animal Hospital regarding our Cavalier King Charles spaniel.

With the tenacity akin to Churchill in the movie "Darkest Hour" and a bevy of phone calls, I finally prevailed.

The experience helped to focus on a changing language culture that had passed me by. Some examples and translations are in order.

Speech-enabled systems. In dealing with the company, rather than pressing a series of numbers, you are offered the ability to use a speech-enabled system before talking to the credit card people in a far off land. The glitch is the computer always reveals that it is unable to understand and — bingo — you are back to punching in numbers.

System issue. This translates to "the computer system isn't responding."

Outbound verification. As best as I can determine, this means the credit card companies will let me know when I will again have the privilege of using my card.

"I appreciate your patience." This translates to, "I can put you on hold for as long as I please." This is often followed by "I'm sorry." In one call I actually counted seven "I'm sorries."

"Sir, I am doing my best to protect you from the fraudulent use of your credit card." Translation: Never raise your voice to the overseas operator.

"I can appreciate your displeasure." This little ditty was used by a cable company rep when, at a U.S. Route 22 store, a sales representative refused to answer my question before the noon Sunday opening, despite 10 people standing inside the store. I received the response when complaining the next day.

But let's be clear: The changing of our language extends beyond the brave new world of credit cards and cable.

Take the following examples:

"A sense of entitlement." This was borrowed from a Cranford senior who, over the past three years, has seen an influx of young families whose kids have turned the roadway of her dead end street into a play area akin to something found on the the Lower East Side in New York.

"Living in a bubble." This comes from Gov.-Elect Phil Murphy. It first came on my radar screen when an Elizabeth politician referred to the people for whom he had gotten jobs but who didn't help him in the next election. He lost, but they stayed in their jobs. Enter the term "The bubble people."

In a wonderful essay on the collapse of language, George Orwell speculated that the "mixture of vagueness and dying metaphors" could be reversed. Then again, Orwell never confronted a sales representative in Philippines or those with a sense of entitlement.

OPINION

Fire prevention should be a year-round activity

I have been in the housing inspection field for more than 20 years. Each year, I hear of tragic fires and I wish I had the capacity to reach some of those families before their fires occurred with tips, which may have prevented their fires.

The recent fire in the Bronx left five dead, including an 8-month-old infant. Unfortunately, some errors were made that might have heightened the impact of that fire. I hope you will read and share these tips with family, friends and neighbors.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." As I got older, this saying became much more relevant to me. Each year, I offer the following tips and preventative measures in the hope that it will help save innocent lives.

Blocked exit doors and blocked common hall stairways. gasoline stored near a furnace in a basement and blocked windows located at a fire escape are a few of these dangerous situations. Here's why:

· Blocked exit doors and blocked common hall stairways present a major hazard because they can prevent you or a loved one from exiting your home in the case of an emergency

· Gasoline stored near a furnace is a "no-brainer." Gasoline should never be stored in the basement, much less near a furnace that has heating elements that could cause a fire.

 A blocked window at the fire escape can prevent you or your family from exiting, in case of an emergency.

Preventative maintenance is important and the biggest preventative item that I find missing in many homes and apartments is a smoke detector. The sole purpose of a smoke detector is to alert the family of the presence of smoke or fire. When used correctly, smoke detectors save lives!

I am dedicating the rest of this column to helping my readers prepare themselves and their homes for the winter season. During this season, there is an increase in preventable fires, because people fail to adhere to some basic rules, regulations and common sense. Please read and correct any defects to your home that are listed below and share the column with others.

October was Fire Prevention Month. The history of National Fire Prevention Month has its root in the Great Chicago Fire, which occurred Oct. 9, 1871. Even though this column is appearing after Fire Prevention Month, I hope it still helps all become more aware of ways to help family members to learn fire safety and prevention.

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER

Each year in the United States, there are approximately: 600,000 home fires - that's more than one every minute; 5,000 home fire deaths; and 19,000 home fire injuries.

The following is a home fire safety checklist, which should be posted in a convenient and visible location for all in the family to see:

Never, never, never smoke in the bed;

· Keep cords in good condition and do not overload outlets;

· Do not block windows and doors; they should be able to be opened easily;

· Do not run cords under furniture or rugs;

Store lighters and matches out of the reach of children;

· Clean range, oven and vent fans regularly; · Keep flammables away from range, oven and heating equipment; · Never leave burning candles unattended; do not allow children to keep candles or incense in their rooms; · Always use stable candle-holders made of material that won't catch fire, such as metal, glass, etc.;

· Recycle old newspapers, donate old clothes, etc.;

· Inspect and clean chimney and flue pipes regularly;

· Store gasoline and other flammable liquids outside your home and only in approved safety containers;

Use covered metal trash containers;

· Clean your basement, garage and yard regularly and dispose of rubbish and debris frequently;

· Keep power tools and gas mowers clean and in good repair: and

· The use of kerosene heaters is not recommended as they are the source of many fires.

In addition to the above safety tips:

· Install smoke detectors on each level of your home, including basements and attics. Test batteries monthly and replace them yearly.

 Make a fire escape plan and map out all escape routes. including two exits from every room. Practice makes perfect. Every second counts during a fire. Hold fire drills frequently, until the escape plans become second nature to every member of the family, including toddlers.

· Buy a multi-purpose ABC fire extinguisher, listed by an approved testing laboratory. Learn how to use it, keep it handy and locate it near door exits.

. In a fire, time is critical. Do not waste time getting dressed; don't search for pets or valuables. Just get out!

. If you have a fire in your home, once you get out, stay out. Do not go back inside for any reason.

· As part of your fire escape plan, choose a safe meeting place away from the house. Stress how important it is that, in the event of a fire, every family member exits the building and meets at this location, so a head count can be taken to assure that no one is still in a burning building!

Another very important tip - if you are ever involved in a fire, try not to open any doors suddenly. First, feel if the area around the door is hot. If it is, opening that door can help the fire spread faster and with more intensity

Most entry doors have self-closing latches, so the door automatically closes by itself. Again, this is to help keep fires contained and to prevent fire from spreading to other areas

If involved in a fire, make sure you close all doors after exiting. The tragic fire in the Bronx recently was made worse because, when the family left the area where the fire had originated, they neglected to close the door behind them and, thus, the fire was free to spread to other areas of the building.

Finally, each year, batteries in all smoke and carbon monoxide detectors should be changed at the start of Daylight Saving Time in the spring and at the end in the fall. Daylight Saving Time begins on the second Sunday in March and ends on the first Sunday in November. This year, the date to have changed those batteries was Nov. 5.

If you did not change those batteries on that date, please take the time to do so today! Make fire prevention a regular part of your routine. It could save you and your families lives!

The other day I felt the familiar pangs of plant love at first sight. This has happened often over the years because I have a fickle heart and endless curiosity about beautiful and unfamiliar plants. Most of the time these sudden crushes result in good plant acquisitions. A few have turned out badly, but I can't dwell on that, because doing so might make me wary about starting the next delightful plant love affair. Sometimes you just have to take risks.

The object of this week's passion is primulina. This sounds like either a baby primrose or the love child of a primrose and some other closely related species. It is neither of those things and, in fact, a primulina is not a primrose at all. In the world of familiar plants, it is most closely related to African violets and is a fellow card-carrying member of the gesneriad, or

THE GARDENER'S APPRENTICE

BY ELISABETH GINSBURG

I was looking over a display of African violets at Longwood Gardens, one of the epicenters of the horticultural world. The gift shop there was full of enticing plants, but I wanted to ring in the New Year with something small and easy to manage.

primulina, nestled in a 2.5 inch pot, was a variegated African violet. Its fuzzy, rounded leaves, adorned with rippling cream striations, looked very violet-like. I didn't know that the little plant was anything different until I looked at the plant tag, which intrigued and decided that the small cost of the little primulina would more than justify the leap of faith that I would take by buying it.

Plant research is almost as much fun as plant cultivation and when I got my primulina home, I delved into its background. The plant tag was correct; primulinas are native to tropical Asia, including parts of China, Indonesia, Vietnam, Sri Lanka and Thailand. While the plants have always been gesneriad family members, they have not been called "primulina" for long. The genus used to go by the name "Chirita," until plant taxonomists decided that most Chiritas should be transferred to a new species. Primulina then came into being

Had I seen my plant, which goes by the varietal name, "Loki," in flower, I would have known that it is no African violet. The flowers, which rise above the leaves on 3inch stems, are elongated and tubular, looking more like streptocarpus flowers than African violet blooms. Loki bears blue flowers, but primulina cultivars are available in traditional African violet colors, including shades of blue, blue-purple, purple, pink and yellow or cream. Some are bicolors, with contrasting throats or markings. Whatever the color, the blooms are graceful and lovely.

African violets and primulina are both beautiful, but gesneriad family experts report that the latter bloom more often. Combine that trait with the fact that the leaf variegation makes them appealing when not in flower, and you have the mak-Continued on Page 17

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPE

ARIES, March 21 to April 20

If you're noticing more sobering writing-on-the-walls, beware of amplified urges to take a hasty escape-hatch gamble or aggressively project your discontentment onto others.

TAURUS, April 21 to May 21

A very promising opportunity could be just as easily squandered if you use it to antagonistically fixate on what a certain someone is doing with their life rather than examining your own. Stay focused on your own path.

GEMINI, May 21 to June 21

As long as you disavow your share of accountability, you're doomed to remain tied to the very circumstances you silently know are holding you back from greater personal freedom.

CANCER, June 22 to July 22

You have an opportunity to reconnect with the pleasure principle, to realize what's been missing or to run right into the tension between 'what feels good' and 'what's good for you.'

LEO, July 23 to Aug. 23

If you're upset about your current reality, you won't get anywhere by throwing a fit, shrugging it off, or lashing out. You are quite able to change plenty of things about it... but only if you tackle it one day at a time.

VIRGO, Aug. 24 to Sept. 22

Think twice about agreeing to someone else's less-than-enticing suggestions or forcing yourself to override your desires with prohibitive 'realism'. While your mind could convince yourself it's a sensible sacrifice, your heart begs to differ.

LIBRA, Sept. 23 to Oct. 23

Don't discount the importance of your responsibility to your own well-being as you continue making forward moves on the material plane. Your worth is limited by what you're willing to settle for, both economically and emotionally.

SCORPIO, Oct. 24 to Nov. 22

you'll gain an advantage by complementing your ambitious actions with the important work of selling your agenda to as many different types of people as you can, even if it requires sustained communicative efforts to reach various audiences.

SAGITTARIUS, Nov. 23 to Dec. 21

Dust yourself off and keep on going ... though you might first need to take a few moments to thoroughly feel the upset and grieve any losses, preferably out of public sight.

CAPRICORN, Dec. 22 to Jan. 20

Avoid obvious social tensions or play it neutral when your self-respect is at stake. Why expend energy on all that politicking when, instead, you could reserve it for your designated purposes?

AQUARIUS, Jan. 21 to Feb. 18

PISCES, Feb. 19 to March 20

a general mess of things, but we still have hope in the New Year. With that in mind, we have a few resolutions that should be able to apply to everyone.

 We resolve to continue exercising. Whether we're walking at state beaches, state parks or simply taking a brisk walk around the block each day, everyone can benefit from a little activity.

· We resolve to carpool more and drive less. The United States should be leading the world by example, meaning we should be reducing our carbon footprint. The easiest way to do that is to drive less or by having fewer cars on the road in the first place.

· We resolve to pick up after ourselves. It's called the Garden State for a reason, not the Trash Heap. When you're doing all of this walking, don't litter. If you see something on the ground, pick it up and throw it away. Set a good example for others to emulate.

· We resolve to clean out the medicine cabinet. Nearly one in three households has someone living there who has been prescribed an opioid in the past year and still has some of that medicine left over. Don't leave that as a temptation for children.

• We resolve to be nicer people. If you want to yell at the television set during a sports event or movie, do so. Just don't take your anger out on the rest of us. We're all just trying to make this world a better place, and that's a little easier when we're making friends, not enemies.

· We resolve not to gossip or spread rumors. Nothing can be gained by this, other than you having to apologize at a later time for something you thought was true.

We hope everyone had a safe, enjoyable New Year's Eve celebration. We wish you luck on your personal resolutions and hope you can find the time to try some of ours.

We wish everyone a happy New Year.

Loki is a hybrid plant, as are many of the primulinas on the market. Depending on the parent plants' traits, primulina leaves may be rounded or elongated. My daughter, who was bitten by the same plant-acquisition bug as I, purchased Rachel, a variety with purple flowers and long, lance-shaped leaves. Some plants feature unadorned green foliage, but most of the commercially available hybrids bear the characteristic variegation.

Until primulinas become horticultural superstars, they will travel in the company of African violets.

My plant and many other popular varieties were hybridized by Peter Shalit, a former president of the Gesneriad Society, the interest group for lovers of African violets, streptocarpus, gloxinia and related species. A look at several retailers' websites suggests that Shalit is responsible for a number of very attractive hybrids.

If you can keep an African violet alive, you can provide the kind of enlightened neglect that will result in thriving primulina. The plants prefer bright, indirect light.

Restrain yourself when watering and wait until the top of the soil is somewhat dry to the touch. Try not to get water on the leaves. Overwatering will cause crown rot, just as it does with African violets.

Feed your primulina with a diluted fertilizer recommended for African violets. If you want to propagate a desirable plant, pluck off a leaf and insert the petiole or stem end in moistened potting medium. Water sparingly as needed, and in a month or so, a new plantlet will form.

Young primulinas, like mine, may take up to a year to flower, but be patient, the wait is worthwhile and the foliage is entrancing. In the meantime, install your

Dayton girls' basketball has grand time winning tourney MVP Lau reaches 1,000, lifts squad to title

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

SPRINGFIELD – Dayton senior Amanda Lau drained a 3-point field goal from the left side with 3:33 left in the first quarter to put her over the 1,000 point total for her career, giving her 1,001 with a shot that hit nothing but the bottom of the net.

However, it was a hoop she made running through the lane early in the fourth quarter – her second consecutive basket of that variety – that gave the Bulldogs the lead for good after they had squandered an 11-point advantage they built early in the third.

Lau, who paced all scorers with a superb 26-point performance, also scored the game's final point with 6.7 seconds to go to clinch her team's fifth victory.

Dayton came back in the fourth quarter, with Lau scoring five of the team's 12 points in those critical eight minutes, to edge Morristown-Beard 52-49 in Friday's 14th annual Joe Pepe Holiday Tournament championship game at Dayton High School.

The battle of 4-0 squads put Dayton at 5-0 entering January and Morristown-Beard at 4-1.

Lau needed just four points to reach 1,000 and began with a steal and a layup for her first two points to pull the Bulldogs to within 3-2. Scoring the first three points of the game was Crimson high scorer Bridget Monaghan, who scored inside, was fouled and then completed the conventional three-point play by making the ensuing free throw.

A junior, Monaghan needed 30 points to reach 1,000. She finished with 24 and will most likely reach the coveted milestone in her team's next game. Monaghan made three 2s, three 3s and was 9-for-11 from the free throw line.

Monaghan made her first nine free throw attempts. She did not score in the game's final 4:30 and missed her final two free throw attempts when Dayton was ahead 51-49 with 1:36 remaining.

Lau made a game-high five 2s and a game-high four 3s, scoring 13 points in each half.

"Every team is tough and it took a total team effort for us to win this game," Lau said.

A steal and a layup by Dayton junior Sayre Brandstatter gave the Bulldogs a 34-23 lead oneminute into the third quarter.

However, Morristown-Beard ended the period on a 9-0 run – sparked by scoring from three different players – to take a 41-40 lead entering the fourth. See BULLDOGS on next page

Members of the 2017-2018 Johnson High School Crusader Athletic Leadership Countil listened to guest speaker Keirsten Sires, who played tennis and soccer in college at Skidmore and who started a project in her entrepreneurship class called Locker Room Talk.

Athletic Leadership Council welcomes college standout

On Dec. 13 members of the Crusader Athletic Leadership Council met in the Arthur L. Johnson High School IMC. This is the seventh year for the Crusader Athletic Leadership Council, an organization that has been founded to help educate our student athletes on some of the expectations that we have for them as they compete interscholastically in a variety of athletics. We hope that by informing this council of some of our expectations, we will be able to foster an open and healthy relationship amongst our student athletes, the school culture, and the community of Clark.

The C.A.L.C.'s welcomed Keirsten Sires as a guest speaker to discuss leadership and the recruiting process as it pertains to all student athletes. Keirsten played tennis and soccer in college at Skidmore, and started a project in her entrepreneurship class called Locker Room Talk. Locker Room Talk is a platform that aims to keep the college recruiting process honest & easy, while providing high school athletes and their families with invaluable information during the recruiting process. They offer seminars, workshops and consulting to high school student-athletes across the country.

Gus Kalikas, Athletic Director at Arthur L. Johnson High School, had this to say about the event. "The C.A.L.C. was thrilled to have Keirsten Sires come and speak to us on multiple topics relevant to high school athletics today, including recruiting. Keirsten reached all of our students and left them with great strategies that will not only help on the fields, courts, and mats, but also in the game of recruiting. She was a true professional and delivered a wonderful message."

Bulldogs best 2 foes to win own Joe Pepe holiday event

"We just had to slow things down a bit and continue to make plays," Brandstatter said.

"We had to increase our energy on defense," Lau said.

A layup by Monaghan to start the fourth increased the Crimson's game-high 11-0 run and gave MB a 43-40 lead before Lau answered with two straight layups to put Dayton out in front for the fourth time and for good.

Dayton senior Melanie Schickler followed with her only 3-pointer, fading from the left side, to give Dayton a 47-43 advantage as the home team fans roared in approval.

"We had to stick together," said Schickler, who finished with nine points. "We found our composure and were able to hit some baskets in tough times."

Monaghan's final points came on a 3-pointer that pulled Morristown-Beard to 47-46 with 4:30 left, prompting Dayton to call a timeout.

Dayton head coach Dave Rennie wanted to be sure that Monaghan was not going to get any more easy looks.

"This was the kind of game where every possession counted," Rennie said.

Brandstatter countered with a huge 3-pointer from the left side and then Morristown-Beard junior Christina DeMatthis made her second 3 to pull the Crimson back to being down by just one again at 50-49.

Dayton missed a layup on its next possession before the Crimson came up short at the free throw line to tie the game.

After getting fouled going to the basket, Dayton sophomore Michelle Bellino made the second of her two free throw attempts to make it 51-49 with just under two minutes to go.

Morristown-Beard missed a layup with less than a minute to go and then Caitlynn McTernan came up with a steal for the Bulldogs with 37 seconds left. However, Dayton turned the ball back over to Morristown-Beard with 29 seconds to go.

The Crimson had two chances inside, but both shots fell short. Bellino was fouled again, but missed the first free throw. Fortunately for Dayton, the Bulldogs were able to retain possession. Lau was then fouled with 6.7 seconds left.

She made the first free throw and missed the second. Lau made four of six free throw attempts.

A last-second 3-point attempt from the right side by DeMatthies was blocked with contact, but no foul was called.

"This took a total team effort," Rennie said.

"To be 5-0 is a great start," Lau said.

Lau said she was more concerned with winning the championship and hoisting a team trophy than balloons that were going to be bestowed upon her for reaching 1,000 points.

Johnson boys' basketball continues success 3-0 start follows stellar 22-5 campaign that included a section final

By JR Parachini Sports Editor

Editor's note: Johnson was defeated by eventual champion Rahway 74-68 and then by Holmdel 53-50 in the Rahway Tournament. The Crusaders began January at 3-2 and seeking to get back on the winning track.

Here is my story following Johnson's 3-0 start.

CLARK - From the little engine that could.

To the engine that proved it could.

To the, as senior tri-captain Joe DiProfio put it, "the team that now has a target on its back."

The Johnson boys' basketball team has so far continued where it left off last season – which was one of the finest the Crusaders ever produced.

When Johnson faces Rahway at Rahway in the first round of the Rahway Holiday Tournament Dec. 27 at 7:30 p.m., both teams will be 3-0.

However, this time Johnson may not be the underdog for a change.

"Teams are now coming for us," DiProfio continued Saturday afternoon after Johnson took care of visiting New Egypt 55-37.

The Crusaders have won their first three games – all at home – by double digits, including Union County Conference-Sky Division triumphs over New Providence (68-58) and Roselle Park (86-59).

Much-improved 12-12 (in 2014-2015) and 12-13 (in 2015-2016) campaigns were followed up last year with an epic 22-5 season that included a Rahway Holiday Tournament championship, a 17-1 start, repeating as the UCC's Sky Division champions (perfect 10-0 league mark) and then – as the No. 3 seed – reaching the Central Jersey, Group 2 state championship game where the Crusaders came so close at top-seeded Rumson-Fair Haven before falling to the host Bulldogs 57-51.

Johnson lost at RFH 77-47 in the quarterfinals two years ago. That's just one example of how far the Crusaders have come.

This year's squad includes four returning starters: seniors George Visconti and DiProfio and juniors Brenden Kelly and Brandon Hund, along with senior Jeff Drajin who is a starter for the first time after playing a lot last winter.

Visconti, DiProfio and Drajin are the captains. Visconti's 18 points Saturday puts him 349 shy of 2,000.

Last year Johnson defeated Holmdel 61-58 and then – also in a battle of undefeated teams – the Crusaders edged Rahway 36-35 to win the Rahway Holiday Tournament. Johnson also defeated Holmdel in the CJ, G2 playoffs.

This year's Rahway Holiday Tournament is set up next week to pit Governor Livingston vs. Holmdel at 6 p.m. on Dec. 27, with Johnson vs. Rahway to follow at 7:30 p.m.

The consolation (6 p.m.) and championship (7:30 p.m.) games are set for Dec. 29.

Rahway went 21-4 last year, repeated (with an 11-1 record) as the UCC's Valley Division champion and then - as the top seed - reached the North 2, Group 3 semifinals before falling at home against fifth-seeded and eventual champion Barringer 76-68.

"What we were able to do in the Rahway Tournament last year was the first glimpse of how good we could be," Visconti said. "It also helped our county seating (Johnson ended up the ninth seed) and got us some power points (referring to state seeding)."

"Rahway is sort of like a home away from home for us," Drajin said. "Bring it." Rahway has opened with home wins over Hillside (59-44) and Koinonia (70-27) and has also won at Gov. Livingston (69-59). The Indians lead the Valley Division once again at 2-0.

"Beating Rahway last year was the start of a list of quality wins for us," said ninth-year Johnson head coach Dave Kennedy. "It gave us a little more confidence, we were a bit lucky and eventually we reached a sectional final."

Rahway will be hungry to avenge last year's loss as Johnson will be playing away from home for the first time.

On Saturday in the Louis J. Peragallo Gymnasium at Johnson High School, the Crusaders turned it up a notch defensively in the third quarter to pull away from a nipand-tuck game that saw them ahead by just one point at intermission.

Johnson ultimately produced a decisive 55-37 win over visiting Group 1 New Egypt. Last year in Ocean County on Feb. 21, Johnson defeated the Warriors by the score of 54-38 to improve to 19-3. That was Johnson's second-to-last game before the states.

"They were tough again," Kennedy said.

The first half included seven New Egypt leads, the biggest being two on five different occasions and the last at 19-17; five Johnson leads, the biggest being three at 24-21; and four ties, all of them in the first quarter, including a 12-12 deadlock at the end of the first eight minutes.

A 3-pointer, his second of two, by Visconti from the top of the key gave Johnson the lead for good at 20-19 with just over two minutes to go before halftime.

Owen Raab scored 10 of his team-high 14 points in the second quarter, which was all but one point of New Egypt's offensive production that period.

Visconti paced all scorers with 18 points. He had 12 at the half and shot six-of-23 from the field. Visconti was perfect from the foul line, making all four attempts.

"We were fired up at halftime to come out and play much better," Visconti said.

Johnson scored the first six points of the third quarter to increase its lead to seven at 30-23 when New Egypt called a timeout. Visconti hit a shot from the right side and then one in the lane before Drajin produced his only two-point basket.

At that point, more than two minutes into the period, New Egypt had already turned the ball over twice. Less than a minute later Johnson's upgraded, swarming defense included a New Egypt offensive charge, with the Warriors called for their fourth foul to none at that point for Johnson.

The Crusaders simply prevented New Egypt from getting into any kind of offensive rhythm whatsoever. A 3-pointer by DiProfio from the right side gave Johnson its first 10point lead at 33-23.

Another New Egypt turnover followed. Five minutes into the period Johnson had outshot the Warriors 9-1.

New Egypt did not score until there was just 2:25 left in the quarter. Johnson outscored the Warriors 13-4 in the period, with Jeff Sakimura scoring the only two New Egypt baskets during those eight minutes.

"Our pressure defense is what we focus on a lot," Visconti said. "It's become our identity. We shook them up with it."

With every Johnson stop, rebound or action that forced a New Egypt turnover, the crowd roared with increased jubilation.

"We have a great crowd," DiProfio said. "They make us play harder."

"There are multiple ways to win," Kennedy said. "We need to make stops. Somewhere down the road we will need to and today we were able to do so in that third quarter.

"We were also able to do that against New Providence. We will need to continue to improve and defend."

Juniors Brandon Hund and Brenden Kelly also scored in double digits for Johnson, with Hund netting 14 and Kelly 11. DiProfio finished with eight and Drajin with four. Drajin also had three streals in the first quarter.

"We're trying to change the Johnson culture," Drajin said. "I think last year by playing Rumson again (in the states) we proved it was not a fluke. We were there for a reason."

Other Johnson players include senior Ross Wildes (No. 12); juniors Eric Bretz (No. 23), Art Brownlee (No. 22), Marcos Castro (No. 20) and Luke Giltner (No. 32); sophomores Robert Lukasiewicz (No. 25) and Matthew O'Connor (No. 4) and freshman Tino Puentes (No. 11).

"I like this team," Kennedy said. "It can do a lot of different things. There's no reason for them not to be confident.

"However, we can't get ahead of ourselves. We're not talented enough for that. The kids need to keep working hard.

"We have a kid (DiProfio) who scored 32 points for us in a state tournament (Bordentown) win last year, another (Visconti) that my score 2,000 points, we have two juniors (Hund and Kelly) who put up big numbers for us last year and Drajin has made a huge jump, this year being his first as a starter.

"We can score in transition and in other ways. We just have to keep working hard at it."

NOTES: Swarthmore College was at Johnson Saturday to watch Visconti. The four-year varsity starter also mentioned Carnegie Mellon, Johns Hopkins, Lehigh and Bucknell as other schools he's looking at, in addition to other Patriot League schools as well as Ivy League ones.

Visconti also said that just a few days ago he was accepted into the engineering program at Villanova.

He said he will most likely make his college selection after the season.

Rahway boys' hoops captures own tourney

The Rahway boys' basketball team captured its own holiday tournament last week by first defeating defending champion Johnson 74-68 and then Gov. Livingston 56-43 in the championship game.

Johnson beat Rahway 36-35 in last year's final.

Rahway, which repeated last year as the Union County Conference's Valley Division champion en route to a 21-4 finish, began January with a 5-0 record. Sophomore Nicolas Galette scored 29 points and senior Keyshawn Cummings 21 vs. GL.

RP's Matthews honored at Kean

Twelve members of the Kean University men's football team including Brian Matthews of Roselle Park - were named to the 2017 New Jersey Athletic Conference (NJAC) roster.

Among them was Senior Linebacker Darin Hungerford, who was named the Sam Mills Defensive Player of the Year.

"Everything about how they carry themselves—on and off the field—makes me proud of my team," said Head Coach Dan Garrett. "Each of the players proved to be selfless, resilient, hard working, strong, mentally tough, loyal and loving to each other and the program, and all-around incredible young men."

Matthews, a junior, is a global fitness and wellness major.

It was impressive stats that landed Hungerford to also be named to the NJAC First Team, along with first-timers David Jimerson of Howell, Matthews and Chris Vurchio of Hazlet.

Matthews, who was previously named to the NJAC Second Team in 2016, rushed for 704 yards on 140 carries and totaled five touchdowns on the ground. Through the air, he collected 141 yards on 17 receptions and two touchdowns.

Matthews ranked second in the NJAC in rushing, sixth in all-purpose yards, seven in touchdowns and 10th in total offense.

RC girls' start 4-0 after holiday win

The Roselle Catholic girls' basketball team began January perfect at 4-0 after winning its own holiday tournament.

The Lions defeated West Orange 46-40 in last week's championship game two days after beating Matawan 66-39.

All-Tournament Team selection Victoria Jacobs scored a team-high 15 points, including seven in the fourth quarter, to help lead the Lions to a 16-5 spree during the final stanza of its win vs. West Orange.

Jacobs sank a 3-point field goal to cut West Orange's lead to two points with about three minutes left. RC's Tyara McQueen nailed a foulline jumper 30 seconds later to help the Lions, who trailed by 12 points in the second half, forge a tie.

McQueen, with 10 points and six assists, was also an All-Tournament Team selection as well. McQueen and Jenissa Encarnacion both went 3-for-4 from the line in the fourth quarter.

RC sank 15-of-21 foul shots for the game, including 9-for-13 from the stripe during the final eight minutes.

RC Tournament MVP Taniya Hanner finished with nine points and 12 rebounds to help lead the comeback victory.

West Orange's Mya Bembry, an All-Tournament Team selection, scored a game-high 16 points, including 11 in the first half.

The Mountaineers shot 6-for-10 from the foul line for the game.

Union boys' win Matawan T.

The Union boys' basketball team concluded the December portion of its schedule with a four-game winning streak.

The Farmers capped it by winning last week's Matawan Tournament. Union entered January with a 4-2 record.

The Farmers defeated Old Bridge 59-48, Tottenville, NY 80-45 and then Matawan in the championship game to bring home the trophy.

Union also begins January with a 1-0 record in the Mountain Division of the Union County Conference.
